CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

EU Youth Council

The Minister for Children, Young People and Families (Beverley Hughes): Anne Lambert (Deputy Permanent Representative to the EU) attended the Youth Council on behalf of the UK.

Ministers discussed the following issues:

Resolution on implementing common objectives for voluntary activities of young people.

Council adopted the resolution, noting the usefulness of volunteering for young people's social inclusion. Italy asked the Commission to propose an EU charter on volunteering. The Commission agreed on the need for new EU instruments, but did not commit to the idea of a charter. The UK has been keen to emphasise the positive impacts of voluntary activities by young people but remains opposed to the idea of a charter. We accept the need for discussions on the need for further instruments but do not want to pre-empt the outcome of these.

Member states agreed to adopt the conclusions without discussion. These conclusions call for a more cross-cutting, mainstreaming approach to youth policy across education and employment in the context of the Lisbon agenda, particularly to help transitions into work. The UK supports this approach and has already adopted it in programmes such as "Every Child Matters/Youth Matters" as well as its National Reform Programme.

Exchange of views on better consideration of youth issues in the implementation of the Lisbon strategy and implementing the European Youth Pact.

The UK did not intervene in Council but circulated a paper setting out its position subsequently. This paper reiterated the UK belief that youth policy is best formulated at local level, involving all services and stakeholders, and that the Youth Pact is best implemented through the National Reform Programmes (NRPs). The paper welcomed the Commission initiative to monitor youth issues through the NRPs and report on this to the Youth Council to facilitate exchange of good practice under the Open Method of Co-ordination. However, in common with a number of other member states, the UK restated its view that there was no need for any additional youth-specific reporting requirements as existing mechanisms provided all the necessary data.

OLYMPICS

London 2012 Sustainability Plan

The Minister for the Olympics (Tessa Jowell): The London 2012 Sustainability Plan—"Towards a One Planet 2012"—will be published today, by the Olympic board.

It is an important step in realising the intention of the Government and the Olympic board key stakeholders (Minister for the Olympics, Mayor of London, British Olympic Association, and the two Olympic Delivery bodies: LOCOG and ODA) to make the Olympic park a blueprint for sustainable living, and to use the inspiration of 2012 to encourage people to live healthier, environmentally conscious lives and to support the Olympic ideals.

"Towards a One Planet 2012" aims to show progress towards achieving a sustainable Olympic and Paralympic games in each of the five main sustainability themes:

climate change;
waste;
biodiversity;
inclusion; and healthy living.

These aspects of sustainability are closely linked and, in most cases, mutually supporting. For example, by promoting biodiversity, we may reduce the impacts of climate change; by bringing economic benefits to deprived communities, we improve their health; by re-using construction materials, we reduce their demands on the world's resources.

The plan focuses on the work being undertaken by London 2012 and the other members of the Olympic board. It sets out achievements to date, commitments made, and areas where further work is underway to determine what the games can achieve for each of the preparation, staging the games and legacy stages. Within each of these stages, the focus has been on how sustainability can be maximised and this will continue to be the focus for the Government and the Olympic board going forward.

The plan identifies areas where we intend to exceed earlier sustainability targets, such as by ensuring that the 4000 new homes in the Olympic village will be at least 44 per cent. more energy efficient than 2006 Building Regulations, where the ODA's initial target was to make the homes in the Olympic village 25 per cent. more energy efficient than 2006 Building Regulations.

The plan is open about the limits and constraints on what can be achieved, such as for the treatment of waste during and after the games, which will depend on the provision of facilities and technologies that are not yet in place. Where this is the case, the plan signals the intentions of London 2012, and sets out the developments that need to be in place to make an intention a reality.

The London 2012 programme is fast-moving and the intention is for the plan to be updated annually to reflect progress in achieving existing goals, to review those and to set new ones to address new issues that emerge.

I am placing copies of the plan in the Library and I will place copies of the annual updates in the Library when these are available.

PRIME MINISTER

Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting (Uganda)

The Prime Minister (Mr. Gordon Brown): The biennial Commonwealth Heads of Government meeting (CHOGM) took place in Kampala, from 23 to 25 November. Her Majesty the Queen attended the meeting in her role as Head of the Commonwealth. This was Her Majesty the Queen's 18th CHOGM, and I—like my fellow Commonwealth leaders—pay tribute to her dedication and commitment to the Commonwealth.

The meeting came at a critical moment: in the midst of the democratic crisis in Pakistan; one week before the Bali climate change conference with only 10 to 15 years to turn the tide on global warming; half way to the millennium development goals which the world is in danger of not meeting; with months left to agree a global trade deal; and with no room for complacency in the fight against extremism.

And as a unique partnership of rich and poor countries, the Commonwealth has a critical role to play in meeting these challenges.

Commonwealth leaders met in the aftermath of President Musharraf's decision on 3 November to declare a state of emergency. On 12 November the Commonwealth Ministers' Action Group (CMAG) set out five conditions for Pakistan to fulfil in order to avoid suspension from the Commonwealth: lifting the state of emergency; the president giving up his job as chief of staff of the army; holding free and fair elections; releasing political detainees incarcerated during the emergency; and removing restrictions on the freedom of the press. Meeting in Kampala on the eve of CHOGM, CMAG concluded that whilst progress had been made—not least the commitment to an election that has been announced for 8 January—the five conditions had not been met and, crucially, the state of emergency was still in place. Therefore Pakistan was suspended from the Councils of the Commonwealth.

The CHOGM and the UK made clear that we hope to see Pakistan restored to the Commonwealth as soon as possible and will revisit the suspension in January once the election has taken place.

The Commonwealth has sent the strongest signal that, above all, it stands for democracy, human rights and the rule of law.

The meeting also agreed with the need to act collectively to:

redouble their efforts to deliver education for all, with a particular focus on enrolling the 30 million primary school aged children out of school across the Commonwealth; eliminating gender disparity in education; and strengthening education systems in countries affected by conflict. At Britain's initiative, heads also undertook to put in place, by the end of 2008, at least 20 long-term education plans of the type endorsed by the Education for All Fast Track Initiative, and to focus on measuring and improving the quality of education; achieve a successful conclusion to the WTO's negotiations, in light of the fundamental contribution of international trade to global prosperity, sustainable development and to the elimination of poverty;

establish a small group of Commonwealth Heads to campaign for reform of international institutions, in order to achieve an architecture which reflects today's global challenges and is more effective and more representative; meet the Millennium Development Goals—the responsibility of all countries rich and poor—and called for a UN meeting next year to re-energise global efforts; and, achieve a declaration on climate change, as we move towards the Bali summit, by calling for a long term global goal for emissions reduction to which all countries must contribute—a comprehensive post-2012 global agreement that strengthens, broadens and deepens current arrangements and leads to reduced emissions of global greenhouse gasses. We agreed on the need for all Commonwealth members to assess the implications of climate change for their societies, and offered new technical assistance through the Commonwealth to help achieve this.

CHOGM also endorsed the analysis by the Commission on Respect and Understanding led by Nobel Prize Winner Amartya Sen on how to promote respect and understanding among different ethnic and faith groups. The meeting recognised that all countries must work together to tackle the causes of radicalisation and noted that the diversity of its members gives the Commonwealth a unique perspective on these issues. Heads of Government committed to developing concrete activities to give practical effect to the Commission's recommendations.

We also applauded the work of Don McKinnon, outgoing Secretary-General of the Commonwealth, who has led the organisation with energy and creativity and welcomed his successor, Mr. Sharma.

I am confident that, following the Kampala CHOGM, the Commonwealth can continue to play a vital role in international affairs.

Copies of the concluding communiqué have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

TRANSPORT

Crossrail

The Secretary of State for Transport (Ruth Kelly): I am today placing in the House Library a copy of the "Heads of Terms for Crossrail" that has been agreed between the Department for Transport and Transport for London. Having passed through the necessary approval processes, this document has now been signed and is being released into the public domain accordingly.

The "Heads of Terms" details the agreements between DfT and TfL that underpinned last month's announcement on the funding of Crossrail. It sets out, with only those redactions necessary to prevent harm to commercial interests, the agreements that have been reached between DfT and TfL on the future funding and governance of the Crossrail project. I have also put in the Library a shorter explanatory note for the "Heads of Terms"—this sets out the main points, but should not by itself be treated as comprehensive.

As the Chancellor explained in his pre-Budget report, DfT will contribute over £5 billion in grants to the cost of the project. It will additionally be responsible for procuring contributions from the City Corporation and BAA. In total, DfT will be responsible for securing funding for Crossrail of £5.6 billion.

The Mayor, through TfL and GLA, will be responsible for total funding of up to £7.7 billion. He has indicated that he would raise this from a combination of debt raised on the back of a new levy on National Non-Domestic Rates in London, TfL prudential borrowing, developer contributions along the Crossrail route and other sources. A letter from the Mayor setting out how he envisages doing so is also being placed in the House Library. For TfL to raise this funding, there will need to be changes to existing legislation—both to allow the NNDR levy and to facilitate the planned contribution from developers through a new planning charge. As CLG ministers have already announced, these changes will be brought forward in due course.

DfT and TfL will remain as co-sponsors of the Crossrail project, jointly specifying the outputs that the project is expected to deliver. This reflects the very substantial financial contributions that both will make. A new joint high-level sponsor board will be established between DfT and TfL to act as the single client to supervise CLRL's delivery of the sponsors' requirements for Crossrail.

The Crossrail delivery company Cross London Rail Links will also be restructured. It will become a 100 per cent. owned TfL subsidiary, but one with the level of autonomy necessary if it is to focus solely on the delivery of the Crossrail project, in line with the sponsors' requirements. The successful delivery of the Channel Tunnel Rail Link has demonstrated the importance of this single focus. Importantly, CLRL's board will include a majority of non-executive directors, bringing with them added experience of how best to manage risk on projects of this scale.

As the "Heads of Terms" set out, the current intention is that TfL should be responsible for procuring the Crossrail rail services, but DfT will be closely involved in detailed service and timetable planning so as to ensure that proper account is given to interests both inside and outside of London.

DfT will also retain significant rights during construction, including the right to consent to the identity of any new chairman of CLRL, to nominate a non-executive director, and to appoint a project representative to monitor delivery of the project. These rights are similar to those that DfT had on the successful delivery of the Channel Tunnel Rail Link.

We are confident that the identified capital budget for the project of £15.9 billion will be sufficient. Ultimately, however, if TfL's ability to take risk on Crossrail should be exhausted or if it should default on its agreements with DfT more widely, then DfT will be able to take CLRL back into its direct ownership.

Over the coming months, DfT, TfL and CLRL will work to turn the heads of terms into full and binding agreements, with the aim of having these in place by the time that the Crossrail Bill achieves Royal Assent. This should allow construction to begin in earnest in 2010, with the first services following in 2017.

WALES

National Assembly for Wales (Legislative Competence) Order

The Secretary of State for Wales (Mr. Peter Hain): I am pleased to inform the House that the proposed draft National Assembly for Wales (Legislative Competence) Order in the field of Social Welfare has been laid today, as Command Paper (7286). Copies of it can be found in the Vote Office and Library from 12 noon. I have written to the Welsh Affairs Committee to request they undertake pre-legislative scrutiny.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Next Steps to Full Employment

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. Peter Hain): Over the last decade huge progress has been made in reversing entrenched unemployment, child poverty and benefit dependency with the creation of 2.8 million new jobs and one million people off key out-of-work benefits since 1997. But we are not prepared to rest there. We want a society in which every city, town and village in Britain is a working community.

There are still too many people who are not sharing in the rising prosperity of the nation. The ability to get, and keep a job and then to progress in work is the best route out of poverty. The Government will provide increasing support and opportunity to ensure that our people have the skills to keep them in work and make them better off.

To do that we need to do still more to help disabled people and those with health conditions, lone parents and long term unemployed people get into rewarding and sustainable jobs.

That means a stronger framework of rights and responsibilities for benefit claimants so that people who can work have the right support to enable them to do so.

It means making the support available more responsive to the needs of individuals and employers.

It means a new emphasis on skills so that there is a focus on retention and progression, not just job entry.

Today my Department and the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills are setting out how we will bring progressive welfare and skills provision together. Copies of our joint publication "Opportunity, Employment and Progression: Making Skills Work" will be laid later today and will then be available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

We are clear that in future, good training to develop the skills that employers want has to be a central part of helping people into jobs, and helping people stay in jobs. Our goal is sustainable employment, not cycling between short term work and repeated spells on benefit. We want to support progression in work as well as entry to work. That has major implications for the way the training system supports those who need to gain new skills and qualifications. The Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills will be setting out these implications more fully in a statement today.

Helping people into work is a key challenge. But it is only the start.

We must unlock the talents and skills of our people to equip them to compete in the globalised world and earn more for their families.

Otherwise we will not improve social cohesion or provide the skills that British businesses need to succeed in the 21st century.

There are also major new policy developments that fall to the Department for Work and Pensions. New claimants of out-of-work benefits will go through a systematic skills screening process to identify basic numeracy, literacy or language needs. Those identified with skills needs which are a major barrier to finding employment will be referred to attend a full skills health check, delivered by the new adult advancement and careers service. For claimants reaching six months on jobseeker's allowance or the new employment and support allowance, we will enable personal advisers to mandate a skills health check if appropriate.

Based on the results of a skills health check, the personal adviser will decide whether the claimant should be referred to training focused on getting them back to work. We will pilot making such training mandatory for claimants who reach the six month point on jobseeker's allowance.

At present lone parents lose eligibility for income support when their youngest child turns 16, however we have been consulting on whether this age should be lowered. To ensure that all lone parents are making the preparations needed to engage with mandatory jobsearch at this point, we will encourage them to undergo a skills health check two years before their eligibility for income support is due to end. And we intend to consult on whether this should be mandatory.

Currently benefit rules prevent jobseeker's allowance customers from studying for more than 16 hours per week, for more than two weeks per year. In the future, we will enable customers who have been claiming JSA for six months or more to undertake full time training for up to eight weeks, provided that the training is focused on a return to work—by moving them onto training allowances. We will also remove the so-called '16-hour rule' in housing benefit for short-term recipients of incapacity benefit.

And because we recognise the particular challenges faced by some vulnerable groups who require housing benefit whilst undertaking necessary full-time training, we will consider whether it might be practicable to define limited exemptions from the '16-hour rule' for specific groups—such as young people living in supported accommodation.

We will roll out two elements of the current employment retention and advancement pilot nationally for lone parents:

in-work advisory support from Jobcentre Plus to help customers with the transition to work and to help them advance in work; and the In-work Emergency Fund which gives lone parents moving into work of 16 hours or more per week, access to discretionary payments (up to £300) to avert financial emergencies that might otherwise prevent them continuing in work.

My Department is currently rolling out the Pathways to Work programme for new claimants of incapacity benefit, and next year will be introducing the new employment and support allowance. Today I am also announcing that we will gradually roll out pathways support to existing incapacity benefit claimants who are aged under 25.

Through tax credits, in-work credits and the minimum wage, this Government have already done a great deal to make work pay. We now intend to go further, to ensure that long-term benefit claimants moving into work see an increase in their income of at least £25 per week—thereby making allowance for reasonable travel costs.

These measures will play an important part in the next radical phase of welfare reform which will open up unprecedented opportunities for disadvantaged groups to contribute to and to benefit from national prosperity. Tomorrow I intend to publish further details on how we will work with the private and third sectors to deliver this vision.

There are over 600,000 job vacancies in Britain every day. Our mission is to get British benefit claimants into British jobs to become British workers.

A copy of the Prime Minister's speech delivered today to the CBI will be available at: www.number-10.gov.uk

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

EU Cohesion Policy

The Minister for Competitiveness (Mr. Stephen Timms): In the Fourth Cohesion Report, published on 30 May 2007, the European Commission assesses the impact of cohesion policy at community, national and regional levels in the European Union. The report also identifies a range of challenges that cohesion policy may be confronted with in the coming years and puts forward a set of questions for consultation. The consultation was formally launched at the Fourth Cohesion Forum in Brussels, held on the 27-28 September 2007, which I attended, and will close on 31 January 2008.

Cohesion policy is supported by actions at EU, national, regional and local levels. The consultation is not therefore solely about the Structural and Cohesion Funds (SCFs) which have new objectives for the 2007-13 period.

The SCFs are, however, a significant part of the EC budget, on which the Commission has recently published a Communication: "Reforming the Budget, Changing Europe", also for public consultation, to prepare for the Budget review in 2008-09. According to the Communication, the Commission's approach is one of openness and with nothing ruled in and nothing ruled out: it will prepare this review with no preconceptions and encourages all interested parties to contribute to the consultation.

The Government are considering their approach both to the Commission's consultation on the future of cohesion policy and to the budget review process.

In considering the Cohesion report the Government will be looking at:

The aims of Cohesion policy.

The most efficient mechanisms for achieving these aims

The Government's view on the EC budget is that it should be reformed so that the EU is better equipped to meet the challenges of the 21st century. Its approach is set out in the recent publication "Global Europe: Meeting the Economic and Security Challenges, October 2007" publication. This identifies budgetary reform as one of the priority areas for EU action and sets out the three principles that will guide the Government's approach when considering how to achieve budgetary reform. Based on these principles, a priority for reform in the future will be "a significant increase in the percentage of Structural and Cohesion Funds (SCFs) spent on poorer Member States".

This is consistent with the policy direction set out in the Government's March 2003 publication "A modern regional policy for the United Kingdom".

The Government encourage interested parties in the UK to respond directly to the Commission on the Cohesion report. We would also be interested in their views.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

ContactPoint: Funding and Implementation

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Kevin Brennan): I am announcing today levels of funding to local authorities to support the implementation of ContactPoint and providing an update on the implementation timetable.

Some £40 million will be made available to support local implementation until March 2009, made up of the following elements:

£27 million to local authorities in England, from April 2008 to March 2009, to support implementation.

£1 million from April 2008 to March 2009 to support national partners' ContactPoint implementation projects.

A further £12 million, from January 2008 made available to lead organisations to support modifications to case management systems. This will enable the main existing systems to provide data to ContactPoint and/or for authorised users to be able to have one-way access to ContactPoint via those systems.

We have also provided indicative funding allocations to local authorities for future years: £27 million in 2009-10 and £15 million in 2010-11. My officials will write to local authorities and national partners today to inform local authorities and other partners about this funding.

ContactPoint is a key element of the "Every Child Matters" programme to transform children's services by supporting more effective prevention and early intervention. Its goal is to improve outcomes and the experience of public services for all children, young people and families. ContactPoint will provide a tool to support better communication among practitioners across education, health, social care and youth offending. It will provide a quick way for those practitioners to find out who else is working with the same child or young person.

ContactPoint will be a simple basic online tool containing:

minimal identifying information for each child; name, address, date of birth, gender, and contact details for parents or carers. Each child will also have a unique identifying number;

contact details for the child's educational setting and GP practice and for other practitioners or services working with them; and an indication as to whether a service or practitioner holds an assessment under the Common Assessment Framework or whether they are a lead professional for that child.

No case information will be held on ContactPoint.

ContactPoint is being developed with extensive input from a wide range of stakeholders. These include:

delivery partners—local authorities and national partners (for example, voluntary and community sector organisations); practitioners and managers from across children's services, and bodies that represent them; and children, young people and parents and carers.

Over the last few months we have been considering the substantial stakeholder feedback we have received and looked at the implications that the resulting proposed changes could have on the system. It is clear from the considerable work we have done so far that we will need more time than we originally planned to address the changes to ContactPoint which potential system users suggested.

The change to the timetable will mean that deployment of ContactPoint to the 'Early Adopters' local authorities and national partners will be in September or October 2008. It will be deployed to all other local authorities and national partners in 2009, between January and May, depending on final deployment slots. The additional time available presents a number of opportunities to do more work in the period prior to ContactPoint deployment that will help to realise some benefits earlier. The fundamental design of ContactPoint will not change; the alterations will make sure the system works even more effectively for users and improves the ability of local authority ContactPoint teams to manage user access.

The news on Tuesday 20 November of the loss of large volumes of child benefit data from HMRC has raised questions about the safety of large scale personal data in other Government systems, including ContactPoint. ContactPoint will not contain any financial information (such as bank details) or case information (such as case notes, assessments, medical records, exam results or subjective observations).

On Tuesday 20 November, the Department conducted an assessment of how personal data are stored and protected in the Department. As a result of that assessment, I am confident that we have very robust procedures in place. On Wednesday 21 November, the Prime Minister confirmed this approach when he asked all Departments to check their procedures for the storage and use of data. In light of the security breach at the HMRC, we are continuing to check our procedures to ensure standards are as high as they can be. To this end, on 20 November, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families decided to commission an independent assessment of its security procedures. This will be undertaken by Deloitte. Delaying the implementation of ContactPoint will enable the independent assessment of security procedures to take place as well as address the changes to ContactPoint that potential system users have told us they need.

Delivery partners will receive further information early in the new year. In the meantime, progress will be reported to local project managers regularly through their ContactPoint implementation co-ordinators. They will work with individual authorities and national partners to agree new deployment slots as soon as it is possible to do so.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Planning Reform

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Hazel Blears): In the white paper "Planning for a Sustainable Future", published on 21 May 2007, we set out a wide-ranging package of proposals for reform of the planning system.

Planning is critical to protecting the countryside and our environment, building sustainable homes and communities, and supporting growth and prosperity. It also plays a vital role in ensuring individuals and local communities have a say in what gets built.

Since 1997 we have made major improvements to town and country planning: more houses are being built, with better use of brownfield land; more development in town centres is helping to revitalise our towns and cities; planning decisions are being made quicker; and we have made the system more efficient and customer focused.

But significant problems remain. The planning system remains too complex, bureaucratic and inefficient. These problems are particularly acute for major infrastructure projects, which are subject to different planning regimes. Currently a single project may require consent under numerous different regimes. Lack of clarity in national policy, poor preparation of specific project proposals, lengthy and adversarial inquiry processes and slow decision-making mean that some planning decisions have taken years.

These delays, combined with the lack of certainty in the system, can result in high costs for business; prolonged uncertainty and blight for communities; and pose a serious threat to UK competitiveness, growth and jobs. Moreover delays in the provision of essential infrastructure needed to ensure clean, secure energy and water supplies and decent transport have quality of life implications for everyone.

We need to ensure that the planning system enables us to meet the long-term challenges we face as a society:

- to meet our climate change objectives by speeding up the shift to renewable and low carbon energy, supporting the development of low and zero carbon homes and businesses; and ensuring development is resilient to the impacts of climate change;
- to achieve our target of 3 million new homes by 2020 so current and future generations have access to a decent home at a price they can afford;
- to enable us to meet the challenge of globalisation by being efficient and responsive to business needs; and supporting the development of vital infrastructure, such as ports, roads and airports, needed to ensure that the UK continues to attract investment and jobs;
- to provide certainty for investment in new infrastructure such as power stations, gas storage facilities and electricity networks need to ensure energy supplies are secure.

Our proposals for planning reform are a central part of the Government's wider agenda for addressing these long term challenges in a way which demonstrates our commitment to achieving a prosperous economy and high quality of life for all; while also reducing carbon emissions and protecting the environment.

The White Paper proposed that we should establish a new, single consent regime for nationally significant transport, energy, water and waste infrastructure projects under which:

- The Government will set out in national policy statements the case for nationally significant infrastructure, integrating social, economic and environmental policies. These statements will be subject to thorough public consultation, appraisal of sustainability and parliamentary scrutiny;
- Developers will be required to consult local communities and other key stakeholders as they prepare those projects and before they submit an application;

Decisions on applications will be made by an independent Infrastructure Planning Commission using streamlined inquiry procedures. Inquiries and decisions would be subject to statutory timetables.

Responses to the White Paper have indicated that there is clear agreement that the current system is not working effectively. Our proposals have been widely welcomed including by business and many in the planning community and local government.

However a number of issues and concerns have been raised. Questions have arisen in particular about:

how we propose to take forward the proposals for national policy statements; the need to ensure sustainable development is central to the new regime; ensuring people can influence and participate in policy and decisions; ensuring decisions are fair and accountable.

The proposal to produce national policy statements for major infrastructure sectors has been welcomed by the large majority of respondents to the White Paper. Over the forthcoming months, my colleagues the Secretaries of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, for Transport, and for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs will set out further details of how they propose to ensure national policy in their infrastructure sectors is clearly set out; a short summary of proposals is at Annex A.

We acknowledge that it is essential to ensure that our objectives in relation to sustainable development are central to consideration of future infrastructure needs. The Bill will therefore include a duty on Ministers to ensure that national policy statements are drawn up with the objective of contributing to the achievement of sustainable development. We will also make it a requirement that all national policy statements should be subject to an appropriate appraisal of the sustainability of the policy they set out.

The Bill will also put effective public consultation and participation at the heart of all three key stages in the regime:

By creating a clear duty to ensure effective public consultation on national policy statements. We intend that this consultation should include positive and proactive means of engaging citizens and communities. Where national policy statements identify locations or potential locations for development, there will be a duty to consult in those locations.

By placing clear legal obligations on developers to consult local communities before they submit a planning application, and ensure that this consultation is of high quality.

By making planning inquiries accessible and ensuring peoples' rights to be heard are protected. In particular the Bill will make it clear that any person who registers an interest can give oral evidence at relevant stages of the inquiry.

In order to support more effective engagement with communities and hard-to-reach groups, we will be increasing the resources we provide to bodies that promote community engagement in planning. We also intend that local authorities should have an important role in ensuring the views of the communities they represent are fully reflected.

Finally, the Bill will strengthen accountability and ensure decision-making is fair and transparent:

Government Ministers will be clearly accountable for setting overall policy. There will be a clear distinction between responsibility for setting policy, and responsibility for the quasi-judicial decisions;

Parliament will have a stronger role in scrutinising national policy.

The Infrastructure Planning Commission will be required to take decisions within a clear framework of legal duties set by Parliament and policy set by Government. It will also be subject to requirements designed to ensure full accountability to Ministers, Parliament and the public.

To provide the stronger role for Parliament, we encourage the House to establish a new Select Committee with the main purpose of holding inquiries into draft national policy statements in parallel with public consultation. We suggest that this Committee should be composed of members from existing Select Committees on Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, on Transport and on Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

We will consider the Committee's reports together with responses to public consultation and revise draft national policy statements where appropriate, before designating them. In addition, if the Committee has recommended that a national policy statement raises issues which should be debated by Parliament as a whole, we will make available time in each House for a debate before we designate it.

This model—in which decisions are taken independently, on an objective basis, by a body with no role in promoting particular policy outcomes—offers clear benefits in terms of increased transparency and certainty to both applicants and the public.

We have noted concerns that the White Paper may have defined too narrowly the matters the IPC may take into account in reaching decisions. We are clear that the national policy statement should be the primary policy consideration for the Commission. However we agree that the Commission must be able in taking decisions to have discretion to take account of all information specific to the case before it which it considers relevant and important to its decision, including all such local impacts. The Bill will make it clear that this is the case.

We have also concluded that there may be some very exceptional circumstances in which it would not be appropriate to leave final decisions to the Commission. These circumstances would arise where new issues or evidence are raised relevant to an application before the Commission which are so significant that the Government consider they may justify a change of national policy. Where this was the case, the relevant Secretary of State could direct the Commission to suspend consideration of the application until he or she had reviewed the national policy statement. However where there is an application before the IPC which needs to be determined urgently in the national interest, the Bill will enable the Secretary of State to direct the IPC to produce a recommendation with the final decision to be taken by the Minister. We would expect such cases to be very rare so the Bill will therefore set out clearly the conditions that will apply to the exercise of this power.

Overall we believe that our proposals for major infrastructure will reduce the average time taken for large applications by a half. By doing so, they will save between £3.8 billion and £4.8 billion in costs up to 2030. And they will do this while extending our commitment to ensure sustainable development is at the heart of planning; strengthening opportunities for public consultation and engagement; and improving accountability.

In addition to our proposals for reform of major infrastructure, the Bill will include a number of significant measures aimed at ensuring that the town and country planning better supports housing growth and climate change, and is more streamlined and efficient.

The Bill will implement our proposals to introduce a new charge, entitled the Community Infrastructure Levy, to enable local authorities to secure a bigger contribution from developers towards the costs of infrastructure. We are pleased that our proposals have been widely welcomed by developers and local government. We will publish further details of the proposals on my Department's website.

Local plans have a key part to play in enabling local authorities to set a clear strategic vision for their communities. The Bill will therefore include a number of provisions to make plan-making simpler and more flexible, which will be supported by a revised planning policy statement. It will also include a new duty on local authorities to take action on climate change through local plans. This duty will be underpinned by a new planning policy statement on climate change which we will publish before the end of the year.

Finally, the Bill will include provisions to reduce the number of planning applications, speed up appeals and simplify the tree preservation order system. It will include provisions which would enable local member review bodies to determine appeals.

These provisions in the Bill will be supported by a range of measures to make it easier for homeowners to extend their homes and to install microgeneration technology, to introduce new planning performance agreements which will ensure large applications are dealt with effectively, and to allow an increase in fees for planning applications in order to enable local authorities to improve the quality of service they provide. We also intend to consult on a new planning policy statement on economic development before the end of the year.

Further details of these and other reforms are set out in the Government's summary of responses to the White Paper consultation, published today and which has been placed in the Libraries of both Houses, and to the related consultations which will be published shortly.

The Planning Bill will play a key part in delivering on this Government's long-term vision for Britain. Alongside legislation on Housing and Regeneration, Climate Change, Energy and Local Transport this Bill will help to deliver our objectives in relation to housing, climate change, energy security, transport provision, and prosperity and quality of life for all. The Planning Bill will do this by ensuring that we have an efficient planning system which produces fair and transparent outcomes on decisions which are vital both to the local communities they most affect, and to the long term challenges facing us as a nation.

ANNEX ON NATIONAL POLICY STATEMENTS

Energy

The Government will publish an overarching national policy statement covering key elements of energy policy relevant to infrastructure provision, such as climate change, security of supply and the energy market, and including information relevant to likely future demand and measures to secure energy efficiency.

Energy national policy statements will also be expected to encompass different forms of energy generation such as fossil fuels, renewable energy, electricity networks and gas infrastructure

Transport

The Government's aim is to establish a suite of national policy statements that will comprise:

a statement for aviation incorporating the 2003 Air Transport White Paper in a way which meets our proposed policy and statutory requirements for national policy statements; we are already committed to produce a further progress report between 2009 and 2011, which would provide a good opportunity to designate the ATWP in conjunction with that report; a statement for ports, possibly incorporating international freight, based on the work already undertaken as part of the ports policy review;

a statement for the strategic national highway and rail networks focusing primarily on the highway network, given that comprehensive plans for the rail network were published earlier this year in the HLOS and supporting rail White Paper.

These statements will over time be aligned with the overarching transport strategy now under development, reflecting the cross-modal approach recommended by Rod Eddington, in order to ensure a consistent analytical and policy framework. The recent discussion document Towards a Sustainable Transport System sets out how the Department proposes to develop this strategy, working with transport users and other stakeholders over the period to 2012.

The Government will set out updated policies for water supply and water quality in a new Water Strategy, Future Water, which is due to be published early in 2008. This will inform development of a new national policy statement on infrastructure development for water supply and waste water treatment for the period from 2010 to 2035. The national policy statement will also be informed by parallel to planning and price review processes such as the Water Resource Management Plans which water companies will produce and the quinquennial reviews of water company sewerage charges.

Waste disposal

A national policy statement on waste will set out the Government's objectives for the development of waste infrastructure for the period to 2020 and will be based substantially on the Waste Strategy for England which was published in May 2007 after extensive consultation and engagement. We expect to prepare a waste national policy statement which will draw out and, if necessary, strengthen material in the Waste Strategy to enable the IPC to make decisions on projects coming forward.

Offshore renewables

The EPC and the Marine Management Organisation proposed under the Marine Bill White Paper will have responsibilities for consents to offshore renewables projects of specific generating capacities. Both will operate in accordance with consistent Government policy in this area whether set out in the relevant NFS or in the marine policy statement.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Jim Murphy): I represented the UK at the General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) in Brussels. My right hon. Friends the Secretary of State for Defence and the Secretary of State for International Development attended discussions of Defence and Development Ministers on 19 and 20 November.

The agenda items covered were as follows:

FOREIGN MINISTERS

GENERAL AFFAIRS

Preparation of the European Council on 13 and 14 December

The presidency presented the draft agenda for the European Council. The draft agenda calls for discussion of a range of issues, including migration, police and judicial cooperation, the fight against terrorism, the Lisbon strategy for jobs and growth, climate change, sustainable development, maritime policy and external issues. There will be a fuller discussion at the 10 December GAERC.

Maritime Policy

The Commission presented a proposed action plan on Maritime Policy. France said maritime governance would be on its presidency agenda. A number of member states intervened to welcome the strategy and to flag up the importance of subsidiarity, the competitiveness of the EU fleet and environmental sustainability.

Commission Legislative Programme 2008

The Commission presented the legislative programme for 2008. The programme's priorities include growth and jobs, sustainable prosperity in Europe, an integrated approach to migration and Europe as a world partner.

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

Information on the EU-China and EU-India Summits

The presidency updated member states on preparations for the EU-China and EU-India summits, underlining that these would be an important opportunity to discuss the current situation in Burma.

Preparation of the EU-Africa Summit

The presidency updated member states on its plans for the EU-Africa summit. Member states noted the draft strategy and action plan, to be finalised at Sharm el-Sheikh on 5 December. I intervened to emphasise UK support for the summit's objectives, but also concern that these should not be undermined by the attendance of President Mugabe. If he did attend, it was important there was substantive discussion of human rights and governance in Zimbabwe, in plenary with President Mugabe present.

Pakistan

I briefed partners on recent developments, highlighting the potential impact on EU objectives for the region. It was important to maintain pressure on President Musharraf to end the state of emergency and ensure free and fair elections, as set out in the presidency statement of 6 November. The presidency reiterated these points in its statement to the press following the Council.

Russia

The Council discussed the recent decision by the Office for Democratic Institutions and Human Rights (ODIHR) not to monitor the Duma elections in Russia, in response to restrictions imposed by the Russian authorities. I intervened to underline UK support for ODIHR's election monitoring activities. The UK was deeply concerned and disappointed by the unprecedented restrictions and bureaucratic obstacles Russia had imposed, preventing ODIHR from observing the Duma elections.

Middle East

The high representative for Common Foreign and Security Policy, Javier Solana, briefed member states on his recent visit to the region and on preparations for the US-led conference in Annapolis. The Commissioner for External Relations, Benita Ferrero-Waldner briefed partners on plans being drawn up by the Commission and Council Secretariat for EU practical support to any process to emerge from the conference in Annapolis.

Conclusions were agreed setting out the EU's strong support for Annapolis and the efforts of Abbas and Olmert; its commitment to support negotiations between the parties through the EU Action plan; the need for the parties to take additional steps to meet previous commitments; and support for the goals of the Paris donors' conference.

Conclusions were also adopted on Lebanon, expressing concern at the continuing impasse in electing a president, but welcoming continuing dialogue and calling for free and fair elections.

Iran

The high representative briefed partners on his latest contact with Iran. At my request, the presidency confirmed that a fuller discussion would take place at the December GAERC.

Iraq

Member states welcomed Iraqi Foreign Minister Hoshyar Zebari to the GAERC. He briefed the Council on the current situation in Iraq and welcomed the recent visits of the French and Swedish Foreign Ministers. I intervened to emphasise the importance of the EU stepping up its engagement with Iraq, which was reflected in Council conclusions. These commit the EU to further support to Iraq through the UN, through humanitarian assistance and through support to the Government of Iraq in its work on the international compact and human rights. They also encourage engagement by Iraq's neighbours and call on the Governments of Iraq and Turkey to cooperate to ensure the integrity of the border and that Iraqi territory is not used for attacks on its neighbours.

Western Balkans

EU Troika representative Ambassador Ischinger briefed the Council on the negotiation process. I underlined that the EU had to be ready to set out its position in December and act resolutely thereafter if negotiations failed to produce agreement between the parties.

Conclusions were agreed reaffirming EU support for Ambassador Ischinger, welcoming the conduct of elections in Kosovo, but regretting the poor turnout from the Kosovo Serb community and Belgrade's call for a boycott. Conclusions also expressed grave concern at the deteriorating political situation in Bosnia Herzegovina, reiterating the Council's full support for high representative and EU Special Representative Miroslav Lajcak.

Georgia

The Council discussed recent developments in Georgia. Member states noted that, although the state of emergency had been lifted, media freedom remained of concern. It was important that the government of Georgia ensured that the right conditions were in place for free and fair presidential elections.

JOINT SESSION OF FOREIGN AND DEFENCE MINISTERS

Chad, Central African Republic and Sudan

Foreign and Defence Ministers met in joint session to discuss the proposed ESDP mission to Chad. The Secretary of State for Defence underlined UK political support for the proposed mission as a key element in a comprehensive regional approach.

Conclusions were agreed on current operations and missions under the European Security and Defence Policy (ESDP), capability development including the European Defence Agency, Human Rights Issues and cooperation between the EU and the African Union in Strengthening African Capabilities.

DEFENCE MINISTERS

European Defence Agency

The head of the European Defence Agency, Alexander Weis, briefed Defence Ministers. Ministers also agreed the 2008 budget for the Agency, on the basis that earmarked funds would be drawn down on the basis of a fully worked up business case and in consultation with member states.

Operation EUFOR ALTHEA (Bosnia-Herzegovina)

The Operation Commander of EUFOR ALTHEA, General John McColl, briefed Ministers. There was a discussion of the current situation and agreement on the need to maintain pressure on the parties in Bosnia-Herzegovina, to maintain a credible EU force and to make progress on police reform.

Military Capabilities

The high representative for Common Foreign and Security Policy, Javier Solana, presented his report on the EU military staffs' strategic planning capacity. Ministers discussed the shortfalls highlighted in the Progress Catalogue. The Secretary of State for Defence highlighted the particular shortage of helicopters for EU operations and outlined options for improving deployability of existing, but currently unsuitable, aircraft.

Slovenian presidency Priorities

The Slovenian Defence Minister outlined the priorities for the Slovenian presidency, including further work on military capabilities and support for work on African peace and stability.

JOINT SESSION OF DEVELOPMENT AND DEFENCE MINISTERS

Security and Development

Defence and Development Ministers met in joint session to discuss security and development. A number of partners intervened to emphasise the importance of security sector reform and of incorporating development issues into training for ESDP missions. Partners also stressed the importance of early progress on an action plan to take forward this agenda.

Conclusions were agreed underlining that development and security considerations should inform EU strategies and policies in order to contribute to the coherence of EU external action. Conclusions highlighted the interdependence of work on security and development, the key role of the UN and the need for a strategic approach, reflecting CFSP priorities in development planning and vice versa.

DEVELOPMENT MINISTERS

Orientation debate on the effectiveness of EU external action

The annual orientation debate focussed on the development consequences of the new joint strategy and action plan, aimed at providing a comprehensive framework for EU-Africa relations from 2008-10, following presentation of a presidency paper.

Towards an EU response to situations of fragility

World Bank President Robert Zoellick briefed Ministers on the Bank's approach to fragility and work on climate change. Member states agreed on the need for rapid work to improve coordination on the ground and enhance the synergy of EU development instruments.

Conclusions were agreed welcoming the Commission's paper on fragility, endorsing the OECD Development Assistance Committee's Principles for Good International Engagement in Fragile States and Situations and calling for the comprehensive and forward-looking use of Community and Member State Development Instruments to address situations of fragility.

Ministers discussed work on the policy coherence for development or beyond aid agenda. Progress had been made, but a number of member states called for increased momentum. The Secretary of State for International Development called for greater effort on achieving the millennium development goals (MDGs), further progress on reform of the common agricultural policy, development-friendly trade rules and urgent action to tackle climate change.

Conclusions were agreed reporting on the role that EU policies other than development had in helping developing countries achieve the MDGs. They welcome the introduction of mechanisms into EU policy formation designed to improve policy coherence for development, but note that work remained to be done.

Economic partnership Agreements (EPAs)

Commissioner for Trade, Peter Mandelson, briefed Ministers on progress in negotiations with the African, Caribbean and Pacific states affected by EPAs. The Secretary of State for International Development underlined the importance of agreement on EPAs being reached by the end of the year.

Conclusions were agreed underlining EU commitment to the negotiations, endorsing the Commission's two step approach, that aimed to achieve agreement on market access for goods by the end of the year, and calling for maximum WTO-compatible flexibility in negotiating the agreements, respecting the right of the negotiating states to determine the best policies for their development.

Advancing Agriculture in Africa

Ministers discussed the Commission's communication on advancing agriculture in Africa.

Conclusions were agreed recognising the importance of broad-based sustainable agricultural growth for poverty reduction and food security, and in attaining the millennium development goals (MDG) in Africa. They also welcome the decision by African heads of state to increase the share of national budgets allocated to agriculture and rural development.

Partnership with Cape Verde

Ministers welcomed Cape Verde's prospective graduation from LDC status at the beginning of 2008.

AOB: Ratification on the Cotonou partnership Agreement

Ministers updated the Council on progress in ratifying the Cotonou Partnership Agreement. The UK has completed the ratification process.

HEALTH

Allergy Report (Government Response)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Ann Keen): The Government's response to the House of Lords Science and Technology Committee report on allergy has been laid before Parliament (Cm 7255). It is available in the Library and on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_080793

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

EU Education Council

The Minister for Lifelong Learning, Further and Higher Education (Bill Rammell): My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State with responsibility for intellectual property and quality attended the EU Education Council to represent the UK on behalf of DCSF and DIUS.

Ministers discussed the following issues:

European Qualifications Framework—Political Agreement

The Council agreed the European Parliament amendments to the EQF. These amendments were in line with the General Approach that had been agreed previously at the Education Council, and there were no additional comments.

Improving the Quality of Teacher Education—Adoption of Conclusions

The conclusions are intended to help countries improve teaching standards and attract high-quality teachers into the profession. The UK was happy to support these conclusions, which were adopted without discussion.

'Education and Training as a Key Driver of the Lisbon Strategy'—Adoption of Resolution

This resolution focuses on the role that education and training have to play within the Lisbon strategy, notably the role of education in the knowledge triangle, the links between education and training and other 'Lisbon' policies, and the effective use of peer learning and the open method of co-ordination. The resolution was formally adopted with no discussion, and the Commission gave information on the Joint Report of the 2010 Work Programme, a draft of which they had accepted earlier in the week.

'New Skills for New Jobs'—Adoption of Resolution

This resolution emphasises the importance of anticipating skills needs and providing opportunities for citizens to improve their skill levels to match these needs. I intervened to congratulate the presidency for this initiative, to reinforce the fact that skills have an enabling role and help Europe to compete in an increasingly globalised world, and to emphasise the importance of training those with low skills and those most at risk of social exclusion. The resolution was then adopted with no further comments.

'Towards a More Multilingual Europe'—Exchange of Views

Most Ministers welcomed this focus on multilingualism, stressing the important social and economic role it has to play within the EU. The main points raised during the discussion included the issues surrounding language training for migrants and the importance of looking beyond the EU to other important global languages. I intervened to acknowledge that the UK has not historically performed well in the teaching and learning of foreign languages, but that significant initiatives have been introduced in recent years. I stressed the importance of all languages, rather than just European languages, in fostering strong and cohesive multicultural communities. It would be a mistake to regard the languages used by long-settled communities as simply an 'immigration' issue without regard to pride in historic cultural roots.

Erasmus Mundus Action Programme (2009-13)—General Approach

Ministers agreed a General Approach on the new phase of the Erasmus Mundus Programme, which will see an expansion of the programme to all levels of higher education, but particularly to doctoral studies, and provide additional financial support for EU students.

Resolution on Modernising Universities—Exchange of Views

Ministers discussed this resolution, which addresses issues around autonomy, governance, curricula and mobility and will go to the Competitiveness Council (23 November) for formal adoption. I supported the joint approach linking mutually reinforcing areas of university and research policy, and stressed the importance of member states committing to university reforms, which are important for both economic reasons and for the life of universities. Other Ministers reported some progress in reform but were frank about how much more was needed.

Student Mobility: Broadening the Social Dimension of Erasmus—Exchange of Views

This discussion saw a call from many Ministers for 'positive discrimination' in the awarding of grants, to encourage young people from disadvantaged backgrounds to participate. France stated that they would work on this during their presidency. Anne Lambert, UK Deputy Permanent Representative, intervened to underline the importance of mobility in meeting the challenges of globalisation.

JUSTICE

Forced Marriage (Civil Protection ) Act 2007

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice): Today the Government are announcing their timetable for the introduction during 2008 of the Forced Marriage (Civil Protection) Act 2007.

From autumn 2008 the Forced Marriage (Civil Protection) Act 2008 will come into force. The Act enables courts to make orders to protect those at risk of forced marriage or any attempt to force a person into marriage or to protect a person who has been forced into a marriage. The approach taken gives the courts a wide discretion to deal flexibly and sensitively with the circumstances of each individual case, employing civil remedies that will offer protection to victims without criminalising members of their family.

The new provisions take the form of a new part 4A to Family Law Act 1996, placing them firmly in the wider context of domestic violence and family proceedings generally. During the next year the Government will consult on how to ensure that the Act is implemented effectively.

Strategic Plan for Reducing Re-offending 2008-11

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. David Hanson): I am today announcing the publication of a consultation document to inform the Strategic Plan for Reducing Re-offending from 2008-11. The consultation period runs from today to 18 February 2008, and the Strategic Plan will be published next spring. Copies of the consultation document have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. Copies are also available in the Vote Office and Printed Paper Office and on the internet at:

http://www.noms.justice.gov.uk/news-publications-events/publications/consultations/RRSP_2008-2011

Re-offending causes real harm to individuals, to communities and to the economy. The costs of reoffending by ex-prisoners alone are significant.

The Government have undertaken a successful programme of work to tackle reoffending since 1997. The latest results show that we have reduced proven adult reoffending by 5.8 per cent. since 2000 against the predicted rate. Tackling reoffending is ongoing work and there is still more work to do to examine what other measures need to be in place to support offender management. The consultation paper seeks views from professionals working in the field on how the Government can capitalise on the successes to date, and continue to reduce reoffending rates.

Public Service Agreements (PSAs)

From April 2008, a number of new Public Service Agreement (PSA) targets will be introduced. The Make Communities Safer PSA includes a specific measure for reducing reoffending which focuses on the volume and seriousness of reoffending, thereby allowing us to monitor the success of our interventions with priority offender groups more closely, and reflect the impact reducing reoffending has on overall crime rates. Other PSAs are also critical—specifically Drugs and Alcohol, Socially Excluded Adults, and Young People: A Path to Success. Each of these national agreements will act as levers to further embed the reducing reoffending agenda across Government and at regional levels to support effective local delivery by partners.

Supporting Events

The National Offender Management Service is today holding a national launch to promote the consultation. In recognition of that fact that cooperation between agencies is essential in successfully tackling reoffending alone, this event will also be used to launch the Department of Health's consultation, 'Improving Health; Supporting Justice' and a NOMS third sector action plan to build the contribution of the sector to work to reduce reoffending. Consultation events for partners in regions and Wales will follow in December and January.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Pre-Trial Witness Interviews

The Solicitor-General (Vera Baird): My right hon. Friend the Attorney-General has made the following written ministerial statement:

I am today announcing that the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) will be rolling out Pre-Trial Witness Interviews (PTWIs) throughout England and Wales. The roll-out will be completed by April 2008.

The use of PTWIs was proposed by the then Attorney-General Lord Goldsmith in the report "Pre-Trial Interviews by Prosecutors" published in December 2004. The report proposed that prosecutors should be permitted to speak to witnesses about their evidence in order to assess the reliability of the evidence or to clarify complex evidence.

In January 2006, the CPS introduced a pilot scheme in the CPS areas of Lancashire, Merseyside, Greater Manchester and Cumbria. The pilot scheme has been evaluated carefully and it has been decided that PTWIs will be implemented throughout England and Wales. As of 26 November 2007, 88 PTWIs had been conducted by Crown prosecutors in the pilot CPS Areas.

The decision to conduct a PTWI is at the discretion of the prosecutor having regard to the circumstances of the case. However, it has been found from the pilot scheme that prosecutors welcome the ability to conduct a PTWI with a witness if appropriate, as it allows the prosecutor to make better-informed prosecution decisions.

TRANSPORT

EU Transport Council

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Ms Rosie Winterton): I will attend the second Transport Council of the Portuguese presidency which takes place in Brussels on 29-30 November.

The Council will be asked to agree conclusions on taking forward the Galileo satellite navigation programme. EU Ministers concluded at the June Council that the public private partnership process had failed and that the negotiations with the prospective concessionaire should end. The Commission's subsequent proposals for taking forward the deployment through a public procurement were published in September and were presented to Ministers at the October Council. At that Council, Ministers called for an integrated decision by the end of this year. Following the agreement reached at ECOFIN on Friday on the financing of Galileo, at this forthcoming Council, Ministers will be asked to agree conclusions aimed at defining the general principles covering governance and a public sector procurement of the system. If it is the view of the majority of member states that the project should proceed, then the Government will continue to work to implement an overall management structure that ensures transparency, clear lines of governance and a clear contract between the Commission and ESA as procurement agent. The Government will also seek to ensure the maximum possible competition in procurement. This will provide opportunities for new entrants and SMEs, and deliver value for money for the Community and maximum opportunities for UK industry. All these objectives are in line with the commitments given to Parliament and which were set out in the European Standing Committee debate on Monday 26 November.

The Council will also be asked to agree conclusions on the Commission's Action Plan on Freight Transport Logistics. The conclusions are general in nature and give no specific commitments in respect to legislative proposals. We are generally content with the majority of the proposals in the action plan and we support the fact that the Commission has mainly opted for non-legislative measures. We have reservations however concerning the Commission's intention to consider the potential for modification of vehicle weight and dimensions under Directive 96/53/EC and to update the 2003 proposal on Inter-modal Loading Units to technical progress, both of which we believe are unnecessary.

There will be a policy debate on progress made on the renewed EU Sustainable Development Strategy adopted by the European Council in June 2006. On the basis of this debate and another conducted in the Environment Council on 30 October, the presidency will prepare input to the conclusions of the December European Council. I shall draw attention to our recently published transport strategy Command Paper and stress the important contribution that EU initiatives on new car $CO_2$ emission targets and on inclusion of aviation in the EU Emissions Trading Scheme can play in meeting UK and European climate change objectives.

The Council will be asked to reach a political agreement on two legislative proposals in maritime transport. First, there is a regulation on the liability of carriers of passengers by sea and inland waterways in the event of accidents (incorporating the Athens convention into EC law). The Government are keen to reach political agreement on the text of this measure. The Government are now broadly content with the proposal for a regulation in the light of the amendments made by member states in negotiation. In particular, the Government would not wish to be bound by the setting of maximum limits of compensation, but agree that member states should have the flexibility to apply the provisions of the Athens convention to domestic seagoing voyages and, together with almost all member states, agree with the European Parliament that the measure should not apply to voyages on inland waterways. Our previous concerns in respect of subsidiarity have been resolved by the changes made in negotiation. The second maritime measure is a recast directive designed to update the existing directives relating to ship inspection and survey organisations. The proposal seeks to establish mutual recognition of the certificates which the organisations issue, introduces a financial penalty system to address poor performance, and places a requirement on the organisations to create a new certification system to improve their oversight. The Government are expecting that it will be possible to reach a political agreement, although there are some drafting issues relating to the proposed financial penalty system which need refinement.

In road transport, there will be progress reports on two proposals: a recast regulation on common rules for access to the international road haulage market; and a regulation on common rules concerning the conditions to be complied with to pursue the occupation of road transport operator. Negotiations on both of these proposals continue and we hope will go forward under the Slovenian presidency.

The Council will aim to reach a political agreement on each of three proposals on rail interoperability and safety which have been negotiated together. These are: a directive on interoperability of the Community rail system, combining three previous directives; a directive amending the 2004 directive on rail safety; and a directive amending the 2004 directive which established the European Rail Agency. The October Council reached a General Approach on the first two of these. The UK supports the objectives of the Commission's proposals and welcomes any initiative that improves cross-acceptance of rolling stock, and simplifies and modernises the technical part of the regulatory framework for rail. The texts being put to the Council are acceptable to the UK.

The Council will aim to reach a General Approach on a directive on airport charges, which aims to establish a framework of common principles as to how airports determine their charges for aircraft landing, take-off and handling of passengers. As part of this, the directive requires the establishment of independent regulators. In negotiation, the UK has sought a proportionate text that does not impose unnecessary regulatory burdens on airlines or airports, and a number of amendments to this effect have been made to the draft.

The Council will aim to reach Political Agreement on a recast regulation on common rules for the operation of air transport services in the Community (the "third package review"). This consolidates the three existing regulations of 1992, which established the aviation single market. The proposal seeks to update the regulations in the light of experience of the single market. The UK broadly supports the proposal, in particular on pricing and consumer protection.

Two issues of aviation external relations are on the agenda. The Council will be asked to adopt decisions giving the Commission mandates to negotiate with Jordan on a Euro-Mediterranean Aviation Agreement, and with the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) on an agreement regarding aviation security audits and inspections and related matters. The UK is content for both mandates to be granted by the Council.

Local Transport Capital Settlement

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Ms Rosie Winterton): Today I am announcing the distribution of a package of funding of more than £4 billion to improve local transport outside London over the remaining three years of the Local Transport Plan period. An indicative announcement of half of this funding package was made last year. This announcement confirms that funding is available now the comprehensive spending review has been completed.

It builds on the £8.5 billion provided to the 122 local transport authorities, including the six passenger transport authorities, over the last seven years for small local transport improvements and capital highways maintenance. These improvements tackle pinch points, improve integration and provide genuine alternatives to the car.

The £4,036 billion package consists of £1.768 billion for integrated transport improvements and £2.268 billion for highways capital maintenance.

This capital funding is in addition to the £2.3 billion made available in regional funding allocations for local authority major schemes and Highways Agency schemes of regional significance over the next three years.

Local transport plans have now been implemented for more than six years. Local transport authorities can be proud of the way they are creating safer, cleaner environments. They have made great progress in reducing local road casualties, improving the condition of many local road networks, providing facilities for cyclists and pedestrians and integrating transport planning alongside that of health, education and housing.

Alongside this year's settlement we have also confirmed financial planning guidelines (announced last year) for a specific road safety grant set up as part of the move to integrate safety cameras into the wider road safety delivery process from 1 April 2007. The funding totals £330 million over three years—that is, £110 million per year. Some £286 million of this is being distributed to local authorities outside London. The remaining £44 million is for London and national agencies. This funding represents a long-term commitment to fund further improvements in road safety and provides local authorities and their partners with the flexibility to implement a locally agreed mix of road safety measures that will deliver the greatest reductions in road casualties in their area.

Details of the 2008-09 to 2010-11 allocations have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses, and are also available at: http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/regional/ltp/capital/ltpsettle07/

WORK AND PENSIONS

Mental Health and Employment

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. Peter Hain): Mental health conditions are now the single biggest cause of both absence from work and people claiming incapacity benefits. Around 40 per cent. of people currently receiving incapacity benefits are doing so because of mental ill-health, ranging from more common problems such as stress, anxiety and depression, to more serious conditions.

But the more common mental health conditions can be relatively easily treated and with the right support need not significantly affect people's lives.

We know that being in work is usually good for people with all types of mental health problems and so there is a clear need to support people with mental health conditions to overcome or manage their problems, helping them to find or remain in work.

I am therefore announcing, in partnership with the Secretary of State for Health, our intention to develop a National Strategy for Mental Health and Work, to ensure a co-ordinated response across government to the challenges faced by people of working age with mental health conditions and improve their employment chances.

The strategy will look at issues like stigma and discrimination that often prevent people with mental health problems from seeking help in the first place, let alone trying to find employment.

The strategy will be overseen by a high-level group from business, the medical profession, academia, the third sector and stakeholder groups, chaired by the National Director for Health and Work, Dame Carol Black, and including Lord Richard Layard.

To support the strategy I am today also announcing a number of measures to ensure that mental health and employment support is delivered in a more holistic way, that we provide more advice and support to healthcare professionals and employers, and improve the communication between these two key groups.

We will ensure that, wherever possible as they are rolled out across the country, the Pathways to Work and Improving Access to Psychological Therapies programmes are linked up, allowing customers to take up the full range of support available and experience their back to work and healthcare support as part of a seamless package.

Alongside this, we will establish a mental health forum to bring together all those involved in delivering Pathways to Work support, to share evidence and experiences in relation to support for people with mental health conditions.

We will pilot an advice and support service for employers, especially smaller businesses, to help them to manage and support people with mental health conditions to remain in or return to work. We will explore the possibility of this service also providing support and advice for GPs as part of our efforts to more closely align employment and healthcare services.

We will build on the strong partnerships already created with GPs through our Pathways Advisory Services pilots, which test placing Jobcentre Plus advisers in GP surgeries, by expanding those pilots to treble the capacity. The enlarged pilots will have a particular focus on supporting people with mental health conditions and will be supported by a roll-out of our educational programme for GPs on health and work issues, focusing specifically on mental health and employment.

We will also explore ways to improve communications between GPs and employers to improve the likelihood of people working. As part of this we will ensure that the process for GPs to issue medical certificates that we are currently developing with employers, healthcare professionals and their representative bodies will allow them to be more positive - moving to a 'fitnote' instead of a 'sicknote'—and will make it easier for GPs to provide more helpful advice to patients and their employers about their fitness for work, especially for those with mental health conditions.

All this work will contribute to improving the health and employment prospects of people of working age, which is the subject of the review currently being undertaken by Dame Carol Black, which will report to Ministers early in 2008.

This will build on the substantial progress that has been made in this area since 1997.

We have been transforming the support that we give to Jobcentre Plus customers with health conditions or disabilities, moving away from a system that abandons people to a life on benefits to one which helps them to realise their potential. The introduction of Employment and Support Allowance which will replace incapacity benefit next autumn, along with the expansion of Pathways to Work across the country by April of next year will create a more positive system, built on rights and responsibilities and offering tailored support to help people back into work.

The new medical test for the allowance, the work capability assessment, will be fairer, more accurate and more robust than the current personal capability assessment. Importantly the mental capacity element of the assessment has been fundamentally improved and will be better able to assess the challenges faced by people with mental health conditions and learning disabilities.

Alongside employment support, the Government have been working to make more treatments and health interventions available to people with mental health problems and there has been a significant increase in mental health expenditure since 1997. Only last month the Secretary of State for Health announced the very welcome expansion of the Improving Access to Psychological Therapies programme. The service will ensure that over the next three years 3,600 new therapists will be trained and 900,000 more people will be treated for depression and anxiety. This will have a major impact on those of working age suffering from mental health conditions.

We have therefore been working with medical professional bodies to ensure that GPs and healthcare professionals recognise the importance of work to the health and well-being of their patients; ensure speedy and effective investigation, treatment and rehabilitation; and give sound advice on fitness for work. This work has included the development and testing of a number of training and education programmes and other supportive tools.

Equally important is ensuring that employers understand the challenges faced by people with health problems, so that they can make appropriate adjustments to allow people to remain at work while their health conditions are addressed or to return to work in a phased way as part of their recovery. We are working across Government as part of the Health, Work and Well-being Strategy to engage and support employers. For example, the Department of Health's Action on Stigma campaign 'Shift' launched a new package of supportive tools on mental ill-health in October, designed to give advice on managing and supporting people with mental health problems in the workplace.

Today's announcement is further evidence of our commitment to achieve a step-change in the support available to help people with mental health conditions find and remain in work.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Energy Council

The Minister for Energy (Malcolm Wicks): I will represent the UK at the forthcoming Energy Council in Brussels in the morning of 3 December.

There are two substantive items on the Council agenda—the Internal Gas and Electricity Market, on which there will be a progress report and, we hope, a policy debate; and energy technologies on which, following presentations by the presidency and commission on the draft European Strategic Energy Technologies plan, there will also be a policy debate. The third item on the agenda is "International relations in the field of energy" (which will be an information item only).

The item on the internal market will focus on the commission's third package of proposed legislation to improve the functioning of the internal market in electricity and gas. This includes proposals to amend the existing directives on common rules for the internal electricity market and for the internal natural gas market; a proposal to establish an agency for the co-operation of energy regulators; and proposals to amend the existing regulations on conditions for access to the network for cross-border exchanges in electricity and on conditions for access to the natural gas transmission networks. We hope that Ministers will have a full opportunity to debate this important topic. The UK Government support the thrust of these Commission proposals, and consider them as vital for the further development of the internal market.

On the energy technologies item, presentations by the presidency on its "Vision" paper and by the commission on its draft Communication on a European Strategic Energy Technology Plan will be followed by a policy debate. The UK welcomes both the plan and the presidency paper, given the need for a strategic approach to technology in Europe, and we welcome its proposed approach to improving collaboration between organisations and countries—both within the EU and internationally.

The only other agenda item covers "International relations in the field of energy". This is an important issue for the UK, though will only be an information item at this Council. The Portuguese presidency and the Commission will report on a number of developments on the EU's relations with Brazil, Africa and Russia; on the Energy Community treaty; on a proposed international platform on energy efficiency; and on other EU initiatives in the international field.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Education, Youth and Culture Council

The Minister of State, Department for Culture, Media and Sport (Margaret Hodge): A meeting of the Education, Youth and Culture Council was held on 15 and 16 November. Anne Lambert, UK Deputy Permanent Representative, represented the UK for the culture agenda items taken on 16 November.

The presidency presented the joint statement that had been agreed at the first EU-Russia Permanent Partnership Council (PPC) on 25 October. The statement offered the prospect of further cooperation between the two partners. The UK was clear, with support from many other member states, that the work of cultural institutes had to be at the heart of any follow-up to the PPC. The presidency agreed that this issue would need to be taken forward in the drafting of an EU-Russia cultural action plan to be discussed under the Slovenian presidency.

The Council adopted the resolution on the European agenda for culture in a globalising world. The introduction of the Open Method of Co-ordination for Culture was broadly welcomed on the understanding that it was voluntary, proportionate and reflected the needs of the culture sector. There was general agreement that the future cultural agenda should prioritise the contribution that culture makes to the economy (including providing better data to measure this), intercultural dialogue and cultural relations with third countries.

The UK was content with this outcome and supported the adoption of the resolution.

The Council adopted a decision on the selection of Turku (Finland) and Tallinn (Estonia) to host the European Capital of Culture event for 2011.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Money Laundering and Terrorist Financing

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Vernon Coaker): I have placed in the Library of the House the first Annual Report to Home Office and HM Treasury Ministers on the Suspicious Activity Reporting (SAR) regime to combat money laundering and terrorist financing. The reporting system is a key element in the United Kingdom's defences against money laundering and terrorist financing.

The Report has been prepared by a multi-agency Committee, under the chairmanship of the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA), which includes the financial services sector, police, other law enforcement agencies, and the Financial Services Authority.

The Government welcome the good progress that SOCA and the other participants have made to ensure that the reporting system is operating effectively to help deter, detect and disrupt those involved in these crimes and in holding them to account. It is also recognised that there is more to be done to maximise the benefits of the system. The Home Office and HM Treasury will be working closely with SOCA to take this forward.

The Government are providing law enforcement agencies with additional resources to improve financial investigation. Last year the Home Office allocated £58 million to agencies involved in the recovery of the proceeds of crime from money launderers and other criminals. Of that total, £15.5 million went to police forces in England and Wales, much of which has been invested in increasing financial investigation capacity. Further allocations will be made this year.

For its part the Association of Chief Police Officers issued comprehensive best practice guidance to all forces last year on conducting money laundering investigations through the use of financial investigation techniques.

The strategy agreed by the Home Office, HM Treasury, SOCA and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in February 2007 in "The financial challenge to crime and terrorism" set out our shared vision for building on our success to date. The overall goal is a SAR system that addresses the threats to the UK from crime and terrorism, contributes to the reduction of harm and the recovery of the proceeds of crime while minimising the costs of compliance to industry.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Bangladesh (Cyclone Sidr)

The Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Douglas Alexander): Tropical cyclone "Sidr" hit Bangladesh late on the 15 November. In addition to wind speeds of 240 km per hour, people living on the coast were struck by a devastating storm surge—a wall of sea-water 10 to 15 foot high. The official death toll is 3243 (19:00, 26 November) with many more injured and an estimated 7 million people affected. The UN estimates that at least 2.6 million of these people will require immediate life and livelihoods relief assistance for the next two to three months. We know that further support for livelihoods recovery will be required beyond that time frame.

Although the cyclone has had a devastating impact on people, the casualties and damage could have been much worse without the early warning system and contingency measures taken by the authorities. The Government of Bangladesh have acted promptly to bring relief to the affected people and the UK is glad to be supporting this response.

We now know that approximately 1.24 million homes have been damaged—and the poorest, whose houses were mainly made of thatch have been worst affected. More than 1.84 million acres of crop land has been damaged, including a loss of about 800,000 metric tons of rice. Other impacts include loss of livestock—over 523,723 animals perished, damage to the fishing and shrimp industries, and damage to infrastructure including tube wells, toilets, schools, clinics and roads.

But relief is getting through. The Government of Bangladesh and relief organisations including the UN acted swiftly—food, water and medical assistance are now reaching the majority of people. However, because of the vast area affected—31 of the total of 64 districts—and the remoteness of some communities, there are still gaps in provision. In total, over US$191 million has been promised to the Government and NGOs from the international community. The Government of Bangladesh have welcomed this assistance and efforts to co-ordinate this relief are underway. This disaster has followed swiftly on the heels of a major flood which affected Bangladesh in August and September—affecting some of the same districts as the cyclone.

The UK Government were one of the first to commit funds to the cyclone "Sidr" relief efforts. The Department for International Development announced an initial contribution of £2.5 million within days. These funds, channelled through the UN, are already providing immediate relief in the form of food and safe water to 70,000 families, as well as essential non-food items such as clothes, blankets, mosquito nets and utensils. These are vital—many families lost everything they own in the cyclone. We will also be repairing the homes of over 16,000 vulnerable families, and paying local people to undertake clean up operations to restore essential community infrastructure, for example removing debris that is contaminating water supplies. DFID announced an additional £2.5 million on Friday which is being used for short to medium-term water, sanitation and hygiene needs. These were identified by our humanitarian experts as a particular priority. The partners we are working with—Oxfam, Save the Children UK and CARE International—are already using these funds to provide life-saving clean water.

I am pleased to announce today a further £2 million allocation—taking the total UK Government assistance to £7 million. These additional funds will provide essential non-food items including blankets, which are essential during the cold season which is fast approaching in Bangladesh. We will also use the funds to restore livelihoods and address ongoing public health needs. The UK stands ready to provide further support as required, and is pushing for improved coordination of the relief efforts.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Convicted Rapists and Protecting Victims

The Solicitor-General (Vera Baird): My right hon. and learned Friend the Attorney-General has made the following Written Ministerial Statement:

"Today the Government are issuing its response to the consultation "Convicting Rapists and Protecting Victims—Justice for Victims of Rape".

The consultation document set out a range of proposals which aimed to improve the outcome of rape cases through further strengthening the existing legal framework and improving our care for victims and witnesses.

The consultation paper dealt with four issues—the consent element in the offence of rape, general expert evidence, hearsay evidence and special measures for witnesses.

In summary, our conclusions following the consultation are as follows: firstly, a judgment in the Court of Appeal has clarified the circumstances in which capacity to consent can be affected by intoxication, and there is accordingly no need for a further change to the law in this area. Guidance for criminal justice practitioners, including the judiciary, will help ensure that the law is properly understood and enforced. We will continue to look for ways in which information concerning the psychological reactions of rape victims can be presented to juries other than through evidence called by the prosecution. We have decided to legislate when Parliamentary time allows to make all complaints of rape by victims to friends, family and others automatically admissible as evidence at trial, irrespective of the time that may have passed since the alleged offence. Finally, on the subject of special measures, we have decided to change the law to make video recordings of rape victims automatically admissible as evidence-in-chief in criminal trials.

We believe this considered package of measures will make a valuable contribution to the successful prosecution of rape cases. A copy of the full consultation response will be available in the Libraries of both Houses and can be downloaded from www.homeoffice.gov.uk and www.cisonline.org ."

National Minimum Wage

The Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs (Mr. Pat McFadden): I am pleased to announce that the Government have submitted their economic evidence on the national minimum wage to the Low Pay Commission. The Commission will take this and all the other evidence received into account when preparing its next report on the minimum wage, which will be submitted to the Government by the end of February 2008.

The economic evidence addresses recent trends in economic and labour market performance, as well as the impact of the national minimum wage on pay, employment and younger workers.

Copies of the Government's economic evidence have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and will be posted on the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform website at: www.berr.gov.uk.

The Government submitted their evidence on non-economic issues to the Commission in October. A combined volume of the non-economic and economic evidence will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses at a later date.

Competitiveness Council

The Minister for Competitiveness (Mr. Stephen Timms): The following statement provides information on the Competitiveness Council in Brussels on 22 November 2007, at which I represented the UK. The meeting was chaired in the morning by Manuel Pinho, Portuguese Minister for Economy and Innovation, and in the afternoon by State Secretary João Tiago Silveira of the Portuguese Justice Ministry:

The Council held an exchange of views and reached agreement on integrated conclusions covering Industry, SME, and e-skills policy, as well as on the Commission's recent communications on globalisation and competitiveness. The Council agreed on the importance of sustainability and knowledge, as well as facilitating access to markets, both internal and external. I intervened to emphasise the importance of an integrated approach to competitiveness, and an open trade policy.

The Council took note of a progress report and held an exchange of views on better regulation. I intervened to welcome progress, but also to emphasise that further work is needed on impact assessment and the reduction of administrative burdens, including in the field of company law.

The Council also took note of a progress report and held an exchange of views on the revision to the timeshare directive. I intervened to press for further progress on this proposal, but argued that the issue of the right of withdrawal for consumers should be addressed as part of the Commission's wider review of consumer legislation.

Conclusions on sustainable and competitive European tourism were also adopted, noting the contribution which sustainable tourism can make to regeneration and economic development.

The Council adopted conclusions on a simplified business environment for EU companies in the areas of company law, accounting and auditing, emphasising the importance of creating an investment-friendly climate and improving European competitiveness.

The Council took note of a progress report and held an exchange of views on the patent system in Europe, focusing on whether to split jurisdiction for infringement and validity disputes, and on whether to combine work on patent litigation and the Community Patent. The UK intervened to argue against split jurisdiction, and to avoid linking progress on patent litigation issues to the Community Patent.

Under Other Business, the Commission and Presidency gave short progress reports on the single market review, the free movement of goods, the classification, labelling and packaging of substances, product safety, services of general interest, trade defence instruments (where the UK intervened to support a modernised regime which takes account of the interests of all players), the legal protection of designs, and a number of presidency conferences. The incoming Slovenian presidency gave a brief indication of its likely work programme.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Thames Gateway

The Minister for Housing (Yvette Cooper): One year ago, we published the interim plan for the Thames Gateway, Europe's largest regeneration programme, setting out the long-term vision and objectives for the Thames Gateway. We are today publishing a delivery plan, which sets out cross-government priorities and funding progress for the next three years.

Since last year, we have seen major progress on key projects including Crossrail, the Eurostar Ebbsfleet station, the $O_2$ complex and the Olympic Park investment over the last three years includes improving green spaces such as Rainham Marshes, and public sector improvement such as new Sure Start centres as well as economic regeneration projects. Two new universities at Southend and Medway are providing nearly 5,000 new higher and further education places, the Docklands Light Railway extension to Woolwich will be completed in 2009 and employment growth from 2001-2005 was 9 per cent.—faster than the national average.

The plan published today provides a framework for making the best use of public investment, local ownership, big project expertise and private sector entrepreneurship. It sets out a proposed spending programme for 2008-11 which includes £500 million from the Department for Communities and Local Government for regeneration and £100 million for local transport improvements within a total Government investment commitment of over £9 billion.

The cross-government plan identifies three important themes for change in the Gateway: a strong economy, improvements in the quality of life for local communities and the development of the Gateway as an eco-region.

Within these, key to the success of the region are: (1) economic transformation in four key areas: Canary Wharf, London Gateway, Ebbsfleet Valley, and the Olympic Park with Stratford City; (2) supporting the ten largest developments for new homes; (3) the Thames Gateway Parklands; and (4) investing in a skilled workforce.

In terms of local communities, we have given priority in our spending allocations to six priority locations: Stratford, the Lower Lea and the Royal Docks; London Riverside; Greenwich Peninsula and Woolwich; Thurrock; Kent Thameside; and Medway. There are also five urban renewal areas receiving support: Barking; Basildon; Erith; Sittingbourne and Swale; and Southend.

The plan sets out the route to make the most of the economic potential of the Gateway, encourage new investment and jobs, and boost the skills of local people to take up new opportunities. This plan outlines:

an increase in the number of new jobs we expect in the Gateway to 225,000 by 2016;

a £200 million Strategic Economic Investment Fund to support priority projects from the RDAs' Thames Gateway Economic Development Investment Plan, that the RDAs estimate will lever in an additional £75 million and is on top of their baseline annual investment;

a "Pan-Gateway" skills plan developed by the Learning and Skills Councils to invest £1.6 billion in teaching and learning, and £850 million in new building for further education;

the building and opening of new and extended further and higher education campuses in Grays and Basildon, Swale and Medway, creating around 9,000 places; commitment to a recommended approach to the biggest remaining constraint to development in the Thames Gateway, junction 30 of the M25 (the junction with the A13) with an announcement in 2008; an allocation of £100 million from the Community Infrastructure Fund to invest in 13 local transport schemes.

On top of economic investment, we are committed to improving the quality of life for all residents in the Gateway as a critical part of regeneration—building more affordable houses, investing in thriving town centres, public places and spaces, growing and improving public services, and supporting community cohesion. In this plan:

we prioritise funding from the Thames Gateway programme to secure housing programmes in the 10 locations where extra homes are most urgently needed. These 10 programmes are expected to deliver nearly 110,000 homes by 2016, the majority of our target figure;

we set out the Housing Corporation intention to invest over £800 million in around 15,000 affordable homes by 2011;

we confirm that Communities and Local Government will ask the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment (CABE) to do a further housing audit in the Gateway in 2010 to measure progress in improving design quality;

we include planned spending of over £600 million in this CSR period as part of a longer-term £1.4 billion programme on new hospital provision serving the Gateway;

we include planned investment of £1.2 billion on new or substantially refurbished schools in Gateway authorities, as well as £278 million allocated to support Sure Start centres in Gateway authorities, including 90 new ones;

we announce the appointment of Sir Terry Farrell as Design Champion for the Thames Gateway Parklands, a new programme to celebrate and enhance the individual character of the Gateway backed by a £35 million allocation of Thames Gateway funding to invest in improving the natural and urban environment;

The plan also outlines the challenges for the Gateway in both increasing economic growth, development and prosperity and tackling climate change. The Thames Gateway can lead the way with environmental jobs, greater use of renewables and new technologies, and environmental improvements to existing homes and building. This plan takes the first steps to promote higher standards for cutting carbon emissions, water conservation, reducing waste, and protecting people against flood risk. The plan outlines:

that Communities and Local Government will invite proposals for a new Eco-quarter in the Gateway, similar to the plans for eco-towns but this time—for the first time—within an existing urban area;

a continuing commitment to 80 per cent. of new homes being built on brownfield land;

some £2 million available to promoters and developers to fund eco-risk assessments of the top 10 housing programmes, to ensure they will design in climate change mitigation, flood risk management, energy and water efficiency from the start; planned investment of £15 million in a community-focused programme to retrofit existing homes with energy saving measures that will reduce emissions by up to 60 per cent.

an allocation of £1.5 million from the Thames Gateway fund to work with the Energy Savings Trust to establish the first of the new national energy service centres to deliver the Green Homes Services across the Gateway; a follow-up to our 'water neutrality' feasibility study, investigating costs and possible delivery mechanisms; work on the costs and possible delivery mechanisms for a zero construction waste target across the Gateway; investment by the RDAs in an International Institute for sustainability.

The Government will ensure that public funds invested in the Gateway are subject to rigorous appraisal to secure value for money and, wherever possible, be used to attract additional private funding to maximise the benefit for Thames Gateway communities. The levels of funding set out in this delivery plan are therefore indicative and subject to final confirmation as individual projects come forward for appraisal.

The role of Government across the Gateway is to ensure that key infrastructure is provided to promote improvement and growth and to provide the conditions that enable investor confidence to flourish. We need the market to respond to the new opportunities on offer. The ultimate measure of success will be when that investor confidence is assured and places in the Gateway take on a new and self-sustaining identity.

DEFENCE

Future Rapid Effect System

The Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): The Future Rapid Effect System (FRES) has a vital role to play in the future of the British Army. We stated that we would announce the outcome of the utility vehicle design trials by the end of November. I am delighted to announce today that these trials have been successfully completed on schedule, and that a recommendation has been produced based on technical design considerations. Further work with all three possible providers will be undertaken over the next few weeks in order to clarify the commercial implications of their proposals. Following this, a definitive announcement will be made on the preferred design to be taken through the remainder of assessment phase of this part of the FRES programme.

Sea King Integrated Operation Support

The Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): I am announcing today the award of a contract to Agusta Westland for Implementation Phase 2 of the Sea King Integrated Operational Support (SKIOS IP2) programme. This programme will maintain availability levels and reduce costs for each of the live variants of Sea King helicopter operated by the RN and the RAF. This is part of the wider Defence Logistics Transformation Programme to improve the effectiveness and efficiency of military logistics support to the front line. The contract builds on existing SKIOS arrangements and the support arrangements piloted on other MOD helicopters. It is worth around £470 million over the first five years, with a price review thereafter, and transfers to industry further responsibility for Sea King and component maintenance. The contract is forecast to deliver savings in the region of £90 million over 12 years against current support arrangements without any reduction of capability. These savings are in addition to the savings already achieved under Implementation Phase 1 of the programme, awarded in April 2005, which provides technical and spares support services. Implementation Phase 2 also transfers to industry approximately 300 military and civilian posts that currently provide flight line engineering and logistics support at Royal Navy and Royal Air Force Search land Rescue (SAR) bases in the UK and Falkland Islands. The contract represents another deliverable of the helicopter plans set out in the Defence Industrial Strategy, strengthens the partnered relationship with industry, and maintains aircraft availability levels but with reduced through life costs. Overall it provides better value for money for the taxpayer.

NATO

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): The right hon. and learned Member for North-East Fife (Sir Menzies Campbell) has replaced the hon. Member for Hereford (Mr. Keetch) as a Member of the United Kingdom delegation to the NATO Parliamentary Assembly.

HEALTH

Abortion Act 1967 (Government Response to Science and Technology Committee Report)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): Today we have laid before Parliament the Government response to the Science and Technology Committee's report on the scientific developments relating to the Abortion Act 1967 (Cm 7278).

In June 2007, the Committee undertook to conduct an inquiry into scientific developments relating to the Abortion Act 1967. The Department participated in the inquiry and the Government is grateful for the Committee's report and has accepted several of the key recommendations.

The Command Paper sets out the Government's response to all 32 conclusions and is available in the Library.

NHS Finance and Performance

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): At the end of 2005-06, the NHS had a net deficit of £547 million, with 123 (33 per cent.) organisations building up a total gross deficit of £1.3 billion. Today I am pleased to say that we have turned that position around completely.

Financial projections at the end of September 2007 show that the NHS is forecasting a healthy £1.8 billion surplus for 2007-08, with only 25 trusts forecasting a deficit. This is a dramatic improvement and a testament to the efforts of NHS staff over the last year and a half.

This level of surplus—which is only about 2 per cent. of the overall NHS budget—shows sensible financial management. The NHS should not merely be aiming to breakeven year-to-year, it should be planning for a surplus so that it can make long-term investment decisions, such as public health investments and shifting appropriate care out of hospital and closer to people's homes.

The Chief Executive of the Audit Commission, Steve Hundred, said last month

"The NHS is no longer in deficit, which is good news for patients and for taxpayers. Managing money well goes hand-in-hand with providing better patient care. Trusts that fail to manage their money well are unlikely to be doing their best for patients". (Audit Commission, Press Notice, 23 October)

But, while this is good news in overall terms, we are not resting on our laurels. We are working with strategic health authorities to support a handful of financially challenged trusts, which need intensive effort to get out of deficit. Our aim is that all NHS organisations should be out of in year deficit by the end of next year.

This financial turnaround and surplus have been achieved at the same time that the NHS has maintained or improved performance on key indicators of patient care. We will be publishing a report tomorrow that shows:

- waiting times are down to an all time low and the NHS is on course to deliver the 18-week target;
- cancer waits are down;
- the excellent level of A&E performance has been maintained, even during periods of extra pressure;
- latest data show continued progress towards halving rates of MRSA, a problem in health systems across the developed world; and
- early signs of promise on Clostridium difficile, with latest quarterly figures showing a fall in numbers for the first time.

The financial improvement has not been at the expense then of patient care. In fact, the independent Healthcare Commission's last survey of recent hospital inpatients showed 92 per cent. rated their care as good, very good or excellent.

These results have been achieved, in part, by introducing a stronger, fairer and more transparent NHS financial regime, coupled with a renewed emphasis on performance management, but more importantly by NHS organisations taking action to increase productivity such as:

- increasing the use of day surgery and minimally invasive techniques;
- by providing support for people with long-term conditions and reducing unnecessary emergency bed days; and,
- reducing the use of agency staff.

The comprehensive spending review settlement gave health a very good increase of 4.0 per cent. in real terms, but even this means the NHS will need to plan for a slowdown on the recent unprecedented levels of investment. The surplus gives the NHS flexibility to respond to fluctuations in demand and enables organisations to commit future growth on improving services for patients.

It must be emphasised that this surplus is not being held at the centre. It remains with the NHS so they can use it to invest in improving the quality of patient care next year and in future years.

Through the rest of this financial year the NHS will use the surplus to accelerate improvements. For example, the strategic health authorities have between them agreed investments of £57 million in a programme of deep cleaning for hospitals to help deliver a better patient experience.

The NHS will also have the capacity to accelerate progress in the numbers of patients treated within 18 weeks of referral to a specialist. For example, £22 million has been made available in NHS South Central and is already producing more clinics, diagnostic facilities and operating theatre sessions.

While in the north-west £35 million will be made available to support a broad range of public health initiatives. A large amount of this resource will be targeted at educational programmes. And in the East Midlands £7 million has been made available to improve GP access and premises along with a further £5 million to reduce health inequalities.

In conclusion, NHS performance at quarter 2 shows encouraging progress being made in delivering our promises to patients and the wider public and the forecast surplus is a reassuring sign that the NHS is restored to financial health and will enable investment in improving the quality of patient care. Tables have been placed in the Library.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Additional Protective Services (Demonstration Sites)

The Minister for Security, Counter-Terrorism, Crime and Policing (Mr. Tony McNulty): I am today announcing that three more initiatives are being added to the 10 already included as demonstrator sites for the protective capabilities programme. These initiatives are addressing the demands of major crime, serious organised crime and other threats to public safety by police forces and authorities working together in a range of different collaborative projects.

The new initiatives that the Home Office will be supporting are:

| Police Forces and Authorities | Initiative |
|---|---|
| Staffordshire / Warwickshire / West Mercia / West Midlands | Regional Intelligence Project: to develop enhanced intelligence structures between the four regional forces. |
| Derbyshire / Leicestershire / Lincolnshire / Northamptonshire / Nottinghamshire | Specialist Operational Capacity and Capability: to identify and take forward opportunities to deliver joint specialist requirements for protective services across the region. |
| Humberside / North Yorkshire / South Yorkshire / West Yorkshire | Fast-Time tasking, co-ordinating and resourcing arrangements: to provide capacity and capability coverage for all seven protective services across the forces of the region. |

The selection of these three initiatives, from 12 proposals submitted, will bring the number of forces participating in the programme to 34 across England and Wales.

The demonstrator sites are being established to examine and develop different models of collaboration between forces to enhance the delivery of a range of policing services focused on protecting the public. The lessons learned will be used to strengthen the development of future police joint working, particularly in finding ways to improve the capability and capacity for protective services delivery.

Home Office funding of £4.1 million is being provided in total to the demonstrators to support the start-up costs of their projects.

Autumn Performance Report

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): The Home Office Autumn Performance Report 2007 will be published tomorrow by command of Her Majesty. Copies of the report will be available in the Vote Office. The Report will also be available on the Home Office website.

The report sets out the progress we have made towards achieving our public service agreement targets.

The report shows that we have made progress against our targets. We have continued to reduce the harm caused by drugs. We are cutting crime levels in high crime areas faster than elsewhere. In the year to June 2007 we have brought 1.434 million offences to justice. Police performance continues to improve in tackling crime and public confidence is continuing to increase.

JUSTICE

Leeds Magistrates Court

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): I am today announcing that yesterday, on 28 November, I formally asked Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Courts Administration to work with the Chief Inspectors for the Constabulary and the Crown Prosecution Service to conduct a thorough inspection and prepare a report to Ministers into the resulting and warrant processes at Leeds magistrates court.

An experienced judge will also be appointed by the senior presiding judge to conduct an independent investigation of the judicial responsibilities of legal advisers at Leeds magistrates court.

The concerns about Leeds magistrates court relate to two issues: the recording of outcomes of cases principally between 1997-2003 and subsequently, in the case of recordable offences, updating the Police National Computer (PNC). This is a process known as resulting. The second related issue centres on a process used for withdrawing warrants issued by the court for the arrest of defendants who fail to appear. The withdrawal of a warrant is a judicial decision.

The investigations will verify the number of cases involved, the breakdown of offences and the position regarding the Police National Computer (PNC). The terms of reference are as follows:

"Under Section 60(4) of the Courts Act 2003 and working with HM Chief Inspector of Constabulary and HM Chief Inspector of CPS; the Chief Inspector of Court Administration will report to the Secretary of State for Justice, the Home Secretary and the Attorney-General as necessary on:

1. The effectiveness and appropriateness of the systems enabling a record of every court adjudication to be entered in the magistrates court register at Leeds magistrates court.

2. The effectiveness and appropriateness of the systems enabling court registers to be conveyed to the police from Leeds magistrates court.

3. The effectiveness and appropriateness of the systems enabling court adjudications from Leeds magistrates court to be placed on the PNC.

4. The effectiveness and appropriateness of the interagency systems in place to manage warrant withdrawal in Leeds magistrates court.

The Chief Inspector of Court Administration will support the separate and independent judicial investigation of the judicial responsibilities of legal advisers at Leeds magistrates court, as appropriate".

In addition the following actions are in place:

We have started investigating the national process and practice for withdrawing warrants, involving courts, the police and the Crown Prosecution Service. This has identified differing practices across magistrates courts which will require further local investigation and may require us to clarify the procedures.

Simultaneously we are writing to all local criminal justice boards as part of a national review into warrant withdrawal practice across England and Wales and will provide further detailed national guidance should that be required.

Following a pro-active national review instigated by officials in January 2007 about the effectiveness of processes for resulting the 2.2 million cases dealt with in the magistrates court each year, my officials identified that there were some courts which needed to improve performance and take action to deal with any outstanding cases.

Ministers have been actively engaged in this on-going work on improving performance in resulting since January.

The majority of outstanding cases were dealt with by the end of May and performance has been improving since. The courts keep performance under regular review to ensure the accuracy of the resulting process. I have however asked HMCS to again review comprehensively the information for any outstanding issues.

However, the national review identified a continuing issue at Leeds magistrates court where there was a problem with the process. Where any evidence of misconduct was found disciplinary investigations have been undertaken. A further investigation is ongoing.

As part of the work that court staff were undertaking to look at these issues, this month they identified a further problem with an historical process dating back to 2003 to withdraw old "failure to appear" warrants which had been agreed by the court, the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) and the police. Although the withdrawal of warrants is entirely appropriate in certain circumstances, the process used in Leeds needs to be investigated.

In June 2006 the Government issued guidance for areas on withdrawing warrants, emphasising the issues that should be taken into account and stressing that the decision to withdraw a warrant is a judicial one. However, over the last few months it has become evident that the issues over the processes used in Leeds were of sufficient concern to merit a detailed inquiry. The issue over the withdrawal of warrants, which was reported to ministers last week, is of particular concern.

It is for that reason I have asked the inspectors to review all of these matters to provide me with independent assurance that the issues have been dealt with appropriately and whether there are any national lessons that we should learn from the experience in Leeds. Together with the review of the process for the withdrawal of warrants and the judicial responsibilities review, I will then be able to assess whether further national actions need to be taken, including improvements to the resulting process.

The resulting of cases and enforcement of warrants are important areas of work. All criminal justice agencies work continually to improve processes and address performance issues where they arise.

HMCS has worked with the police to improve performance and, for the first time, the joint target of having 75 per cent. of all case results entered on the PNC within 10 days of the court hearing was met in July 2007 and has been maintained.

We have also improved the enforcement of warrants. From August 2004 until June 2007 there was a 54 per cent. reduction in the number of outstanding warrants. Latest data indicate that the number of warrants withdrawn per month has fallen by more than 30 per cent. since the same period in 2005.

I will make a further statement to the House on the findings and facts relating to all these matters, the action that has been taken and the actions that will be taken when the investigations have concluded. The inspectorate report will be published to Parliament.

WALES

Education and Skills Bill (Framework Powers)

The Secretary of State for Wales (Mr. Peter Hain): I am pleased to inform the House that an explanatory memorandum explaining the proposals for the use of framework powers in the Education and Skills Bill is available today. ## TREASURY

ECOFIN (4 December 2007)

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Economic and Financial Affairs Council will be held on 4 December in Brussels. The agenda will be as follows:

Implementation of the Stability and Growth Pact

The Council will discuss whether Poland has met the 27 August 2007 deadline to correct its excessive deficit procedure, following discussion of the issue at the Economic and Financial Committee. The UK supports a prudent interpretation of the Stability and Growth Pact, which takes into account the economic cycle, sustainability and the important role of public investment

Lisbon Multilateral Surveillance

Ministers will be asked to agree draft conclusions on the multilateral surveillance element of the Lisbon national reform programmes. These conclusions have been prepared at the Economic Policy Committee and the Economic and Financial Committee. The UK welcomes multilateral surveillance under the Lisbon strategy, which encourages member states to focus on the implementation of the Lisbon strategy.

Globalisation: Capital and Labour Flows

Ministers will be asked to agree conclusions on the economic dimension of migration. This follows from an exchange of views at November ECOFIN on the basis of a report on the economic impact of migration prepared by the European Commission. At the November meeting, Ministers agreed that it was important that the economic dimension should be considered in broader discussions of migration.

Financial Services: a) Directive on the Solvency of Insurance Companies (Solvency II)

Ministers will be invited to discuss the proposed Solvency II directive on the prudential requirements for insurance and reinsurance companies. The debate will focus on a paper prepared by the Portuguese presidency, which endorses a need for further work on certain key areas of group supervision.

b) Lamfalussy Review

Ministers will be asked to agree Council conclusions on the review of the Lamfalussy arrangements. The UK believes the Lamfalussy arrangements have made a major contribution to improving the efficiency of the EU legislative process and enhancing supervisory co-operation. The UK believes the draft council conclusions represent an appropriate consensus about how the Lamfalussy arrangements should evolve going forward.

c) Risk Capital

Ministers will be asked to agree Council conclusions on cross-border risk capital, which have been prepared by the Financial Services Committee. The UK supports work to break down the key remaining barriers to development of a European venture capital market.

Taxation:

a) VAT Package

Following on from its discussion at its November meeting, the Council will be asked to agree a set of measures that will modernise the EU VAT rules for the cross-border supply of services, with particular focus on proposed changes to the rules for the telecoms, broadcasting and e-services sectors. The UK strongly supports these proposals.

b) Reduced VAT Rates

i) Commission communication on VAT rates other than the standard rate.

Ministers will be asked to agree Council conclusions that will provide political guidance for the Commission to enable it to prepare a new legislative proposal on VAT rates.

ii) Proposal for a Council directive amending Directive 2006/112/EEC with regard to certain temporary provisions concerning rates of VAT.

Ministers will then discuss the Commission proposal to extend until 2010 some of the new member states' derogations for reduced VAT rates. The UK believes that member states should be given flexibility to apply reduced VAT rates where these will not materially affect the single market, and therefore supports the extension of most of the temporary derogations granted to those member states that acceded to the European Union after 1 January 1995.

c) Capital Duty Directive

Ministers will then be asked to discuss a Commission proposal for a directive concerning indirect taxes on the raising of capital. The UK abolished capital duty in 1988.

d) Combating Tax Fraud

Ministers will be asked to agree conclusions on work to improve arrangements to combat tax fraud, which have been prepared on the basis of a report by the Commission. The UK is strongly supportive of work that will help in the fight against Missing Trader Intra-Community (MTIC) and other VAT fraud, while remaining committed to minimising the burdens on legitimate businesses.

e) Code of Conduct Group (Business Taxation)

Ministers will be asked to agree the forward workplan for the code of conduct group, a Ministerial group which looks to coordinate and share best practice on tax-related issues that are not directly covered by EU legislation. The UK supports the proposed work programme.

ECOFIN (13 November 2007)

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Economic and Financial Affairs Council was held on 13 November in Brussels. The Financial Secretary to the Treasury attended for the UK. The items on the agenda were as follows:

Lisbon Strategy: The New Three-year Cycle

The Council adopted conclusions on the next three-year cycle for the Lisbon strategy, as prepared by the Economic Policy Committee. Ministers agreed that the Lisbon strategy is delivering results, and that the four priority areas for reform agreed at the 2006 spring Council (employment, knowledge and innovation, business potential, and energy and climate change) remain valid. Ministers agreed with the Commission's assessment that the integrated guidelines do not need a fundamental overhaul, as stability is an important element for the effectiveness of the Lisbon strategy. They also agreed that the main focus of the new cycle should be on the implementation and delivery of reform.

Globalisation: Capital and Labour Flows

The Council exchanged views on the basis of a report on the economic impact of migration prepared by the European Commission, taking into account a paper prepared by the Economic Policy Committee. Ministers agreed that it was important that the economic dimension should be considered in broader discussions of migration.

Statistics

The Council agreed conclusions on EU statistical matters, including the 2007 EFC status report on information requirements, the reduction of the statistical burden, EU statistical governance, and the public communication of major statistical revisions, as prepared by the Economic and Financial Committee. The UK welcomes work to reduce the statistical burden on member states.

Taxation:

a) VAT Package

The Council discussed a set of measures that will modernise the EU VAT rules for the cross-border supply of services, with particular focus on proposed changes to the rules for the telecoms, broadcasting and e-services sectors. The presidency felt that good progress had been made on these proposals, which the UK strongly support. The Council is due to consider these proposals again at its meeting on 4 December 2007.

b) Green Taxation: Passenger Car-related Taxes

Ministers exchanged views on Commission proposals for a new directive introducing a compulsory $CO_2$ element into passenger car taxation. The UK Government are committed to combating climate change using the most cost-effective tools available, but remains to be convinced that this proposal, which would restrict member states' choice of form and structure of passenger car taxation, is necessary.

c) Reduced VAT Rates

Ministers discussed Commission proposals to extend until 2010 most of the new member states' derogations for reduced VAT rates. The UK Government are supportive of the proposal to extend most of the temporary derogations granted to those member states that acceded to the European Union after 1 January 1995. The Council is due to consider these proposals again at its meeting on 4 December 2007.

Global Navigation Satellite System (GALILEO): Financing Aspects

Ministers exchanged views on the financing of the Galileo project. The UK Government believe that sound financial management is essential to the success of the Galileo project.

Presentation of the Annual Report by the Court of Auditors Concerning the Financial Year 2006

The Council received a presentation from Hubert Weber, the President of the European Court of Auditors on the 2006 general budget. The UK Government welcome the improvements made to financial management of EU funds in 2006 and support the calls made by the Commission and the presidency for further progress to be made in this area.

C-17 Globemaster

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): The Ministry of Defence recognises the importance of a robust strategic airlift capability to operational deployments. On 26 July 2007 I announced our intention to procure a sixth C-17 Globemaster aircraft. I am pleased to announce that the Ministry of Defence has now signed a contract with Boeing, totalling some £130 million, for the purchase of the sixth C-17 aircraft to be delivered in 2008. This procurement will deliver a significant increase in our capability. The four existing C-17 aircraft already make a critical contribution to sustaining current UK world wide operations, both in providing a general airlift capability and in lifting oversize items. The additional C-17 will join the existing fleet of four aircraft and a fifth aircraft which will be delivered in May 2008.

Marine Services

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): Marine services embrace a wide range of waterborne and associated support activities, both in and out of port, at Portsmouth, Devonport and on the Clyde, as well as maintenance of UK and overseas moorings and navigation marks and support to a range of military operations and training. Under the current arrangements, in-port services are provided by Serco Denholm Ltd. under Government-owned contractor operated arrangements, while out of port services are undertaken by the Royal Maritime Auxiliary Service (RMAS).

Since 2002, we have been working to find a long-term service provider and following an industry briefing day in May 2003 and a subsequent pre-qualification questionnaire exercise, four bidders were short listed, although two subsequently withdrew. The two remaining bidders, Serco Denholm and the Starfish Consortium (the latter comprising Babcock Naval Services (Clyde), Devonport Management Ltd. (Plymouth), Fleet Support Ltd. (Portsmouth) and Smit International (Scotland) Ltd.), were invited to submit two proposals offering a complete service: one of these proposals reflected a partnering arrangement with the RMAS, whereby staff remain in the MOD; the second proposal would entail TUPE transfer as appropriate.

Following detailed bid evaluations, using predetermined criteria, Serco Denholm's proposal to provide the complete service, including taking ownership of MOD marine service assets, was selected as the preferred bidder. Following completion of final negotiations with the company, a contract will be awarded in early December that will provide more flexibility and offer greater potential for continuous improvements. The contract for those services currently provided by Serco Denholm (Vesting Day 1) will commence immediately following the award of the contract while the contract for the services currently provided by the RMAS (Vesting Day 2) will start at the beginning of April 2008.

A key implication of the new arrangement will see the transfer of the RMAS workforce to the company under the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) (TUPE) Regulations. New pension arrangements are also in place that are comparable to those currently enjoyed under the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme.

A farther significant aspect will be the closure of Her Majesty's mooring depot at Pembroke Dock within six months of Vesting Day 2, which will lead to around 30 redundancies. New employment opportunities are, however, expected to emerge from arrangements that will form part of the contract for the sale of the dock.

The changes in the way the service is to be provided will result in some 200 post reductions from the combined workforce of 740 during the first five years of the new arrangement. As far as possible, these will be achieved either through natural wastage or voluntary means although the need for some compulsory redundancies cannot be ruled out at this stage.

Throughout the tendering process the Department has engaged with the relevant trades unions and this will continue as the formal TUPE consultation process commences.

This is a complex and valuable contract and the MoD's commitment has been to ensure that we get it right for all of those concerned, especially those staff employed by the RMAS who will be affected by the new arrangements.

HEALTH

CJD Surveillance Unit (Annual Report)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): The National Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease Surveillance Unit's (NCJDSU) fifteenth annual report was published on 30 November. The report documents the unit's findings in relation to sporadic, familial and iatrogenic Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (CJD), and variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (vCJD) up to 31 December 2006. The report has been placed in the Library, and is available on the NCJDSU's website at: www.cjd.ed.ac.uk

Cancer Reform Strategy

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): Today the Government fulfil their commitment to publish a new cancer reform strategy. The cancer reform strategy sets out the next phase of the Government's commitment to deliver world class cancer services. Building on the progress that has been made following the NHS cancer plan (2000), the strategy recognises that there are major challenges ahead. The strategy sets out the actions that need to be taken over the next five years on prevention, early diagnosis, better treatment, improving patients' experience of care and reducing inequalities. It also sets out how these actions will be delivered by the NHS.

The strategy has been placed in the Library and copies are available to hon. Members in the Vote Office.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Specialist Disability Employment Services

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mrs. Anne McGuire): Work matters. People in work are generally better off financially and in terms of their health and well-being, their self-esteem and the future prospects for them and their families. Disabled people must get the same opportunities to benefit from work as everyone else.

Our specialist disability employment services (job introduction scheme, work preparation, Workstep, disability employment advisers and access to work) for those who need the most support to work, or long-term support in work, make a profound difference to the lives of tens of thousands of disabled people every day. But we can make these services work better and achieve more.

We have carried out a major review of these services and listened to the views of many disabled people, employers, external delivery partners and Jobcentre Plus staff.

Today we have published a consultation paper "Helping people achieve their full potential: Improving Specialist Disability Employment Services" to set out how we think we can improve these services to help more disabled people reach their potential through leading fulfilling working lives. A copy of this document has been placed in the Library.

The proposals complement our other major reforms such as pathways to work and proposals for a flexible new deal by offering additional specialist help for people with greater support needs. Alongside the modernisation of Remploy we expect these proposals would help improve our services for those disabled people who need most help to find, retain and progress in paid work.

Responses to the consultation need to be submitted by close of business on Monday 10 March 2008.

TREASURY

Tax Information Exchange (UK and Bermuda)

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Jane Kennedy): A new tax information exchange arrangement with Bermuda was signed on 4 December 2007. After signature, the text of the arrangement was deposited in the Libraries of both Houses and made available on HM Revenue and Customs' website. The text of the arrangement will be scheduled to a draft Order in Council and laid before the House of Commons in due course.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

One Northeast Regional Development Agency

The Minister for Competitiveness (Mr. Stephen Timms): I have decided to appoint the new Board Members listed below:

Alex Cunningham

Gill Hale

Christopher Higgins

Graham Thrower

Ian Dormer

The new appointments will all be for a period of three years.

The appointments will begin on 14 December 2007 and will expire on 13 December 2010.

I have placed further details of the new appointments in the Libraries of both Houses. They were all made in accordance with the code of practice of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Infrastructure for Housing

The Minister for Housing (Yvette Cooper): I am today announcing additional funding of £732 million of flexible infrastructure support for local authorities who have committed to high rates of economic and housing growth in the designated new growth points or in the growth areas designated in the 2003 sustainable communities plan.

In the housing Green Paper we set an ambitious goal of 2 million homes by 2016 to help respond to the increasing housing crisis, for example for young families trapped in overcrowded accommodation and unable to afford a home. The growth areas and growth points will play a critical role in helping us reach these targets delivering a total of 870,000 new homes by 2016, of which 210,000 are additional to existing plans. Following the housing Green Paper we have invited more authorities to join the scheme, particularly in the northern regions, either as new growth points or eco-towns, and I will make a further announcement on the selection of successful bids in February.

The 117 existing growth authorities have now set out their infrastructure plans in long-term programmes of development which they have put together with partners bringing together the future investments they need to create sustainable growth. These will facilitate major new developments, for example in town centre renewal, in opening up development sites, many of them brownfield, and to provide a high standard of community facilities and new green infrastructure.

For these areas I am announcing today funding of £224 million for 2008-09 with indicative awards of £336 million for 2009, 2010 and 2011, and a further allocation of around £172 million for 2009-11 once we have consulted on and reviewed the new approach to funding. Additional funding will also be provided in due course for other councils who come forward to back eco-towns or become additional growth points. Examples of projects set out in the programmes of development include:

major town centre renewal schemes transport solutions to support growth, improvements to road capacity, more sustainable travel through park-and-ride and better cycleways and walking routes; overcoming physical barriers to help town centre renewal such as building additional railway crossings;

new green infrastructure, for example along river corridors;

new community facilities and buildings;

new civic spaces and amenities.

Some of these schemes will need other funding sources and may take longer and cost more than is available in this round of funding—that is why our new approach gives authorities flexibility to so that they can use the funding where they judge it will be most effective in line with local government White Paper principles.

This is a new strategic approach which will enable local authorities to supplement mainstream funding for transport, education and health and give them greater scope to meet priorities locally. It gives them greater scope, for example to improve the quality of development schemes coming forward and ensure that these schemes benefit existing communities as well as new ones.

Local partners need to know that when they commit to growth, Government are willing to support them with additional funding to ensure that new housing developments are sustainable, good quality and that we invest in communities not just houses.

In addition to the funding I am announcing today we will shortly be inviting expressions of interest for the community infrastructure fund, which is run jointly with the Department for Transport of £200 million for transport schemes to support housing growth projects.

Looking to the future we need to find new ways to increase the resources available to partners to fund local infrastructure. We have introduced legislation in the planning Bill for a new community infrastructure levy that will increase investment in the vital infrastructure that growing communities need. The levy has the potential to raise hundreds of millions of pounds of additional investment on top of current Government funding and negotiated agreements, and can be spent on a wide range of community infrastructure—this could be major transport improvements, schools, parks and health centres.

All development creates some need for infrastructure, services and amenities and it is only fair that new developments pay their share. At present, infrastructure benefits for local communities are typically secured from major developments only.

Councils will need to draw up long-term costed infrastructure plans in order to apply the new levy. Those plans will need to be consulted on and tested to ensure the levy supports growth. Detailed arrangements will be set out in secondary legislation. The Government will continue to work closely with the main developer and local government bodies during the passage of the Bill as we draft regulations. We want to build on the innovative arrangements that some authorities have introduced, learning from their experience and providing a clearer and firmer footing for best practice.

Nimrod XV230

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): In addition to my oral statement to the House today, I am taking this opportunity to provide the House with further details of the findings of the Royal Air Force board of inquiry into the tragic crash of the RAF Nimrod XV230.

On 2 September 2006, Nimrod XV230 took off from its deployed operating base at 0913 GMT, en route to Southern Afghanistan. It was on an essential operational flight in support of Coalition forces. At 1111:33, approximately 90 seconds after receiving 22,000 lbs of fuel from a Tristar tanker, the crew experienced almost simultaneous bomb bay fire and elevator bay smoke warnings. Smoke was observed in the cabin coming from both the elevator and aileron bays. Shortly afterwards, the aircraft depressurised. The crew commenced emergency drills immediately and at 1114:10 transmitted a MAYDAY alert and turned to head for Kandahar airfield. At 1116:54, the aircraft was observed by a Harrier GR7 pilot, apparently in a controlled descent, with flames emitting from the starboard wing root and starboard aft fuselage. Members of a Canadian Army unit also observed the aircraft as it passed to the south of their position. At 1117:39, the Harrier GR7 pilot reported that the aircraft had exploded and he observed wreckage striking the ground. The crash site was approximately 14 nautical miles west of Kandahar airfield, some 400 metres north-west of the village of Farhellah.

A combat search and rescue team deployed to the crash site at 1207 and confirmed that there were no survivors. At 1257, the Canadian unit which had observed the aircraft's final descent arrived and secured the crash site. At 1430, they were reinforced by a 22 man patrol from 34 Squadron RAF Regiment. The crash site lay in a depression, surrounded by higher ground containing housing and, as such, was not easy to defend. The crew's bodies, personal effects and classified items were recovered as a priority.

The following morning the Canadian unit was withdrawn to support other Coalition forces engaged in fighting with the Taliban, at which point several hundred locals began to enter the site. The security situation began to deteriorate rapidly and at 0910 the RAF regiment patrol was withdrawn by air. The majority of the wreckage was removed within a short period of time, probably by local nationals.

A board of inquiry (BOI) was convened to investigate the crash with an experienced ex-Nimrod Wing Commander nominated as its president, supported by two squadron leaders from the Nimrod force headquarters at RAF Kinloss. The board members were not able to visit the crash site due to the security situation in the area and had to rely on evidence collected by the units who initially secured the crash site and interviews with key witnesses. Crucially, the accident data recorder and a badly damaged section of the mission tape (containing crew intercom recordings and position information) were recovered. This allowed the inquiry team to reconstruct as far as possible the events leading up to the crash.

The board, using a combination of evidence collected in theatre and expert analysis, concluded that, as air-to-air refuelling drew to a close, fuel escaped. This was either as a result of the action of a pressure-relief device in the main fuel tank, leading to an overflow of fuel during air to air refuelling, or from a leak in a fuel coupling within the fuel system This fuel moved rearwards, either internally or along the outside of the fuselage. It was then ignited following contact with an element of the aircraft's hot air system. The fuel probably gained access to the pipe at a gap between two types of insulation. The subsequent fire penetrated the pressure hull, causing the aircraft to depressurise and also probably began to weaken the starboard wing. The aircraft's hydraulic systems probably failed in the latter stages of the incident as a result of the fire and the flying controls were probably similarly affected.

After about five minutes, the fuel in the tank located at the base of the starboard wing, having been subjected to intense heat, began to boil. The tank began to breach and eventually ruptured, provoking a boiling liquid, expanding vapour explosion (BLEVE). At a height of about 1,000 feet above ground level, the weakened aircraft began to break apart into four large parts, which struck the ground. The board was unable to determine whether the BLEVE provoked the aircraft's break-up, or whether the BLEVE was a result of the aircraft' s break-up.

The board of inquiry found that the crew were all on duty and were properly trained, qualified and authorised. They had arrived at their deployed operating base on 21 August and had flown three sorties since their arrival, the last being on 27 August. The crew were all medically fit and considered to have been adequately rested prior to the sortie. The aircraft had not exhibited any significant faults while in theatre.

The board found no evidence that the maintenance or servicing conducted on the aircraft was a cause or contributory factor in the loss of XV230. It also concluded that, while the continued commitment to long term operations places pressure on the Nimrod force, there was no evidence of that this was a cause or factor in the loss of the aircraft.

Following the crash, and in conjunction with the board of inquiry's investigations, a number of measures have been taken to ensure the continued safe operation of the aircraft. Additional maintenance and safety checks have been carried out on all of the Nimrod MR2 and R1 aircraft. Action has been taken to de-activate possible sources of ignition and enhanced inspection regime put in place to examine for signs of fuel leakage. We will be reviewing the Nimrod safety case and conducting an aging aircraft audit of the aircraft's systems.

We have continued to adapt our Nimrod force maintenance and operating procedures in response to the emerging findings of the board of inquiry and the lessons identified from ongoing operations in the Middle East and the United Kingdom, just as we would for any other aircraft.

The Chief of the Air Staff's professional judgment is that, taking all these measures into account, the Nimrod aircraft fleet remains safe to fly. I have accepted his assurance on this and his opinion that all necessary safety measures have been implemented.

The board of inquiry made 33 recommendations in total, relating to maintenance policy, the fuel and hot air systems, air to air refuelling, operational issues, aircraft modifications, post crash management, engineering and personnel. Twenty one of these recommendations have been accepted outright by the chain of command. Eight of the recommendations are actively being considered. One recommendation (Recommendation 5, to determine a specific life for fuel seals) has not proved possible to implement but mitigating action has been taken.

One recommendation (Recommendation 17, to investigate the utility of parachute escape on Nimrod aircraft) has not been taken forward as it is not considered feasible. One recommendation (Recommendation 20, to review the design of No.1 fuel tank) has not been taken forward but the issue it sought to solve has been addressed by other means. One recommendation (Recommendation 28, to increase the RAF's stocks of BOI kits) has not been taken forward because BOI kits could be made available from Royal Navy and Army holdings.

The detailed recommendations of the BOI and the chain of command's response to them, are as follows:

1. The Nimrod maintenance policy is reviewed to ensure that maintenance procedures reflect the increasing age of the aircraft.

This recommendation has been accepted.

2. The Nimrod ageing aircraft audit is reviewed to include aircraft systems.

This recommendation has been accepted.

3. The Nimrod safety case is reviewed, reassessing the factual data used for interpretation and categorization of hazard and risk.

This recommendation has been accepted.

4. A safety review of the Nimrod fuel and hot air systems is completed.

This recommendation has been accepted.

5. A life for the FRS Series 1 fuel seal be determined, based on the designer's recommendation that fitted seals are replaced after 25 years.

The recommendation that fuel seals be given a specific life has not been accepted because experts advise the life of seals will vary considerably, according to the conditions of their installation in the aircraft. Further studies have yet to identify any predictable ageing mechanism and it has therefore been impossible to define a common finite life for the approximately 400 fuel seals fitted to the Nimrod aircraft. Experience shows that replacing fuel seals may actually introduce more problems than it solves.

6. A maximum installed life for fuel seals of other material types is determined.

This recommendation is under consideration. A review is being conducted to determine whether the regulations for the lifing of seals are adequate.

7. A one-off inspection of the integrity of each Nimrod's fuel system, between Ribs 3 starboard and port, be conducted with access panels removed and the system pressurised.

This recommendation has been accepted.

8. An inspection regime for fuel seals be initiated as recommended by Eaton Aerospace.

This recommendation has been accepted. A comprehensive inspection of fuel couplings is also underway.

9. A procedure is developed to pressure test the fuel vent system at the fuselage to wing interface.

This recommendation has been accepted.

10. Detailed instructions for the correct fitting and locking of FRS couplings and seals be incorporated formally within the Nimrod AMM and publicized widely.

This recommendation has been accepted.

11. Hot air system. Existing limitations, prohibiting the use of the supplementary conditioning pack (SCP) and of the cross-feed pipe in the air be continued.

This recommendation has been accepted.

12. Nimrod air-to-air refuelling (AAR) procedures are reviewed in the light of the board's report, to establish appropriate levels and rates of refuel, which will prevent overspill of fuel from tanks.

This recommendation has been accepted.

13. A study be initiated to determine the cause of pressure surges during air-to-air refuelling and their long-term effect on aircraft fuel systems.

The feasibility of the recommendation is being examined and a technical proposal on how this could be implemented has been requested.

14. A statement specifying that the maximum normal operating pressure of 50 psi during air-to-air refuelling be reintroduced into the Nimrod aircrew manual.

The recommendation has been accepted.

15. Air-to-air refuelling refuel rates in the dynamic simulator are changed to reflect actual refuel rates to provide more realistic training.

This recommendation is under consideration.

This recommendation has been accepted.

17. A study be undertaken into the utility of parachute escape on the Nimrod MR2.

This recommendation has not been taken forward. The Nimrod has no airborne escape system as it was not designed for the deployment of parachutes. It is highly likely that any attempt to abandon the aircraft from the front or rear exit would result in either being pulled into the engine or hitting the tail of the aircraft.

This recommendation has been accepted

19. The port rear emergency oxygen bottle is relocated to a more central position, or another oxygen bottle is provided in this position.

The feasibility of the recommendation is being examined and a technical proposal on how this could be implemented has been requested,

20. The design of No. 1 fuel tank is reviewed to reduce the effect of asymmetric filling.

It is not currently intended to review the design of the Nol fuel tank as this problem has been resolved by only refuelling the No 1 tank to a level well below that which could initiate the safety valve.

21. The outlet pipes for fuselage fuel tank blow-off valves be modified to ensure that biown-off fuel cannot run down the exterior of the fuselage.

The feasibility of the recommendation is being examined and a technical proposal on how this could be implemented has been requested.

22. The connections of the No. 1 tank vent pipes be modified to reduce the risk of fuel leakage.

The feasibility of the recommendation is being examined and a technical proposal on how this could be implemented has been requested.

23. The drainage of the lower panel in the No 7 tank dry bay be improved to prevent any accumulation of fuel.

The feasibility of the recommendation is being examined and a technical proposal on how this could be implemented has been requested. In the meantime the likelihood of a hazard arising from fuel pooling in this area has been significantly reduced by suspending the use of the supplementary conditioning pack and cross-feed pipe system and introducing the enhanced inspection regime.

24. A crash-protected means of recording aircraft position and intercom voice is introduced to the Nimrod.

This recommendation is under consideration.

25. The Defence Aviation Safety Centre (DASC) should investigate the provision of details of type specific emergency equipment (ADR, etc) and key internal components (for example the ADR tape unit and housing) on their website to enable post-crash MOD Incident Officer (PCMIO) to provide guidance to search teams.

This recommendation has been accepted.

This recommendation has been accepted.

27. Instructions for PCMIO at crash sites which are likely to become inaccessible should include advice to make every effort to ensure the widest possible photographic coverage of the crash site, at the highest possible resolution. This should take priority over all other tasks for any photographic team.

This recommendation has been accepted.

This recommendation has not been accepted. We currently hold four post-crash BOI kits, if, in the unlikely circumstance that a fifth BOI post crash kit is required the RAF could borrow a kit from one of the other services.

29. Body bag fluid proof liners should be stored within the outer ruggedised bags in crash kits to ensure that they always arrive on scene together.

This recommendation has been accepted.

30. The Nimrod MOD Form 700 Sections 2 and 3 (F703/F704) should be copied and retained before the document is carried on the aircraft.

This recommendation has been accepted.

31. The use of non-approved mission system panel blanks be discontinued.

This recommendation has been accepted.

This recommendation has been accepted.

33. A review of engineering training is undertaken to identify those areas which, while relevant to Nimrod capability, are not encompassed within existing formal training courses.

This recommendation has been accepted.

HEALTH

Authorisations of NHS Foundation Trusts

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): The chairman of Monitor (the statutory name of which is the Independent Regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts) announced last week that, in accordance with section 35 of the National Health Service Act 2006, Monitor had decided to authorise the following NHS acute and mental health trusts as NHS foundation trusts from 1 December:

Taunton and Somerset NHS Trust;

Lancashire Care NHS Trust;

Blackpool, Fylde and Wyre Hospitals NHS Trust;

North Tees and Hartlepool NHS Trust.

Monitor's announcement brings the total number of NHS foundation trusts to 83. A copy of Monitor's press notice has been placed in the Library.

The Government remain committed to offering all NHS acute and mental health trusts the opportunity to apply for foundation status as soon as practicable. Monitor is now authorising trusts on a monthly basis, and further waves of NHS foundation trusts are set to follow.

TRANSPORT

Bus Passenger Representative Body Consultation

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Ms Rosie Winterton): I have today launched a public consultation on a proposed new bus passenger representative body. The public consultation, which will run until 17 March, identifies options for delivering a passenger champion. These options are to work with existing bus passenger bodies, to establish a new stand-alone statutory bus passenger champion body or to establish a multimodal public transport users' committee including widening the functions of Passenger Focus (the rail passengers' council).

Feedback from a previous consultation on the Government's proposals for the draft Local Transport Bill and reform of the traffic commissioners was that a lack of a publicly recognised national body to represent passenger interests and hold the industry to account contributes to a failure to address poor bus services. We have listened to those who argue for this formal representation and believe that the time is now right to provide a more visible and influential voice for bus passengers.

Some of the options require legislation which is contained in the Local Transport Bill. This, if enacted, includes provisions which would enable the Secretary of State, in secondary legislation, either to set up a new public transport users' committee or to confer additional functions relating to buses and coaches to the existing Rail Passengers Council (Passenger Focus). The other options would not require further legislation.

Copies of the consultation have been placed in the Library of both Houses and in the Vote Office.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council (5-6 December)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): The Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council will be held on 5 December in Brussels. I will be representing the UK except for the items on the working time directive and the agency workers directive where the UK will be represented by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform. Health and consumer affairs issues are being taken on 6 December.

The presidency hopes to reach agreement on an amended proposal for a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council amending Directive 2003/88/EC concerning certain aspects of the organisation of Working Time (9554/05 (formerly 12683/04). UK priorities remain a solution to the problems caused by the ECJ SiMAP and Jaeger judgments, and the retention of the individual right to opt out of the 48-hour maximum working week, without unnecessary restrictions. The UK is still analysing a new draft proposal from the presidency, but believe it is a step forward in that it no longer contains text that envisages the end of the opt-out. In addition previous text addressing the issues raised by the SiMAP and Jaeger judgments has not been changed in a way in which we would disagree.

The draft Directive of the European Parliament and the Council on working conditions for temporary workers (15098/02 (24066)) is also on the agenda. The UK has welcomed the restarting of the debate on this draft Directive. The UK continues to support the underlying principles of the draft Directive and wants a Directive that gives appropriate protections to agency workers without putting their jobs at risk. However, there remain outstanding issues for the UK (and other member states) that need to be addressed.

The presidency also hopes to get political agreement on a directive for improving the acquisition and preservation of supplementary pension rights which aims to improve the mobility of workers within the EU by reducing concerns over how pension rights are treated. When someone changes employment, the pension rights they have already built up should be protected to remove this barrier to labour mobility. The UK supports the current text, but there are serious outstanding issues for some other delegations.

The Council will have a policy debate on social services of general interest, where the commission has proposed a broad exchange of good practice. The UK view is that public services should be organised and regulated as closely as possible to the citizens and that the principle of subsidiarity must be strictly respected.

The Council will aim to agree a partial general approach on the latest instalment of an implementing regulation for social security co-ordination Regulation 883/04 and on corresponding content for annex XI to that Regulation. The UK is content.

The Council will seek to endorse the employment committee's opinion on the European employment strategy in the context of the Lisbon strategy. This text is uncontroversial and the UK supports it.

There will be an endorsement of the joint EU Employment Committee (EMCO) and Social Protection Committee (SPC) opinion on the common principles of Flexicurity, a combination of flexibility and security in labour markets and incorporating modern social security systems and lifelong learning. The joint opinion of the EMCO and SPC makes minor proposals for changes to the common principles set out in the Commission communication dated 27 June 2007. The UK supports this text.

The Council will seek adoption of five sets of conclusions on Flexicurity; the European employment strategy; modernising social protection for greater social justice and economic cohesion; on the Commission communication taking forward the active inclusion of people furthest from the labour market, implementation of the Beijing platform for action, and the balanced roles of women and men for jobs, growth and social cohesion. The UK supports these texts.

The Council will also seek adoption of a resolution on the follow-up to the 2007 European Year of Equal Opportunities for all. The UK supports the text.

Under Any Other Business, there will be reports from the presidency of recent presidency conferences, the draft Council conclusions on trafficking in human beings and the draft Council resolution on new skills for new jobs. There will also be reports by the Commission on the Commission's communications on a new social vision for 21st century Europe and modernising labour law.

On 6 December, there will be a joint Council meeting with the justice and home affairs Council, at which there will be a policy debate on migration, employment and the Lisbon strategy. The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department, my hon. Friend the Member for Hackney, South and Shoreditch (Meg Hillier) will represent the UK.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Housing and Regeneration Bill Contingency Fund

The Minister for Housing (Yvette Cooper): I wish to inform Parliament that Communities and Local Government has obtained approval for an advance from the Contingencies Fund to allow the early recruitment and appointment of chief executives and chairs, with support arrangements, for the Homes and Communities Agency and the social housing regulator after completion of Second Reading of the Housing and Regeneration Bill in the House of Commons, and before Royal Assent.

The Homes and Communities Agency will bring together the current work and programmes of the Housing Corporation, English Partnerships and a significant part of Communities and Local Government's own housing programmes.

The social housing regulator will encompass the current regulatory functions of the Housing Corporation and implement the recommendations of the Cave review.

Bringing forward this expenditure through a Contingencies Fund advance will enable efficiency savings to be achieved earlier and will provide significant reductions in public spending.

Parliamentary approval will be sought in the 2008-09 main estimate for CLG for additional resources of £930,000 for detailed operational work to establish the new agency and regulator while maintaining business as usual so it can be up and running by April 2009. Pending that approval, and Royal Assent of the Housing and Regeneration Bill, urgent expenditure estimated at £930,000 will be met by repayable cash advances from the Contingencies Fund.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Building Regulations 2000 and the Building (Approved Inspectors etc) Regulations 2000

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. Iain Wright): I have today laid a statutory instrument, the Building and Approved Inspectors (Amendment) Regulations 2007, which amends the requirements relating to the commissioning of fixed building services in Part L (conservation of fuel and power) of Schedule 1 to, and Schedules 2A (self-certification schemes) and 2B (circumstances where there is no requirement to notify a building control body of work to be undertaken) to, the Building Regulations 2000.

The principal change to Part L is to clarify the requirements for the energy efficiency of fixed building services such as heating, hot water service, air-conditioning, ventilation and lighting systems to ensure that the systems are designed, installed and tested and adjusted to operate at a reasonable level of energy efficiency. This change, along with the changes to the requirements relating to commissioning of these services, should result in a higher level of energy efficiency at no additional cost to building owners.

The principal changes to Schedule 2B are to clarify the types of minor work that can be carried out without the involvement of a building control body with no risk to health, safety or energy efficiency. In all cases where the installation of appliances or components would require testing and adjustment of the system to reach a reasonable level of energy efficiency the work will remain notifiable to ensure that this is done properly.

The regulations also amend Schedule 2A in order to authorise two new self-certification schemes and to allow self-certification of larger solid fuel appliances so that the installation of such appliances using biomass as a fuel can be self-certified as compliant. These changes will help secure compliance and reduce the overall burden on building control bodies.

Revised guidance on the relevant parts of the building regulations, some of which will be in draft form and subject to consultation before being finalised, will be issued shortly.

Local Government

The Minister for Local Government (John Healey): On 25 July 2007 I announced to the House the nine unitary proposals that the Secretary of State was minded to implement, having considered all the available relevant information, if and when the necessary provisions of the then Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill were enacted. In four cases—proposals from Bedford Borough Council, Chester City Council, Exeter City Council, and Ipswich Borough Council—we recognised that there were risks to their achieving the outcomes specified by the affordability criterion. We asked these councils to undertake further work and submit additional information on the financial viability of their proposals.

I also announced that the Secretary of State was minded to request the Boundary Committee of the Electoral Commission to advise on Norwich City Council's proposal, and not to implement the remaining 16 unitary proposals that we had received in response to our Invitation to Councils issued on 26 October 2006.

That invitation reflected our belief that introducing unitary local government is a way of removing the weaknesses found in many existing council structures based on county, district, and parish tiers. Those existing structures often add to public confusion, create fragmented and sometimes competing local leadership, and lead to duplication, inefficiency and co-ordination failures in service delivery.

Since July we have received a range of further information and representations about the unitary proposals, including in the case of the four proposals on which we sought additional financial information. The relevant provisions of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 came into effect on 1 November.

The Secretary of State is therefore now able to take her decisions as to which unitary proposals to implement under her statutory powers. The basis of these decisions is the Secretary of State's assessment of the proposals against the five criteria set out in the original invitation, and which now have the status under the 2007 Act of guidance to which councils should have had regard when making their proposals.

These five criteria are that if change is made and new unitary structures are implemented, then that change should be affordable (first criterion); and be supported by a broad cross section of partners and stakeholders (second criterion); and that the future structures should provide strong, effective and accountable strategic leadership (third criterion); deliver genuine opportunities for neighbourhood flexibility and empowerment (fourth criterion); and deliver value for money and equity on public services (fifth criterion).

On this basis, having considered all the information and representations now available to her, including all the additional material that she has received since July, the Secretary of State has decided to confirm her earlier "minded to" decisions in all cases, except, as explained below, for the unitary proposals from Exeter city council and Ipswich borough council. In the cases of the Bedfordshire and Cheshire proposals we plan to take decisions in the near future.

Accordingly, she has decided to implement without modification the five unitary proposals listed in table 1 below. Her judgment is that there is a reasonable likelihood that all these proposals, if implemented, will achieve the outcomes specified by the five criteria.

Unitary Proposals to be Implemented

| Councils Submitting Proposals | Proposed Unitary Structure |
|---|---|
| Cornwall County Council | County Unitary |
| Durham County Council | County Unitary |
| Northumberland County Council | County Unitary |
| Shropshire County Council | County Unitary |
| Wiltshire County Council | County Unitary |

We believe that these proposals provide for new and innovative local governance in each of the areas concerned, combining both strong strategic councils and effective arrangements for empowering communities at the most local level. They thus take further the concept of unitary local government developed in the 1990s. They open the door to the creation of new flagship councils which can lead the way on empowering citizens and communities, promoting prosperity, and modernising local service delivery to achieve both greater efficiencies and better outcomes. In the areas concerned the number of councils will be reduced from 33 to 5. On the basis of councils' current estimates, the savings from these five proposals, once implemented, will be over £75 million annually, giving councils opportunities for improved services or lower council taxes.

Further, the Secretary of State has decided to take no action on the 14 unitary proposals listed in table 2 below which were received in response to the original invitation. Her judgment is that there is not a reasonable likelihood of these proposals, if implemented, achieving the outcomes specified by all the five criteria.

In addition, the Secretary of State has decided under the 2007 Act to request the Boundary Committee of the Electoral Commission to advise on Norwich city council's proposal. She judges that there is not a reasonable likelihood of that proposal, based on the city's current boundaries, if implemented, achieving all the outcomes specified by the five criteria.

In relation to the unitary proposals from Exeter city council and Ipswich borough council, having regard to the additional material received since in July, we judge that these proposals are not reasonably likely to achieve the outcomes specified by the affordability criterion. Accordingly, the Secretary of State's judgment now is that there is not a reasonable likelihood of them, if implemented, achieving the outcomes specified by all the five criteria. We believe, having regard to the circumstances of Exeter and Ipswich, and the strengths of their proposals in other respects, that there could be alternative unitary proposals covering the whole or part of their wider county area which would achieve those outcomes.

The Secretary of State has thus decided under the 2007 Act to request the Boundary Committee to advise on the Exeter city council and Ipswich borough council unitary proposals, along with Norwich city council's proposal. She intends to specify in her request that the matters on which the Committee's advice is sought include whether for the areas affected by these proposals—in each case the city or borough area and the remaining county area—there could be alternative unitary solutions, involving boundary changes, that would meet the five criteria set out in the original invitation.

Under the terms of the Act, it is open to the Boundary Committee, if it sees fit, to make alternative proposals that cross existing county boundaries. We intend our guidance under the 2007 Act to highlight the possibility of the Committee making alternative proposals, which may cross the existing Norfolk/Suffolk county boundary or involve changes to the boundaries of the existing Devon unitaries—Plymouth city and Torbay borough.

Under the Act the Boundary Committee may in respect of unitary proposals referred to it, recommend that that unitary proposal is implemented, is not implemented, or it may make alternative unitary proposals which may cover a wider area. If it considers it appropriate to submit alternative unitary proposals, the Committee has the flexibility it may need under the Act to make unitary proposals on different boundaries which are robust and sustainable and that reflect fully the communities and circumstances of the areas concerned.

In the case of the unitary proposals from Bedford borough council and Bedfordshire county council, I explained to the House on 19 November that the Secretary of State was minded to implement the borough council's proposal and that she had invited the other councils in Bedfordshire by 17 December to make a proposal for future unitary local government structures in the remainder of the county area. Once we have received and, following any appropriate consultation, assessed any responses to this further invitation, we intend to take our statutory decisions about unitary proposals for Bedfordshire. Meanwhile, on the basis of the information currently available to her, the Secretary of State remains minded to implement Bedford borough council's proposal.

In the case of the unitary proposals for Cheshire, these involve particularly complex issues. There are alternative proposals for the whole area concerned which, in July as I confirmed to the House, we judged both reasonably likely to achieve the outcomes specified in the five criteria. We have received a very large volume of detailed information and representations about these proposals since July. We are still considering this material, and may need to seek further clarification on certain matters including from those that have submitted the material. Accordingly, we are deferring today any decisions about these proposals, and intend to make those decisions as soon as we can.

To give effect to our decisions to implement unitary proposals we intend shortly to lay before the House draft Orders under the 2007 Act. Subject to both Houses approving the drafts, we will make the orders as soon as practicable which will provide for the establishment of new unitary local government from 1 April 2009 in the areas concerned, and for key transitional arrangements, including first elections to the new unitary councils. Following consultation with each area's existing councils, our intention is for May 2008 elections in Durham, and Northumberland, and May 2009 elections in Cornwall, Shropshire, and Wiltshire. We expect the Electoral Commission to have put in place new electoral divisions or wards prior to any 2009 elections.

We also intend, following further consultation with councils and other stakeholders, including the trades unions, to make regulations under the 2007 Act making further provision about transitional arrangements, including arrangements for staff, the transfer of assets and liabilities, and finance.

We are committed to applying the principles of the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 2006 (TUPE). Our intention is that all the protections that would apply under the TUPE Regulations will apply, together with all that the regulations imply in relation to procedure, as if TUPE legally applied. Our aim, therefore, is that employees' terms and conditions in the new unitary council will be no less favourable than those which would apply under their existing employer. We expect all affected councils to have early discussions with the trades unions on staffing issues arising from restructuring.

We expect that the appointment of the new unitary councils' chief executives will be by open competition. We also expect all the new unitary councils to approach their senior appointments on the basis of creating a fresh senior management team fit to lead the new council in its new role.

Overall through the implementation orders and proposed regulations we intend to create a clear and robust framework for implementation. Within that framework in each area concerned it is now for all the councils—their members and employees—to work constructively and imaginatively together to deliver a new unitary council that will achieve its full potential for local residents. Local people will rightly expect nothing less than its successful delivery. This is the task now for local government.

HEALTH

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council (5-6 December 2007)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): The Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council will meet on 5 and 6 December 2007. The Health and Consumer Affairs part of the Council will be taken on 6 December.

Items on the main agenda are: health and migration in the European Union; the EU health strategy; a commission communication on organ donation and transplantation; an EU strategy on nutrition, overweight and obesity and a progress report on combating HIV/AIDS within the EU and in the neighbouring countries.

Ministers will have a policy debate on the EU health strategy and will be asked to adopt draft council conclusions on this. The Commission's proposals aim to develop a strategy for the period 2008-13 for actions at EU level that will add most value to member states' health priorities. The UK is broadly supportive of the strategy, that focuses on many of the UK's own priorities for EU action and can support the conclusions.

There will also be a debate on health and migration in the EU and the presidency will ask Ministers to adopt draft council conclusions on this issue. The Portuguese presidency chose health and migration as their theme in recognition of the fact that migrant populations are often exposed to health inequalities. The UK broadly supports their conclusions.

Also tabled for adoption are council conclusions on a Commission White Paper on a strategy for Europe on nutrition, overweight and obesity-related issues, and a Commission communication on organ donation and transplantation. The UK is fully supportive of these conclusions as drafted. There will also be a presidency progress report on combating HIV/AIDS within the EU and in the neighbouring countries.

Over lunch, the presidency will chair an informal ministerial discussion on the Commission's forthcoming proposals for a community framework on health services.

Under any other business, there will be information from the presidency on their presidency health conferences and on draft council conclusions on environment and health, which are to be discussed in the Environmental Council later this month. There will also be information items from the Commission on a community framework on health services; a strategy for Europe on mental health, health security related matters, the Commission's high-level group on health services and medical care and the framework convention on tobacco control, and the Slovenian delegation will provide information on the work programme for their forthcoming presidency.

Stroke Strategy for England

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): The Department is publishing today a new national strategy to modernise service provision and deliver the newest treatments for stroke. Between 9 July and 12 October 2007, a consultation on a draft document was held, and over 1,000 responses were made, of which more than 800 were from individuals who had experienced stroke and their carers. These responses have helped to shape the development of the new strategy.

The strategy is constructed around twenty "quality markers" of a good stroke service covering four key areas: raising awareness and prevention; the importance of rapid assessment and treatment; provision of rehabilitation and care after stroke; and developing the workforce to meet these markers.

Awareness: A push on raising awareness of stroke symptoms among the public and the medical profession to ensure they know to react quickly—alongside wider work to encourage and support healthy lifestyles and manage risk indicators such as high blood pressure and cholesterol.

Acting on the warnings: Transient ischaemic attacks (TIA)—also known as "minor strokes"—are a clear warning sign that a further stroke may occur and the time window for action is very short. In about half of cases this is a matter of days.

Stroke as a medical emergency: Getting people to the right hospital quickly—where there are specialists who can deliver acute treatments including thrombolysis—will save lives. This means immediate transfer of suspected stroke patients to specialist centres—offering clinical assessment, scans and thrombolysis.

Stroke unit quality: Stroke unit care is the single biggest factor that can improve a person's outcomes following a stroke. Successful stroke units are those which are able to meet the needs of the individuals. People must get there on day one and spend the majority of their time on a stroke unit.

Improving support long term in the community: This focuses particularly on intensive rehabilitation immediately after stroke, which can limit disability and improve recovery. Health, social care and voluntary services need to work together provide the long-term support people need, as well as access to advocacy, care navigation, practical and peer support.

Workforce: People with stroke need to be treated by a skilled and competent workforce. Resources to assist services in planning their workforce requirements are signposted in this strategy. Central funding will be made available for more stroke physician training places and training packages, in particular for specialist nurses and allied health professionals.

Service improvement: This new vision for stroke care demands services working together in networks, looking across all aspects of the care pathway.

The strategy has been placed in the Library and copies are available for hon. Members in the Vote Office.

"Valuing People Now"

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): The Department has published the consultation document "Valuing People Now—From Progress to Transformation". The document has been placed in the Library and copies are available for hon. Members in the Vote Office.

The document seeks people's views on the priorities for learning disability for the next three years, 2008 to 2011. It builds on the vision set out in "Valuing People" (2001) which was the first White Paper on learning disability for 30—a vision based on the four main principles of rights, independence, choice and inclusion. The consultation document recognises that the vision set out in "Valuing People" was right; it also recognises that consideration needs to be given to new issues that were not covered in "Valuing People" and how we keep the agenda moving in the right direction as we move to tackle some of the key challenges in reaching equality of access and citizenship.

"Valuing People Now—From Progress to Transformation" is a cross-government consultation setting out the agenda across a range of issues including health and well-being, housing, employment, education and community inclusion. The House is aware of some of the deeply disturbing and unacceptable reports that there have been about the treatment of people with learning disabilities and the failure to ensure their fundamental rights and choices as members of our society. It is vital that not only do we see an end to cases such as those, but that real change is achieved to ensure that people with learning disabilities have equality of citizenship through independent living. This consultation seeks people's views on what the priorities should be over the next three years, how we can deliver on those priorities and how we will know that we are achieving change.

The consultation will run until 11 March 2008 with a view to my Department setting out proposals for the next three years, based on the responses that we receive to the consultation, in a document to be published by summer 2008.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Procedures

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Meg Hillier): I am pleased to announce that Dr Judy MacArthur Clark CBE DVMS DLAS DipLAM FIBiol MRCVS has been appointed as the next Chief Inspector of the Home Office Animals (Scientific Procedures) Inspectorate. She will succeed Dr Derek Fry BA MA DPhil BM BCh, who is retiring. Dr MacArthur Clark is a distinguished veterinary surgeon whose past appointments include Chair of the Farm Animals Welfare Council and President of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons. I would also like to record my thanks to Dr Fry for his many years of dedicated service to the Inspectorate. Dr MacArthur Clark will take up appointment on 10 December 2007.

Immigration (Migration Reform)

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): Over the next year, the Government will bring in the biggest shake-up of the immigration system for over 40 years. As part of this, key aspects of our migration reform programme are being announced today, including: a statement of intent which sets out how the points system will work for highly skilled migrants; two consultation documents—one on proposals to tackle forced marriage, and another on proposals to introduce a pre-entry English language requirement for spouses; and the results of an initial consultation on simplifying immigration law.

Statement of intent for highly skilled migrants:

One of the key changes to reform migration will include a firmer, faster and fairer Australian-style points system. The new system will be simpler and more transparent, ensuring that only those migrants Britain needs can come to work or study in the UK. We are creating a unified border force, bringing together the Border and Immigration Agency, Customs and UK Visas. The new agency will provide tougher policing at ports and airports with a highly visible uniformed presence, counting all migrants in and out of the UK; and we are introducing compulsory identity cards for foreign nationals, meaning that we will know who is here and what they are entitled to do.

We will launch the points system in under 100 days, beginning with highly skilled migrants and sponsor registration. The statement of intent sets out how the points system will work for highly skilled migrants, showing how points will be awarded and the robust checks that will be made on applications.

The economic benefits of migration are clear. Migrants put far more into the treasury purse than they take out; migrants contributed an estimated 15-20 per cent. to the UK's growth in 2001-2005—worth around £6 billion to output growth in 2006. Highly skilled migrants are key to Britain winning these benefits, filling crucial roles in financial and public services, education and health, ICT and business. Following the success of the existing highly skilled migrant programme, the purpose of the highly skilled tier of the points system is to attract and retain the most talented migrants who have the most to contribute economically.

The points system will simplify around 80 immigration routes into just 5 tiers:

|---|---|
| Tier 1 | Highly skilled individuals to contribute to growth and productivity. |
| Tier 2 | Skilled workers with a job offer to fill gaps in the UK labour force. |
| Tier 3 | Low-skilled workers to fill specific temporary labour shortages. This tier will be introduced only if there is a specific need. |
| Tier 4 | Students. |
| Tier 5 | Youth mobility and temporary workers: people coming to the UK to satisfy primarily non-economic objectives. |

The highly skilled tier will replace eight current immigration routes. This tier is designed to admit highly skilled individuals who wish to come here to work, to set up or join a business, investors, and international students who have studied here and wish to seek employment. It will embrace:

|---|---|
| General | incorporating the highly skilled migrants programme. |
| Entrepreneurs | combining the current "Business People" and "Innovators" categories. |
| Investors | incorporating the current "Investors" category. |
| Post Study Work | bringing together two staying-on schemes for international graduates who have studied in Scotland and the rest of the UK. This will boost the UK's attractiveness as a place to study, bringing benefits to our educational establishments. |

The points system replaces subjective decision making with an objective transparent process that is more robust against abuse. Highly skilled applicants will need to show they have enough points to qualify to enter or remain in the UK. Highly skilled applicants will earn points for their skills and potential for economic success, competence in English language and ability to support themselves and their dependents. The points pass mark for the highly skilled tier of the points system will be informed by the work of the Migration Advisory Committee on economic needs and that of the migration impacts forum on the wider effects of migration.

We are publishing this document today so that those affected can prepare. The document explains the transitional arrangements that will be put in place to handle the transfer from old to new systems. We are also giving people the opportunity to comment on them. Statements of intent about skilled, temporary and student migrants will follow next year.

Marriage to partners from overseas

The consultations on proposals to tackle forced marriage and to introduce a pre-entry English language requirement for spouses fulfil the promises made in our strategy "Securing the UK Border", published in March 2007, to consult on new arrangements for marriage visas, including an English language requirement. Copies of the consultation documents have been placed in the Library of the House.

Forced marriage is a form of aggression that puts women in particular at risk of harm and of being exploited. The Home Office together with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has already made progress in tackling forced marriage by creating the forced marriage unit in 2005. The unit handles up to 300 cases per year. Around a third of the cases involve children, some as young as 13. We believe that increased protection against coercion and potentially violent or abusive situations is called for. The problem of forced marriage has not disappeared and so we feel it is right to take measures to protect vulnerable people from these pressures.

The Government are aware that this is a topic with many sensitive aspects but three principles stand out as important. First, no one should be pressurised into sponsoring a marriage visa. Secondly, those who wish to sponsor a marriage partner from overseas should be encouraged to establish an independent adult life here first and to see that as an important way of helping their partner integrate. Thirdly, spouses who are abandoned by a person they have sponsored are entitled to an assurance that their sponsorship will not be abused for further advantages.

We recognise that forced marriage is not the same as arranged marriage. The Government are not expressing any concern about arranged marriages, which we know to be a part of many cultural traditions, and which involve the consent of both parties. But young British citizens must never be forced into relationships they do not want at a time in their lives when they could be establishing themselves as adults through further education or through work.

For this reason, one of the proposals we are suggesting is that the minimum age at which a person can sponsor a marriage partner from overseas should be raised from 18 to 21. The same minimum age would apply to the person being sponsored.

We are also considering introducing a code of practice which would say how an application for a marriage visa should progress if one of the parties is identified as vulnerable. This would build on work carried out by entry clearance officers in relation to in-depth interviews with couples. It would enable views to be given in confidence and assess whether sufficient scope had been given to protect the potentially vulnerable party.

We are also looking at whether we should do more to investigate allegations of abuse of marriage for immigration advantage after entry; how this might be investigated and what other provisions might be necessary for safeguarding women in particular after the entry of a sponsored spouse.

The consultation on the proposal to introduce a pre-entry English language requirement for spouses discusses the key issues around how a requirement of this nature might work in practice. People who apply for a marriage visa principally do so with the intention of joining their loved ones in the UK on a permanent basis. They are given full access to the labour market on arrival and are able to apply for full settlement after 2 years providing they meet the criteria in the immigration rules. It is right therefore that we should consider ways to assist a spouse integrate into life here, which includes promoting the development of English language skills at an early stage.

We are seeking views on the proficiency level at which the requirement would be set, on how we would make language learning accessible universally and on how the spouse might demonstrate that a language requirement had been met.

The consultation periods will run for 12 weeks and the final date for responses is 27 February 2008. Once the process has concluded, and views considered, we will report on the results of both consultations and any proposed changes to the immigration rules relating to marriage.

Simplification

In June 2007 my hon. Friend the Minister of State for Borders and Immigration published an initial consultation paper on simplifying immigration law. Simplification of the legal framework will support the wider development and transformation of the Border and Immigration Agency, and assist in the achievement of its strategic objectives.

Detailed analytical work is now underway to examine the existing law and the options for change. Next year we will consult on more specific issues and publish proposals for pre-legislative scrutiny.

Copies of the statement of intent, the consultations on tackling forced marriage and introducing a pre-entry English language requirement for spouses and responses to the simplification consultation have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The documents are also available on the Border and Immigration Agency's website at:

Justice and Home Affairs Council (6 - 7 December)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Meg Hillier): The final Justice and Home Affairs (JHA) Council under the Portuguese presidency will be held in Brussels on 6-7 December 2007. My right hon. Friend the Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State for Justice (Jack Straw), my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary (Jacqui Smith), my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice), the Solicitor-General for Scotland (Frank Mulholland), and I will represent the United Kingdom. The following issues will be discussed at the Council.

The Council will begin with a joint meeting of the JHA and Employment Councils looking at migration, employment and the Lisbon strategy. The Lisbon strategy aims at making the EU the most competitive economy in the world and achieving full employment by 2010. The strategy is based on three pillars: economic, social and environmental. The focus of the Lisbon strategy is therefore growth and jobs. The Government support this approach but want to emphasise that a balance needs to be struck between stimulating labour migration and the management of integration and cohesion, enforcement of the rules and combating illegal migration.

It will then move into Mixed Committee with Iceland, Switzerland and Norway. That session will begin with a discussion on the full application of the provisions of the Schengen acquis to the member states who joined the European Union in 2004. A formal decision will be made on lifting the internal borders of nine of the 10 countries involved. There will also be updates on the Schengen information system (SIS) communication network and the SIS II programme.

There will also be a state of play report on the directive on common standards and procedures in member states for illegally staying third-country nationals. The directive is based on the premise that an effective returns policy is a crucial part in the fight against illegal immigration. The UK has not opted into this as we are not yet convinced of the need for common standards in this area.

There will be a discussion on the weapons directive in both the Mixed Committee and subsequently under the main agenda. The presidency will be seeking a political agreement on a First Reading deal with the European Parliament. The Government are happy with the text as it stands having secured some important amendments, particularly in relation to the application of criminal sanctions and the arrangements for allowing young persons under 18 to continue to shoot with parental permission or at approved centres. We are aware that the House of Lords Select Committee on the European Union have yet to clear this from scrutiny but hope they will be able to do so on the basis of the further information we have recently provided.

Under the main Council agenda, the presidency is hoping to adopt Council Conclusions on mobility partnerships and circular migration in the context of the Global Approach to Migration. The Government support the Council Conclusions and are keen for progress to be made under the EU's Global Approach to Migration. We believe it is important to build effective partnerships with third countries to help manage migration issues more effectively. These partnerships should cover all aspects of migration: legal, illegal, and migration and development. Mobility partnerships and circular migration are only two aspects of the Global Approach to Migration.

There will be a package of counter-terrorism items discussed in the main agenda at the Council. In particular, there will be an opportunity for Ministers to consider the EU Counter-terrorism Co-ordinator's discussion paper on implementation of the EU Counter-terrorism strategy. The Government have welcomed his proposals in particular for a common EU policy on data sharing, but will wish to explore in more detail some of the ideas raised for example about future work on the use of special investigative techniques. Draft Council Conclusions will also be agreed on enhancing the security of explosives.

The UK welcomes the Portuguese presidency's continued drive to finalise these wide-ranging and complex pieces of work on explosives. There will also be a presentation and first exchange of views on the amending framework decision on combating terrorism. The Government support the Commission's proposals and look forward to working with the Commission to develop complimentary measures against terrorist use of the internet.

The presidency will seek to draw a line under the initial discussions on chapters 6, 7 and 9 of the draft Europol Council Decision, which deal with organisational issues, confidentiality rules and miscellaneous provisions respectively. The Europol working group will now focus its attention on the remaining chapters of the draft Council Decision. The Government support the proposed drafts which include helpful revisions that strengthen the Europol management board and provide more oversight. However these chapters will need to be revisited and revised again at working group level early next year once the work of three expert groups dealing with staffing and budgetary issues has been completed. This will provide the opportunity for further discussion before the entire Council Decision is taken to the Council for agreement.

There will be a state of play report on e-justice and an exchange of views on work planned for the first half of 2008. The UK supports the overall initiative and the priorities which have been identified for next year.

Rome 1 (applicable law in contractual obligations) is on the agenda for a presidency report on the First Reading Agreement with the European Parliament. The UK did not opt into this dossier at the start of the negotiations. We therefore have no vote in Council. We have, however, negotiated significant improvements to the text which deal satisfactorily with the points which gave rise to our decision not to opt in, and acknowledge the good co-operation with our European partners that has made this possible. The Government will shortly embark on a process of consultation before deciding whether the UK should now signify its wish to accept the measure, under the terms of our Protocol to Title IV of the Treaty.

The proposed Directive on protection of the environment through criminal law is on the agenda for a possible general approach, although this is considered premature by some member states. The UK supports the presidency's desire to progress this dossier, but considers that further detailed work is required.

The presidency is hoping to agree Council Conclusions with a view to work next year on the development of Eurojust. The Government support the conclusions in recognising the value of Eurojust's work but have made clear that any future proposals should focus on ensuring that Eurojust fulfils its potential within its current powers. The Government have made clear that they would not therefore support some of the more far-reaching proposals in the recent Commission Communication on the future of Eurojust and the European judicial network.

The presidency proposes to seek a general approach on the draft Framework Decision on the recognition and supervision of suspended sentences, alternative sanctions and conditional sentences. The Government welcome the work done on this instrument though some fundamental issues remain outstanding and agreement will be conditional on finding a satisfactory outcome on the entire instrument.

The presidency will give an update about the state of play of the European Supervision Order proposal and is likely to present the revised draft text. No substantive discussion is expected at the meeting. The first working group to consider this revised version is to take place on 11 December.

There will be a report on the outcome of the EU-Russia JHA Ministerial held in Brussels on 22-23 November.

There will, also, be a report on the outcome of the Hague diplomatic conference which concluded work on a draft Convention on the international recovery of child support and other forms of family maintenance. The Government welcome the outcome of that conference.

A lunch for interior ministers will also be held on 6 December with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. A possible topic for discussion will be the new Green Paper on the second phase of the Common European Asylum System and the next steps but it may also focus on ongoing or protracted refugee situations.

TREASURY

Financial Inclusion

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Kitty Ussher): The Government are today publishing "Financial Inclusion: an Action Plan for 2008-11", setting out commitments by the Government and key partners to achieve further progress in promoting financial inclusion. This document has been deposited in the Libraries of both Houses and is available on the Treasury's website (www.hm-treasury.gov.uk) that everyone should be able to manage their money effectively and securely, through having access to a bank account, and the confidence and capability to get the most from it;

The Government has three goals for financial inclusion:

that everyone should be able to plan for the future with a reasonable degree of security. Therefore, affordable credit, saving accounts and simple insurance products should be available to all who need them; and that everyone should have the information, support and confidence they need to prevent avoidable financial difficulty, and to know where to turn if they do find themselves in financial distress.

"Financial inclusion: an action plan for 2008-11" affirms the Government's commitment to promoting financial inclusion in the next spending period. As announced in the comprehensive spending review, from 2008-11, financial inclusion policy will be supported through a new £130 million financial inclusion fund. The fund will be augmented with significant contributions from other Government Departments.

Initiatives that will be supported in the next spending period include:

£76 million (including £2 million from BERR) to fund free face-to-face money advice to financially excluded people;

£38 million to increase consumer access to affordable credit through credit unions and other third sector lenders;

£12 million to fund dedicated staff to work to promote financial inclusion locally, with a focus on increasing the availability and awareness of home contents insurance for low-income people, in particular in areas affected by the recent flood events;

£2 million funding to the OFT to continue its "Save Xmas" campaign, promoting access to saving opportunities, particularly in credit unions;

£5 million (including £3 million from MoJ) to operate prison-focused outreach in every region of England and Wales; and a continuation of projects to tackle illegal lending in every region of Great Britain, which will be funded by BERR.

Building on their successful work in partnership with Government to increase take-up of basic bank accounts, and their support for other financial inclusion initiatives including easier access to free ATMs in low-income areas, the banks have also committed to support third sector affordable credit, including actions to develop new provision in 25 high priority areas identified by the financial inclusion taskforce.

The taskforce, which has been extended until 2011, will continue to monitor these initiatives and advise the Government on financial inclusion developments.

The Treasury Committee conducted an inquiry into financial inclusion and savings in the spring of 2007, and published a report detailing its findings in October 2007. The Government have sent their response to the inquiry to the Treasury Committee today.

Pre-Budget Report (Consultation)

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Jane Kennedy): Following the Pre-Budget Report on 9 October, the Treasury has today published the following consultation documents:

Income shifting: a consultation on draft legislation

Securing a sustainable future: a consultation on the North Sea Fiscal Regime

Paying a Fairer Share: a consultation on residence and domicile

Principles-based approach to financial products avoidance: a consultation document

Copies of these documents have been deposited in the Libraries of both Houses and are available on the Treasury website.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Bill

The Minister for Competitiveness (Mr. Stephen Timms): My noble Friend the Minister of State for Trade and Investment, Lord Jones of Birmingham, has made the following statement:

Following my closing speech at Second Reading on the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Bill on 28 November 2007, Official Report, column 1280, I would like to clarify to the House the Government's understanding of the British Retail Consortium's views on the inclusion of a cost recovery provision relating to the operation of the Primary Authority arrangements under part 2 of the Bill.

I understand that the position of the British Retail Consortium is that there should be no such charges on businesses in a Primary Authority partnership. In informal discussion during the consultation on the draft Bill with a number of businesses, however, it was put to us that the inclusion of a power for local authorities to recover the costs of the service provided from the business would not be unwelcome, provided that the service provided ensured a reliable level of consistency in the regulatory approach taken to the business across the country.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Guatemala (Adoptions)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Kevin Brennan): I am today announcing a suspension of adoptions of Guatemalan children by UK residents in response to concerns about adoption practice in Guatemala. The suspension takes effect immediately.

We have had long-standing concerns about the adoption process in Guatemala, as evidenced by the imposition of additional procedural checks administered by the British embassy in Guatemala and the UK's objection to Guatemala's accession to the Hague convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in respect of Intercountry Adoption in 2003.

I am now introducing a suspension of adoptions in response to new evidence which demonstrates that: there are insufficient safeguards in the Guatemalan adoption system to prevent children being adopted without proper consents being given and improper financial gain being made by individuals in the adoption process. In particular it demonstrates that: there is a trade in babies being sold for overseas adoption; and mothers are being paid, or otherwise encouraged, to give up children for adoption. Such practices are, of course, contrary to the principles of the Hague Convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in respect of Intercountry Adoption and the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child.

I have given careful consideration to the position of UK prospective adopters currently in the process of adopting from Guatemala. I have decided that the suspension will take effect at the point when a Certificate of Eligibility is sent to Guatemala by the Department for Children, Schools and Families (or in a Northern Ireland case by the Department for Health, Social Services and Public Safety for Northern Ireland). This is the last point in the application process administered by the DCSF (or the DHSSPS).

Applications already sent to Guatemala will be not be prevented from proceeding in the usual way (subject, of course, to the usual checks), but only in exceptional circumstances will I consider that any other application may proceed. A decision about any application for an exception to the suspension will take account of the best interests of the child and all the facts of the particular case.

I understand that the Guatemala authorities intend to legislate so as to implement the Hague Convention in the coming months, but I consider that the nature of the information currently held means we must act now. I will, of course, consider the effect on the ground of any changes to adoption legislation and practice in Guatemala, in keeping the suspension under review.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Supporting People

The Minister for Housing (Yvette Cooper): The Government are today publishing provisional individual grant allocations to administering authorities for the Supporting People programme in 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11. The grant will fund housing-related support services for over 1 million vulnerable people—including victims of domestic violence, teenage parents, older people and those with mental health problems—enabling them to live independently in their accommodation.

Final allocations for 2008-09 will be confirmed by a further statement to this House in February 2008 and then for each subsequent year at the same time in that year.

The consultation on the Supporting People distribution formula completed in February 2006 and responses to this exercise have been assessed. Following consideration of the available options, a decision has been taken to use the updated formula to target the funding in 2007-08, 2008-09 and 2010-11 to help address some of the inherited uneven distribution of grant between authorities.

We are today publishing our response to that consultation on the Department's website and invite respondents to refresh their comments if appropriate before we confirm final allocations in the new year.

This three-year settlement, alongside a radically slimmed-down performance framework will provide authorities with stability for the future and greater flexibility to budget and plan realistic delivery of housing support services.

A table of indicative Supporting People programme grant allocations and a copy of the consultation response have today been placed in the Library of the House.

Greater London Authority

The Minister for Local Government (John Healey): I have today announced the following three-year settlement for the general GLA grant, which is provided by the Government to support the core activities of the Mayor of London and Greater London Authority.

| Year | 2008-9 | 2009-10 | 2010-11 |

This settlement includes DCMS' funding allocation over £9 million per annum for the Museum of London in anticipation of the transfer of its co-sponsorship of the museum to the GLA from April 2008, as well as an additional £0.5 million per annum for the GLA's other new powers and responsibilities following the GLA Act 2007 and election costs. The settlement also reflects the general requirement on local government for at least a 3 per cent. per annum value for money saving over the Comprehensive Spending Review period.

The general GLA grant will continue to be determined by the Secretary of State annually, in accordance with section 100 of the GLA Act 1999.

DEFENCE

UK Hydrographic Office

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Derek Twigg): Earlier this year I commissioned a status review of the United Kingdom Hydrographic Office in Taunton to establish the optimum future structural and ownership arrangements for the UKHO.

This review has now been completed. I can announce I have accepted the principal review recommendation that, given the current regulatory and market conditions, the UKHO should retain its current trading fund status, and ensure the potential benefits of this status are maximised as far as possible. The review considered carefully options to transfer some or all of UKHO functions to a Government-owned company and a range of structural and ownership arrangements which might assist UKHO to succeed in the challenges it faces. As the report contains commercially sensitive information, a copy of the executive summary only has been placed in the Library of the House.

As part of normal MOD business, this decision will be subject to regular review in the light of business needs, or as a result of any significant change in the regulatory or market environment.

We previously announced that UKHO will remain based in Taunton. As part of our commitment to UKHO's future we will be investing in a new building and substantially improved working conditions for UKHO's staff. We are currently looking at detailed options and expect to make a final decision early in the new year.

The status review and further studies have been carried out to ensure the UKHO has a sustainable future, focused on its core business and capabilities, providing best value for money for the taxpayer. In addition to meeting the core defence hydrographic needs of the Royal Navy and support digital navigation, the UKHO continues to operate in a competitive international commercial environment. Continuous efficiency gains and effective cost control are vital to remain competitive. In particular, UKHO management has identified those skills and capabilities they believe will be required to succeed in the developing and challenging market for digital navigation products.

As a result of this work, and subject to further detailed planning, I have approved the start of full consultation with the UKHO trade unions on the optimum future size and shape of the organisation. Study analysis indicates a total net headcount reduction in the UKHO of between 250 and 300 permanent posts over the next five years may be required in order to focus resources on the core business. It is hoped that this net reduction can be achieved through natural wastage and the full use of wider MOD restructuring arrangements. As far as possible we will avoid compulsory redundancies.

UKHO senior management are committed to taking forward the consultation process quickly in order to provide all staff with clarity regarding their futures. Wherever possible the new posts required to support future business needs will be filled by reskilling and retraining of existing staff.

With these proposed changes, I believe the UKHO's future will be secure, and it will remain a significant employer in the South West, with over 800 staff. I am clear that, these are the right decisions we need to take now if we are to deliver a viable and sustainable future for the UKHO and its staff, and value for money for the UK taxpayer.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Women's Land Army/Women's Timber Corps

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): I am delighted to announce that the Government has decided to acknowledge the contribution made by the Women's Land Army and the Women's Timber Corps by means of a badge which will be presented to veterans next year. This is in recognition of the important role these women played, not only in feeding the nation, but also in providing timber for vital industries, such as mining and aircraft manufacture. It is important that we never forget the sacrifices that were made both at home and abroad during the war. The badge will be a fitting commemoration of the work of the WLA in supporting the war effort.

Originally formed during World War I, the Women's Land Army was re-formed shortly after the outbreak of World War II to work on the land, so releasing male workers to go to war. By 1943 there were 80,000 women working in every aspect of agriculture, and also in the timber industry. The work was often physically demanding and for long hours. The WLA remained in existence until 1950, when it was disbanded. Members were granted a certificate signed by HM Queen Elizabeth in recognition of their service. Over the last 60 years, the women have campaigned strenuously for more formal recognition of their efforts.

Details of how to apply for a badge will be announced early in the new year.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Jim Murphy): The General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) will be held on 10 December in Brussels. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs will represent the UK.

The agenda items are as follows:

GENERAL AFFAIRS

Preparation of the European Council on 14 December

The Council will discuss preparation of the European Council on 14 December in Brussels. The Government expect the European Council to focus on discussions of the mandate for a "Reflection Group" ("Group of the Wise"), and the adoption by the Council of a Declaration on Globalisation. The presidency will seek, with the Government's strong support, a signal from the European Council that, with the signing of the Lisbon treaty on 13 December, the EU now has a stable institutional framework for the foreseeable future and should focus on delivering concrete results for its citizens.

Discussion at the European Council is also expected to cover Justice and Home Affairs; a renewed commitment to the Lisbon Strategy for Jobs and Growth; energy and climate: change; and external relations where the Government's priorities will be Kosovo and Iran.

2007 Enlargement Package

The Council is expected to take stock of progress on EU enlargement following the publication of the Commission's enlargement strategy and progress reports on 6 November. The Government hope the Council will adopt conclusions reaffirming its commitment to enlargement on the basis of the conclusions of the European Council in December 2006, while welcoming the Commission's reports and recommendations for further progress. This will encourage continuation of reform efforts by all the candidates and potential candidates.

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

European Neighbourhood Policy

The Commission is expected to brief the Council on its latest communication on the European Neighbourhood Policy (ENP) which is likely to take stock of the progress made on ENP since last year's communication, and to make proposals for how to take the policy forward. The Government endorses ENP as a vital framework for supporting our EU neighbours in implementing their political and economic reforms, and as a means of tackling common challenges such as economic integration, energy and climate change, terrorism and extremism, migration, and good governance, to the benefit of all member states.

Economic Partnership Agreements (EPAs)

The Council will discuss the regulation implementing Economic Partnership Agreements in signatory African, Caribbean and Pacific countries (ACPs) from 1 January 2008. The Commission will also present a paper recommending options compatible with the World Trade Organisation for those non-least developed countries who are unable to conclude negotiations by the end of the year. The Government wants duty-free quota-free access for all ACP exports to the EU market and will work to ensure that countries who have showed willingness to engage in the negotiations are not worse off in January 2008.

Western Balkans

Discussion of the Western Balkans is expected to focus on Kosovo and will coincide with the end of the period of talks facilitated by the EU-US-Russia Troika. All indications are that Belgrade and Pristina will not have reached agreement on Kosovo's status. The Government will be pushing for the EU to take a leading role in charting the way ahead after the talks, acting decisively to ensure that Kosovo's status is rapidly resolved so that the whole region can move forward.

The Council is expected to adopt conclusions on enlargement and the Western Balkans. The Government support the EU perspective for the Western Balkans—it has driven key reforms and helped the region move forward from the conflicts of the 1990s.

Iran

The Council is expected to discuss steps the EU can take to support the agreed twin-track international approach to the Iranian nuclear issue. The High Representative for Common Foreign and Security Policy, Javier Solana, is expected to brief the Council on his recent meeting with Saeed Jalili, Secretary of the Iranian Supreme National Security Council, on 30 November.

Middle East

The Council is expected to welcome the progress made at the Annapolis Conference and to discuss the forthcoming Paris donors' conference. The Council is also expected to adopt conclusions focusing on the Annapolis Conference and EU action in support, including work to strengthen Palestinian security capacity through expansion of the EU mission to support the Palestinian civilian police, and the Paris donors' conference in December. The Government are committed to supporting the shared goal at Annapolis,

"to immediately launch good faith bilateral negotiations in order to conclude a peace treaty resolving all outstanding issues, including all core issues without exception, as specified in previous agreements."

The Council is also expected to discuss Lebanon, following the departure of President Lahoud on 23 November. The Government remain concerned about the divisions between the Lebanese Government and the opposition over the election of a successor, which has been a major cause of tension in Lebanon. There now appear to be encouraging signs of progress.

The Council is expected to adopt conclusions urging a swift, peaceful and democratic outcome to the process. The Government welcome the EU's sustained engagement on Lebanon and continues to support French efforts to facilitate a compromise between the Lebanese political parties.

Burma

Burma has been added to the agenda at the Government's request in order to maintain EU focus on Burma and to support the work of the UN Special Envoy Ibrahim Gambari and the UN Special Rapporteur on Human Rights Sergio Pinheiro. The Government also want the Council to take stock of the continuing detailed, follow-on work on EU sanctions being undertaken following decisions at the October and November Councils.

Sudan

The Government want the Council to send a strong statement on Sudan-Darfur and Chad through conclusions reiterating the EU's support for the ongoing UN-African Union (AU) led efforts to achieve a sustainable peace settlement in Darfur. The Government also expect the Council to call on all parties to do all they can to ensure prompt deployment of an effective AU-UN peacekeeping force, UNAMID, which will assume authority from the current AU Mission in Sudan (AMIS) by 31 December 2007, and to call for the early deployment of the planned EU mission to Chad and the Central African Republic.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Police Funding (2008-09 to 2010-11)

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): I have today placed in the Library my proposals for allocation of police grant for England and Wales from 2008-09 to 2010-11. I intend to implement the proposals on police grant subject to consideration of any representations and to the approval of the House.

Policing and reducing crime remain top priorities for this Government. The 2006-07 British Crime Survey shows that since peaking in 1995, crime has fallen by 42 per cent. representing over 8 million fewer crimes. The Government have worked very hard to maintain the police grant at a good level for the next three years as well as to provide secure and stable funding across policing, crime and drugs. Police authorities will receive a realistic and affordable increase in grant, backed up by a programme of reform and modernisation and a continuing drive to increase efficiency and productivity and cut bureaucracy. chief constables and police authorities will have maximum flexibility to make the best possible use of resources to maintain the historically high number of police officers and have the right workforce balance they need to deliver local priorities.

I have placed in the Library of the House today copies of the "National Community Safety Plan for England 2008-11". The plan supports greater partnership working on community safety at national, regional and local level, and is intended to support practitioners in planning and delivering community safety objectives. The plan also includes our strategic policing priorities and key actions for the police service for 2008-09. The "National Community Safety Plan" follows on from, and supports, the objectives in the Government's crime strategy, published in July this year "Cutting Crime: A New Partnership 2008-11". The crime strategy sets out how we will continue to build on the achievements of the past ten years, refreshing our approach to meet new challenges. The new "Make Communities Safer" PSA supports the crime strategy and helps to establish a more mature relationship between central Government and local delivery partners for driving improvement priorities.

The settlement builds on considerable investment in the police service over the past decade. On a like for like basis Government grant for the police will have increased by over 60 per cent. or over £3.7 billion between 1997-98 and 2010-11. Our investment in policing, as well as significant extra investment from local taxpayers and the delivery by police forces and authorities of substantial increases in efficiency, has helped to expand local policing successfully, reduce crime and make our communities safer

The police service has responded well to the demands placed on it but we must make sure the service is in the best possible shape to meet them. We are committed to consolidating and building on the significant reforms and achievements to date, to support the police service in meeting these new challenges. In support of these aims, Sir Ronnie Flanagan is currently undertaking an independent review of policing. We also intend to publish a Green Paper in spring 2008 to consult on wider proposals for change.

Excellent progress is being made in the delivery of neighbourhood policing. By April 2008 there will be a neighbourhood policing team in every area and we are ahead of schedule with more than 75 per cent. of England and Wales already covered by neighbourhood policing teams. Some 16,000 police community support officers are now supporting police officers in delivering real changes on the ground, fighting crime and making communities feel safer. Together with CLG, community safety partners and other agencies, the Home Office is working to integrate neighbourhood policing with local neighbourhood management to ensure that we have the greatest number of services working together to tackle the issues identified by our communities.

The Government remain committed to building on the significant progress that have been made to date in increasing efficiency and productivity and reducing unnecessary bureaucracy, to ensure that officers are most effectively focused on their front line duties. We want to empower and equip officers so they can provide the most visible and accessible police presence in the community possible. We intend to support this through a new efficiency and productivity strategy on which we are working with the service. In addition, this will be supported by further improvements to working practices and processes, greater flexibility and streamlining of local performance management requirements and wider access to innovative crime fighting technology that will be supported by a new £50 million capital fund.

Total provision for policing revenue grants in 2008-09 will be £9,227 million, an overall increase of 2.9 per cent. Provision is also made for 2.9 per cent. in 2009-10 and 2.7 per cent. in 2010-11. I propose to distribute the settlement as set out below.

*Consultation will take place on how best to use BCU funds to support local delivery of PSA targets and crime strategy.

Police funding proposals within the local government finance system are being announced by my hon. Friend the Member for Wentworth (John Healey) today. On 5 November, the Welsh Assembly Government announced its proposals for Revenue Support Grant.

Provisional general policing grants (that is, Home Office Police Grant, Revenue Support Grant and National Non Domestic Rates) for English and Welsh police authorities in 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 are set out at tables 2 to 4.

Within the general grant provision of 2.7 per cent. I have set a funding floor at 2.5 per cent. in each of the CSR years. This means that each police authority in England and Wales is guaranteed an increase of at least this level in each year. This provides for stability while enabling us to move towards fuller implementation of the needs-based funding formula.

The employer pension contribution rate payable by police authorities for police officers will be reduced from 24.6 per cent. of pensionable pay to 24.2 per cent. with effect for three years starting from April 2008. This revaluation does not affect employee contribution rates. We expect that the reduced employer contribution rate will result in a saving to police authorities of approximately £15 million per year.

The settlement recognises the importance of efficiency and productivity increases for police authorities. Compared to 2007-08, police authorities will be expected to deliver 9.3 per cent. cashable increases in efficiency and productivity by the end of 2010-11.

Keeping council tax under control remains a priority for the Government. And my right hon. Friend, the Chancellor of the Exchequer made clear in his statement on the comprehensive spending review that the Government expects the average council tax increase in England in 2008-09 to be substantially below 5 per cent. No decisions have been taken on capping principles in 2008-09 but we have made clear that we will not hesitate to use our capping powers as necessary to protect council tax payers from excessive increases.

Formula Grant Distribution

During the summer we consulted on whether to update the resource base of the formula and whether "rule 2 grants" (former specific grants now allocated with general grant) and the crime fighting fund (CFF) should continue as separate entities or be incorporated into general grant. I have carefully considered all the representations received in response to the consultation.

I have decided to update the resource base of the formula to reflect better the pressures facing the police. I have also decided, in the interest of stability, not to incorporate "rule 2 grants" into general grant. Likewise, the CFF will remain in its present, unhypothecated, form to give maximum flexibility to police authorities and chief constables.

I have decided to move funding for the Initial Police Learning and Development Programme (IPLDP) from ring fenced status to a "rule 2 grant". It will no longer be ring-fenced and will be distributed on the basis of each force's allocations in the last two years.

Welsh Police Authorities

In line with previous years I have ensured that Welsh police authorities are treated in line with English police authorities. I have provided additional support of £15.4 million in 2008-09, £15.5 million in 2009-10 and £15.7 million in 2010-11 to ensure that Dyfed-Powys, Gwent and North Wales police authorities receive at least a minimum grant increase of 2.5 per cent. This additional support is also partly funded by reducing police grant to South Wales police authority, so that it too will receive the level of grant it would if it were in England.

Metropolitan Police funding

The settlement provides for the Metropolitan police authority to receive £197 million in 2008-09 (+£5 million over 2007-08) in formula provision to reflect their unique national and international role as well as the functions that fall to them by virtue of London being a capital city. This has been uprated in line with inflation for each year.

Specific Grants for Police Authorities

Police authorities will continue to receive extra funding through a number of specific grants for particular schemes. Details are set out in table 5.

Crime Fighting Fund: £277 million will again be made available to forces in 2008-09.

Neighbourhood Policing: To ensure that neighbourhood policing is fully embedded across England and Wales, I have accepted the recommendation made by Sir Ronnie Flanagan to maintain the ring-fence on this funding in 2008-09. A total of £324 million will be made available in 2008-09. Funding will increase by an average of 2.7 per cent. in each of the CSR years.

Basic Command Units: The basic command unit fund was introduced in 2003-04 for a two-year period, subsequently extended. I will be continuing this funding at the level of £40 million in 2008-09. I will be providing £50 million a year in 2009-10 and 2010-11. During 2008, we will be consulting with the police and other key delivery partners on how this £50 million fund for years after 2008-09 can best be used, and by which partners, to support successful delivery of the new PSA targets and crime strategy.

Counter-Terrorism

Funding for police counter terrorism will be increased from £472 million in 2007-08 to £524 million in 2008-09, £552 million in 2009-10 and £579 million in 2010-11.

Capital

In 2007-08 we were able to make two in-year capital payments of £25 million each to police authorities. That additional funding has been continued for the CSR years and £220 million in capital and supported capital expenditure will be allocated to police authorities in each of the next three years, with each authority receiving the same allocation as in 2007-08.

Other issues

I will shortly be making further announcements about funding for the Olympics and Protective Services.

Police Officer Pay

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): On 16 November 2006, my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Security, Counter-terrorism, Crime and Policing announced a review of police pay arrangements led by Sir Clive Booth. The first part of Sir Clive Booth's review looked at the arrangements for determining police officer pay in 2007. The second part considered the effectiveness of the current police pay machinery.

On 21 February this year my right hon. Friend published Sir Clive Booth's report on part one of his review. His report "Fair Pay for Police Officers" contained recommendations for determining police officer pay for 2007, including that the police officer pay award for 2007 should be based on a new public sector-facing index. My right hon. Friend made clear in publishing Sir Clive Booth's report that the method for determining police officer pay for 2007 would then be progressed through the Police Negotiating Board, before the Home Secretary took the final decision.

The Police Negotiating Board have considered the recommendations in Sir Clive Booth's report and the police officer pay award for 2007. Unfortunately the board was not able to reach agreement and the matter was therefore considered by the Police Arbitration Tribunal (PAT). I received the Police Arbitration Tribunal's recommendation for the police officer 2007 pay award on 29 November 2007.

The PAT recommendation was:

> To increase the pay of all ranks of police officers covered by the three Standing Committees of the PNB by 2.5 per cent. with effect from 1 September 2007.

I have considered this recommendation very carefully. In doing so I have taken account of the tribunal's findings and reasoning, the need to ensure value for money and the best use of resources, affordability and Government policy on public sector pay.

The tribunal's recommendation for a 2.5 per cent. increase is based on a new index expanding that proposed by Sir Clive Booth. Having fully considered the PAT findings I accept the recommendation of the tribunal for an award of 2.5 per cent. However I have given very serious consideration to the implementation of this award and concluded that in the interests of affordability, and Government policy on public sector pay, the implementation of this award should be staged. This year's police officer pay award will therefore be 2.5 per cent. with effect from 1 December 2007. Staging will mean that around £40 million extra will be available in 2007-08 to invest in the provision of policing services to the public.

The index suggested by the PAT for the 2007 award could inform discussion and negotiation of the police officer pay award for next year. However, I will continue to give careful consideration to any proposals from the police pay machinery on next year's pay award. This consideration will include how any such award can make the best use of resources, affordability, the need to ensure consistency with Government policy on public sector pay and that the needs of the service and of the taxpayer and public are best served.

Sir Clive Booth has now provided his report on part two of his review "Determining Pay in the Police Service".

I am grateful to Sir Clive Booth for undertaking the review. He has undertaken a wide-ranging consultation with interested parties including the Police Federation, the Association of Chief Police Officers, the Association of Police Authorities, the Superintendents' Association, the Chief Police Officers' Staff Association, Unison and others. In his report on part two of his review, Sir Clive Booth recommends that: (i) a pay review body for police officers should be created; (ii) the pay of police officers and police staff should continue to be determined by separate mechanisms; (iii) the existing Police Staff Council machinery should be retained for the time being; and (iv) that chief officers are covered by the proposed pay review body for police officers, but if that is not created chief officers should become one of the groups covered by the Senior Salaries Review Body.

The Government welcomes Sir Clive Booth's report and accepts that a pay review body for police officers, including chief officers, should be created, the pay of police officers and police staff should continue to be determined separately and that the Police Staff Council should be retained. We note that in due course unified officer and staff pay machinery may be considered, in particular as police workforce developments are progressed, but do not think that this is a practical proposition for the time being.

The Government will consult, in the near future, on proposals for implementing the necessary changes to the police pay machinery.

I have today placed a copy of Sir Clive Booth's report in the Library of the House.

Counter-terrorism

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): We are today publishing further documents in relation to the forthcoming counter-terrorism Bill. We are publishing a letter I have sent today to the Chair of the Home Affairs Select Committee setting out how the Government intend to legislate on pre-charge detention of terrorist suspects; a report by Lord Carlile of Berriew QC, the independent reviewer of terrorism legislation, on the proposals for the counter-terrorism Bill and a paper summarising the results of the public consultation on the proposals for the counter-terrorism Bill. Copies of all three documents are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

JUSTICE

Corston Report

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. David Hanson): I am today publishing a Command Paper—"The Government's Response to the Report by Baroness Corston of a Review of Women with Particular Vulnerabilities in the Criminal Justice System" (Cm 7261). Copies are available on the official documents website at:

www.official-documents.gov.uk/document/cm72/7261/7261.asp

First, the paper indicates how the Government are responding to the 43 recommendations made by my right hon. and noble Friend Baroness Corston in her report. I am delighted that it has been possible to accept almost all of the recommendations.

Secondly, it gives a commitment to produce a detailed delivery plan within the next six months that will provide the mechanism by which all of the commitments identified in the response will be implemented. This will be driven forward by establishing a new cross-departmental Criminal Justice Women's Unit based in the Ministry of Justice.

I am very grateful to my right hon. and noble Friend for the report which provides a detailed and comprehensive analysis of the many and complex issues affecting women offenders and women at risk of offending. The Government agree that more needs to be done to address these issues and to tackle problems at an earlier stage—in the community in particular. The duty of Government is to protect the public but it is right that we continue to look at how the penal system treats women, and importantly to look at what is most effective in preventing reoffending.

My right hon. and noble Friend considered that the key to success was the need for high level governance and better mechanisms for cross-departmental working. I am therefore very pleased that we are able to set out in the Government response the action that will be taken to improve governance arrangements. The inter-ministerial group on reducing reoffending will provide the governance for this work, we will establish a cross-departmental Criminal Justice Women's Unit within the Ministry of Justice, and we have identified a ministerial champion—the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice, my hon. Friend the Member for Liverpool, Garston (Maria Eagle)—who will have responsibility for taking forward this work.

The response also sets out a number of ways in which services for women in the criminal justice system will be developed.

I would like to thank my ministerial colleagues and officials in their departments who have contributed to the development of this response. I look forward to working with them, and our non-Government stakeholders, in taking forward these commitments together. I am determined to make sure that more is done to ensure that we have in the 21st century a system that is properly responsive to the needs and characteristics of women.

TRANSPORT

A303 Stonehenge

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Tom Harris): Making best use of taxpayers' money is essential in the allocation of funding to transport schemes. With that in mind the Government announced in 2005 that it planned to commission a review of options for the A303 Stonehenge improvement after a substantial increase in the estimated cost of the proposed 2.1 km bored tunnel scheme. The approved budget for the scheme when it was taken to public inquiry in 2004 was £223 million. The latest reported cost estimate is £540 million which reflects a number of factors including unexpectedly poor ground conditions, more stringent requirements for tunnelling work and rapid inflation in construction costs.

The review identified a shortlist of possible options, including routes to the north and south of Stonehenge. After careful consideration we have now concluded that due to significant environmental constraints across the whole of the world heritage site, there are no acceptable alternatives to the 2.1 km bored tunnel scheme. However, when set against our wider objectives and priorities, we have concluded that allocating more than £500 million for the implementation of this scheme cannot be justified and would not represent best use of taxpayers' money. I am today placing the final report of the review on the Department's website.

I am therefore today withdrawing all the draft Orders which were considered at the public inquiry and I have instructed the Highways Agency to withdraw route protection for the complete scheme including the proposed bypass of Winterbourne Stoke.

The Government recognise the importance of the A303 Stonehenge improvement scheme and that today's announcement will come as a considerable disappointment for the scheme's supporters. The Highways Agency will investigate possible small-scale improvements to the A303 as part of their overall stewardship of route. The Department also plans to discuss with the south-west region the implications of this decision for the wider strategy for improving the A303-A358 corridor to the M5 at Taunton.

In addition, the Department will work with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport and English Heritage on their plans to take forward in consultation with other stakeholders a review of the world heritage site management plan and to consider alternative options for the development of new visitor facilities at Stonehenge in the light of our decision on the A303 improvement. This further work will include examination of the case for closing the junction of the A344 with the A303 as part of the investigation of options for improving the setting of Stonehenge, taking into account the wider heritage and environmental needs, to which the Government remain committed, for this iconic world heritage site. The decision will be subject to a detailed assessment and public consultation, but we recognise the importance of this issue to the sustainability of the world heritage site.

The Government remain committed to working with stakeholders in investigating options for improving the environment of Stonehenge, including new visitor facilities, and exploring possible small-scale measures to improve traffic flows and safety along this section of the A303.

EU Transport Council

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Ms Rosie Winterton): The Transport, Telecommunications and Energy Council took place in Brussels on 29 November-3 December, I attended the first two days, as Europe Minister in the Department for Transport. The Portuguese Minister for Public Works, Transport, and Communications, Mr Mario Lino, was in the chair.

The Council agreed conclusions on the Galileo satellite navigation programme. The conclusions define the general principles covering governance and public sector procurement for the programme. The Transport Council conclusions place a €3.4 billion cap on costs in this financial perspective. The European Commission is identified as the overall programme manager, to be advised by member states. An independent project management team will also review progress and advise the Commission. The conclusions also emphasise the importance of competition in the supply chain, including multiple simultaneous procurement streams. The UK minutes statement, supported by Sweden, stresses the need for review by independent experts at key decision points, including when finalising the contract between the Commission and the European Space Agency for the procurement of the system, at the end of the current In-Orbit Validation phase (in 2010), and once quotes have been received from industry for the deployment phase, as well as regular review of costs, risks and likely revenues from the services to be offered by Galileo.

The Council agreed conclusions on the Commission's action plan on Freight Transport Logistics. The action plan, published in October as part of a non-legislative "freight package", identifies 35 short and medium-term actions for the promotion of a more efficient freight sector. In general, we support the Commission's objective of an efficient freight transport logistics industry which will promote long-term growth and at the same time address issues such as congestion, noise, pollution and $CO_2$ emissions. We support the Commission's approach in facilitating discussions with industry to provide benchmarking and best practice information for logistics providers.

There was a policy debate on progress made on the renewed EU sustainable development strategy adopted by the European Council in June 2006. On the basis of this debate and another conducted in the Environment Council on 30 October, the presidency will prepare input to the conclusions of the December European Council. In the field of transport, the Commission concentrated on its initiatives on the internalisation of external costs, intelligent transport systems and the freight logistics action plan. A communication drawing lessons from these is planned for June 2008. I drew the Council's attention to the UK's new sustainable transport strategy, emphasising that transport has to be at the heart of economic planning and social policy, and make a contribution to public health and social inclusion.

The Council reached a political agreement on three legislative proposals in maritime transport. The first is a regulation on the liability of carriers of passengers by sea and inland waterways in the event of accidents, incorporating the main provisions of the Athens Convention 2002 into EC law. (The Athens Convention provides for compensation for death or injury or loss due to an accident at sea.) The agreed text of the regulation is acceptable to the UK. Shortly before the Council, the draft recast directive amending existing directives governing the activities of ship inspection and survey organisations (classification societies), was divided into a directive and a regulation, as had been requested by a number of member states, including the UK. The new directive contains the provisions directed at member states, and the regulation contains the provisions directly applicable to recognized organisations ("ROs", the classification societies approved to work in the EU). The regulation will give the Commission the power to levy fines on ROs for non-compliance, after consulting member states. The Commission and the Council issued a joint statement on their intention to see similar rules applied at international level. The agreed texts of the directive and the regulation are acceptable to the UK.

Under other business, the Commission presented its recent communication on ports policy. The Commission also proposed that the current Commission observer to the International Maritime Organisation be replaced by a community observer. The Commission would like the Council to take a decision on this in April. I was among Ministers who stated their preference for a decision to be made in the light of a more general review of the community's role in international organisations, planned for 2009.

The Council reached a general approach on a directive on airport charges, which aims to set common principles for the levying of charges for aircraft landing and take-off and the handling of passengers at community airports. The threshold for application of the directive in the compromise text is 5 million passengers per year or the largest airport in a member state which has none reaching that figure. The agreed text was acceptable to the UK. It is more proportionate than the initial proposal and enables current UK economic regulation practices to continue.

The Council reached a political agreement on a recast regulation on common rules for the operation of air transport services in the community (the "third package review") This regulation consolidates three existing regulations of 1992, which established the aviation single market. The proposal seeks to update the 1992 regulations in the light of experience of the single market. It closes certain loopholes and ensures clarity and consistent application of the common rules across all member states. The agreed text is acceptable to the UK.

Two issues of aviation external relations were on the agenda. The Council adopted decisions giving the Commission mandates to negotiate with Jordan on a comprehensive aviation agreement, and with the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) on an agreement regarding aviation security audits and inspections and related matters. The principal aim of the latter is to reduce duplication of audits. Both mandates are acceptable to the UK.

In road transport, there were progress reports on two proposals: a recast regulation on common rules for access to the international road haulage market; and a regulation on common rules concerning the conditions to be complied with to pursue the occupation of road transport operator. Some key issues remain to be resolved: on the former proposal, the rules for access to domestic haulage markets ("cabotage"), and on the latter, the establishment of, and access to, national registers of operators.

The Council reached political agreement on two rail transport proposals. These are: a directive amending the 2004 directive on rail safety; and a directive amending the 2004 directive which established the European Rail Agency. The two texts are acceptable to the UK.

The directive on interoperability of the Community rail system was withdrawn from the Council agenda, as the presidency and the European Parliament are likely to move towards a First Reading agreement on adoption of the proposal. This is acceptable to the UK. The EP vote on the Directive has been postponed until the December plenary.

National Bus Concessionary Fares

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Ms Rosie Winterton): I have today made details available of our proposed distribution of special grant funding to local authorities to meet the additional costs of the new statutory minimum bus concession.

Around 11 million older and disabled people will gain better access to vital services and leisure opportunities from 1 April 2008 when the statutory bus concession is extended to free off-peak local bus travel anywhere in England. By removing the issue of local authority boundaries as a barrier to free bus travel no older or disabled person in England need be prevented from bus travel by cost alone and this represents a major step forward in tackling in social inclusion for some of the most vulnerable people in our society.

Additional funding of £212 million will be provided by special grant for the period 2008-09 followed by £217 million for 2009-10 and £223 million for 2010-11. This is in addition to the funding that Government provides each year, through the formula grant process, for the existing statutory minimum concession of free off-peak local bus travel. Government are confident this additional funding is sufficient to meet the total cost to local authorities.

A full breakdown of the amounts for each authority will be available on the DfT and CLG websites shortly. The distribution reflects responses received to our consultation on the special grant which closed on 23 November. We will publish a summary of responses shortly. The grant will be paid under section 88B of the Local Government Finance Act 1988 and a full report will therefore be laid before the House in due course.

Abortion Act 1967 (Repeal)

The Humble Petition of Linda White and other residents of Wellingborough including the Parish of our Lady of Our Sacred Heart, Wellingborough,

That they bear witness to the fortieth anniversary of the passing of the Abortion Act 1967 and appeal to Her Majesty's government, in its forthcoming review of the act, to seek ways of providing alternative support for families who choose to abort their unborn babies and to hasten the day when this terrible act is removed from the statute book.

Wherefore your Petitioners pray that your Honourable House urges the Secretary of State for Health to introduce a bill to repeal the Abortion Act 1967.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.—[Presented by Mr. Peter Bone, Official Report, 29 October 2007; Vol. 465, c. 620.] [P000067]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Health:

It is accepted Parliamentary practice that proposals for changes in the law on abortion come from backbench members and that decisions are made on the basis of free votes.

The Government believes that the Abortion Act works as Parliament intended.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Development (Durham)

The Petition of the people of the City of Durham,

Declares that the green space formerly the Bowling Green, situated on the Old Racecourse on the bank of the river Wear at Elvet waterside, is under threat from development.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Department for Communities and Local Government to do all to protect and retain this public space for the present citizens of the City of Durham, future residents, posterity and visitors.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Dr. Roberta Blackman-Woods, Official Report, 24 July 2007; Vol. 463, c. 806 .] [P000068]

Observation from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

1. Development proposals for Elvet Waterside affecting the former Bowling Green are at an early stage, and the City Council and the developer are still in discussion with statutory consultees and local residents about the future development. There is no definite date yet for submission of a planning application.

2. Development management is primarily the responsibility of the City of Durham as local planning authority, and the Secretary of State would not comment on the merits or otherwise of an application, or prospective application.

3. The law requires decisions on planning applications to be in accordance with the adopted development plan, unless material considerations indicate otherwise. The Government's statements of national planning policy, such as PPG 17 "Planning for Open Space Sport and Recreation", are material considerations which must be taken into account, where relevant, in planning decisions, but it is the responsibility of Durham City Council to identify and weigh up all the different issues, in the context of the specific local circumstances, having regard to the views of local residents and other interested parties.

4. The Secretary of State may decide to call-in an application for her own determination where she considers that it raises issues of more than local importance, but her policy is to be very selective about this. As it is possible that the Elvet Waterside application may at some future date come within her jurisdiction, it would be inappropriate to comment on the matter raised in the petition.

Justice

Mobile Telephone Mast (Canvey Island)

The Petition of Cheryl Oldroyd, residents of Canvey Island and others,

Declares that the proposal submitted by $O_2$ to erect a mobile telephone mast on the High Street, Canvey Island, is unacceptable due to the ill-considered suitability of a busy residential and business area for such a structure. The petitioners emphasise the significant lack of understanding in respect of the longer-term effects of such telephone masts on the health of those within the immediate vicinity and particularly on young children. Whilst the petitioners acknowledge the need to erect and maintain such structures in the interests of business, they submit that more suitable locations for this structure are available, of which the applicant is already aware and should consider.

The Petitioners therefore request the House to urge the Government to encourage Castle Point Borough Councillors to reject the plans and seek an alternative, less densely populated area, in consideration of the wishes of residents.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Bob Spink, Official Report, 24 July 2007; Vol. 463, c. 808 .] [P000069]

Observation from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

Decisions on planning and prior approval applications for telecommunications are, in the first instance, the responsibility of local planning authorities. The role of the Secretary of State in the appeal process requires the Government to remain impartial. If the Government were to pass comment or give advice relating to the case, we would be at risk of fettering the Secretary of State's discretion in the event that this matter was to proceed to an appeal. Government policy is not to interfere with the jurisdiction of local planning authorities unless it is absolutely necessary to do so and calling in cases for determination by the Secretary of State is comparatively rare.

Guidance on the handling of planning and prior approval applications is set out in Planning Policy Guidance (PPG) Note 8: Telecommunications. The policy states "Whilst local planning authorities are encouraged to respond positively to telecommunications development proposals, they should take account of the advice on the protection of urban and rural areas in other planning policy guidance notes. Material considerations include the significance of the proposed development as part of a national network. In making an application for planning permission, or prior approval, operators may be expected to provide evidence regarding the need for the proposed development."

The guidance also states

"In order to limit visual intrusion, the Government attaches considerable importance to keeping the number of radio and telecommunications masts, and of the sites for such installations, to the minimum consistent with the efficient operation of the network".

The Health Protection Agency's Radiation Protection Division continually monitors the health impact of mobile phone technologies. The research field was comprehensively reviewed in 'Health Effects from Radiofrequency Electromagnetic Fields - Report of an independent Advisory Group on Non-ionising Radiation' (Documents of the National Radiological Protection Board, Volume 14, No 2 2003).

The report specifically mentions mobile telephone masts saying: "Exposure levels from living near to mobile phone base stations are extremely low, and the overall evidence indicates that they are unlikely to pose a risk to health".

Nevertheless, the Government takes very seriously public concern about the possibility of health effects associated with telecommunications systems and has part financed the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research (MTHR) programme which has funded a number of studies in this area. The MTHR programme management committee published a report on 12 September 2007, describing the work it has supported in the UK and placing it in context with work going on undertaken elsewhere in the world. The research programme included the largest and most robust studies of electrical hypersensitivity undertaken anywhere in the world and found no convincing evidence that the unpleasant symptoms, such as headaches, dizziness and tingling, experienced by sufferers of electrical hypersensitivity are the result of exposure to signals from mobile phones or base stations. In addition, the programme funded some basic measurements of radio signals from smaller base stations in the UK such as those found in airports, railway stations and shopping mails and found that exposures were well below international guidelines.

As stated in PPG 8,

"It is the Government's firm view that the planning system is not the place for determining health safeguards. It remains central Government's responsibility to decide what measures are necessary to protect public health. In the Government's view, if a proposed mobile phone base station meets the ICNIRP guidelines for public exposure it should not be necessary for a local planning authority, in processing an application for planning permission or prior approval, to consider further the health aspects and concerns about them". This remains the Government's position.

Family Courts (Reform)

The Petition of The Pullen Family,

Declares that a recent case in the Family Court has highlighted an injustice in the current system. The daughter of Rachel Pullen has been put up for adoption because she is alleged, by Nottingham City Council, to be too ill for her mother to care for her. The Council assessed Rachel Pullen as 'not having the capacity to give instructions to your solicitor'. As a consequence the Official Solicitor was instructed to represent her. This case demonstrates that there is a conflict of interest under current legislation which works against the interests of parents. The Petitioners believe that judgements on an individual's competence should be made by a fully independent authority to ensure justice is both done and seen to be done.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to legislate to prevent courts from accepting the opinion of experts paid by the local authority as to the capacity of parties to give instructions to solicitors and further to investigate on how many occasions the Official Solicitor has been used by Local Authorities to progress the removal and adoption of a child from its birth family.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by John Hemming, Official Report, 23 October 2007; Vol. 465, c. 258 .] [P000070]

Observation from the Secretary of State for Justice:

The Government takes the issues raised very seriously and would like to highlight the following points in response:

Injustice in the Family Courts

Children involved in care proceedings are considered to be suffering or likely to suffer significant harm so the cases involve issues of the most extreme importance. In such cases, the courts—with their independent judiciary—are required by law to treat the interests of the child as paramount.

An adoption panel advises and makes independent recommendations to the adoption agency/local authority on whether the child should be placed for adoption. The panel is made up of a Panel Chair, a Medical Adviser, an elected councillor, a representative of the fostering agency, a foster carer from another agency, independent members, social workers and others who have indirect experience of adoption. The court will then make its decision after hearing and considering all the evidence put before them by all parties in the proceedings, including parents and experts. So the process is:

Official Solicitor

The Official Solicitor is an independent statutory office holder appointed under the Supreme Court Act 1981. He is an officer of the Supreme Court of England and Wales. Ministers are not responsible for his decisions in individual cases.

Use of Experts

Where a lawyer, usually a solicitor for the party that wants expert evidence to be presented, approaches an expert, the expert will be given information about the issues likely to arise and the questions to be answered. The lawyer has to provide information, including the qualifications and expertise of the expert (often by a curriculum vitae) to the court. The lawyer must justify the need for an expert, say whether the expert can be jointly appointed by two or more of the parties to the case and, if so, how costs might be apportioned. There is a presumption that an opinion from a single expert in a speciality will suffice because, in the majority of cases, medical experts will agree about the evidence of harm to a child. However, any of the parties may contest this and apply to the court for the appointment of a separate expert.

There are no plans to legislate to prevent courts from accepting the opinions of independent experts paid for by the Local Authority.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Members: Allowances

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many full-time equivalent officials were employed to deal with hon. Members' allowance claims in the Department of Finance and Administration and its predecessor department in (a) 2006, (b) 1996 and (c) 1986. [165087]

Nick Harvey: At 1 April 2006 approximately 30 full-time equivalent, permanent staff were employed to deal with hon. Members' allowance claims in the Department of Finance and Administration. Comparable figures are no longer held for 1996 and 1986.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has paid local transporters in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Pakistan to transport British goods for resupply in each year since 2002. [162568]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The cost of onward movement from Kandahar to other UK bases in Afghanistan between April 2006 and March 2007 was around £3.2 million. Data prior to April 2006 are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The cost of transport through Pakistan is subsumed in the costs associated with the contract for the transport of supplies from the UK to the UK logistics hub in Afghanistan. A breakdown cannot be provided of the amount paid to 'local' transporters as the MOD does not have visibility of such sub-contracts.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many visits were made by personnel from his Department to detainees transferred from British forces to the government of Afghanistan in each year since 2005; and what the purpose was of each visit. [165889]

Des Browne: Records show that, since 27 April 2007, UK armed forces personnel have made 13 visits to see detainees transferred to the government of Afghanistan, normally seeing several detainees in one visit. The purpose of the visits was to check on the welfare and status of the detainees.

Information related to visits prior to 27 April 2007 is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what provision there is to provide (a) washing facilities and (b) washing powder for clothing at Camp Bastion, Afghanistan. [167404]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Personnel at Camp Bastion have access to a contract laundry facility to wash clothing. This facility is provided free of charge. The frequency of the laundry service currently allows for two 5 kg bags per person per week. Washing powder is available from the NAAFI should personnel wish to wash items by hand.

Armed Forces: Death

Mr. Liddell-Grainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps are taken to keep families informed during enquiries into the death of servicemen; and if he will make a statement. [167070]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The armed forces ensure that families are kept informed of all developments, regarding investigations into the deaths of service personnel, through their respective visiting officers. Where there is a board of inquiry, families will be given personal briefings on the process, findings, conclusions and recommendations.

Armed Forces: Desertion

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the armed forces reported absent without leave between January 2004 and October 2007 were aged between (a) 18 to 20, (b) 21 to 25, (c) 26 to 30, (d) 31 to 35 and (e) 36-years-old or above. [165799]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The breakdown of personnel reported absent without leave by age group between January 2004 and October 2007 for the Royal Air Force (RAF) and the Army is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The number of Royal Navy personnel broken down by age group who have been reported absent without leave between January 2004 and October 2007 is shown in the following table.

| | Age 18-20 | Age 21-25 | Age 26-30 | Age 31-36 | Age 36+ | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 2004 | 66 | 67 | 23 | 18 | 10 | 184 |
| 2005 | 89 | 70 | 20 | 15 | 2 | 196 |
| 2006 | 77 | 57 | 8 | 12 | 3 | 157 |
| 2007 | 49 | 47 | 8 | 4 | 7 | 115 |
| Total | 281 | 241 | 59 | 49 | 22 | 652 |

Armed Forces: Postal Services

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of the cost of the free postal service for troops announced on 12 November will be paid by (a) Royal Mail and (b) the British Forces Post Office; and if he will make a statement. [165886]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Ministry of Defence does not maintain details on the cost to Defence of providing a postal service to operational theatres as the value varies according to the volume of mail presented. If volume rises significantly then costs will increase exponentially due to additional air charter and personnel deployment costs.

For illustrative reasons, the current full commercial cost of sending a 2 kg airmail packet to Iraq or Afghanistan via Royal Mail is £20.72. If this cost is taken as being representative of the total cost of sending a 2 kg package to Iraq or Afghanistan then the Ministry of Defence was paying 69 per cent. prior to the introduction of the freepost service on 3 September. The remaining 31 per cent. was paid by the consigner. As a result of the extension of the freepost service jointly announced with Royal Mail on 12 November, the Royal Mail will fund approximately 15.5 per cent. of the illustrative cost, with Ministry of Defence funding the remaining 84.5 per cent.

Army: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average tour interval was for the (a) infantry, (b) Royal Artillery, (c) Royal Engineers, (d) Royal Corps of Signals, (e) Royal Armoured Corps, (f) Household Cavalry, (g) Royal Electrical Mechanical Engineers and (h) Army Medical Services in the latest period for which figures are available. [165883]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The average unit tour intervals for the Infantry and those units of the Royal Regiment of Artillery, the Royal Armoured Corps and the Army Medical Services which deploy as fully formed units, are 23.5, 20.8, 23.1 and 24.5 months respectively. This is calculated on the basis of the mean time between the start of the most recent deployment and the end of the previous deployment.

The Household Cavalry has only deployed as a unit twice since January 2003: Iraq (April 2004-October 2004) and Afghanistan (October 2007-April 2008). As such, its average unit tour interval and actual unit tour interval is 35 months.

The unit tour interval is a less relevant measure when applied to the Corps of Royal Engineers, Royal Corps of Signals and the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers. This is due to the frequency with which personnel move between formed units within these Corps (the personnel deployed with a unit will be substantially different from the personnel deployed with the same unit on a previous occasion). Consequently, unit tour interval data for these Corps are not routinely collated.

Ballistic Missile Defence

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the potential contribution of the US Missile Defense programme to UK defence policy. [166998]

Des Browne: The US plans to place further missile defence assets in Europe are an important step towards providing a defensive capability against potential future ballistic missile threats to the UK. We will continue to discuss with the US how this coverage will be achieved as the system evolves.

Guided Weapons

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons the Hydra CRV-7 rocket system has been reclassified as no longer a cluster munition; and if he will make a statement. [168232]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 26 July 2007, Official Report, column 1247W, to the hon. Member for Gower (Mr. Caton).

There is no international definition of a cluster munition, nor of the number of sub-munitions a weapon must carry in order to be classed as a cluster munition. An element of the UK's own understanding of a cluster munition is that a weapon should carry more than 10 sub-munitions in order to be classified a cluster munition.

The term 'Hydra' refers to an American rocket system which we do not use. The Canadian Rocket Vehicle 7 (CRV-7) is manufactured in Canada and is the version currently in-service with UK forces. Multi Purpose Sub Munition is one of the rocket variants of the CRV-7 system.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British (a) 20 foot and (b) 40 foot shipping containers used for resupply have been reported as (i) missing and (ii) stolen in Afghanistan and Iraq in each year since 2002. [162557]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No shipping containers have been reported as missing or stolen.

Libyan Arab Republic: Arms Trade

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the value of arms and related equipment exported from the UK to Libya has been over the last 10 years. [165580]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

The Government do not hold information on the value of arms and related equipment exported from the UK, but can provide information on the value of licences issued for export. The Government publish detailed information on export licences issued, including the overall value and number of export licences approved for Libya and a summary of the items covered by these licences, in its Annual and Quarterly Reports on Strategic Export Controls.

The Government's Annual Reports, published since 1997, are available from the Libraries of the House and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) website at http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c =Page&cid=1007029395474.

The Government have published quarterly reports on Strategic Export Controls since January 2004 and these are also available from this website. Please note that the Annual Reports for 1997 and 1998 do not give the total value of Standard Individual Export Licences issued as this information was not collected at the time.

Military Aircraft: Operating Costs

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the hourly operating cost including crew time is for (a) Nimrod MR2, (b) Chinook, (c) Apache and (d) Tornado GR4 aircraft. [165051]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The total cost per funded flying hour is shown in the table as follows:

|---|---|
| Tornado GR4 | 33,000 |
| Nimrod | 30,000 |

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the adequacy of security at his Department's bases and headquarters in the UK; what steps are taken to deter unwanted intrusion; and if he will make a statement. [165652]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The state of security across the Defence estate is generally satisfactory. The Department, in common with similar large organisations, faces ever-changing threats and challenges to its security. High priority is given to security at MOD establishments, the risks posed to buildings and staff are kept under constant review to ensure that appropriate levels of security are applied through a process of risk management. For obvious reasons it is not practice to reveal MOD security measures publicly. However, I can assure the hon. Member that wherever a security incident occurs, it is speedily investigated and remedial action is taken if appropriate.

Navy: Fisheries

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the training that officers in the Fishery Protection Squadron undertake. [166429]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In addition to their extensive naval training, British Sea Fishery Officers attend a three week shore course and a 10 day practical sea training course specifically for the purpose. This training is primarily sponsored by the Marine and Fisheries Agency (MFA) and is taught by both MFA (District Inspector (Training)) and Royal Naval (Fishery Protection Inspector) instructors.

Northwood Headquarters

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the role of the Northwood headquarters is in supporting (a) the EU Battle Group concept and (b) The Nordic Battle Group. [166215]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The UK permanent joint headquarters (PJHQ) at Northwood is one of five national operational headquarters (OHQ) declared available for European Union military operations. The others are at Larissa (Greece), Potsdam (Germany), Rome (Italy) and Mont Valerien (Paris). In addition, access to NATO OHQ at SHAPE, Brussels, is assured for EU military operations.

Patrol Craft: Repairs and Maintenance

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the maintenance schedule of the River Class offshore patrol vessels is; and if he will make a statement. [166434]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The three River class vessels are supported under a Contractor Logistic Support contract placed with VT Group plc. Under the contract the three vessels are required to be operationally available for a total of 960 days per annum. Each vessel undergoes two maintenance periods per annum, one of nine days and one of 16 days duration. The work undertaken during these periods is a combination of contractor and ship's company tasks.

Reserve Forces: Finance

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the planned funding for the (a) Royal Marines Reserve, (b) Royal Naval Reserve and (c) Royal Fleet Auxiliary is in the financial years (i) 2007-08 and (ii) 2008-09. [164551]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: These organisations do not have distinct, identifiable budgets. Costs are managed functionally rather than organisationally. But the following indicative figures are available for forecast expenditure in 2007-08:

| | | £ million |
|---|---|---|
| Royal Navy Reserve | Pay and allowances. | 7 |
| Royal Marines Reserve | Pay and allowances. | 3 |

As of 12 November 2007, the Secretariat consists of two full-time equivalent staff. The current Secretariat, based within the Government Olympic Executive (GOE), took over this function from the Olympic Programme Support Unit in September 2007. This meets a commitment in the 2004 'Future of Air Transport' White Paper, which was itself developed following wide consultation. The Department has no plans to consult on specific development proposals at other airports though individual airport operators will need to consult in accordance with planning requirements as and when they bring forward their proposals.

Aviation: Security

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what the outcomes were of discussions she has had with the aviation industry on ensuring that the UK's aviation security regime is properly enforced without causing unnecessary inconvenience to passengers; and how her Department is implementing these outcomes; [163236]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Ministers meet regularly with members of the industry, both bilaterally and through relevant committees.

The Secretary of State discussed cabin baggage restrictions with senior aviation industry representatives at the Aviation Security Summit and also with individual airline and airport operators.

My right hon. Friend's written statement of 14 November explained that airports may permit passengers to carry more than one item of hand luggage from 7 January 2008, provided they have been able to show that they have in place the screening capacity needed to handle the additional bags without any adverse impact on the standard of security achieved. It will be for each airport to bring its plans to the Department for approval, as and when it is ready to do so.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what car has been made available to the Leader of the Opposition; how many hours a day a chauffeur is available to him; what the monthly cost of this provision was in each of the last 12 months; and how much of that cost was accounted for by (a) the running costs of the vehicle, (b) the costs of the chauffeur and (c) all other costs. [162488]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA) provides a driver to the Leader of the Official Opposition to support him in carrying out his official duties. The costs associated with use for non-official duties are met by the Conservative Party. The hours worked by the driver are determined by the Leader of the Opposition's day-to-day requirements. The current average monthly contracted cost for providing this service is £4,027 (excl. VAT).

The GCDA does not currently provide a car to the Leader of the Official Opposition. His car is provided [and paid for] by the Conservative Party. A contribution is provided by Government towards the cost of fuel.

Departmental Internet

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many new websites have been published by (a) her Department and (b) its executive agencies and their subsidiaries since her Department announced its website rationalisation process; [163302]

(2) which websites are run by (a) her Department and (b) each of its agencies, listed by the order in which they went live; [163303]

(3) which websites run by (a) her Department and (b) its executive agencies are live but are no longer updated. [163305]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The website rationalisation exercise, which forms part of the Government's Transformational Government agenda, proposed a moratorium on the creation of new websites. The Department's policy is to adhere to that position.

There are currently 80 sites across the Department, its executive agencies and subsidiaries, 74 of which have been identified for closure. To clarify the exact date on which each of these sites was published and to clarify whether information has been published recently on each of these sites, would require dialogue with each website owner and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Following is a full list of the Department's and executive agencies' websites.

Departmental Manpower

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people aged (a) 30 to 39, (b) 40 to 49, (c) 50 to 59 and (d) 60 to 69 years have (i) applied for jobs, (ii) received interviews and (iii) gained (A) temporary and (B) permanent jobs in her Department in 2007. [165107]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department does not routinely collate age related data on job applicants and interviewees and this can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The following table shows provisional data on people given temporary and permanent jobs in the Department in 2007. These figures exclude DSA and VGA, which can only collate the data as requested at a disproportionate cost.

| Age Group | Temporary | Permanent |
|---|---|---|
| 30 to 39 | 76 | 234 |
| 40 to 49 | 57 | 188 |
| 50 to 59 | 57 | 120 |
| 60 to 69 | 8 | 10 |
| Total | 198 | 552 |

East Coast Railway Line

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much her Department spent on the recent competition for early refranchising of the East Coast main line. [163477]

Mr. Tom Harris: The re-franchising has been completed at no cost to Government. Costs incurred have been met by Sea Containers Ltd.

Eurostar

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the cost of maintaining the Eurostar platforms at Waterloo station per month. [165290]

Mr. Tom Harris: Eurostar are de-commissioning the station and leaving it in a suitable condition to transfer to the department at the end of March 2008. This work involves taking out all the equipment needed to operate an "international" station—e.g. customs control arrangements—which are now redundant. The cost of this de-commissioning work is between £50,000 and £100,000.

There is also an ongoing need to maintain the wider facilities at Waterloo International in a safe and secure condition. The cost of doing this is likely to be in the region of £500,000 per annum. Such costs would need to be incurred irrespective of the future use of the station.

Lorries: Speed Limits

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether her Department has made an assessment of the merits of requiring speed limiters to be fitted to non-UK registered heavy goods vehicles. [168007]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is already a requirement under the provisions of directive 92/6/EEC as amended by directive 2002/85/EC for heavy goods vehicles registered in any EU member state to be fitted with a speed limiter.

Motor Vehicles: Crime

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of her full-time equivalent officials have worked on proposals to combat vehicle crime over the last six months. [164697]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The lead responsibility for combating vehicle crime rests with the Home Office. Many of the activities of DFT and its agencies also help to tackle vehicle crime. Among the key achievements in 2006-07 were: the introduction of theft-resistant number plates to help combat car cloning and car ID theft; and an increase in wheel clamping activities to tackle vehicle excise duty evasion. It is not possible to quantify this in terms of staff numbers.

Railway Track

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether her Department has authorised the sale of any land containing disused rail lines in the last six months. [165291]

Mr. Tom Harris: The disposal of non-operational property owned by BRB (Residuary) Ltd. (BRBR) is governed by guidance issued to the company on 26 July 2007 which I outlined in my statement to Parliament on that date. Since 1 April 2007, BRBR have disposed of 13 properties that contain disused rail lines. The disposal of railway property owned by Network Rail is undertaken in accordance with the conditions of their network license. Compliance with these conditions are monitored and enforced by the Office of Rail Regulation.

Railways: Antisocial Behaviour

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many additional British Transport Police staff she expects to be required to facilitate the recently announced initiative on anti-social behaviour on trains. [166737]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is not held by the Department for Transport but by the British Transport police who can be contacted at:

British Transport Police,
25 Camden Road,
London NW1 9LN,
e-mail: general.enquiries@btp.pnn.police.uk

Railways: Cheshire

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans her Department has to re-open the Woodhead Tunnel for rail use; and if she will make a statement. [165092]

Mr. Tom Harris [holding answer 20 November 2007]: The Woodhead tunnels are owned by National Grid.

The Department has no plans to reopen the Woodhead tunnel for rail use.

Railways: East Coast Main Line

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she expects the Route Utilisation Strategy for the East Coast Main Line to be published. [167880]

Mr. Tom Harris: Route Utilisation Strategies are the responsibility of Network Rail who tell me that publication of the final Route Utilisation Strategy document for the East Coast Main Line is likely to be in February 2008.

Railways: Gloucestershire

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions she has had with (a) Network Rail and (b) Arriva about the frequency of its direct services between Cheltenham and the North West; and if she will make a statement. [167584]

Mr. Tom Harris: Ministers have had no recent discussions with either Network Rail or Arriva about the frequency of direct services between Cheltenham and the North West.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions she has had with (a) Network Rail and (b) train operating companies about the frequency of services to and from Ashchurch; and if she will make a statement. [167585]

Mr. Tom Harris: Ministers have had no recent discussions with either Network Rail or train operating companies about the frequency of train services to and from Ashchurch for Tewkesbury station.

Railways: Kemble

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when a decision is expected on the re-doubling of the track between Kemble and Swindon. [168067]

Mr. Tom Harris: I understand Network Rail has consulted rail industry parties on possible changes to the Swindon to Kemble line. However, this is an operational matter for Network Rail, as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's Chief Executive at the following address for a response to his question.

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London NW1 2EE

Railways: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 19 November 2007, Official Report, column 462W, which trains going from (a) Milton Keynes to London during morning peak hours and (b) London to Milton Keynes during evening peak hours represent an increase in peak services calling at Milton Keynes. [167964]

Mr. Tom Harris: In the morning peak, the increase in trains towards London will be provided by Virgin West Coast. Before 7.15 am, three trains currently stop to pick up and set down passengers. From December 2008, we propose that this increases to six. In the evening peak, the number of northbound Virgin services calling would double, but as is the case now they will only pick up and not set down passengers at Milton Keynes.

London Midland services will remain at the same frequency as today. However, a new service to Clapham Junction via Kensington Olympia will operate every hour.

Rapid Transit Systems

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of her officials are working on proposals relating to light rail. [164627]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department is currently working on a number of proposals from local authorities that relate to light rail. These proposals are in various stages of development from the initial submission of a business case, to those which are applying for statutory powers to operate and others which are close to finalising their bids for full funding approval.

As these schemes are complex the Department has to draw upon a number of disciplines for the provision of legal and financial advice, economic appraisal of the schemes, as well as the assessment of project delivery.

Currently we estimate that 28 departmental officials are involved in this. However, given the nature of this work this will fluctuate.

Renewable Transport Fuels Obligation

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will consult the UK biofuels industry on the possible effects of the Renewable Transport Fuels Obligation (RTFO); and if she will publish a timetable for introduction of the RTFO. [168166]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The RTFO is due to come into effect in April 2008, as set out in the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligations Order 2007 (SI 2007 No. 3072) which completed its passage through Parliament in October 2007. The Government have consulted extensively on the detail and likely impacts of the scheme. Copies of the relevant consultation documents are available in the House Libraries or via the Department for Transport's website:

www.dft.gov.uk

Roads: Construction

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will publish the letter dated 1 December 1982 from her Department to Northumberland County Council headed Notes for the guidance of engineers employed in connection with trunk road schemes, and the attached notes. [167661]

Mr. Tom Harris: I am placing copies of the letter and the notes in the Libraries of the House.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will list each motorway and trunk road building project since 1997; and what the (a) tender cost and (b) outturn cost was in each case. [163225]

Mr. Tom Harris: The following table lists works tender/target cost against works outturn cost for each publicly funded major project (project costing over £5 million) that has been completed from June 2006 to date. Information for projects completing in the period 1997 to June 2006 can be found in a previously answered parliamentary question (UIN 62182) of 28 March 2006, Official Report, columns 858-59W.

| Scheme | Works tender/target cost | £ million Works tender estimated out-turn cost |
|---|---|---|
| M60 J5-8 Widening | 106 | 129 |
| M5 J19-20 Southbound Climbing Lane (Naish Hill) | 9 | 8 |
| M5 J19-20 Northbound Climbing Lane (Tickenham Hill) | 12 | 10 |
| A421 Great Barford Bypass | 36 | 40 |
| A63 Melton Grade Separated Junction | 14 | 31 |
| A500 City Road and Stoke Junction Improvement | 31 | 57 |
| A30/A382 Merrymeet Junction | 8 | 8 |
| A419 Commonhead Junction | 13 | 13 |
| A11 Attleborough Bypass | 22 | 22 |
| M40/A404 Handy Cross Junction Improvement | 10 | 13 |

2007 (year to 31 October) completions

| Scheme | Works tender/target cost | £ million Works tender estimated outturn cost |
|---|---|---|
| A428 Caxton Common to Hardwick Improvement | 39 | 39 |
| A30 Bodmin Indian Queens Improvement | 63 | 62 |
| A66 Carkin Moor to Scotch Corner Improvement | 7 | 11 |
| A66 Greta Bridge to Stephen Bank Improvement | 7 | 9 |
| A66 Temple Sowerby Bypass and Imp at Winderwath | 30 | 28 |

Items not procured through the main works contractor and therefore not included in the tender price are excluded from the figures shown. This normally includes the costs of land acquisition and compensation, non recoverable VAT and preparation and supervision costs. It should also be noted that while the out-turn figures shown include an allowance for all works costs final accounts have not yet been settled as they are still within the maintenance/defect period.

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which road projects will receive increased funding as a result of the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007; which new road projects will be undertaken as a result of the provisions of the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007; and what the effects of the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 will be on the Transport Innovation Fund. [163234]

Mr. Tom Harris: A detailed breakdown of programme budgets within the Department for Transport covering the three years of the CSR has not yet been made; an announcement will be made in due course.

Roads: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which trunk roads in Wales straddle the border. [168554]

Mr. Tom Harris: Trunk roads in Wales are the responsibility of the Welsh Assembly Government, but the following trunk roads cross from England into Wales:

| County | Name of trunk road |
|---|---|
| Cheshire | A55, A550, A483 |
| Shropshire | A5, A458, A483 |
| Herefordshire | A40, A465 |

In addition, the M48 Severn Bridge and the M4 Second Severn Crossing both cross the English/Welsh border.

Waterloo Station

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the five platforms vacated by Eurostar at Waterloo station will be used for trains travelling to and from the South West. [166757]

Mr. Tom Harris [holding answer 21 November 2007]: Ownership of Waterloo International transfers to the Department at the end of March 2008 following Eurostar's decommissioning of the facility as an international station. The Department is currently working closely with Network Rail and Stagecoach South West Trains (the train operating company) to finalise the design and costs associated with the partial conversion of Waterloo International potentially to accommodate some domestic passenger services. Works on site are expected to commence soon after the station transfers to the Department and will take several months to complete. Services are then expected to operate into and out of platform 20 of Waterloo International from the start of the timetable change date in December 2008.

Options for the medium to long-term use of all five platforms are being assessed by the Department and Network Rail as part of a wider strategy for the upgrade of Waterloo station.

West Coast Railway Line: Rolling Stock

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she expects the new Virgin Pendolino carriages to be in use on the West Coast main line. [166729]

Mr. Tom Harris: Negotiations continue with Network Rail, Virgin Trains and Alstom to determine the optimal way of providing further increased capacity on the west coast main line. I hope to be able to make a further announcement during the early part of the new year.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers are awaiting payment under the single payment scheme for the (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007 payments in (i) Ribble Valley and (ii) Lancashire. [166121]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 19 November 2007]: There are currently 11 outstanding cases for SPS 2005.

For SPS 2006 there are 352 claims where processing is not yet complete. 179 of these have received partial payments and RPA is continuing to process these claims to provide top up payments where applicable. Payment is yet to be made on the other 173. Many of these are complex cases involving probate, business partnership changes and domestic issues. It is likely that work on these outstanding claims will reveal some may not be eligible for payment. Where it is confirmed that payments are due, these will be made as soon as possible.

The payment window for SPS 2007 opens on 1 December 2007.

Detailed analysis of all the payments made under the SPS is not yet available. Once the remaining scheme payments have been completed, a decision will be taken on the level of detail that will be published.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the value is of outstanding single payment scheme payments for the (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007 payments in (i) Ribble Valley and (ii) Lancashire. [166122]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 19 November 2007]: The value of the outstanding single payment scheme payments for 2005 is £74,566, for 2006 it is approximately £1.7 million once the processing of these claims is complete. These figures exclude any corrections arising from the review of SPS Entitlements Statements currently taking place.

The payment window for SPS 2007 opens on 1 December 2007.

Detailed analysis of all the payments made under the SPS is not yet available. Once the remaining scheme payments have been completed, a decision will be taken on the level of detail that will be published.

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers are awaiting payment under the single payment scheme for (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007 payments. [165383]

Jonathan Shaw: There are currently 11 outstanding cases for SPS 2005.

For SPS 2006 there are 352 claims where processing is not yet complete. 179 of these have received partial payments and RPA is continuing to process these claims to provide top up payments where applicable. Payment is yet to be made on the other 173. Many of these are complex cases involving probate, business partnership changes and domestic issues. It is likely that work on these outstanding claims will reveal some may not be eligible for payment. Where it is confirmed that payments are due, these will be made as soon as possible.

The payment window for SPS 2007 opens on 1 December 2007.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the value is of outstanding single payment scheme payments in relation to (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007. [165384]

Jonathan Shaw: The value of the outstanding single payment scheme payments for 2005 is £74,566 and for 2006 it is approximately £1.7 million once the processing of these claims is complete. These figures exclude any corrections arising from the review of SPS entitlements statements currently taking place.

The payment window for SPS 2007 opens on 1 December 2007.

Animal Feed: Prices

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the likely average price of feed for the livestock sector in each of the next five years; and if he will make a statement. [165506]

Jonathan Shaw: The price of feed for the livestock sector is largely determined by world prices for cereals, oilseeds and other commodities. Recent price increases have been driven by a combination of factors, some of which are shorter term and introduce volatility into the market (e.g. adverse weather leading to lower production) and others of which are longer term trends (e.g. increasing use of cereals and oilseeds for food, feed and fuel uses). Current high prices, combined with policy changes such as the removal of the set-aside requirement for the 2008 harvest, will undoubtedly stimulate production and lead to a moderation of prices, but it may take a number of years to rebuild stocks to levels that markets are comfortable with. A fuller assessment can be found in our recent report "Implications of rising agricultural commodity prices" which can be found at:

http://statistics.defra.gov.uk/esg/publications/monthly%20brief/Annex%201%20Food%20and%20farming%20brief%20-%20impact%20of%20high%20commodity%20prices.pdf

Projecting future commodity prices and hence the price of feed for the livestock sector is uncertain. A number of international organisations produce projections, including the OECD and the EU Commission, the latest of which are given as follows. However, it should be noted that these were compiled before the recent price increases.

OECD/FAO agricultural outlook 2007 to 2016

EU Commission Prospects for agricultural markets and income 2007-2014

Animal Health

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what representations his Department has received from local councils on the funding of their budgets for animal health; [166483]

(2) what changes are planned to the level of funding of local authority health teams; and if he will make a statement; [166484]

(3) what funding his Department has provided to local authority animal health teams in each year since 2001; and what the projected expenditure is for 2007-08. [166485]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 20 November 2007]: I have received a number of representations from local authorities about the direct funding available from DEFRA to supplement the resources available to them under the Revenue Support Grant for work on animal health and welfare. The funding paid to local authorities under these arrangements, which started in 2002-03, has been as follows:

|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 3.6 |
| 2003-04 | 7 |
| 2004-05 | 7.6 |
| 2005-06 | 8.2 |
| 2006-07 | 8.7 |

Local authorities submit bids annually to their local Divisional veterinary managers (DVMs), who are asked to certify that the proposed expenditure is eligible for funding. The bids are sent forward to a central point in DEFRA for authorisation.

For 2007-08, DEFRA received bids worth £9.77 million in total. This compares with an available budget of £8.5 million, which reflects a degree of underspending in previous years. DEFRA has issued allocations within the limits of the funding available. Authorities claiming up to £11,000 will receive the full amount of their bids. Other authorities have been told that their bids will be reduced by up to 12 per cent.

DEFRA is working with the Local Authorities Co-ordinators of Regulatory Services (LACORS) to improve the framework agreement governing this work and to ensure that the limited resources available are used to best effect.

Animal Welfare: Codes of Practice

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) on what basis individuals were invited to be members of the working group drawing up the Code of Practice resulting from the Animal Welfare Act 2006; [165429]

(2) which organisation each member of the working group drawing up the Code of Practice resulting from the Animal Welfare Act 2006 represents; [165430]

(3) which bodies or individuals have been commissioned to provide research to assist the Working Group drawing up the code of practice resulting from the Animal Welfare Act 2006. [165857]

Jonathan Shaw: During the passage of the Animal Welfare Bill, an undertaking was given to produce three codes of practice on companion animals (dogs, cats and primates) and one on the breeding and rearing of game birds. Working groups on all four subjects are now well established.

The hon. Member does not identify which code of practice he is referring to, but those invited on to the working groups have a particular interest or expertise on the subject of the code. They represent relevant interest groups including welfare, specialists in a particular field (such as dog or cat behaviour), industry (where there are implications for that sector) and specialist private interest groups. The meetings are chaired by a DEFRA official.

It is essential that those involved with drawing up codes of practice are able to work constructively with others who may hold differing views.

Only one organisation, The Game and Wildlife Conservation Trust (formerly The Game Conservancy Trust) has been commissioned by DEFRA to undertake research. The research is in relation to game birds and is studying the effects of the application of bits and spectacles.

The results of this work are expected early in 2008 and will assist debate on the use of bits and spectacles as management tools for aggression reduction in game birds.

Avian Influenza: Suffolk

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what records he has of imports of (a) live birds and (b) poultry meat from (i) the Czech Republic and (ii) Germany to the area now covered by the avian influenza protection and surveillance zones within the last six weeks; and if he will make a statement. [165922]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 19 November 2007]: Figures from the EU-wide computer system used to record imports of animals and their products, known as TRACES, show that no live birds were imported within the last six weeks from Germany or the Czech Republic to the area now covered by the avian influenza protection and surveillance zones.

TRACES does not record intra-EU movements of meat and there are currently no records for poultrymeat movements for this period.

A full epidemiological investigation is under way and all avenues into the origin of the outbreak of avian influenza near Diss are being investigated.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment has been made of the biosecurity arrangements in place at Redgrave Park Farm; and if he will make a statement. [165923]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 19 November 2007]: Following the first report of a suspected disease outbreak at Redgrave Park Farm on 11 November, Animal Health staff made an assessment of biosecurity at these premises for disease control purposes, to ensure that all necessary biosecurity control measures were in place. Part of the ongoing epidemiological investigation is to ascertain links between premises in the area and assess the risk of possible transmission of disease. Such work routinely includes the movement of vehicles, people and commodities. It is too early to comment further at this stage. The results of the epidemiological investigation will be published in due course.

Beaches: EU Law

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the percentage of bathing waters which will be classified as (a) poor, (b) sufficient, (c) good and (d) excellent by 2015; and if he will make a statement. [166741]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency has used its bathing water quality monitoring data from 2003 to 2006 to assess the compliance rate that might be expected in England under the revised Bathing Water Directive (see following table). These predictions are made on the assumption that no further action is taken to improve bathing water quality between now and when the first classifications under the revised Bathing Water Directive are expected to be made at the end of the 2015 bathing season. However, measures will continue to be taken in the catchments of some bathing waters to ensure they comply with the requirements of both the current and revised Bathing Water Directives.

The following table shows the percentage of bathing waters expected to be classified as (a) poor, (b) sufficient, (c) good and (d) excellent by 2015.

| Classification | Percentage of bathing waters |
|---|---|
| Excellent | 52 |
| Good | 27 |
| Sufficient | 13 |

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the cost to business of implementing Directive 2006/7/EC on the management of bathing water quality to (a) sufficient, (b) good and (c) excellent status; and if he will make a statement. [166742]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA and the Welsh Assembly Government have recently launched a public consultation, including a partial impact assessment which sets out the costs associated with the implementation of the revised Bathing Water Directive (rBWD) in England and Wales. The Government are seeking views on three possible implementation scenarios. Scenarios 1A and 1B simply aim to meet the minimum requirements of the rBWD, with all bathing waters achieving at least the 'sufficient' classification by 2015 (Scenario 1B makes use of a prediction and discounting system) and Scenario 2 explores the costs of going beyond the minimum rBWD requirements by aiming to increase the number of 'excellent' bathing waters in England and Wales. The estimated cost to business (e.g. water companies, farmers and other parties) associated with each scenario is as follows:

| | Cost (£ million) | |
|---|---|---|
| Scenario | Annual | Total (PV) (25 years) |
| 1A | 6.8-10 | 107-171 |
| 1B | 4.3-6.9 | 65-121 |
| 2 | [1]11.6-17.6 | [1]206-380 |

[1] Includes scenario 1A costs

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which bathing waters he expects to be exempt from the requirement to achieve sufficient status by 2015 under the procedure in Article 5(4) of Directive 2006/7/EC; and if he will make a statement. [166743]

Mr. Woolas: The Government are not proposing to exempt any designated bathing waters from meeting the 'sufficient' classification under the revised Bathing Water Directive (rBWD), since they expect that all bathing waters will achieve the 'sufficient' classification by the end of the 2015 bathing season (following the introduction of measures to improve water quality in the catchments of bathing waters currently predicted to be classified as 'poor'). The Government would only consider using the Article 5(4) provision to temporarily classify a bathing water as 'poor' and still remain in compliance with the rBWD if unforeseen circumstances arise near to 2015.

Beef: Imports

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) volume and (b) value of beef imported from Brazil was in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by state of origin. [167167]

Jonathan Shaw: The following table shows the value and volume of imports of beef and beef products from Brazil to the United Kingdom from 2006 to September 2007. It is not possible to break these figures down by state of origin.

UK imports of beef from Brazil, 2006—September 2007

|---|---|---|---|

Birds: Conservation

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the UK bird Registration Scheme under section 7 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 in deterring the illegal taking of high value native species from the wild. [165498]

Joan Ruddock: There is no clear evidence that bird registration has a deterrent effect on the illegal taking of high value native species from the wild for commercial sale. Such birds are also subject to stringent sales controls. Recent information from the National Wildlife Crime Unit indicates that there is minimal criminal activity in the trade of high value native species subject to bird registration, for example certain birds of prey, and such activity does not constitute a threat to their conservation.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely effect of a discontinuation or weakening of the UK Bird Registration Scheme under section 7 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 on levels of illegal wildlife trade. [165505]

Joan Ruddock: My Department has undertaken a public consultation on a number of possible changes to the bird registration scheme. A number of respondents to that consultation considered any discontinuation or weakening of the registration scheme may lead to increase in illegal activity. My Department is seeking further advice from the UK's nature conservation advisors, the Joint Nature Conservation Committee, and others on these issues before taking a decision on any future changes to the list of birds that need to be registered.

Citizens Juries

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many citizens juries were arranged for his Department for each year between 1997 and June 2007; which organisations were commissioned to conduct each citizens jury; and what the cost was of each. [163599]

Jonathan Shaw: Data from 1997 are not readily available in core DEFRA and would require a significant review of all engagement activities and an analysis of the techniques used, resulting in extracting costs for citizens juries at a disproportionate cost.

Cumbria

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department plans to move any of its offices to Westmorland and Lonsdale constituency. [166566]

Jonathan Shaw: At this time the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs has no proposals to move any of its offices to Westmorland and Lonsdale constituency.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff in his Department (a) were disciplined and (b) had their employment terminated as a result of a poor sickness record in each of the last five years. [163703]

Jonathan Shaw: The number of DEFRA staff who were disciplined or had their employment terminated or both as a result of a poor sick record in each year since 2003 is shown in the following table. The figures shown in the disciplined column includes those members of staff who were dismissed.

| | Disciplined | Dismissed |
|---|---|---|
| 2003 | 19 | 12 |
| 2004 | 9 | 5 |
| 2005 | 11 | 8 |
| 2006 | 9 | 5 |
| 2007 | 4 | 1 |

Departmental Flexible Working

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff (a) have applied to work flexible hours and (b) work flexible hours (i) in his Department and (ii) the executive agencies for which his Department is responsible. [164325]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA has in place a process to allow parents (adopters, guardians or foster carers) of children under six or of disabled children under 18, and for carers of adults, to apply to work flexibly in line with recent legislation. However, information on applications for flexible working is not held centrally and could be provided only by incurring disproportionate cost. Many requests for flexible working may be made informally between managers and staff and will not therefore be formally recorded.

The Department believes in giving its staff every opportunity to work to a pattern that best suits their lifestyle and the demands of family and dependents. This contributes to staff welfare and ultimately to delivery of a high quality service to our customers.

DEFRA is committed to helping its staff maintain a healthy work/life balance. This can only be achieved if employees and their managers are prepared to think creatively about working patterns so that efficient working can be combined with other responsibilities, and with employees' interests and enjoyment of life.

Departmental Manpower

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many reports have been made to his Department's nominated officers under paragraph 16 of the revised Civil Service Code since its publication on 6 June 2006; [162459]

(2) how many allegations of victimisation for whistleblowing have been reported to his Department by departmental staff since 6 June 2006; [162460]

(3) when his Department's whistleblowing procedures were reviewed to reflect the provisions in the revised Civil Service Code. [162461]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him on 19 November 2007, Official Report, column 597W.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people aged (a) 30 to 39, (b) 40 to 49, (c) 50 to 59 and (d) 60 to 69 years have (i) applied for jobs, (ii) received interviews and (iii) gained (A) temporary and (B) permanent jobs in his Department in 2007. [165120]

Jonathan Shaw: Data on the age of applicants and interviewees are not available as DEFRA does not request this information. Date of birth is requested only from successful candidates. DEFRA is committed to creating an inclusive workplace, and to ensuring that there is no discrimination on the basis of age. By not asking candidates to disclose their date of birth there is a greater degree of objectivity built in the recruitment and appointment process.

The number of staff in each age band who gained temporary or permanent employment in DEFRA between 1 January and 19 November 2007 is shown in the following table.

| Age band | Temporary | Permanent |
|---|---|---|
| 30 to 39 | 8 | 79 |
| 40 to 49 | 6 | 46 |
| 50 to 59 | 3 | 16 |
| 60 to 69 | 1 | 0 |

Departmental Official Hospitality

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what entertainment or hospitality members of his Department's management board received in each of the last three financial years; and if he will make a statement. [164750]

Jonathan Shaw: Paragraph 4.3.5 of the Civil Service Management Code sets out the rules on the registration of hospitality. The Government are committed to publishing an annual list of hospitality received by members of departmental boards. The first list for 2007 will be published as soon as it is ready after the end of the current calendar year.

Departmental Property

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent by his Department on renovation and refurbishment of its properties in each of the last five years. [164373]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA and its agencies, excluding the Environment Agency, spent the following on renovation and refurbishment of its estate:

| | £000 |
|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 41,080 |
| 2003-04 | 61,370 |
| 2004-05 | 39,140 |
| 2005-06 | 46,870 |
| 2006-07 | 45,100 |

Devolution

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how often he has used the dispute resolution procedures under the devolution agreements; and if he will make a statement. [165480]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs has never used the dispute resolution procedures established under the devolution agreements.

Diesel Fuel: Excise Duties

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on fuel duty as it relates to farm machinery; and if he will make a statement. [164724]

Jonathan Shaw: I have had no recent discussions with my ministerial colleagues on fuel duty as it relates to farm machinery.

Fertilisers

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to reduce the regulatory burden on the fertiliser sector; and if he will make a statement. [165507]

Jonathan Shaw: EC law governs the regulation of the fertiliser sector and this is set out in the EC Fertilisers Regulation 2003/2003. This regulation defines the composition and definition of all fertilisers which have been approved as EC designated fertilisers, and these can be freely traded within the EU. Every importer and manufacturer must ensure any fertiliser intended for sale in the EU complies with this regulation.

Work is under way to review and update the domestic Fertilisers Regulations 1991 which covers composition and labelling issues for fertilisers used within the UK. We are working closely with the fertiliser industry to ensure the updated regulations do not impose additional burdens on business.

Fisheries

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the discard pilot projects being undertaken by the UK. [165469]

Jonathan Shaw: The UK and Ireland are jointly undertaking a pilot project in the Irish Sea to improve the quality of data on catches and discards in a range of fisheries. The project was approved by the European Commission on 27 August and participating vessels are therefore entitled to benefit from extra days at sea under the cod recovery programme.

Results so far are encouraging. The Irish sea data enhancement project has increased observer coverage by at least 100 per cent.. Fishermen, trained under the project, are now regularly engaged in the provision of self-collected discard samples. However, it is too early in the programme to fully evaluate the utility of these data.

The next step will be to apply data validation techniques, contrasting fishermen's records with observer data, and increase the number of participating vessels at the earliest possible opportunity.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which organisations he has consulted on the European Commission Communication Fishing Opportunities for 2008: Policy Statement from the European Commission (COM(2007) 295 final); and if he will make a statement. [165471]

Jonathan Shaw: The document was copied to the National Federation of Fishermen's Organisations (NFFO) and English producer organisations as well as a number of other stakeholders, including a range of environmental groups. Similar consultations were carried out in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the proposals contained in the European Commission Communication Fishing Opportunities for 2008: Policy Statement from the European Commission (COM(2007) 295 final); and if he will make a statement. [165472]

Jonathan Shaw: The statement does not contain any formal Commission proposals. These are not expected to emerge until later this month.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what the total amount of fish landed by the 10 metre and under fleet was in each fishery in each year since 1997, expressed in (a) tonnes and (b) as a percentage of the UK quota available for that fishery; and if he will make a statement; [165479]

(2) what quota was allocated to the 10 metre and under fishing fleet in each year since 1997, broken down by fishing area, expressed in (a) tonnes and (b) a proportion of the total UK quota for that fishery area; and if he will make a statement. [166201]

Jonathan Shaw: Information for 2006 is in Table 1. However, focusing on such an analysis can be misleading, as some of the quota stocks included are of little interest to inshore vessels. In addition, many of these vessels catch types of fish, such as crabs and scallops, which are not subject to quotas and they are thus not subject to the constraints on their activity that may be seen when targeting quota species. Figures for landings of non-quota stocks are included at the foot of the table and show that 20 per cent. of all landings by the UK 10 metre and under fleet are of quota stocks. In addition, the degree to which quota species are important for these vessels varies around the coast. Table 2 shows more detail for landings by 10 metre and under vessels administered from English ports, and shows that in some areas quota stocks make up a small proportion of the total value of fish landed by such vessels.

Similar results for earlier years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) by what method he calculates the maximum sustainable yield for each UK fishery; and if he will make a statement; [165517]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effort reduction necessary in each UK fishery to ensure that maximum sustainable yield targets are met; and if he will make a statement. [165509]

Jonathan Shaw: Maximum sustainable yield (MSY) derives from classical fisheries science which states that in the long-term there is an average maximum catch that can be obtained from a stock, without threatening its future viability. This is achieved by fishing at the MSY level (MSYL). This level varies with both the biology (growth and mortality rates) of the stock in question and the fishing practices (including mesh size) used to catch it. The MSY will also depend upon the productivity of the stock. For most of our stocks, the MSYL is at relatively low fishing mortality—typically much lower than exists at present.

Reducing effort to MSY levels implies smaller catches in the short-term, with potential impacts on profitability and the size of the fleet. In the longer-term, however, fishing at MSY levels should ensure greater profitability (catches-per-unit-effort would be higher), improved sustainability and a more robust stock.

Several stocks are currently at or around MSY and can therefore be the continued basis for sustainable fisheries; for example, haddock and saithe. However, we are seeking to develop a common understanding with stakeholders of how we can best approach the issue of long-term management and the role of MSY more generally. In particular, there are significant potential socio-economic consequences with such an approach and it is important to ensure that the UK fishing industry has a sustainable long-term future. We will need to consider carefully how best to achieve a successful balance between stock conservation and fishing opportunity and the appropriate time frame(s) for this process.

Fisheries: Navy

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the reasons for the reduction in the number of boardings by the Fisheries Protection Squadron (FPS) from 1746 in 1997 to 1279 in 2006; what the number of boardings were per FPS (a) vessel and (b) sortie in each such year; and if he will make a statement. [166203]

Jonathan Shaw: The reduction in the number of inspections at sea since 1997 can largely be attributed to:

(a) a reduction in the overall number of fishing vessels in the European fleet;

(b) a reduction in the number of patrol days; and

(c) a progressive move to a more targeted approach to inspection.

The number of inspections per patrol vessel is set out below for 1999 and 2006. Information on the number of inspections per vessel for 1997 and on the number of inspections per sortie is not readily available.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many patrol days have been lost for the River Class offshore patrol vessels as a result of (a) routine maintenance, (b) non-routine maintenance and (c) repairs in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [166432]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I have been asked to reply.

No patrol days have been lost by the River Class Offshore Patrol Vessels during the last 12 months. Each vessel undergoes two planned routine maintenance periods each year: one of nine days duration and one of 16 days duration. During the last 12 months all non-routine maintenance and repairs were carried out within the routine maintenance periods or at other times when the vessels were not engaged on operational duties.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for how many patrol days each class of Fisheries Protection Squadron vessel will be available in each year of the new agreement beginning on 1 April 2008; and if he will make a statement. [166465]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I have been asked to reply.

Under the new Fisheries Protection Agreement between the MOD and DEFRA, which is due to begin on 1 April 2008, the River Class Offshore Patrol Vessels will be available for a total of 700 days during the first 12 months of the agreement. Thereafter, their availability will be between 650 and 750 days in each year. Each River class vessel will also undergo two planned routine maintenance periods each year: one of nine days duration and one of 16 days duration. The Hunt Class Mine Countermeasure vessels will also provide additional Fishery Protection duties, as and when required, although they will not be contracted to provide a set number of days.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on which dates there have been no Royal Navy Fishery Protection Squadron offshore patrol vessels in operation in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [166466]

Jonathan Shaw: During the period 1 November 2006 to 31 October 2007, the dates when no River class patrol vessels were in operation on fisheries protection duties are shown in the following table.

| | Date(s) | Reason |
|---|---|---|
| November 2006 | 5, 16 | 2 day stand off |

Fisheries: Northern Ireland

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Northern Ireland Minister for Agriculture and Rural Development on the upcoming fisheries negotiations in Brussels; and whether an agreed strategy has been drawn up. [164396]

Jonathan Shaw: I have had a number of recent discussions with the Northern Ireland Minister and her Welsh and Scottish counterparts about the forthcoming negotiations and we have just agreed a series of UK priorities for them, reflecting our respective interests. We will revisit them in the light of the Commission proposals when these emerge.

Food

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will amend the guidance given in the Government's Code for Sustainable Procurement to give greater weight to the procurement of locally produced food and drink. [164700]

Jonathan Shaw: I assume my hon. Friend is referring to the guidance on the Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative (PSFPI).

The legal framework governing public procurement does not allow public bodies to give greater weight to locally produced food and drink when awarding contracts. This is because public bodies are required to ensure public procurement is fair, transparent and not used to discriminate by setting up barriers to free trade. It would also reduce competition contrary to UK public procurement policy that is designed to achieve value for money for the taxpayer.

The legal and policy framework does provide public bodies with plenty of flexibility to be innovative in their procurement and, for example, we are encouraging them through the PSFPI to increase tendering opportunities for small and local producers. How they can do this is explained in the advice on the PSFPI website, including our recently published guide "Putting it into practice" on the guidance page at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/farm/policy/sustain/procurement/guidance.htm.

Food: Prices

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent estimate he has made of the effects of the increasing cost of fuel on food prices. [165597]

Jonathan Shaw: Research to assess the impact of rising oil prices on farming and the wider food chain was published by the Sustainable Development Commission on 19 November and can be found on their website.

One of the illustrative findings of this study is that a rise in the oil price from $50 (the average price seen in 2005) to $100 a barrel (which is just above current levels) would lead to an increase in household food expenditure of around £3 billion. This equates to an increase of 4 per cent. within a total spend of £79 billion, and presumes that all increased energy costs would be passed on to consumers. However, we might expect an increase in household expenditure of between roughly 5 per cent to 10 per cent. if all costs are passed on to consumers and secondary impacts are allowed for.

To further help put the impact of increasing fuel costs into context, it can be noted that oil prices more than tripled in the five years to October 2007 to over $80 a barrel, whereas retail food prices increased by 12.6 per cent. over the same period.

Genetically Modified Organisms

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy to assess whether there is a requirement to amend (a) UK and (b) EU legislation on genetically modified organisms (GMOs), to take account of genetic use restriction technologies and to ensure it is in compliance with the Convention on Biological Diversity decision V/5. [166752]

Mr. Woolas: The provisions of the current EU regulatory regime are in compliance with decision V/5 of the Convention on Biological Diversity. This decision recommends that products incorporating gene use restriction technologies should not be approved for field testing until justified by appropriate scientific data. Such products for commercial use should not be approved until appropriate authorised and strictly controlled scientific assessments, with regard to ecological and socio-economic impacts and any adverse effects for biological diversity, food security and human health, have been carried out in a transparent manner and the conditions for their safe and beneficial use validated.

Miscanthus Grass: Subsidies

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for how many acres of miscanthus grass (a) the South West and (b) Devon are currently in receipt of agricultural subsidies; and how much such subsidies amounted to in each of the last two years. [165184]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 19 November 2007]: Grant aid for the costs associated with establishing miscanthus is paid under the energy crops scheme (ECS). The areas of miscanthus receiving grant aid and the amounts paid under ECS in the south west as a whole and Devon specifically in 2006 and 2007 were as follows:

| | Area (ha) | Amount (£) |
|---|---|---|
| (a) The South West | | |
| 2006 | 34.88 | 32,089.60 |
| 2007 | 677.19 | 623,014.80 |
| (b) Devon | | |
| 2006 | 0 | 0 |
| 2007 | 5.73 | 5,271.60 |

The following table sets out the hectarage of miscanthus on which energy aid is paid in the south west:

| County | 2006 | Hectares 2007 |
|---|---|---|
| Gloucestershire | 72.44 | 24.90 |
| Avon | 5.10 | 108.21 |
| Wiltshire | 16.29 | 24.25 |
| Isles of Scilly | 28.02 | 0 |
| Somerset | 94.32 | 385.22 |
| Total | 216.17 | 542.58 |

Pollution: Fines

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was levied in fines by local authorities for incidences of pollution against (a) companies, (b) local authorities and (c) individuals for each type of pollution incidence in each financial year since 2000, broken down by (i) region and (ii) fine. [165541]

Jonathan Shaw: The total value of Fixed Penalty Notices (FPNs), issued by local authorities, by English region for noise related offences in 2004-05 and 2005-06, is shown in the following table. FPNs issued for noise under the Noise Act 1996 can currently only be issued for night noise from domestic premises, which excludes companies.

| | Fine total | |

| West Midlands | 1,500 | — |
| East of England | 2 | — |
| Yorkshire and Humber | — | 100 |
| Total | 1,672 | 1,700 |

The Department does not hold data for offences from 2000 to 2003. Information on the number of FPNs issued by local authorities to businesses and individuals for local environmental quality offences is published on the DEFRA website.

Data for 2006-07 will be published shortly.

The Clean Air Act provides for fines for various offences which are all enforced by local authorities through magistrates courts. However, DEFRA does not collect these data.

For contaminated land, Part 2A of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 provides for fines, levied through the courts, where a person fails, without reasonable excuse, to comply with any of the requirements of a remediation notice. Any convictions for such offences are contained on a register maintained by the enforcing authority. DEFRA does not collect these data centrally.

Total fines imposed by the courts for offences under the Pollution Prevention and Control Regulations, where local authorities are the regulator, are shown as follows.

Fines imposed

Our annual statistical reports, which contain details of each recorded prosecution, can be found on the DEFRA website.

Further data on fines levied by local authorities for other pollution incidents could be collated only at disproportionate cost.

Poultry

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many mobile gassing units are available to cull poultry; and what the slaughter capacity is of each. [166402]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 20 November 2007]: DEFRA has 50 containerised gassing units available to cull poultry. Operationally the units are run in pairs. The capacity of each unit depends on the size and weight of the birds being culled and the speed they are caught at.

Under good conditions a throughput of 10,000 kg liveweight per hour per pair of units is possible. This can fall to around 4,000 kg per hour at more difficult field sites.

Veterinary Laboratories Agency: New Haw

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of research staff at the New Haw Laboratory were (a) on permanent contracts, (b) on temporary contracts and (c) employed via an employment agency in each of the last five years; what projection he has made of the equivalent proportions in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [165926]

Jonathan Shaw: The staff in the Research Division of the Veterinary Laboratories Agency (VLA) at New Haw as at 1 April each year are as follows:

| | Permanent | Casual | Percentage Temporary Agency |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2003 | 97 | 3 | — |
| 2004 | 98 | 2 | — |
| 2005 | 98 | 2 | — |
| 2006 | 98 | 2 | — |
| 2007 | 96 | 4 | Less than 1 |

Details of the temporary staff prior to 2007 are not available as VLA only took responsibility for liaising with temporary agencies with effect from 1 April 2007.

For 2008 we would not expect to see any material change to the figures that are shown for previous years.

Wheat: Prices

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the financial impact of the increased price of wheat on farmers; and if he will make a statement. [165598]

Jonathan Shaw: The increase in UK wheat prices reflects the rise in global wheat prices following two successive smaller world-harvests and increasing demand for cereals for food, feed and fuel purposes. The impact, in financial terms, will differ across the farming sectors, as explained in our recent report Implications of rising agricultural commodity prices. A copy of this report is available on the DEFRA website.

Projections of the aggregate measure of Total Income from Farming have been published on the DEFRA website and the first full set of farm income statistics, including a breakdown by farm type, will be published at the end of January.

Balance of Trade: EU Countries

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the UK's trade balance with other EU member states was in 2006-07; what the UK's trade balance with those countries in goods and services was in that year; and what proportion those figures represent of the UK's overall trade balance in each case. [167787]

Kitty Ussher: The UK had a total trade deficit of £32 billion with the EU27 in 2006. This was made up of a trade in goods deficit of £32 billion and a trade in services deficit of just £6 million. The UK's total trade deficit with the rest of the world was £48 billion in 2006. This was made up of a trade in goods deficit of £78 billion and a trade in services surplus of about £29 billion.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the UK's trade balance with other member states of the European Economic Community (EEC) was in the first 12 months after the UK joined the EEC as expressed in the value of the pound in 2007; what that balance was in (a) trade in goods and (b) trade in services; and what proportion these figures represented of the UK's trade balance in each case. [167788]

Kitty Ussher: The UK had a total trade deficit of £2.2 billion (1974 prices) with the EEC in 1974 (the first year after joining in 1973). This is based on IMF data, which do not give a breakdown between goods and services, or allow for the figure to be expressed in the value of the pound in 2007. This is 33 per cent. of the total trade deficit the UK had with the entire world, which was £6.7 billion.

Bank Melli

Mr. Hague: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 15 November 2007, Official Report, column 396W, on Bank Melli, if he will place in the Library a copy of the Treasury Guidance to Financial Institutions on the Financial Action Task Force statement on Iran. [167253]

Kitty Ussher: A Treasury advisory notice was issued on 12 October 2007 and is available on the Treasury website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/newsroom_and_speeches/press/2007/press_108_07.cfm

Capital Gains Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue implications of taxing capital gains at the same marginal rates as income tax from April 2008. [166351]

Jane Kennedy: The revenue yield from taxing all capital gains at the income tax rates announced for 2008-09, without applying taper relief or indexation allowance, would be of the order of £3.5 billion a year by comparison with the current (2007-08) regime. This is a broad estimate that assumes continuation of the tax-free annual exempt amount and takes into account the likely taxpayer response to the change.

Child Benefit

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what mechanisms exist to ensure that child benefit payments are made only to claimants with a legitimate claim; and if he will make a statement. [164712]

Jane Kennedy: The conditions of entitlement to child benefit are laid down by legislation. Associated statutory rules provide the basis for deciding who is to be treated as entitled where more than one person claims child benefit in respect of the same child for the same week. Inquiries are made of the claimants in such cases before any decision is made. Where there are inconsistencies in the evidence presented by either claimant, verification may be sought from third parties.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to review the effectiveness of the current system for allocation and payment of child benefit in circumstances where multiple claimants are unable to agree who should receive payment; and if he will make a statement. [164714]

Jane Kennedy: Child benefit is awarded to the person with the main responsibility for a child. Parents may choose which of them will receive the payments, and if no agreement is reached, HM Revenue and Customs is responsible for determining entitlement, based on the facts in individual cases. There is no provision for splitting child benefit and child tax credit, although in families with two or more children, parents can agree to each claim in respect of different children.

To meet the Government's child poverty target, it is necessary to focus financial support in a way that enables the parent with main caring responsibilities to provide for the child's needs. The Government will continue to listen to parents and representative groups regarding the best way to support families with children.

Child Benefit: Eastbourne

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the proportion of recipients of child benefit in Eastbourne constituency who draw the benefit from post offices. [165391]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs estimate that in August 2006 6 per cent. of child benefit claimants in Eastbourne constituency were paid using a Post Office card account.

Child Benefit: EU Nationals

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what checks are carried out to confirm eligibility of claim for child benefit made by citizens of other EU member states residing in the UK and whose children are not in the UK. [165582]

Jane Kennedy: A person making a claim for child benefit must provide documentary evidence of the child being claimed for, such as an original birth certificate, adoption certificate or passport.

All claims for child benefit are subject to a wide range of checks throughout the life of each claim. It would be inappropriate to disclose a complete list as to do so may provide assistance to those attempting to defraud the system.

Where claims are made on behalf of children living in another member state, HMRC do further checks to verify the information provided by the claimant, including verifying the composition of the family and to find out whether there are any other family benefits in payment in the other member state. HMRC and other member states have well established processes in place to ensure payments only go to those who are entitled.

Child Benefit: Expenditure

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the additional annual cost of paying child benefit from the 29th week of pregnancy from April 2009. [167652]

Jane Kennedy: Child benefit can only be claimed after the birth of a child. There is no provision for child benefit to be claimed before a child is born.

The Government are introducing from April 2009 a separate payment to expectant mothers to help them during the important last weeks of pregnancy. Annual costs for the one-off payment, known as the Health in Pregnancy Grant, are estimated to be £145 million. In the first year they will be higher at approximately £175 million. These estimates have been updated to take account of Office for National Statistics 2006-based national population projections published on 23 October 2007.

Departmental ICT

Gordon Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which manufacturers' software is used in his Department. [167220]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury's core software systems include:

Microsoft
Oracle
Adobe
Citrix
Northgate HR Ltd.
SumTotal Systems
Decisys
Morse
IntegratedFM
Open Text
City Financials

Departmental Orders and Regulations

Alan Duncan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many statutory instruments his Department laid before Parliament between 2 May 1997 and 27 June 2007. [167088]

Angela Eagle: Our records show that 1,311 statutory instruments were made by the Treasury in the period concerned. How many of these instruments were laid before both Houses of Parliament or before the House of Commons could be determined only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pay

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in his Department were paid over £100,000 in each year since 1997. [167202]

Angela Eagle: The reporting of individual earnings over the period requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Salaries of senior staff are reported in the annual Treasury resource accounts, copies of which are in the Library or accessible via the Treasury public website.

Economic Situation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the output per head of population in the (a) Scottish and (b) English economy was in each year since 1997. [167436]

Andy Burnham: Data on gross value added by region and country are published by ONS. Data for years from 1997 can be found in table 12.1 of the ONS publication Regional Trends published in 2006 at:

www.statistics.gov.uk.

Exports: EU Countries

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) total value, (b) value of goods and (c) value of services of the UK's exports to other EU member states was in 2006-07; and what percentage of the UK's exports in that year these figures represent. [167789]

Kitty Ussher: In 2006 the value of total UK exports to the EU27 was £20 billion. Of this £15 billion was exports of goods and £5 billion was exports of services. In 2006 the EU27 accounted for 55 per cent. of total exports, 63 per cent. of goods exports and 41 per cent. of services exports.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value was of the UK's exports to other European Economic Community (EEC) member states (a) in total, (b) in goods and (c) in services expressed by the value of the pound in 2007 in the first 12 months after the UK joined the EEC. [167790]

Kitty Ussher: The value of UK exports to the EEC in 1974 was £5.5 billion (1974 prices). This is based on IMF data, which do not give a breakdown between goods and services, or allow for the figure to be expressed in the value of the pound in 2007. This is 33 per cent. of the total value of UK exports in 1974, which was £16.8 billion.

Foreign Workers: European Union

Tony Baldry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of jobs which were filled in the (a) Oxford and (b) Banbury travel to work area by EU migrant workers in each of the last three years. [167170]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 26 November 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your parliamentary question on jobs filled by EU migrant workers in the Oxford and Banbury travel-to-work areas. (167170).

The Office for National Statistics compiles statistics on employment for local areas from the annual Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

The National Statistics method for estimating the number of migrant workers employed in the UK is routinely based on the number of people at a given time who were born abroad, are of working age (16 to 64 for men, 16 to 59 for women) and in employment. This question has been answered on this basis. It means, for example, that some people who are UK nationals will be included in the total of "foreign born" and that people who are working but are above state pension age are not included.

The table attached shows the numbers of working-age people in employment who were born in EU countries other than the UK and were resident in the Oxford and Banbury travel-to-work areas, for the 12 month period ending in December of each year from 2004 to 2006.

When interpreting these figures, it is important to bear in mind that the APS is not designed to cover everyone who is present in the UK. The survey may undercount the numbers of people who were born overseas. The reasons are set out in the table footnote.

The APS estimates at this detailed level are only available consistent with population estimates published in February and March 2003 and are not comparable with the statistics published in the Labour Market Statistics First Release on 14 November 2007, which are based on the latest population estimates.

Notes:
1. It should also be noted that the APS may undercount the numbers of people who were born overseas because :- the survey excludes certain people who have been resident in the UK for less than six months; it excludes students in halls who do not have a UK resident parent; it excludes people in most other types of communal establishments (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites, etc); it is weighted to population estimates which exclude migrants staying for less than 12 months; APS microdata are weighted to population estimates consistent with those published in spring 2003 which are significantly lower than the latest population estimates.
2. As with any sample survey, estimates from the APS are subject to a margin or uncertainty.

Health in Pregnancy Grant

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether A8 nationals resident in the UK will be eligible for the proposed health in pregnancy grant. [167737]

Jane Kennedy: The Government are introducing from April 2009 a one-off payment to expectant mothers, known as the Health in Pregnancy Grant, to help them during the important last weeks of pregnancy. Only women ordinarily resident in the UK will be able to claim the payment.

Hotels: Industrial Buildings Allowances

Mr. Cox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the average change in income to hotel businesses which were claiming the Industrial Buildings Allowance of its retrospective withdrawal. [167160]

Jane Kennedy: The withdrawal of the Industrial Buildings Allowance (IBA) is part of a package of measures which also saw the reduction of the main rate of corporation tax and the introduction of a £50,000 Annual Investment Allowance, allowing 95 per cent. of businesses to write off all their expenditure on plant and machinery in the year in which it is made. The effect of this package will vary according to the particular circumstances of a business.

Immigration Controls: Revenue and Customs

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many HM Revenue and Customs staff he expects to be transferred to the Border Security Force. [168002]

Jane Kennedy: The number of staff to be transferred has not yet been determined.

International Monetary Fund

Mr. Hague: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proposals the UK has put forward for the reform of the (a) International Monetary Fund and (b) World Bank; and if he will place in the Library copies of relevant submissions. [166135]

Kitty Ussher: The Government attach a high priority to reform of the International Financial Institutions.

Progress towards our objectives with the IMF is set out annually in "The UK and the IMF", published by HM Treasury. This report is available in the House of Commons Library.

The UK's main proposals for the reform of the World Bank are set out on page 114 of the Government's 2006 White Paper on International Development, copies of which are in the Library. Good progress has been secured against these proposals.

More details of the UK's work with the World Bank are available in the regular publication "The UK and the World Bank". Copies of the latest version will be placed in the House of Commons Library this month.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to reply to the letters from the right hon. Member for North East-Hampshire of 21 August and 19 June 2007 on the tax credit problems of the right hon. Member's constituent Mrs. Thayre. [164104]

Jane Kennedy: I understand that the two letters in question were addressed to the Chairman of HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) and that he wrote to the right hon. Gentlemen in reply on 22 November.

Although it is HM Revenue and Customs practice to reply to the majority of letters from Members within three weeks, following the administrative issue I referred to in my statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report, columns 62-3WS, some parts of HMRC's tax credits business have been subject to delays. HMRC regret this and will continue to try to deal with all cases as quickly as possible.

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the reasons are for his Department setting 25 December as the date by which to reply to the letter of 21 June from the hon. Member for Bassetlaw; [167509]

(2) by what means his Department plans to reply to the letter of 21 June from the hon. Member for Bassetlaw, on tax credits, as stated in the letter of 16 October to the hon. Member. [167510]

Jane Kennedy: Following the administrative issue I referred to in my statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report, columns 62-63WS, some parts of HMRC's tax credits business have, unfortunately, been subject to delays. HMRC regret this and will continue to try to deal with all cases as quickly as they can.

These delays are a result of HMRC having to look again at cases potentially affected by the procedural error and to ensure that households/individuals affected by the error are not given incorrect advice in advance of their award being reviewed. The date indicated in the recent letter to the hon. Member was intended to be helpful and indicate the latest date by which HMRC hoped to have resolved the inquiry.

HMRC wrote a letter to the hon. Member on 18 October 2007 in reply to his letter of the 21 June 2007.

Migrant Workers: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of migrant workers there were in West Chelmsford constituency in each of the last five years. [166240]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 26 November 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question on migrant workers in West Chelmsford constituency. (166240)

The Office for National Statistics compiles statistics on employment for local areas from the annual Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

The data for analysing migrant workers comes from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). The National Statistics method for estimating the number of migrant workers employed in the UK is routinely based on the number of people at a given time who were born abroad, are of working age (16 - 64 for men, 16 - 59 for women), and in employment. This question has been answered on this basis. It means, for example, that some people who are UK nationals will be included in the total of "foreign born" and that people who are working but are above state pension age are not included.

When interpreting these figures, it is important to bear in mind that the annual LFS and APS is not designed to cover everyone who is present in the UK. The survey may undercount the numbers of people who were born overseas. The reasons are set out in the table footnote.

The annual LFS and APS estimates at this detailed level are only available consistent with population estimates published in February and March 2003 and are not comparable with the estimates published in the Labour Market Statistics First Release on 14 November 2007, which are based on latest population estimates.

The table attached, shows the numbers of working age in employment who were not born in the UK and were resident in West Chelmsford, for the twelve month periods ending in February for 2003 and 2004 from the annual LFS, and for the twelve month periods ending in March 2005, March 2006 and December 2006 from the APS (the January to December 2006 APS dataset is the most recent for which information on country of birth is currently available).

The table also shows the numbers of non-UK born persons in employment as percentages of all persons of working age in employment, in the area.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in small geographical areas, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. In this case, the sample sizes are not sufficient to give an accurate estimate of even the direction of the change over time.

Number of non-UK born persons of working age[1] in employment in the West Chelmsford constituency

| 12 months ending | Employment level (thousand) | Non-UK born persons in employment as percentage of all in employment (percentage) |
|---|---|---|
| March 2003 | 3 | 7 |
| March 2004 | 4 | 7 |
| March 2005 | 5 | 9 |
| March 2006 | 5 | 10 |
| December 2006 | 4 | 9 |

[1] Includes males aged 16 to 64 and females aged 16 to 59.

Notes:

1. Estimates are subject to sampling variability.
2. It should also be noted that the country of birth question in the LFS gives an undercount because:

it excludes certain people who have not been resident in the UK for six months.
it excludes students in halls who do not have a UK resident parent.
it excludes people in most other types of communal establishments (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites, etc).
it is grossed to population estimates which exclude migrants staying for less than 12 months.
microdata are grossed to population estimates consistent with those published in spring 2003 which are significantly lower than the latest population estimates.

Minimum Wage

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employers have been (a) prosecuted and (b) convicted of paying employees below the minimum wage in (i) the UK, (ii) the North East and (iii) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland in each of the last 10 years. [166596]

Jane Kennedy: There have been no employers prosecuted for failure to pay workers the national minimum wage. Since the minimum wage was introduced in April 1999 the focus has been on ensuring that workers receive the minimum wage and any arrears they are due. In total, just over £28 million in arrears has been identified for workers by national minimum wage compliance teams.

HMRC are now investigating a range of cases with a view to criminal prosecution. In August 2007 and October 2007 two employers were successfully prosecuted for obstruction and for neglecting to answer any question during minimum wage investigations.

Pay: Young People

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average wage was for persons aged between 16 and 25 years (a) in total, (b) for those with higher education qualifications and (c) for those without higher education qualifications in (i) Cornwall, (ii) each parliamentary constituency in Cornwall, (iii) the south-west and (iv) England in each year since 1979. [166710]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 26 November 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about the average earnings of young people with and without higher education qualifications. (166710)

The attached table gives the average gross weekly earnings of full-time employees aged 16-24, with and without higher education qualifications, resident in Cornwall, the South West region and England. The figures shown are estimates from the Labour Force Survey (LFS) for the three month period ending June of each year. This information is not available for periods prior to 1997. The LFS sample is too small to provide estimates for each constituency within Cornwall. The survey does not collect information about the earnings of self-employed people.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Personal Income

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average salary for (a) men and (b) women was in each Government Office region in each of the last 10 years. [167329]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 26 November 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the average salary for (a) men and (b) women was in each Government Office region in each of the last 10 years. I am replying in her absence. (167329)

Levels of earnings are estimated from the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE), and are provided for full-time employees on adult rates of pay, whose pay for the survey period was not affected by absence. The ASHE, carried out in April each year, is the most comprehensive source of earnings information in the United Kingdom.

ASHE results can be obtained on the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/ashe

Poverty: Children

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether water poverty is included as a component in the delivery of public service agreements on child poverty. [166618]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 20 November 2007]: The child poverty public service agreement (PSA) sets out the strategic priorities for Government in tackling child poverty including, among others, reducing poverty through raising incomes, and tackling poor living conditions.

Performance against the PSA is measured using three indicators, two of which are income measures and the third is a measure of low income and material deprivation combined.

By looking at income levels, living conditions and material deprivation the PSA includes a broad range of factors that influence child poverty.

Public Expenditure: Wales

Adam Price: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the change to the budget of the National Assembly for Wales has been arising from the application of the Barnett formula comparability factor to expenditure on (a) the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew, (b) London and Continental Railway and (c) the Channel Tunnel Rail Link; [168340]

(2) what the areas of devolved expenditure are upon which the comparability assessment for nuclear non-proliferation set out in the Statement of Funding Policy was based; [168355]

(3) how much has been spent on Cycling England since its inception; and what the corresponding change to the budget of the National Assembly for Wales was as a result of applying the Barnett formula comparability factor to this expenditure. [168361]

Andy Burnham: The expenditure by the UK Government on the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew, London and Continental Railway and the Channel Tunnel Rail Link has no effect on the budget of the National Assembly for Wales. Although the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform incurs expenditure on nuclear non-proliferation and subscriptions to international organisations on behalf of the UK, elements of the spending in relation to subscriptions are devolved. Expenditure is no longer recorded by the Treasury on a separate programme object for Cycling England; such spending is now subsumed within other transport programmes.

Revenue and Customs: Bath

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much it will cost HM Revenue and Customs to move operations from the Bath tax office to Bristol in terms of (a) additional travel costs for relocating staff, (b) all removal costs, (c) adaptations to the Bristol building for IT equipment and (d) specific needs of relocating staff; and what change there will be to the number of staff employed. [166013]

Jane Kennedy: Short-term costs will be incurred in closing any office, but they need to be set not only against the specific estate savings from that closure but also the long-term efficiency savings arising from the overall reorganisation of HMRC's business, which cannot be apportioned to any specific office.

The Bath office was included in a review of offices in the Bristol urban centre. One of its conclusions was that business needs were best met by relocating teams from Bath, with the exception of the Enquiry Centre staff, to Bristol. The Enquiry Centre will remain in its present location or nearby.

Staff will wherever possible move with their work but the process to establish how many staff can reasonably be expected to travel to Bristol is still under way, and staff moves will not be completed until autumn 2008. The detailed breakdown of costs requested is therefore not yet available.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether a full equality impact assessment has been carried out on the effect of the closure of the Bath HM Revenue and Customs office on (a) staff and (b) service users. [166014]

Jane Kennedy: An impact assessment of HMRC's plans to vacate Royal Mead, Bath is available at: http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/better-regulation/regional-reviews.htm. An Equality Screen of the plans, shown at Appendix A, concluded that a full equality impact assessment is not necessary at this stage as mitigating action can be provided for the potential and known impacts identified.

The impact on customers is expected to be minimal as Enquiry Centre services will continue to be provided in Royal Mead or nearby.

Revenue and Customs: Sunderland

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the economic impact on Sunderland of closing the two city centre HM Revenue and Customs offices; and if he will make a statement. [165314]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC consider local private and public sector employment statistics including growth or reduction over the last 10 years together with the economic impact of likely staff migration to new locations. These indicators are among a number of factors which were taken into account before the decision was taken to close the HM Revenue and Customs offices in Gilbridge house and Shackleton house, Sunderland but retain others in the area.

Social Security Benefits

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the take-up rate of (a) child tax credit, (b) working tax credit and (c) child benefit among those eligible has been in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement; [167093]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of children living in households eligible for but not claiming (a) child tax credit, (b) working tax credit and (c) child benefit in the last period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [167094]

Jane Kennedy: Child and working tax credits were introduced in April 2003.

Estimates of take-up rates for child and working tax credit in 2005-06 and 2006-07 are not available. Estimates for 2003-04 and 2004-05, are produced in the HMRC publications "Child Tax Credit and Working Tax Credit. Take-up Rates" for each relevant year. These publications are available on the HMRC website at: http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-take-up.htm. Table 7 of these publications also detail the estimated number of in-work entitled non-recipients, by family size.

A precise take-up rate for child benefit is not available, but it is estimated that approximately 2 per cent. of families, although entitled, do not claim child benefit. The number of children living in households eligible for but not claiming child benefit is not available.

Suicide

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many suicides there were in each county in each of the last 10 years. [167641]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 26 November 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many suicides there have been in each county in each of the last 10 years. (167641)

1 Suicide was defined using the International Classification of Diseases. Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E950-E959 and E980-E989, excluding E988.8 for the years 1997 to 2000. and the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes X60-X84 and Y10-Y34. excluding Y33.9 (where the coroner's verdict was pending) for the years 2001 to 2006.

2 Suicide and undetermined intent deaths have not been included for children under the age of 15 years.

3 Based on boundaries as of 2007. All counties, county boroughs and unitary authorities in England and Wales have been included in the definition of 'county'.

4 Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

Tax Allowances: Travel

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will change the arrangements for the submissions of the P87 tax relief fund for those who undertake essential mileage, especially those working in the care industry. [168172]

Jane Kennedy: All employees who are paid less than the statutory mileage rates by their employer for business journeys in their own cars are entitled to claim tax relief on the difference. This can be done by completing a form P87. There are no plans to change these arrangements.

Tax Collection

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue was collected (a) in total and (b) per head of the population by HM Revenue and Customs and its predecessors from residents of (i) Southend, (ii) the Essex region, (iii) Greater London and (iv) Scotland in each year since 1997; and what Government spending was in each area (A) in total and (B) per head of population in the same period. [167435]

Andy Burnham: Total and per capita tax revenue is not available at a regional level. Sources of the most relevant available data are shown as follows.

The ONS publish estimates of income tax, council taxes and vehicle taxes paid by households by region, available at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_economy/Results_Tables_Values.xls

The relevant data can be found under "D.5 Current taxes on income, wealth etc" in table 2:8.

Regional stamp duty receipts attributable to residential property are published by HMRC, available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/stamp_duty/table15-2.pdf.

No corresponding information is available on taxes paid by companies and other organisations, or on other taxes paid by households.

Total public spending that can be identified as benefiting a particular country or region is published in table 9.1 of Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA) 2007, available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/economic_data_and_tools/finance_spending_statistics/pes_publications/pespubpesa07.cfm

The equivalent per capita information can be found in table 9.2. Public spending can be split into that which can be identified as benefiting a particular country or region and that which is for the benefit of the UK as a whole, for example defence spending. Therefore, the figures in PESA do not represent total public spending, which is not available by region.

The Scottish Executive also produces an annual publication "Government Expenditure and Revenue Scotland". This is available at:

http://www.scotland.gov.ukPublications/2006/12/11084016/0

Taxation: Carers

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will bring forward proposals to extend tax relief for child care vouchers to include the care of vulnerable disabled and elderly people; if he will make an assessment of the effects such a policy would have on employment outcomes for carers, older workers and women; and if he will make a statement; [162300]

(2) what plans he has to extend the tax-free status afforded to child care vouchers to cover the care of elderly and disabled people; and what recent representations he has had on the economic aspects of such a proposal, including any likely savings to Government thereof. [164343]

Jane Kennedy: The Government are keen to ensure that people with caring responsibilities can make the most of opportunities to balance work with their caring responsibilities.

They will look carefully at the costs and benefits of any further proposals, including whether it is the most effective mechanism for tackling the issues faced by carers, particularly those experienced by specific groups, when making an assessment of the case for intervention in this area.

The Government keep tax reliefs under review and has received representations in this area. However, it does not believe that allowing employers to provide employees with tax and NICs free care vouchers is the most appropriate, fair or cost effective way of tackling the issues faced by carers.

Throat Cancer

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people (a) were diagnosed with and (b) died from throat cancer in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the north east and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997. [165401]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 26 November 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people have (a) been diagnosed with and (b) died from throat cancer in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the North East and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997. (165401)

'Throat cancer' is not a precise medical term. A number of different types of cancer can develop in the throat. Many patients and relatives use the term 'throat cancer' to mean cancer of the larynx (the voice box); or cancer of the thyroid gland (which is at the front of the base of the neck(; or cancer of the oesophagus (the food pipe). We assume that you sought information for one of these cancers.

The latest available figures for (a) newly diagnosed cases of cancer (incidence) for the United Kingdom are for the year 2004. Numbers of cases of laryngeal, thyroid and oesophageal cancer for the years 1997 to 2004 for (i) Jarrow Parliamentary Constituency, (ii) South Tyneside County District, (iii) North East Government Office Region and (iv) United Kingdom are given in Tables 1-3 below.

The latest available figures for (b) deaths are for the year 2006. Numbers of deaths from laryngeal, thyroid and oesophageal cancer for the years 1997 to 2006 for (i) Jarrow Parliamentary Constituency, (ii) South Tyneside County District, (iii) North East Government Office Region and (iv) United Kingdom are given in Tables 4-6 below.

Unemployment: Young People

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many 16 to 24 year olds were not in employment, education or training in the UK in the most recent period for which figures are available. [167361]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 26 November 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about the number of people between the ages of 16 and 24 who are currently not in full-time education or training or in employment in the most recent period for which figures are available. (167361)

Not seasonally adjusted and seasonally adjusted estimates for the educational status, economic activity and inactivity of young people are published each month in the Labour Market Statistics First Release in table 14, covering the UK for age groups, 16-17, 18-24, and 25 and over and are available at:

http://nswebcopy/downloads/theme_labour/LMS_FR_HS/WebTable14SA.xls

The attached table has been derived from the published seasonally adjusted table 14. It shows the number of people between the ages of 16 and 24, who are currently not in full-time education or training or in employment, for the three months ending September 2007. These estimates are seasonally adjusted.

Estimates are taken from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Number of people between the age of 16 and 24, by gender who are currently not in full-time education[1] or training[1] or employment[2], United Kingdom, seasonally adjusted, July to September 2007

Thousand

| Three months ending September | All Persons | Male | Female |
|---|---|---|---|
| ILO unemployed | 490 | 305 | 186 |
| Economically Inactive | 748 | 251 | 497 |
| Total | 1,238 | 556 | 683 |

[1] Refers to people who are not in full-time education or training. This does include people in part-time education and/or some form of training. The total number of young people who are not in employment, education or training ("NEET") cannot therefore be derived from this table.

[2] People not in employment refers to those who are ILO unemployed or economically inactive.

VAT: Fraud

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the amount of VAT received by the public purse from telephone calls by members of the public invited by television shows under false pretences; [162774]

(2) if he will donate to the unclaimed registrar fund the VAT receipts from telephone calls invited under false pretences by television shows; [162969]

(3) if he will donate to charity the VAT receipts from telephone calls invited under false pretences by television shows. [162970]

Jane Kennedy [holding answers 12 November 2007]: No such estimate has been made. In normal circumstances, if an individual receives a refund or discount from a supplier, any tax originally charged may be adjusted by the supplier and refunded to the customer.

All VAT collected by HMRC is applied to the Government's priorities and spending plans, as set out by the Chancellor in the 2007 pre-Budget report and comprehensive spending review. This includes over £515 million that will be invested by the Office of the Third Sector in third sector programmes over the comprehensive spending review period.

Wealth

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) millionaires and (b) billionaires there are in the UK; and how many there were of each in (i) 2002 and (ii) 1997 in (A) cash and (B) 2007 prices. [167234]

Jane Kennedy: We estimate that in the year 2002 there were 250,000 millionaires in the United Kingdom.

The corresponding figure for 1997 is not available. No estimate exists for the number of billionaires.

Welfare Tax Credits

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his Department provides advice on budgeting to people in receipt of tax credits. [164486]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC does not provide budgeting advice to any of its customers, including its tax credit customers.

Welfare Tax Credits: Complaints

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost to HM Revenue and Customs of dealing with complaints about tax credits was in the last 12 months. [166824]

Jane Kennedy: The cost of dealing with complaints in the Tax Credit Office between 1 November 2006 and 31 October 2007 was around £6.5 million.

It is not possible to provide costs for other areas of HMRC that might also handle complaints relating to tax credits.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many full-time equivalent staff members the Adjudicator's Office employs to deal with complaints about tax credits; [166825]

(2) what the cost to the Adjudicator's Office of dealing with complaints about tax credits was in the last 12 months. [166826]

Jane Kennedy: The Adjudicators Office advise that approximately 39 full-time equivalent staff members dealt with complaints about tax credits in the last 12 months.

The overall costs of the Adjudicator's Office are published in her annual report which is available at:

http://www.adjudicatorsoffice.gov.uk/pdf/report2007.pdf.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what has been spent on recovering tax credit overpayments in each year since the introduction of tax credits; and what estimate he has made of future costs of recovery; [166666]

(2) what estimate he has made of the cost of writing off debts arising from the overpayment of tax credits for (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06, (d) 2006-07 and (e) all overpayments. [166667]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 20 November 2007]: The total costs of administration of tax credits from 2003-04 to 2004-06 were published on 6 July 2007 in part two of the Standard Report on HM Revenue and Customs 2006-07 accounts together with provisional estimates for 2006-07. Details of administration costs for earlier years were published in the Inland Revenue Trust statements for those years. Details of tax credits overpayments written off from 2003-04 to 2005-06 were published in the same report.

Details of Inland Revenue losses, including tax written off by HM Revenue and Customs, is published annually in the departmental accounts and are available on the departmental website.

Information on the amount spent on recovering tax credits overpayments and the cost of writing off debts arising from the overpayment of tax credits is not available.

JUSTICE

Convictions: Theft

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of convictions for theft of personal property resulted in (a) custodial and (b) community sentences in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2006. [168327]

Mr. Hanson: The information notified by the courts and the police to the Ministry of Justice Court Proceedings Database does not enable theft of personal property to be positively identified. The information contained in the following table covers those theft offences where it is likely that all, or the majority, of the offences will relate to personal property.

Persons sentenced for theft offences which mostly involve personal property[1]

|---|---|---|---|
| 2005 | 22,792 | 21 | 47 |

[1] Theft from the person, in a dwelling, of a pedal cycle, of or from a motor vehicle and other miscellaneous theft.

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Figures for 2006 will be published in mid-December.

Crime: Arrests

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of arrests in (a) England, (b) London and (c) each London borough led to criminal conviction in each year since 1997. [166943]

Maria Eagle: My Department collects aggregated data on number of arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) separately from record level data on all criminal convictions. This means that centrally we are unable to tell which arrests have led to a conviction.

Crown Dependencies

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) when the Privy Council last consulted his Department or its predecessor on legislative matters submitted for promulgation from (a) the Isle of Man and (b) Guernsey; [167317]

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in what circumstances an assenting order may be refused in relation to the Channel Islands. [167324]

Mr. Wills: The Government may, via the Privy Council, advise Her Majesty to refuse Royal Assent to legislation submitted by the government of the Channel Islands if that legislation would put the United Kingdom in breach of its international obligations; or infringe against principles of good government; or adversely affect the UK's responsibility for the defence of the Islands; or otherwise be contrary to fundamental constitutional principles.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in what circumstances an assenting order may be refused in relation to the Isle of Man. [167326]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice is currently processing the appointment of the new Solicitor-General of Jersey. There are no other new Crown appointments scheduled for the immediate future. The timing of the appointment of the majority of Crown officers in the Crown dependencies is determined by when their Warrants or Letters Patent expire, or by their retirement from office.

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what consultations were undertaken by his Department which have not been made open to the public in the last year. [164885]

Mr. Wills: My Department undertakes a range of consultation activities, which are open to the public and which include formal written public consultations, as well as other forms of engagement such as focus groups, public meetings and online discussion sessions. Our formal written consultation papers are conducted in accordance with the Government's consultation code. Details of current consultations can be found at the Ministry of Justice website www.justice.gov.uk.

My Ministry also conducts other forms of consultation where the intended audience is more limited. For example, this might include consulting interested groups of stakeholders on particular, discrete, specialised or technical topics, perhaps as an early part of policy development. Such consultation may be less accessible or open to the public and we do not keep a central record of this type of consultation or engagement.

Departmental Correspondence

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of inquiries received by his Department from the public were responded to within (a) one week, (b) 14 days, (c) 28 days, (d) two months and (e) three months in the last period for which figures are available; and in what percentage of cases it took (i) over three months and (ii) over one year to respond. [167371]

Maria Eagle: My Department has a target to respond to letters from the public within 15 working days. From 1 January to 31 October 2007, 6,536 separate pieces of correspondence (including e-mails) were answered with the target met in 91 per cent. of cases.

The more detailed information the hon. Member has requested is not readily available and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice's main corporate software manufacturers are:

Adobe

Departmental Manpower

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many civil servants in his Department and its predecessors (a) transferred to other Government departments and (b) left the Civil Service in each of the last five years. [162732]

Maria Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply separately—13 November 2007, Official Report, columns 203-7W.

Statistics on civil servants transferring between Departments from the former Department of Constitutional Affairs are not published and therefore not available in the response from the National Statistician; however, an update on centrally held figures shows that a total of 107 staff transferred or moved on loan to other Government Departments for the year to September 2006.

Figures for staff who left the civil service in each of the last five years can be found as part of the Annual Civil Service Statistics publication in the separate response from the National Statistician to this question.

Maria Eagle: Between 3 October 2006 and 8 May 2007 the Department for Constitutional Affairs made 74 Statutory Instruments. Since 9 May 2007 the Ministry of Justice has made 69 Statutory Instruments.

The information requested on how many instruments were revoked can be supplied only at disproportionate cost. No central record is maintained of this information. Revocations will have been made by new Acts of Parliament or new Statutory Instruments.

Departmental Public Consultations

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what opinion polls the Department has conducted of (a) the public and (b) staff since 27 June 2007; and what the (i) name of the firm employed to conduct the poll, (ii) purpose and (iii) cost to the public purse was in each case. [164954]

Maria Eagle: Opinion polls are normally understood as surveys of a representative sample of the public about their opinions on public issues, including those related to a Department's policies. So opinion polls of staff should be understood as surveys of their opinions on public issues or departmental policies, not internal matters.

The table gives the details requested on 15 opinion polls conducted by the Ministry of Justice since 27 June 2007. The cost in 2007-08 of these contracts is £668,531 (excluding VAT).

This figure excludes the costs of the HMCS Court User Survey and Tribunal Service Customer Satisfaction Survey that are commercial in confidence. Both surveys are subject to periodic re-tendering and the release of this information would weaken the Department's future negotiation position.

Drugs: Crime

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of those people accused of (a) possession and (b) dealing in cannabis were (i) found not guilty, (ii) fined and (iii) imprisoned in each year since 1997. [166841]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows persons proceeded against for offences of the possession and supply etc. of cannabis, which was a Class B drug until January 2004 and a Class C drug thereafter.

Fines

Mr. Clelland: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether any registered vehicle owner has been summoned to appear before a court for not paying a fine imposed for not returning a statutory off-road declaration in the latest period for which figures are available. [167207]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have been asked to reply.

In the last financial year (2006-07) no summons were issued for failure to return a statutory off road declaration. However 107,550 county court claims were issued.

Mr. Clelland: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether any registered vehicle owners appeared before a court for failure to pay a fine imposed for failure to return a statutory off-road declaration in each of the last five years. [167209]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have been asked to reply.

The exact number of people who appeared before a court for failure to declare a vehicle off the road are not recorded but the number is very low.

Fixed Penalties

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many fixed penalty notices were unpaid after (a) 28 days, (b) three months and (c) six months in (i) England, (ii) London and (iii) each London borough in each year since 1997. [166935]

Maria Eagle: Available information from 1997-2004 (latest available) is provided in the following tables. 2005 data will be available next year.

The information collected by my Department identifies the number of motoring offences fixed penalty notices issued by result at police force area level. Data are collected on the disposal (i.e. paid, fine registration certificate issued etc.). However because of the time taken for the procedures for payment to be enforced the data are collected approximately nine months later than the period of issue and published in the following year's annual volume covering motoring offences.

Motoring offences fixed penalty notices data are submitted to my Department on a calendar year basis from police forces. The data do not contain a month by month breakdown.

(2) how many people were issued with fixed penalty notices as a result of evidence from (a) closed circuit television (CCTV) on buses in London in each year since 1997 and (b) the live CCTV pilot on buses in London. [166946]

Maria Eagle: Information on the number of penalty notices for disorder issued in England and London for 2004 and 2005 are provided in the table. Data on the number of PNDs issued by London borough are not collected by my department. The Penalty Notice for Disorder (PND) Scheme was rolled out to all police forces in England and Wales in 2004 under the provisions of the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001.

Information on the type of evidence used to issue a PND is not reported to my department.

Fraud: Sentencing

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to introduce tougher sentencing for perpetrators of fraud, as recommended in the 2006 Fraud Review. [168181]

Maria Eagle: The Fraud Review recommended that the Sentencing Guidelines Council (SGC) issue guidelines in respect of fraud offences. The SGC has indicated that it intends to issue guidance on sentencing under the new Fraud Act 2006. On 16 August 2007, the Sentencing Advisory Panel issued a consultation paper on sentencing for fraud offences. The consultation will close on 6 December 2007.

The Fraud Review also recommended increases in the maximum sentence for fraud offences. The Government are considering their response.

Magistrates Courts: Finance

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much was spent on (a) magistrates courts and (b) administration of magistrates courts in (i) England, (ii) London and (iii) each London borough in each year since 1997. [166932]

Maria Eagle: HMCS was formed on 1 April 2005 by the merger of the Court Service and 42 magistrates areas.

Following the creation of HMCS the accounting records of the Court Service were archived and accessing them to provide the information back to 1997 would be disproportionately expensive for the Department. Information is not recorded centrally on a London borough basis and to obtain this information would be disproportionately expensive.

Expenditure on magistrates courts and the administrative costs of magistrates courts available since the inception of HMCS, have been provided in the following table:

| | England | London |
|---|---|---|
| Magistrates courts costs | | |
| 2006 | 349,854 | 72,244 |
| 2007 | 360,600 | 66,117 |
| Administration costs of magistrates courts | | |
| 2006 | 137,419 | 23,224 |

Mohammed Ilyas Khan

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether any immigration cases previously adjudicated by (a) Mr. Mohammed Ilyas Khan and (b) Judge J have been reopened following the investigation of the Office for Judicial Complaints. [167211]

Bridget Prentice: No asylum or immigration appeals adjudicated by Judge Khan or Judge J have been reopened following the investigation by the Office for Judicial Complaints.

Political Parties: Finance

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much: each registered political party (a) spent and (b) raised by donation and reported to the Electoral Commission in each year since 2001. [167246]

Bridget Prentice: The number of registered political parties in the UK has fluctuated over the period 2001 to 2007. There are currently some 363 registered political parties in the UK.

The information sought is not collected by the Ministry of Justice. The Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 (PPERA) requires each registered party to submit annual accounts to the Electoral Commission, the format and content of which varies according to the total income or gross expenditure incurred by a party or accounting unit. Parties are also required to report donations to the Electoral Commission each year. Details of all donations of more than £5,000 accepted by the party HQ and all donations of more than 1,000 accepted by a party accounting unit must be reported.

The parties' donation reports, accounts and campaign expenditure returns are all published by the Commission and are available to view on their website.

Prison Service

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he expects to publish the Carter and Corston reviews on prison services. [167616]

Mr. Hanson: Baroness Corston published her review of women in the criminal justice system on 13 March 2007. The Government have given a broad welcome to the report and are exploring the best way of taking forward the recommendations with all the departments and agencies concerned. We hope to be able to respond in a positive way before Christmas.

Lord Carter of Coles' review is looking at the long-term future of the prison estate and at both the supply and demand of prison places. We look forward to receiving Lord Carter's report once he has reached a conclusion, and will respond in due course.

Prisoners Release

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of prisoners released in (a) England and (b) London were reconvicted in each year since 1997. [166928]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the available figures for the two-year re-offending rate for adult offenders in England and Wales discharged from prison in the first quarter of each year.

| | Two year re-offending rate (Percentage) |
|---|---|
| 2000 | 65 |
| 2002 | 67 |
| 2004 | 65 |

Prior to 2000, different data were used to calculate figures on re-offending, and these earlier figures are not comparable. Further information is available in the most recent Statistical Bulletin on adult re-offending which can be found at the Ministry of Justice website:

www.justice.gov.uk

The analysis does not include a breakdown by area.

Prisoners: Police Cells

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) police cells and (b) custody suites in West Chelmsford constituency are occupied by serving prisoners who have been given a custodial sentence. [167066]

Mr. Hanson: No police stations in the West Chelmsford constituency are currently being used to hold prisoners under Operation Safeguard.

Prisoners held in police cells under Operation Safeguard are primarily adult male prisoners remanded in custody by the courts.

Prisoners: Sentencing

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners are being held on indeterminate sentences. [167604]

Mr. Hanson: At the end of September 2007 there were 9,942 prisoners serving indeterminate sentences in prison establishments in England and Wales. This information is published monthly on the Ministry of Justice website at:

www.justice.gov.uk

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisons

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were in prison in each London borough in the latest period for which figures are available; and how many of those in each case were from that borough. [166931]

Maria Eagle: There are eight prisons in seven London boroughs. The total numbers of prisoners and the numbers originating from each of these boroughs on 19 September 2007 are shown in the table as follows.

| London boroughs with prison capacity | Total prison population in borough | Prison population originating from borough |

Prisons: Overcrowding

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent steps the Government has taken to reduce prison overcrowding. [164694]

Mr. Hanson: We have announced a 9,500 capacity-building programme of which 700 new places will be delivered this year and 2,400 in 2008. New accommodation is being brought into use as quickly as possible and we are ensuring that we make the most of existing accommodation.

Lord Carter of Coles is undertaking a review of prisons that will look at options both for increasing supply of prison places and for reducing demand for them. He will report his findings to the Prime Minister, Chancellor of the Exchequer and Justice Secretary when completed.

Prisons: Suicide

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many suicide attempts there were in each Welsh prison in each year since 2003. [166179]

Maria Eagle: There is no definition of what constitutes an attempted suicide, as it is very difficult to measure suicidal intent, and therefore my Department is unable to provide the data requested. However, the following table gives details of all self-harm incidents and apparently self-inflicted deaths in each Welsh prison from 2003 onwards.

| | Prison | Self-inflicted deaths per prison | Self-harm (SH) incidents per prison[1] | Total SH incidents |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 2003[2] | Cardiff | 0 | 56 | |
| | Parc | 0 | 326 | |
| | Swansea | 1 | 62 | |
| | Usk/ Prescoed | 0 | 1 | |

| | Parc | 0 | 163 | |
| | Swansea | 1 | 43 | |
| | Usk/ Prescoed | 0 | 1 | |
| | Total | | | 233 |

[1] It is not possible to measure the number of self harm incidents with absolute precision. The reported numbers of incidents provide useful management information but should not be treated as absolute.
[2] A new system for recording self harm was introduced in December 2002 and as a result the total figures for that year are not directly comparable with later years.
[3] Year to date figure reported on IRS by 31 October 2007.

Prisons: Visits

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many visitors to prisons were found to be in possession of illegal drugs in each year since 1997; how many such visitors were referred to the police; and what steps were taken in respect of those not referred to the police. [166839]

Mr. Hanson: A comprehensive framework is in place for dealing with visitors who seek to smuggle drugs through visits. The number of visitors suspected of involvement in drug smuggling incidents and the action taken internally by prisons along with the number of visitors arrested is detailed in the table.

No record is kept of the number of visitors found to be in possession of illegal drugs but a good indication is the number arrested.

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

[1] The first year in which visits ban data became available.
[2] Number of reported drug incidents in which a visitor was suspected of involvement and arrested by police. A particular incident may involve more than one arrest.

Probation Officers: Greater London

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many full or part-time probation officers there were in the Greater London area in each of the last five years; [166079]

(2) how many full or part-time probation officers in the Greater London area left the service in each of the last five years. [166080]

Maria Eagle: Information is not available for the full period requested. Data collected prior to April 2003 were collated by a different source which did not break down the requested data by probation area and are not directly comparable with the more accurate figures collected since that time. Information on leavers was also unavailable for Quarter 1, 2003-04.

The figures presented in the following tables show full-time equivalent (FTE) figures as at 31 December for each year and July 2003 respectively and relate to London Probation Region in its entirety. London Region was formed in 2001 following the merger of Inner London and Greater London Probation Areas.

Prosecutions: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were prosecuted for selling alcohol to minors in West Chelmsford constituency in each of the last five years. [167063]

Maria Eagle: The number of persons prosecuted for selling alcohol to minors in Essex from 2001 to 2005 is shown in the following table. My Department are unable to provide data for the West Chelmsford constituency, as the data are not held at the required level of detail.

In addition, the offence of sale of alcohol to a person under 18 can attract a penalty notice for disorder (PND) of £80. The offence was added to the scheme on 1 November 2004. Data on the number of PNDs issued in Essex in 2004 and 2005 for the offence are provided in the table. Figures for 2006 will be available shortly.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and the number of penalty notices for disorder issued for offences related to the illegal sale of alcohol to persons aged under 18 in Essex, 2001 to 2005[1, 2, 3, 4]

n/a = Not applicable. (The offence was added to the Penalty Notices for Disorder scheme on 1 November 2004).

[1] Prosecutions data are provided on the principal offence basis. PND data are a count on PND tickets issued.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the police forces and courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] Covers offences under the following statutes. The Licensing Act 1964 S.169 A & B as added by Licensing (Young Persons) Act 2000 S.1, the Licensing Act 1964 S.181 A(1) as added by Licensing Act 1988 S.17 and the Licensing Act 2003 S.146 and 147, which came into effect from 24 November 2005, so data prior to 2005 is not available.

[4] PND data covers the offence of sale of alcohol to persons under 18 under the Licensing act 2003 S.126.

Prosecutions: Fireworks

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many successful prosecutions there were for firework-related offences in (a) 2003, (b) 2004, (c) 2005 and (d) 2006. [167694]

Maria Eagle: Data showing the number of defendants found guilty of firework-related offences in England and Wales from 2003 to 2005 are in table A.

In addition, under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001, Penalty Notices for Disorder (PND) can be issued for a number of offences: throwing fireworks in a thoroughfare under the Explosives Act 1875 and breach of the fireworks curfew, possession of category 4 fireworks, and possession by a person under 18 of an adult firework under the Fireworks Act 2003. The offences attract a fixed penalty of 80. Data on the number of PNDs issued for these offences in England and Wales in 2004 and 2005 are provided in table B. Data for 2006 will be available shortly.

Victims: Compensation

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 14 November 2007, Official Report, column 298W, on victims' surcharge, which organisations and schemes have received funding from the proceeds of the victims' surcharge. [167634]

Maria Eagle: For this introductory year of its operation the Department has included the receipts from the victims surcharge, as an appropriation in aid, in its estimates for 2007-08. Under spending plans, parliamentary approved expenditure will be committed to the Crown Prosecution Service to support 165 witness service schemes under the No Witness No Justice initiative, to Victim Support for enhanced services to victims of crime, and for grants to organisations and schemes in the following list.

Young Offender Institutions

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many young offender institutions there are in England; and how many places those institutions provide. [168309]

[1] Operational capacity describes the total number of prisoners that an establishment can hold taking into account control, security and the proper operation of the planned regime.

There are also a number of young offender units within adult establishments. All women young offenders are held in accommodation designated for young offenders within adult women's prisons.

Young Offenders

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) 15, (b) 16 and (c) 17 year olds were on remand in each year since 1997 in each police authority area; and how many went on to serve a prison sentence. [166969]

Maria Eagle: The following table shows the number of 15, 16 and 17-year-olds held on remand in all prison establishments in England and Wales since 1997.

The figures are not broken down by area because the numbers are small and the accuracy at this level of detail cannot be guaranteed.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Data are not held centrally to identify how many of the 15-17 year olds went on to serve a prison sentence. However, data collected from the courts show that 50 per cent. of those remanded in custody go on to receive a custodial sentence (data published in table 4.8 of Criminal Statistics 2005, and website www.homeoffice.gov.uk)

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many re-convictions of young offenders there were in each police authority area in each year since 1997; and what percentage this represents of all young offenders in each year since 1997. [167019]

Mr. Hanson: Information on re-offending by juveniles by police force area is not currently available. Figures for re-offending by juveniles have been published for 2000, 2004 and 2005 for England and Wales, but the data sets used do not enable analysis by police force area.

Prior to 2000, a different data source and methodology was used to calculate figures on juvenile re-offending, and these earlier figures are not comparable This is discussed in more detail and the most recent figures on juvenile re-offending can be found in "Re-offending of juveniles: results from the 2005 cohort" which can be found online at http://www.justice.gov.uk/docs/reoffending-juveniles2005.pdf

Young Offenders: Sentencing

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) 15, (b) 16 and (c) 17-year-olds were given custodial sentences in each police force area in each year since 1997; and what average length of sentence was given to each group in each year. [167103]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is contained in the following tables.

Figures for 2006 will be published in mid-December.

Notes:

1. Small numbers of persons may result in high average custodial sentence lengths. Where numbers are low, average custodial sentence lengths are susceptible to bias from individual cases and may not be representative of local sentencing practice.

RDS-NOMS, Ministry of Justice

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answers of 16 January 2007, Official Report, columns 1027-28W and 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1252W, on disorder penalty notices, when he expects the evaluation of the pilot on the issuance of penalty notices for disorder to 10 to 15-year-olds to be completed; and if he will make a statement. [167114]

Mr. Hanson: The evaluation report will be published as soon as possible.

Young People: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many penalty notices for disorder in relation to the sale of alcohol to a person under 18 years of age were issued in each police force area in England and Wales in each year since 2004; how many of these resulted in an unpaid fine in each area; and what the average level of fine was in each year. [165811]

Maria Eagle: The information requested on the number of penalty notices for disorder issued for selling alcohol to persons under-18 is provided in the following table.

This offence attracts a penalty notice for disorder (PND) of £80. The offence was added to the PND scheme on 1 November 2004. Failure to pay the penalty or request a court hearing within 21 days, results in a fine of one-and-half times the penalty amount, in this case £120, being registered by the court. Data on the number of PNDs issued and fine registered for 2004 and 2005 are also provided in the table; data for 2006 will be available shortly.

However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Business: Royal Mail

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, if he will hold discussions with the chair of the National Consumer Council on the requirements of business users of the Royal Mail following its agreed merger with Postwatch and Energywatch. [166810]

Mr. McFadden: My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State will hold discussions with the chair of the new National Consumer Council on a wide range of consumer matters including any plans the council may have in relation to problems faced by small businesses in the postal and energy sectors.

The Consumers Estate Agents and Redress Act 2007 provides the new National Consumer Council with extensive powers to investigate complaints and the definition of "consumer" in the Act is sufficiently wide to incorporate small businesses. However the new National Consumer Council is an independent body and will consult on its priorities and how it intends to address the range of issues affecting consumers in its business plan.

Companies Act 2006

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which individuals and organisations his Department plans to consult on the commencement date for those provisions of the Companies Act 2006 which do not necessitate changes to Companies House processes and which were originally due to come into force on 1 October 2008. [166765]

Mr. Timms: The Government have invited comments from key stakeholders on the commencement date of provisions of the Companies Act 2006 which could still be commenced on 1 October 2008 because they do not necessitate changes to Companies House systems and processes. Officials have also discussed the commencement date of such provisions with stakeholders at a meeting of the Companies Act Implementation Advisory Group on 21 November, and have had separate meetings and discussions with other business organisations.

Companies: Registration

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many late filing penalties were imposed by Companies House in October (a) 2007 and (b) 2006; and how much revenue was raised by the Government through such late filing penalties in each year. [168377]

Mr. Timms: In October 2006 Companies House issued 15,969 late filing penalties with a value of £3,868,000. The actual revenue received in that month was £3,435,537.

In October 2007 Companies House issued 17,397 late filing penalties with a value of £4,168,000. The actual revenue received in that month was £3,339,974.

The total amount of late filing penalties collected and passed to the Treasury for the months requested does not relate to the amounts levied for the same periods as there is a time lag between penalties being issued and collected.

Consumers: Protection

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) if his Department will commission research on the effect of Postwatch's merger with the National Consumer Council and Energywatch on consumer protection; [166811]

(2) if his Department will put in place procedures to review the effect on consumer protection of the merger of Postwatch, Energywatch and the National Consumer Council. [166812]

Mr. McFadden: The new NCC is not scheduled to be vested with its full powers until 1 October 2008. It will require a further period after this before it is operating at its full capacity. The National Audit Office has already indicated that it has an interest in the merger outcomes and the Department will consult with the NAO about the timing and of and prospective approach to any future review.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions his officials have had on protecting the interests of business consumers of mail services with particular reference to the merger of the National Consumer Council, Energywatch and Postwatch. [166813]

Mr. McFadden: Officials from the Department meet monthly with colleagues from Postwatch on all issues concerning complaints whether from vulnerable consumers or from small businesses.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions his officials have had on the transitional arrangements in the process of merging the National Consumer Council, Energywatch and Postwatch, with particular reference to the interests of consumers. [166814]

Mr. McFadden: Officials from the Department are working in collaboration with colleagues from the National Consumer Council, Energywatch and Postwatch to draw up transition plans. The project is governed by a steering and delivery group comprising Department officials, the consumer bodies, Consumer Direct and the sector regulators for the postal services and energy sectors. Working groups are considering HR, IT, legal contracts, finance, complaints handling, policy and campaigns and communications.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what contribution his Department and its predecessor made to meeting the target to reverse the upward trend in carbon dioxide emissions from the Government estate by April 2007. [165936]

Malcolm Wicks: BERR and its predecessor, the DTI, and its executive agencies have reduced its carbon emissions from the estate by 14.4 per cent. since baseline levels (1999-2000) and have initiatives in place to further improve performance through awareness and energy efficient product trials.

Departmental Manpower

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many civil servants in his Department and its predecessor (a) transferred to other Government Departments and (b) left the civil service in each of the last five years. [162723]

Mr. Thomas: I refer the hon. member to the answer given by the Exchequer Secretary on 13 November 2007, Official Report, column 203W.

Departmental Renewable Energy

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what percentage of the electricity used by his Department was generated from (a) renewable sources and (b) on-site microgeneration facilities in the last period for which figures are available. [166473]

Mr. Thomas: The information is as follows:

(a) The Department and its predecessor—DTI, has purchased electricity from renewable sources since 1999. From October 2007 all HQ buildings have been supplied with green electricity where the Department is responsible for the purchase of electricity supply which compares favourably to the Sustainable Development target for energy target which is to buy 10 per cent. by 2008. The previous percentage was 36 per cent.

(b) The Department does not currently have any on-site microgeneration facilities on its HQ estate and therefore does not produce any energy from such a source. During May 2006 Future Energy Solutions (AEA Technology) in conjunction with the Carbon Trust were commissioned to perform a Renewable Energy Feasibility Study on the DTI HQ estate, now BERR. The Department are investigating the installation of feasible solutions where practicable and where leases permit.

Electricity Generation

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what proportion of electricity was generated by (a) coal, (b) oil and gas, (c) renewables and (d) nuclear sources, in each of the last five years, broken down by region. [165813]

Malcolm Wicks: This information is not compiled on a regional basis. This is because in some regions the information would relate to a small number of power stations and would thus disclose data given to this Department in confidence under the National Statistics Code of Practice. However, separate data for Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland and England have been made available for 2004 and 2005. Corresponding 2006 data are due to be published in December 2007. The available data are as follows:

Percentage

| | Scotland | Wales | England and Northern Ireland[1] | UK |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 2004 | | | | |
| Coal | 25.5 | 20.4 | 36.1 | 33.4 |
| Oil and gas | 26.1 | 49.1 | 42.6 | 41.0 |
| Renewables | 11.5 | 3.0 | 2.3 | 3.6 |
| Nuclear | 35.3 | 20.8 | 17.7 | 20.2 |
| Other fuels[2] | 1.6 | 6.7 | 1.3 | 1.8 |
| Total | 100.0 | 100.0 | 100.0 | 100.0 |
| 2005 | | | | |
| Coal | 24.8 | 19.5 | 36.6 | 33.7 |
| Oil and gas | 22.5 | 46.1 | 41.5 | 39.6 |
| Renewables | 13.2 | 3.5 | 2.9 | 4.2 |
| Nuclear | 38.2 | 22.6 | 17.4 | 20.4 |

[1] Separate data for Northern Ireland cannot be given.
[2] Other fuels include hydro pumped storage, coke oven gas, blast furnace gas, and waste fuels from chemical processes.

Energy: Plymouth

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what progress has been made in establishing an energy park at Langage, Plymouth. [165586]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 19 November 2007]: The Energy Park is a private sector development being taken forward by Carlton Power Limited. Full planning permission has been obtained for land to the east of the energy centre, which is owned by Centrica, where high quality office accommodation is proposed in several phases.

Carlton Power is now in discussion with the district council and with the south west of England regional development agency to establish how the development of the wider and strategic employment site can be taken forward.

Export Credit Guarantees: Iran

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the answer of 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 1816W, on Iran: export credits guarantee, how many requests for Export Credit Guarantees Department cover for exports to Iran were received in each of the last five financial years; and if he will make a statement. [166110]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, column 1492W, on Iran: Export Credit Guarantees.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what has been the total level of UK export credit guarantee exposure with Iran in each of the last five financial years. [166142]

Malcolm Wicks: ECGD's exposure (future liabilities) to Iran, relating to both export credit guarantees and insurance, at the end of each of the last five financial years is set out in the following table:

| Financial year | Future liabilities (£ million) |
|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 110.6 |
| 2003-04 | 171.8 |
| 2004-05 | 253.0 |
| 2005-06 | 318.0 |
| 2006-07 | 286.2 |

As at the end of October 2007, future liabilities stood at £275.4 million. In addition, there are around £29 million of outstanding claims relating to transactions supported in the pre-revolution period.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when the most recent UK export credit guarantees for trade with Iran were issued; and if he will make a statement. [166143]

Malcolm Wicks: The most recent issued cover (an insurance product) was on 27 September 2006.

Fisheries: Compensation

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he expects to (a) complete his review of the Icelandic Trawlermen's Compensation Scheme and (b) make outstanding compensation payments under the scheme. [167800]

Mr. McFadden: The Government are reviewing the eligibility criteria and scheme rules for consistency with the policy intention underlying the scheme and hope to reach a conclusion shortly. There are no outstanding payments under the scheme.

Fuel Poverty

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform for what reasons his Department has not published the number of households in England in fuel poverty since 2004; and when he expects to publish that information. [167506]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government will publish shortly its annual progress report on fuel poverty covering 2005 which will include statistics of households in fuel poverty in England in 2005. The publication has been delayed to allow the Government to provide an update on the activities outlined in the Energy White Paper 2007.

Fuel: Prices

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the annual aggregate increase in fuel prices has been in each year since 2002. [165976]

Malcolm Wicks: The following table details the annual change in prices in each year since 2002, for gas and electricity to both domestic and industrial users. The last row shows the cumulative change in prices over the five years to 2006.

Percentage

| | Domestic | | Industrial | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Gas | Electricity | Gas | Electricity |
| 2002 | 6 | -3 | -5 | -5 |
| 2003 | 2 | -2 | 0 | -6 |
| 2004 | 7 | 3 | 7 | 6 |
| 2005 | 15 | 8 | 45 | 28 |
| 2006 | 32 | 19 | 24 | 30 |
| 2001-06 | 54 | 27 | 83 | 57 |

Note:
Prices are in real terms. Domestic prices are sourced from the Retail Prices Index. Industrial price data from BERR includes the Climate Change Levy.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what research has been (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated by his Department on the effect of a change in fuel prices on (i) food prices and (ii) the cost of living; and if he will make a statement. [167291]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department actively monitors the effect of changes in fuel prices on the Government's energy policy goals, including those relating to fuel poverty, and also the impact on the UK economy. However, the Department has not commissioned any research looking specifically at the effect of changes in fuel prices on the cost of living and food prices.

Hertfordshire Oil Storage Terminal

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he expects the Buncefield oil depot to re-open; and if he will make a statement. [164564]

Malcolm Wicks: It is not yet known when the Buncefield oil terminal complex will reopen.

The Buncefield complex is of strategic importance for the supply of jet fuel to Heathrow and Gatwick airports. I understand that Dacorum borough council (DBC) are currently in discussion with the oil companies, concerning a proposal to commence jet fuel storage and supply only at this stage. The oil companies propose to delay recommencement of petrol and diesel storage and distribution until the findings of the Major Incident Investigation Board and the recommendations of the Buncefield Standards Task Group on standards and best practice have been fully considered and further discussions held with DBC and other stakeholders.

A number of planning applications have been submitted to DBC and St. Albans district council by the oil companies and their agencies having facilities within the complex. These cover works required to repair and improve the sites to new safety and environmental standards. The determination of these applications is a matter for the councils concerned.

Industrial Disputes: Royal Mail

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the financial effect on Royal Mail of the industrial action in September 2007; and if he will make a statement. [167087]

Mr. McFadden: The Department has not assessed the financial effects of the industrial action on Royal Mail. This is an operational matter for the company. It is clear, however, that the strikes will have had some impact on the business although mitigating action was taken to advise customers to post mail on non-strike days. There is also the possibility that the industrial action may result in users of postal services moving to other means of communication.

Industry: Robots

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what funding his Department provides to encourage investment in industrial robots in the UK. [166520]

Mr. Timms: The Government support and encourage investment through a range of measures including tax incentives (e.g. capital allowances) and through business support schemes such as Selective Finance for Investment in England and its equivalent in the devolved administrations. In addition the Technology Strategy Board supports innovation and collaborative research and development into leading edge technologies including robotics and automation. The most recent competition under the Technology Programme announced on 8 November by John Denham, Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills, seeks proposals to develop new high value manufacturing techniques to secure the nation's future manufacturing base with research on the next generation of production techniques. We are also aware that the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council is currently supporting 19 robotics assembly and automated handling projects with funding of over £10.5 million.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his Department's policy is on appropriate levels of expenditure on industrial robots in UK manufacturing. [166521]

Mr. Timms: My Department has no policy on the appropriate levels of company expenditure on industrial robots. Government encourages and supports business investment through a range of policy measures but company investment decisions of this nature are a commercial matter for individual companies.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what information his Department holds on the ratio of industrial robots to members of the workforce used in manufacturing in (a) the UK, (b) France, (c) Germany, (d) the USA and (e) China. [166534]

Mr. Timms: My Department does not hold official statistics on the ratio of industrial robots to workforce. We are aware that the International Federation of Robotics provides statistical information of this type.

Internet: Fraud

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions he has had with the UK banking industry about combating fraudulent phishing e-mails which appear to originate from individual banks and financial service providers. [162305]

Mr. Timms: My Department has no direct remit for monitoring the banking sector. Informal contacts between officials take place from time to time in the wider context of work on information security. The Home Office works with the banking industry to help combat the problems of spam and phishing.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions he has had with internet service providers on reducing the quantity of fraudulent and unsolicited email sent to UK email addresses. [162312]

Mr. Timms: Many ISPs are taking active steps to prevent bad traffic reaching their customers and many have spam email boxes which enable their customers to complain about specific emails. Both Government and Ofcom are talking to the ISPs about how we might improve standards across the sector and how those improvements might be made more visible to end users. These discussions now need to reflect the recently published proposals from the European Commission regarding the review of the telecoms regulatory framework and which include recommendations designed to reduce the impact of spam.

Internet: Taxation

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on content on his Department's website which promotes the UK's favourable tax treatment of businesses. [165565]

Mr. Thomas: My Department's website carries a range of information of interest to business, including aspects of taxation. I have had no discussions with the Chancellor in respect of the BERR website.

National Grid: Electricity

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the distribution losses of electricity over the national grid in each of the last five years. [165812]

Malcolm Wicks: Losses between 2002 and 2006 (the last year for which data are available) are summarised as follows.

| | Losses (GWh) |
|---|---|
| 2002 | 29,980 |
| 2003 | 29,862 |
| 2004 | 30,728 |
| 2005 | 30,638 |
| 2006 | 30,918 |

Digest of UK Energy Statistics 2007

Electricity is lost from both the National Grid's high voltage transmission system, and the distribution networks. In each of the years shown, losses from the transmission system were equivalent to approximately 1.5 per cent. of total electricity available, and approximately 6 per cent. of electricity available was lost via the distribution network. In addition, around 0.5 per cent. is accounted for by theft or meter fraud and accounting differences making about 8 per cent. losses in total.

North West Development Agency: Grants

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) research and (b) development grants were awarded by the North West Development Agency in each of the last five financial years. [163002]

Mr. Timms: The research and development grants awarded by the North West Development Agency in each of the last five financial years are detailed in the following.

| | Research | | Development | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Awards | Offers (£) | Awards | Offers (£) |
| 2002-03 | 74 | 3,273,547 | 60 | 3,615,514 |
| 2003-04 | 74 | 3,719,914 | 71 | 4,531,199 |
| 2004-05 | 18 | 1,143,120 | 35 | 4,405,885 |
| 2005-06 | 6 | 447,590 | 11 | 1,505,211 |
| 2006-07 | 11 | 665,560 | 36 | 3,542,250 |

Nuclear Power Stations

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the capability of the (a) Health and Safety Executive and (b) Nuclear Installations Inspectorate to undertake the process of generic design assessment for new nuclear power stations. [167859]

Malcolm Wicks: Regulators, including the Health and Safety Executive and its Nuclear Installations Inspectorate, have developed resource plans to allow them to implement generic design assessment. Industry will, as now, meet the cost of licensing any nuclear plant.

Before generic design assessments began, we carried out a prioritisation process to ensure that the regulators could focus their resources on those designs that have the greatest chance of being built. If the nuclear consultation concludes that the private sector ought to be able to choose to invest in nuclear, it is likely that there will be a further prioritisation process to reduce the number of designs being assessed from four to three.

We continue to work closely with the regulators to ensure they have sufficient resource to carry out pre-licensing assessments within the 3 to 3.5 year timeframe.

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he expects the (a) Health and Safety Executive and (b) Nuclear Installations Inspectorate to hire external consultants to carry out the process of generic design assessment for new nuclear power stations. [167860]

Malcolm Wicks: The Health and Safety Executive and its Nuclear Installations Inspectorate, along with the other regulators, have developed resource plans to allow them to carry out the Generic Design Assessment work. The regulators will recover their costs from industry, as is currently the case for licensing of nuclear plants.

The regulators will use suitably qualified staff to carry out the assessments. How the regulators organise themselves internally, including whether to use external consultants, is a matter for them.

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what progress has been made by the Environment Agency on the process of pre-authorisation for new nuclear power stations; and if he will make a statement. [167861]

Malcolm Wicks: The consultation document "The Future of Nuclear Power", published on 23 May 2007 invited vendors of nuclear reactor designs who are interested in having their designs assessed through the Generic Design Assessment process to write to the regulators' Joint Programme Office by 22 June 2007.

By this date, the regulators had received four applications for Generic Design Assessment.

Following assessment of the applications by the Government, all four were found to have met the criteria set down in the consultation document and as a result, the regulators (the Health and Safety Executive and the Environment Agency) agreed to assess all four designs in the initial stage of the generic design assessment process. A press notice setting out the outcome of the Government's assessment of applications was released on 5 July 2007. This, along with the letters of application sent by the vendors, and their letters of endorsement from operators, can be found on the BERR website.

Following this step, the Environment Agency, along with the other regulators, have begun work on the generic design assessment process on a contingent basis, pending the outcome of the nuclear consultation.

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the capability of the Environment Agency to undertake the process of pre-authorisation for new nuclear power stations. [167862]

Malcolm Wicks: The regulators, including the Environment Agency, have developed resource plans to allow them to implement generic design assessment. Industry will, as now, meet the cost of licensing any nuclear plant.

Before generic design assessments began, we carried out a prioritisation process to ensure that the regulators could focus their resources on those designs that have the greatest chance of being built. If the nuclear consultation concludes that the private sector ought to be able to choose to invest in nuclear, it is likely that there will be a further prioritisation process to reduce the number of designs being assessed from four to three.

We continue to work closely with the regulators to ensure they have sufficient resource to carry out pre-licensing assessments within the three to three and a half year timeframe.

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he expects the Environment Agency to hire external consultants to carry out the process of pre-authorisation for new nuclear power stations. [167863]

Malcolm Wicks: The Environment Agency, along with the other regulators, have developed resource plans to allow them to carry out the Generic Design Assessment work. The regulators will recover their costs from industry, as is currently the case for licensing of nuclear plants. The regulators will use suitably qualified staff to carry out the assessments. How the regulators organise themselves internally, including whether to use external consultants, is a matter for them.

Nuclear Power Stations: Sellafield

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority has made any request, or otherwise indicated, that it wishes to extend the operating life of the B205 reprocessing plant at Sellafield beyond its current planned closure date of 2012. [163672]

Malcolm Wicks: The Nuclear Decommissioning Authority has indicated, in its recently published three-year Business Plan, that logistical issues at Sellafield mean that it will not be possible to complete reprocessing of spent fuel from Magnox reactors within the original planned time scales. Consequently, it is likely that the reprocessing of Magnox spent fuel, which was due to be completed by around 2012, will not be completed until 2016 or later.

The NDA is committed to consulting widely on the implications of any changes to the currently approved Magnox Operating Plan version 7.

Office of Fair Trading: Manpower

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the full-time staff complement of the Office of Fair Trading is; and how many of its employees receive an annual salary (a) between £50,000 and £100,000, (b) between £100,001 and £150,000 and (c) above £150,000. [167133]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 22 November 2007]: Full-time complement of OFT is 735, made up of 626 filled roles and 109 vacancies.

| Those receiving salaries of | Number |
|---|---|
| (a) between £50,000 and £100,000 | 96 |
| (b) between £100,001 and £150,000 | 4 |
| (c) above £150,000 | 4 |

Part-Time Employment

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the cost to date to (a) private sector and (b) public sector employers of meeting the requirements of the (i) Part-time Workers (Prevention of Less Favourable Treatment) Regulations 2000 and (ii) Fixed-term Employees (Prevention of Less Favourable Treatment) Regulations 2002. [165921]

Mr. McFadden: Estimates of the costs and benefits of implementing the Part Time Workers (Prevention of Less Favourable Treatment) Regulations were published in the "2000 Compendium of Regulatory Impact Assessments" (URN 06/1164), while estimates for the Fixed-Term Employees (Prevention of Less Favourable Treatment) Regulations were published in the "2002 Compendium of Regulatory Impact Assessments" (URN 05/582). Both publications are available from the BERR website. The Department continues to monitor the impact of these and other Regulations closely as part of BERR's ongoing employment relations monitoring and evaluation programme.

Post Offices: Closures

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make a statement on the proposed closure of Lancelyn Court Post Office. [166766]

Mr. McFadden: The Government do not have a role in proposals or decisions for individual post offices and final decisions on which post offices will close will be taken by Post Office Ltd. (POL) in light of the responses received to the area consultations.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many responses have been received to the six-week consultation over proposed post office closures in East Essex and Suffolk. [167505]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. I have therefore asked Alan Cook, managing director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many submissions from (a) the general public, (b) local authorities and (c) others he received on each post office in Nottinghamshire in response to the recent consultation on post office closures. [168180]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, Managing Director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Post Offices: Rural Areas

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the likely number of rural post offices which will be open in November 2008; and if he will make a statement. [167178]

Mr. McFadden: None. This is a matter for Post Office Ltd. Post Office Ltd.'s local decisions will need to reflect the Government's aim of supporting a national network of post offices and to comply with the access criteria requirements set by Government. It is expected that there will be roughly similar numbers of closures in rural and urban areas.

Royal Mail: Finance

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which consultancy firms have been engaged by his Department to provide advice on the funding of Royal Mail over the last 12 months; and what the projected cost of each such contract is. [167134]

Mr. McFadden: In the last 12 months, my Department has engaged Deloitte, Herbert Smith, Credit Suisse and Strategia on work relating to the Government's funding for Royal Mail. The collective costs for the 12 months to end October 2007 were £3.8 million. For reasons of commercial confidentiality, it would not be appropriate to break this down to the individual costs for each adviser.

Small Businesses: Tax Allowances

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many small businesses in Eastbourne constituency applied for small business tax relief in each of the last five years. [165330]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not available. However, as at 31 December 2006, there were 802 businesses in the Eastbourne borough council area that were in receipt of small business rate relief.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many small businesses in West Chelmsford constituency applied for small business tax relief in each of the last five years. [166239]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not available. However, as at 31 December 2006, there were 938 businesses in the Chelmsford borough council area that were in receipt of small business rate relief.

Supermarkets: Alcoholic Drinks

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the effect on fair competition of supermarkets selling alcohol at cost price. [168116]

Mr. Thomas: Ensuring markets operate freely and fairly is a matter for the independent competition authorities, rather than for Government.

In its preliminary findings from its inquiry into the UK groceries market the Competition Commission (CC) said

> "below cost selling by national retailers is not part of a predatory strategy aimed at convenience stores or specialist stores and is not having significant unintended effects on smaller stores".

Appendix 5.6 of the provisional findings covered below-cost selling and as part of the assessment, looked specifically at the extent of below-cost selling of alcohol during the football World Cup in 2006. This assessment is located at > http://www.competition-commission.gov.uk/inquiries/ref2006/grocery/prov_findings/prov_find_app_5_6.pdf

Parties have until 30 November to submit comments on the CC's provisional findings and possible remedies. The CC is due to publish its final report by May 2008.

Tax Avoidance: Advertising

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform for what reason advertisements for the tax avoidance services provided by PricewaterhouseCoopers have appeared on his Department's website. [165563]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform is not aware of any advertisement of the tax avoidance services provided by PricewaterhouseCoopers on its website. It is not BERR's website policy to endorse the services and products of commercial organisations.

However, it is possible to access the PricewaterhouseCoopers website from the BERR website search engine results page. That site does contain information on the company's tax services.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much his Department received from PricewaterhouseCoopers for the advertisements placed on his Department's website which promote that company's tax avoidance services. [165564]

Mr. Thomas: No such advertisement for PricewaterhouseCooper's tax avoidance services has been placed on my Department's website, so no payment has been received.

Telent

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) if he will make a statement on the proposed closure of the Telent site in Chorley; [167595]

(2) what discussions his Department has had with the Pensions Corporation on pension rights for existing Telent employees; [167596]

(3) what support has been given to Telent by (a) the North West Development Agency and (b) Government Office North West. [167598]

Mr. Timms: Discussion with the Pension Corporation over the pension rights for Telent employees is a matter for the pensions regulator. BERR has had no such discussions.

I have also been advised that neither the Northwest Development Agency or nor the Government office for the north-west have given assistance or support to Telent Ltd. However, the NWDA is willing to meet either my hon. Friend or the company if that would help.

Toys and Games: Safety

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) how much he has allocated to assist facilities commissioned to monitor and test imported toys for health and safety issues; [167566]

(2) what steps he is taking to reduce the importation of toys with high levels of heavy metals to the UK. [167567]

Mr. Thomas: The Toys (Safety) Regulations 1995 which govern the safety of toys sold in the UK are enforced by local authority trading standards departments (TSDs), who check toys placed on the market to ensure that they comply will all the essential safety requirements of the regulations including those regarding heavy metals. I have asked TSDs to step up their enforcement efforts in light of the recent toy recalls.

We have not allocated any additional funds to TSDs as enforcement of the regulations is part of their usual regime on the enforcement of consumer product legislation, funded through the normal local authority funding arrangements for which the Department of Communities and Local Government is responsible.

Trade Promotion

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will estimate the return per £1 spent on trade promotion by UK Trade and Investment in the latest period for which figures are available. [R] [166753]

Mr. Thomas: Performance of UKTI trade services is monitored through independent surveys of UKTI clients carried out on behalf of UKTI by OMB Research, with results published quarterly.

The surveys consistently demonstrate that the services enable companies to up-grade their export capabilities, and overcome barriers to overseas markets, resulting in improved business performance.

Latest survey results show estimated total financial benefit to businesses of around £2.5 billion annually, across all UKTI trade services.

An independent evaluation of four UKTI trade services published in March 2006 found that £65 million generated benefit of some £1.13 billion—in other words £17 benefit for each £1 UKTI spend.

In 2006, an evaluation by consultants SQW of the International Trade Teams in the English regions estimated that the services they deliver produce benefit of £25 per £1 UKTI spend.

Employees: Carers

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment his Department has made of the effect of care responsibilities on work-life balance for employees; and what assessment has been made of the potential merits of a care voucher scheme. [162301]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are keen to ensure that people with caring responsibilities can make the most of opportunities to balance work with their caring responsibilities.

They will look carefully at the costs and benefits of any further proposals, including whether it is the most effective mechanism for tackling the issues faced by carers, particularly those experienced by specific groups, when making an assessment of the case for intervention in this area.

The Government keeps tax reliefs under review and has received representations in this area. However, it does not believe that allowing employers to provide employees with tax and NICs free care vouchers is the most appropriate, fair or cost effective way of tackling the issues faced by carers.

PRIME MINISTER

Departmental Wines

Mike Penning: To ask the Prime Minister if he will take steps to ensure that English wine is served exclusively or at the request of guests at meals, parties and receptions hosted by his Office; and if he will make a statement. [164296]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office (Edward Miliband) on 22 November 2007, Official Report, column 1094W.

Departmental Written Questions

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Prime Minister whether it is his practice to attach to Written Answers hard copies of earlier replies cited in such Answers where these were previously given to hon. Members other than the hon. Member to whom the Answer is addressed. [167766]

The Prime Minister: Yes.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Firearms

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many firearm certificate applications were made in each police service of Northern Ireland district command unit area in each of the last three years; how many of these applications were (a) granted and (b) declined; how many applicants appealed against a decision to decline an application; and how many of those appeals were (i) upheld and (ii) dismissed. [166209]

Paul Goggins: The Chief Constable has provided the information in Table 1 in relation to firearm certificate applications.

| | 2005[1] | | 2006[2] | | 2007 (to date) | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Granted | Refused | Granted | Refused | Granted | Refused |
| Applications | 11,984 | 270 | 27,690 | 247 | 16,476 | 159 |

[1] 2005 statistics are available only from 1 February 2005 when a new computer system was introduced to take account of the provisions of the Firearms (Order) 2004.

[2] The increased number of applications dealt with in 2006 reflects the carry forward of a significant backlog of cases received in 2005.

Note:

Applications received in 2005, 2006 and 2007 cannot be attributed by the computer system to individual District Command Units. Such analysis could be done only at disproportionate cost to public funds.

The figures for firearms appeals are given in Table 2.

Table 2

| | Late appeals not accepted | Refused | Allowed | Withdrawn | Part refused/ allowed |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 2005 | 7 | 45 | 4 | 5 | 1 |
| 2006 | 3 | 27 | 5 | 0 | 1 |
| 2007 | 3 | 26 | 4 | 0 | 0 |

As the result of an administrative error, an incorrect figure of 147 was recorded in an earlier PQ (123488) for applications refused in 2006. The figure should have read 247.

Handguns: Registration

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average length of time taken to process firearm certificate applications in Northern Ireland was in each of the last 18 months. [166210]

Paul Goggins: The Chief Constable of the Police Service for Northern Ireland has provided the following information in relation to the average processing time for firearm certificates:

Table 1

| 2006 | Average Processing Time (Number of Days) |
|---|---|
| May | 89 |
| June | 89 |
| July | 64 |
| August | 52 |
| September | [1]39 |
| October | [1]28 |
| November | [1]33 |
| December | 62 |

[1] These returns reflect a reduction in the number of applications received during this period.

Table 2

| 2007 | Average Processing Time (Number of Days) |
|---|---|
| January | 48 |
| February | 62 |
| March | 74 |
| April | 69 |
| May | 58 |
| June | 54 |
| July | 51 |
| August | 58 |
| September | 60 |

Police: Finance

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the policing budget is for Northern Ireland in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and what assessment he has made of the effect of the change in budget on numbers of police officers available for duties over the next 12 months. [167999]

Paul Goggins: The total policing budget for Northern Ireland in 2007-08 is £1,236,081,000. The NIO has received its CSR07 settlement from HM Treasury but work is currently ongoing on how this will be allocated across the Department. Until this is completed I am not in a position to advise on the final allocation for policing in Northern Ireland for 2008-09.

The Government remain completely committed to the proper resourcing of the PSNI to ensure that it is equipped to deliver effective policing for the benefit of everyone in Northern Ireland. PSNI budget, per head of population, is more than any other police service in the UK and Northern Ireland has more police officers than comparable parts of the UK.

Sex Offenders: Registration

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people were on the sex offenders register in Northern Ireland in each of the past six years. [166208]

Paul Goggins: The total number of sex offenders in Northern Ireland subject to the notification requirements of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 was as follows:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| 31 March 2007 | 670 |
| 31 March 2006 | 620 |
| 31 March 2005 | 544 |

The majority of persons who come under the notification requirements are subject to a notification period of five years or more and the annual increase largely reflects the number of new convictions.

As a breakdown of figures for sex offenders subject to the notification requirements was not recorded on an annual basis until 2005, I am not able to provide the information requested for 2002, 2003 and 2004.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departmental Correspondence

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what percentage of inquiries received by his Office from the public were responded to within (a) one week, (b) 14 days, (c) 28 days, (d) two months and (e) three months in the last period for which figures are available; and in what percentage of cases it took (i) over three months and (ii) over one year to respond. [167372]

Edward Miliband: Details of departments' and agencies' handling of correspondence from MPs and Peers is published on an annual basis. The most recent statistics were published by way of a written ministerial statement on 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 101WS. Information for 2007 will be published as soon as it is ready after the end of the calendar year.

Departmental Responsibilities: Security

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which Government department will take primary responsibility for the UK's national security strategy announced in his statement to the House on 25 July. [165658]

Edward Miliband: The Cabinet Office, working with all interested Departments and Agencies, is co-ordinating the production of the National Security Strategy.

Members: Correspondence

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Tunbridge Wells on charities and political campaigning dated 30 October. [167606]

Edward Miliband: A reply was sent to the hon. Member today.

National Security

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he expects to publish the UK's national security strategy as announced in his statement to the House on 25 July. [165659]

Edward Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the statement my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister made to the House on 14 November 2007, Official Report, column 667.

Opinion Leader Research

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many contracts were awarded by the Cabinet Office to Opinion Leader Research in each year since 1997; and what was (a) the title and purpose, (b) the cost to the public purse and (c) the dates of (i) tender, (ii) award, (iii) operation and (iv) completion and report to the Office in each case. [165394]

Edward Miliband: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) and the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 530W, and the answer given to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) by the then Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Hilary Armstrong) on 13 June 2007, Official Report, column 1038W.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departmental Publicity

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Leader of the House (1) how much her Office spent on staff working on (a) marketing and (b) branding in the last 12 month period for which figures are available; [167300]

(2) how much her Office spent on managing its corporate identity in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [167345]

Helen Goodman: None.

Legislative Drafting: Public Participation

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Leader of the House what regional events were held in the West Midlands for organisations and stakeholders to discuss the Government's draft legislative programme published in July with the Minister for the West Midlands; and if she will make a statement. [166695]

Helen Goodman: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given on Wednesday, 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 933W.

Regional Government: Ministers

Helen Southworth: To ask the Leader of the House (1) what mechanisms are in place for regional Ministers to account to Parliament; [167601]

(2) if she will establish a regular oral question time to allow regional Ministers to be questioned by hon. Members. [167602]

Helen Goodman: All Ministers are accountable to Parliament. The Government are considering how best to take forward the ideas in the Governance of Britain Green Paper for committees to reflect the English regions. The Modernisation Select Committee of the House of Commons announced an inquiry into Regional Accountability on 11 October and the Government expect to submit a memorandum to that Committee.

There are no current plans for a specific question slot to be given to regional Ministers.

Written Questions

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Leader of the House if she will advise Ministers to adhere to the practice of attaching to written answers hard copies of earlier replies cited in such answers where these were previously given to hon. Members other than the hon. Member to whom the answer is addressed. [168300]

Helen Goodman: It is standard practice to provide Members with a copy of any previous response which is referred to in an answer to a question.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Crisis Loans

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what criteria are used to assess eligibility for a crisis loan; [163497]

(2) what steps are being taken to ensure that the appeal process for refused social fund applications is accessible and easy to use; [163498]

(3) what process applicants must go through to prove their eligibility for a crisis loan; [163502]

(4) what steps are being taken to ensure that those living in rural communities can easily access a crisis loan; [163503]

(5) whether those visiting Jobcentre Plus to access a crisis loan are offered an alternative to a telephone claim. [163581]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 29 November 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply direct to your questions asking about the criteria used to assess eligibility for crisis loans, the process applicants must go through to prove their eligibility to crisis loans, what steps are being taken to ensure that the appeal process is accessible and easy to use, steps being taken to ensure those living in rural communities can easily access a crisis loan and whether those visiting Jobcentre Plus to access a crisis loan are offered an alternative to a telephone claim. These are things that fall within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The criteria used to assess eligibility for a crisis loan are that the applicant:

has immediate short term needs in an emergency or as a consequence of a disaster; is 16 or over and has no other means or getting help; and shows that a crisis loan is the only way that serious damage to their own health or safety or that of their family can be avoided.

Applicants must prove their eligibility for a crisis loan by providing a Jobcentre Plus decision maker with sufficient information to determine their application. Our preferred method of taking this information is by telephone where the customer requires a loan for living expenses. However, those customers unable to use the telephone, or where money is being requested to buy an item or service, should submit a written application by post or in person. Irrespective of the method of application, applicants have to provide full details of their circumstances and the effect of the emergency or disaster. They must also give details of their financial situation including other possible sources of help.

Jobcentre Plus is sensitive to the needs of those customers living in rural communities. Many Jobcentre Plus offices already offer a crisis loan application service by telephone and travel warrants can be provided to those customers who have no money to meet fares incurred in collecting their payment from a Jobcentre Plus office.

Customers who visit a Jobcentre Plus office are advised about the benefits of the telephone application process, including the availability of the free phone number. If this does not suit the customer, they can make a written crisis loan application.

The review process that applies to the discretionary social fund is straightforward and widely publicised in Jobcentre Plus leaflets, application forms and decision letters. To request a review of a decision, applicants need to write to Jobcentre Plus. A review is then conducted which normally involves an interview over the telephone. If after the review decision, they are still dissatisfied with the outcome of their application they can write to the Independent Review Service for a further review.

I hope this is helpful.

Departmental Flexible Working

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff (a) have applied to work flexible hours and (b) work flexible hours (i) in the Department and (ii) the executive agencies for which the Department is responsible. [164329]

Mrs. McGuire: For the last full year for which headcount statistics are held (year ending 31 December 2006), 41,187 (33.9 per cent.) of employees in the Department for Work and Pensions, and its executive agencies, worked part-time. Included within that figure are employees taking advantage of the various options available to employees to assist their work/life balance—term-time working, compressed working weeks, job sharing, and home working, in addition to what is normally regarded as part-time working. We do not collect the figures for those who have applied to work part-time.

The Department has in place a process which allows parents, adopters, guardians or foster carers of children under six years of age or of disabled children under the age of 18, and for carers of adults, to apply to work flexibly in line with legislation. It additionally accepts requests from any employee with over 26 weeks in the Department who wishes to apply to work a flexible working pattern. Any employee with over 26 weeks in the Department may apply to change working pattern twice a year.

Flexible start and finish times are offered by all businesses within the Department, with the details of each scheme being tailored to their business requirements. Employees and their managers are thus able to accommodate informal arrangements where the needs of the Department and the individual can both be accommodated, without the need for recording a formal change to working pattern.

Departmental NDPBs

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the (a) budget and (b) remit is of each non-departmental public body sponsored by his Department; who the chairman is of each; and to what salary, including bonuses and expenses, each chairman is entitled. [163613]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested with regard to the non-departmental public bodies sponsored by the Department for Work and Pensions can be found on the Department's internet site at the following location http://www.dwp.gov.uk/ndpb/public_bodies.asp#ndpb.

Departments: Disabled

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 29 October 2007, Official Report, columns 784-9W, on departments: disabled, where the information on which of the buildings of which his Department is the major occupier are fully accessible to disabled people is held; and how many of the buildings of which his Department is the major occupier have had audits to determine whether they are fully accessible to disabled people. [163968]

Mrs. McGuire: Accessibility audits were commissioned in 2004 for all of the 1,191 buildings where my Department is the major occupier. The resultant national programme of works to improve access for disabled people was completed in 2006. Building accessibility is subject to review annually. Information on building accessibility is held at individual site level.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will break down the figures referred to in the answer of 23 October 2007, Official Report, column 237W, on Departments: official hospitality, giving the amount spent on each function at which hospitality expenses were incurred. [162194]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested is not available centrally in the format requested and could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Jobcentre Plus: Advisory Services

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the proportion of advice given by Jobcentre Plus that was provided (a) face-to-face, (b) by letter, (c) online and (d) by telephone in the last period for which figures are available. [163580]

Caroline Flint: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Leslie Strathie, dated 26 November 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question concerning what estimate has been made of the proportion of advice given by Jobcentre Plus that was provided face to face, by letter, online and by telephone in the last period for which figures are available. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

I have not made an estimate of the proportion of advice provided by Jobcentre Plus face to face, by letter, online or by telephone. This information is not routinely collected and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what steps his Department takes to monitor how Jobcentre Plus personal advisers spend their working time; and if he will make a statement; [163582]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect of diary support officers on the amount of time that personal advisers at Jobcentre Plus are able to spend with clients. [163590]

Caroline Flint: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 26 November 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions about the steps being taken to monitor how Jobcentre Plus personal advisers spend their working time and what assessment has been made of the effect of diary support officers on the amount of time that personal advisers at Jobcentre Plus are able to spend with clients. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus monitors the use of personal advisers working time with an internal tool— the Adviser Achievement Tool.

The Adviser Achievement Tool sets national benchmark levels on the number of interviews expected and activities that should take place in these interviews. Advisers who do not meet the minimum standards must agree an Adviser Improvement Plan with their manager. The plan records appropriate, specific, timebound actions the adviser will take, with support from their manager, to improve their performance.

In September 2006 Jobcentre Plus put in place a new Advisory Services Model to support Personal Advisers, which introduced the Diary Administrative Support Officer job role.

A review of the new Advisory Services Model concluded that its introduction has led to better support for Personal Advisers and freed up time to spend with customers. As an example, Personal Advisers' telephones are now routinely transferred to Diary Administrative Support officers during interviews to minimise interruptions.

The clearest indication that the new Advisory Services model is working can be seen in the increased Advisory productivity rates. End of year performance to 2006/07 indicated an increase from 28 to 30 interviews per week per adviser.

I hope this is helpful.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what training is provided to Jobcentre Plus personal advisers to enable them to meet the demands of clients with unusual or distinct needs. [163587]

Caroline Flint: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Leslie Strathie, dated 26 November 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question concerning what training is provided to Jobcentre Plus personal advisers to enable them to meet the demands of clients with unusual or distinct needs. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus has a comprehensive programme of blended learning designed to equip advisers with the full range of knowledge and skills required to support all customers. Our training package provides the adviser with the key knowledge and skills to interview customers and enable them to work effectively with specific customer groups, for example, lone parents, and people who are sick or have a disability.

In addition, those advisers who work with disabled customers receive additional training to equip them with the necessary skills to support the most disadvantaged, disabled customers move towards sustained employment.

I hope this is helpful.

National Insurance: Elderly

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) women aged 60 and over and (b) men aged 65 and over will have accrued 30 years national insurance contributions before April 2010. [164651]

Mr. Plaskitt: The latest information available indicates that at the end of the financial year 2003-04 there were around 60,000 women and around 10,000 men between state pension age and age 80 who had accrued exactly 30 qualifying years for basic state pension.

Notes:

1. Figures refer to people who are estimated to be resident in the UK in 2003-04.

2. Entitlement to basic state pension depends on a number of factors including the number of qualifying years accrued, Home Responsibilities Protection and the spouse's contribution record.

3. Detailed information is not available for people aged 80 and over due to archiving of records from the National Insurance Recording System.

Lifetime Labour Market Database 2, 2003-04

Older Workers

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what form the 50+ face-to-face guidance work options pilot project is expected to take; [164384]

(2) how many people aged 50 years will be consulted by each of the six contractors participating in the 50+ face-to-face guidance work options pilot project. [164385]

Caroline Flint: The pilot will look at innovative ways of encouraging people to seek information when they are thinking about how and when to retire as well as making use of flexible working options to help them remain in work or work for longer. It will test different communication methods depending on the geographical area and population and will focus on the delivery of face-to-face guidance tailored to the particular needs of the individual. The contractors will use their knowledge of the local labour market, employers, and other organisations in the local area to design and test out different formats.

In addition, this will test how many people aged 50 and over will be attracted to take up the guidance on offer by each of the contractors. We will be closely monitoring levels of participation generated by each of the contractors.

Pension Credit: Overpayments

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many overpayments there were of pension credits in each of the last three years; what the average sum involved was; and how much has been or is expected to be recouped from the executors of deceased pension credits claimants. [1] [163335]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 13 November 2007]: The information relating to the volumes and average value of all pension credit overpayments identified in the last three years are in the following table:

| | Volume | Average value (£) |
|---|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 23,000 | 240 |
| 2006-07 | 169,000 | 547 |

The large increase in overpayments identified in 2006-07 reflects the Department's effort in improving the management and recovery of overpayments and in reducing error in the benefits system, including the identification and removal of error from the pension credit caseload. The increase in average value in 2006-07 is due to the priority attached to tackling high value error and the fact that overpayments identified could have existed since the introduction of pension credit in October 2003.

Information relating to how much has been recovered from executors of deceased pension credit claimants is only available from 2006, and is in the following table. Information relating to how much is expected to be recouped is not available.

|---|---|

Pensions: Financial Assistance Scheme

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much the Financial Assistance Scheme has paid out to members of pension schemes wound up before 6 April 2005 with insufficient funds to cover all entitlements since its inception; and if he will make a statement. [167151]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Financial Assistance Scheme has paid out a total of £10,244,178 to 3,243 members of qualifying schemes as of 16 November 2007.

1. [Official Report, 3 March 2008, Vol. 472, c. 21MC.]

Population

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the percentage change in the working age population was in each year since 1977; and what the size of the working age population was in (a) 1977, (b) 1997 and (c) 2006. [167625]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 26 November 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question regarding the percentage change in the working age population in each year since 1997, and what the size of the working age population was in a) 1977, b) 1997 and c) 2006 (167625).

The attached table shows the working age population and the percentage change for the years requested. The latest population estimates available are for mid-2006.

Table 1: Working age population[1] of England and Wales and annual percentage change

| Mid-year | Working age population[1] | Percentage change from previous year |
|---|---|---|
| 1977 | 29,055,000 | — |
| 1997 | 31,473,000 | — |
| 1998 | 31,591,000 | 0.4 |
| 1999 | 31,771,000 | 0.6 |
| 2000 | 31,977,000 | 0.6 |
| 2001 | 32,226,000 | 0.8 |
| 2002 | 32,435,000 | 0.6 |
| 2003 | 32,626,000 | 0.6 |
| 2004 | 32,856,000 | 0.7 |
| 2005 | 33,164,000 | 0.9 |
| 2006 | 33,417,000 | 0.8 |

[1] Working age population is 16-59 for females and 16-64 for males.

Population: Pensioners

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the estimated ratio of people of working age to pensioners was in each constituency in England in (a) 1997 and (b) 2007; and what the figure is expected to be in 2017. [167574]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 26 November 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your questions regarding what the estimated ratio of working age to pensioners was in each constituency in England in (a) 1997 and (b) 2007; and what the figure is expected to be in 2017. (167574)

ONS does not have parliamentary constituency population estimates for the whole of England, for 1997 or 2007, or population projections for parliamentary constituencies. I am therefore unable to answer the questions asked.

Social Fund

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether budgeting advice is offered to Social Fund claimants. [163499]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 26 November 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply direct to your question asking whether budgeting advice is offered to Social Fund claimants. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

At the outset of any new claim to benefit all clients are interviewed by advisers who will identify and address, where required, appropriate financial help. Furthermore, advisers are equipped with information on a range of organisations that can help with free financial and debt advice. Advisers can make appointments with the local Citizens Advice Bureau or other appropriate partner organisations. Jobcentre Plus continues to advise and support the customer throughout their claim.

For Social Fund applicants in particular, there is information in the budgeting loan decision letter on where to get help and advice. Also, the Social Fund part of the Jobcentre Plus website signposts customers to sources of money and debt advice.

In addition the "Now Let's Talk money" campaign was formally launched within DWP on 30/07/07. Its purpose is to help people who may not know that they can get free face-to-face money and debt advice and who do not normally have access to affordable credit and loans, credit union or basic bank accounts. "Now Let's Talk Money" is funded by the Treasury as part of a £126 million Financial Inclusion Fund to help people who are financially excluded.

I hope this is helpful.

Social Security Benefits

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what reasons his Department's Green Paper, "In Work, Better Off" did not consider options for a single system of working age benefits; and if he will make a statement. [163830]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Green Paper "In Work better off: next steps to full employment" looks to achieving the next steps to the Government's long-term aim of full employment. We continue to modernise the benefit system with major reform of housing benefit and incapacity benefit scheduled for next year.

We want to go further, but recognise that fundamental change to the system would take many years to implement and would affect most people. Change on this scale would require wide public debate and engagement and a degree of consensus if it is to be carried through. The Department will consider the best way to initiate such a public debate and will put forward proposals next year.

Training: Older Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people (a) over 55 years of age and (b) in retirement have made use of (i) grants and (ii) training schemes available through his Department to learn new job skills in each of the last three years. [163676]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not available.

Unemployment: Young People

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many young people were not in education, employment or training in each local authority area in (a) 1997 and (b) the latest year for which figures are available. [164778]

Jim Knight: I have been asked to reply.

The Department's estimate of the number and proportion of young people not in education, employment or training (NEET) cannot be disaggregated to regional or local authority level. However, we can give an indication of the number of 16, 17 and 18-year-olds[1] NEET in 2006 in England from data provided by Connexions services, and this is given in the table. Figures for 1997 are not available.

Data provided by Connexions services are used to set and monitor local authority NEET targets. However, it should be noted that figures are calculated on a different basis from that used in the Department's estimates, and therefore do not give the same totals.

[1] Connexions service figures relate to calendar age (rather than academic age as is used in the Department's participation estimates).

2. The percentage and number NEET has been adjusted to assume that a proportion of young people whose current activity is not known are NEET.

Carers: Voucher Schemes

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what assessment his Department has made of an employer-supported care voucher scheme on his Department's target to increase the employment rate of people over 50 years; and if he will make a statement; [162302]

(2) what consideration he has given to the effect of care responsibilities on women in work; and if he will assess the potential of a care voucher scheme, similar to that in operation for child care, to enable carers to balance better work and caring. [162410]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are keen to ensure that people with caring responsibilities can make the most of opportunities to balance work with their caring responsibilities.

They will look carefully at the costs and benefits of any further proposals, including whether it is the most effective mechanism for tackling the issues faced by carers, particularly those experienced by specific groups, when making an assessment of the case for intervention in this area.

The Government keep tax reliefs under review and has received representations in this area. However, they does not believe that allowing employers to provide employees with tax and NICs free care vouchers is the most appropriate, fair or cost-effective way of tackling the issues faced by carers.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Housing: Property Transfer

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications for gap funding have been received in the latest round of housing stock transfers, broken down by local authority area. [164915]

Mr. Iain Wright: As my right hon. Friend the Minister for Housing and Planning mentioned in her answer to a question from my hon. Friend on 18 December 2006, Official Report, column 1646W, 22 applications for places on the 2006 Housing Transfer programme were received from 14 local authorities in respect of housing stock which have a negative valuation. The list of authorities is given in the following table.

Expenditure: Bournemouth

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much money has been allocated by the Government office of the south west to the Bournemouth area in each of the last five years. [167508]

Mr. Dhanda: Most Communities and Local Government funding allocations are decided centrally rather than by Government offices. However Government office for the south-west has had responsibility for administering the £169 million European Social Fund regional programme over the last five years.

Due to the nature of the funding arrangements it is difficult to disaggregate amounts specifically for Bournemouth, because the funding is allocated on the basis of the boundaries used by Learning and Skills Council and Jobcentre Plus which for this area cover Bournemouth, Poole and Dorset. Some projects operate in just one area, some in all three local authority areas and some are regional. Government office has allocated £13.4 million to projects operating across this area over the period. Of this amount £6.4 million has been allocated directly by GOSW and a further £7 million has been allocated to the area through the Learning and Skills Council and Jobcentre Plus.

Specific information on the value of projects in Bournemouth could be provided but would require mapping the detail of individual projects. It would be too costly to obtain information at this level of detail.

Housing: Energy

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many qualified domestic energy assessors there are in (a) England, (b) Essex and (c) the Maldon district. [163086]

Yvette Cooper: The most recent data as at 5 November provide the following information on the number of accredited domestic energy assessors in England, Essex and the Maldon district.

| | Domestic energy assessors |
|---|---|
| England | 4,995 |
| Essex | 164 |
| Maldon | 4 |

Housing: Low Incomes

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what further steps she plans to take to increase the supply of (a) affordable shared equity and rented family homes and (b) key worker housing in (i) East Worthing and Shoreham and (ii) across West Sussex. [161910]

Yvette Cooper: In June 2007, we published the Housing Green Paper: "Homes for the future: more affordable, more sustainable" in which I announced £8 billion for affordable housing during the comprehensive spending review period. This represents a 38 per cent. increase on current spending. The funding will enable us to deliver 70,000 more affordable homes by 2010. We are also committed to providing 45,000 new affordable homes for rent by 2010-11 (a 50 per cent. increase) and 25,000 shared ownership and shared equity homes a year funded by the Housing Corporation. In addition, we will look to support additional shared ownership homes through public sector land and local housing companies.

Since April 2006, key workers have priority access to all of the Government's low cost home ownership products. Regional Housing Assemblies can focus resources where local need is greatest for example by prioritising key worker groups for assistance. We are currently waiting for the Regional Housing Board's recommendations on how investment should be spent over the next three years in the south east.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what estimate she has made of the number of key workers living in East Worthing and Shoreham; [161911]

(2) how many key workers were housed through the Key Worker Living Scheme in East Worthing and Shoreham in each year since the scheme's inception, broken down by key worker profession; [161912]

(3) how many key workers were provided with (a) Open Market HomeBuy, (b) New Build HomeBuy and (c) an intermediate rental through the Key Worker Living Scheme in East Worthing and Shoreham in each year since its inception; [161915]

(4) how many key workers in East Worthing and Shoreham are awaiting support via the Key Worker Living Scheme; and how many of those on waiting lists are listed for (a) Open Market HomeBuy, (b) New Build HomeBuy and (c) intermediate rental. [161916]

Yvette Cooper: Information at constituency level is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the impact on public sector recruitment and retention of the Key Worker Living Scheme in (a) East Worthing and Shoreham and (b) West Sussex; and if she will make a statement. [161917]

Yvette Cooper: DCLG commissioned an independent evaluation of the Key Worker Living (KWL) Scheme which was published in September 2006. The evaluation was undertaken by GHK Consulting and the Centre for Urban and Regional studies at the University of Birmingham.

The study found that the KWL scheme is making a positive contribution towards improving recruitment and retention of key workers.

It is for individual Departments and the regional assemblies to assess the impact on public sector recruitment and retention in specific regions.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what percentage of the funding available for key worker housing was given to the provision of housing in (a) East Worthing and Shoreham and (b) West Sussex in each year since 2004; and what percentage of this funding was provided for (i) Open Market HomeBuy, (ii) New Build HomeBuy and (iii) intermediate rental; [161919]

(2) what percentage of funding available for key worker housing in (a) East Worthing and Shoreham and (b) West Sussex was provided for (i) open market solutions and (ii) new build schemes. [161920]

Yvette Cooper: Funding allocations for the Key Worker Living programme were set in 2004 for the period 2004-05 to 2005-06. Of the funding available for key worker housing in the south east, 11 per cent. was given to the provision of housing in the county of West Sussex.

The following table shows the percentage of funding available for key worker housing that was allocated in the county of West Sussex (which includes the local authorities of Worthing and Adur) for (i) Open Market HomeBuy, (ii) New Build HomeBuy and (iii) intermediate rental.

|---|---|
| New Build | 19 |
| Intermediate Rent | 2 |
| Open Market HomeBuy[1] | 80 |

[1] 2004-06 Open Market HomeBuy includes Kent, East and West Sussex as part of the HomeBuy zone

Since April 2006, the Government no longer allocate funds for schemes specifically designated for key workers. Key workers now have priority access to all of the Government's low-cost home ownership products.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how the work of HomeBuy agents is tracked and monitored. [162220]

Yvette Cooper: HomeBuy Agents provide a one-stop-shop service for assessing eligibility and marketing low-cost home ownership schemes. HomeBuy agents are required to provide the Housing Corporation with a monthly self-assessment of compliance against Key Performance Standards, which are monitored by the Housing Corporation.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the potential impact on vulnerable people of the changes to private sector housing renewal funding in the south west; what effect this is likely to have on the decent homes standard; and if she will make a statement. [163936]

Mr. Iain Wright: No final decisions have been made on funding for private sector housing renewal in the south west. We are currently considering advice from the regional assemblies on funding priorities for their areas. Through the Comprehensive Spending Review £789 million has been made available in the south west through the regional housing pot over the next three years to fund housing capital programmes including those for private sector renewal. The region's allocation for the period ending 2010-11 is 50 per cent. higher than that for 2007-08. We remain committed to making funding available for private sector decent homes and in seeking the regional assemblies' priorities for funding we have asked them to continue to prioritise those most in need.

Housing: Publications

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the National Audit Office's Housing Market Renewal report; and if she will make a statement. [166236]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 20 November 2007]: We note the main conclusions in the NAO report, that across the programme the pathfinders have been narrowing the gaps in house prices and vacancies with their regions, and that the pathfinder local authorities have been performing better than other local authorities with less severe problems of low demand not selected for the programme.

Housing: Standards

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities do not have a strategy for meeting the decent homes standard. [164840]

Mr. Iain Wright: All local authorities with the exception of Camden council, have a signed off options appraisal for their stock. Camden are currently working on their strategy for delivery.

The following local authorities are currently revisiting their options appraisal: Castle Point, Brighton and Hove, Crawley, Croydon, Ellesmere Port and Neston, Mid Devon, NW Leicestershire, Plymouth, Stroud, Tamworth, Waveney and Wycombe.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of homes that (a) did and (b) did not reach the decent homes standard at the most recent date for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [165781]

Mr. Iain Wright: Our latest estimates for all homes in England is that 5,987,000 (27.5 per cent.) are non-decent and 15,795,000 (72.5 per cent.) are decent. These figures are for 2005 and are derived from the English House Condition Survey and were published on 6 June 2007.

In 1997 there were approximately 8,700,000 non-decent homes (42 per cent.) and 12,014,000 decent homes (58 per cent.).

Local Authorities: Crime Prevention

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers are available to local authorities to compel landowners to take steps to secure their land in order to prevent it from being used for antisocial and criminal purposes. [162230]

Mr. Iain Wright: We do not know of any specific powers that could be used by local authorities to compel landowners to take steps to secure their land in order to prevent it from being used for antisocial and criminal purposes. However, there may be practical advice that local authorities can give to landowners whose land is at risk of being used for such activities. In addition, local authorities have powers under section 222 of the Local Government Act 1972 to bring legal proceedings on behalf of local communities. Authorities may wish to seek advice from their lawyers as to whether there is any right of action in relation to unsecured land. It should be noted that proceedings under section 222 can be used to take out injunctions against antisocial behaviour and where an injunction is granted, the court may, under section 91 of the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003, attach a power of arrest to such injunctions.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects the Parliamentary Under-Secretary, the hon. Member for Hartlepool, to reply to the letters of 29 August 2007 and 22 October 2007 from the hon. Member for North Durham. [168219]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have now replied to my hon. Friend's correspondence.

Public Lavatories

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when her Department expects to publish (a) the research on public toilet provision undertaken by the Government with the British Toilet Association and (b) a strategy for increasing public toilet provision; and if she will make a statement. [167763]

Mr. Dhanda: We expect to publish a Strategic Guide on Public Access to Toilets early in the new year.

Regeneration: West Midlands

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government have taken to promote regeneration in the West Midlands since 1997. [167511]

Mr. Dhanda: Considerable central Government regeneration funds have been made available to the West Midlands since 1997—in total some £850 million. The main components are:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| Neighbourhood Renewal Fund 2003-08 | 306.54 |
| Neighbourhood Element 2006-10 | 12.23 |
| Cleaner Safer Greener Fund 2006-08 | 6.3 |
| Neighbourhood Management Pathfinder 2004-10 | 7.2 |
| New Deal for Communities (10-year programme to 2010) | 319.5 |
| Housing Market Renewal Pathfinder (set to 2008) | 200.00 |

Since Advantage West Midlands was established in 1999 it has between 1999-2000 and 2006-07 spent over £1.6 billion in connection with economic regeneration activity in the region. Advantage West Midlands' budget allocation for 2007-09 is around £296 million.

Sleeping Rough

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what her Department's latest estimate is of the number of people sleeping rough who are from a black or minority ethnic community; [165785]

(2) what her Department's latest estimate is of the number of people sleeping rough who have been in prison; [165784]

(3) what her Department's latest estimate is of the number of people sleeping rough who have been in the armed forces; [165783]

(4) what her Department's latest estimate is of the number of people sleeping rough who have a (a) mental illness and (b) addiction. [165782]

Mr. Iain Wright: There has been major progress in tackling the worst form of homelessness, that of people sleeping on the streets. Since 1998 we have reduced rough sleeping by 73 per cent. Partnership working between central and local government, the voluntary sector and other organisations working with homeless people has been the key to the successful reduction in rough sleeping. The focus has been on providing support and accommodation for those on the street to help them rebuild their lives and move back to independent living as well as on homelessness prevention to stop people arriving on the streets in the first place.

We publish an annual estimate of rough sleepers based on street counts, which does not include information on ethnicity, previous spells in prison or the armed forces or mental illness or addiction.

There is specific information for London provided under the Combined Homelessness and Information Network (CHAIN) recording system. In 2006-07, for those rough sleepers in London contacted by services, CHAIN information is as follows:

18 per cent. of rough sleepers were from a black or minority ethnic community;

39 per cent. of rough sleepers had spent time in prison in the past;

5 per cent. of rough sleepers had spent some time in the armed forces in the past;

48 per cent. of rough sleepers have an alcohol need;

41 per cent. have a drug support need; and 35 per cent. have a mental health need.

Tees Valley Multi-Area Agreement

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effects of the Tees Valley Multi-Area Agreement; and if she will make a statement. [166595]

John Healey: The Tees Valley is one of 13 sub-regions with whom Government will be working on the development of a Multi-Area Agreement with a view to signing a final agreement by June 2008. The overall objective of MAAs is to facilitate the delivery of improved economic prosperity. As the Tees Valley MAA has not yet been signed, we have made no assessment of effects.

Thames Gateway: London Communications Agency

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how much Thames Gateway has paid to the London Communications Agency in fees to date; and how much it expects to pay (i) in the current financial year and (ii) over the remainder of the contracted period; and if she will make a statement; [167699]

(2) if she will place in the Library (a) a summary of Thames Gateway's contract with the London Communications Agency, with particular reference to (i) the range of functions it covers, (ii) the frequency with which work is to be provided and (iii) the staffing commitment and (b) examples of the Agency's work for Thames Gateway produced during the last 12 months. [167700]

Yvette Cooper: The Thames Gateway Executive does not have a contract with the London Communications Agency and currently has no plans to enter into one. No fee payments have therefore been made. It is open to the individual local regeneration partnerships and other organisations in the Thames Gateway to employ communication agencies directly.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Actis

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has been paid for investments made by Actis since it was part-privatised in 2002. [168144]

Mr. Malik: DFID has not been paid for investments made by Actis. Net proceeds from assets that are realised by Actis are returned to CDC for reinvestment in private companies in poorer countries.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the value is of his Department's investment in Actis. [168145]

Mr. Malik: The value of DFID's investment in Actis in DFID's resource accounts is £1.677 million.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether he has issued guidance to Actis on ethical criteria for its investment funds. [168146]

Mr. Malik: Responsible investment principles were set and agreed with DFID when Actis was established. These are monitored and controlled by a Business Principles Committee made up of non-executive directors. Full information on Actis' Environmental, Social and Governance Framework is available on the company's website at http://act.is/profile/responsible_investment.asp

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's profit share arrangement with Actis is; what dividend payments have been received under that arrangement; and what profit share arrangements are proposed after 2009. [168148]

Mr. Malik: The minority 40 per cent. interest entitles the Department to an 80 per cent. share of Actis profits until 2013. Thereafter the Department will be entitled to 40 per cent. of profits in line with its percentage interest. To date, no dividend payments have been made under this arrangement.

Actis: Pay

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will publish the salary, bonus and fee packages of each director and senior management team member of Actis. [168147]

Mr. Malik: The Remuneration Committee of the Actis Supervisory Board is responsible for determining the firm's policy on remuneration. Total remuneration (salaries and bonus payment) for the working members of Actis is detailed in the Report of the Members and Consolidated Financial Statements published with Companies House.

Afghanistan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether any (a) UK and (b) UN reports have been completed on international aid wastage rates in Afghanistan and instances of corruption in the disbursement of aid. [167399]

Mr. Malik: According to the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund (IMF) 75 per cent. of aid to Afghanistan is spent outside government systems. This leads to a large degree of aid wastage and inefficiency.

The Peace Dividend Trust, in a study recently funded by DFID, found that aid spent through government systems was four times more effective than funds spent through international companies or NGOs. This is one of the reasons why DFID currently puts over 80 per cent. of its bilateral aid programme through government systems. We are unaware of any specific UN reports on international aid wastage rates in Afghanistan.

There have been no reports undertaken by the UK or the UN into instances of corruption in the disbursement of aid.

Afghanistan: Reconstruction

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what reports and studies have been conducted by his Department on UK-funded reconstruction initiatives in Afghanistan. [167250]

Mr. Malik: DFID recently funded a study by the Peace Dividend Trust entitled 'Afghanistan Compact Procurement Monitoring Project', the purpose of which was to measure the impact of international assistance to Afghanistan. It found that aid spent through the Government of Afghanistan's systems was four times more effective than funds spent through international companies or NGOs. This is one of the reasons why DFID currently puts over 80 per cent. of its bilateral aid programme through government systems.

In 2005, DFID commissioned King's College London to undertake a review of its support to Provincial Reconstruction Teams (PRTs). The purpose of the review was to make recommendations on future engagement with PRTs. The review recommended the deployment of three Development Advisers to PRTs focussing on Helmand as a priority and the existing programme was reconfigured to better articulate DFID's approach to stabilisation.

DFID also provides funding to the Afghanistan Research and Evaluation Unit (AREU), an independent research institution that conducts and facilitates research to improve practice and increase the impact of humanitarian and development programmes in Afghanistan. DFID uses research findings to inform policy.

Departmental Food

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of (a) beef, (b) lamb, (c) pork and (d) dairy products used in his departmental headquarters were imported products in the most recent period for which figures are available. [166650]

Mr. Malik: I refer the hon. Member to the data published in the report deposited in the House of Commons' Library on 8 November 2007 that give the proportion of UK produce supplied to Government Departments, the NHS and HM Prison Service. A copy of the report is also available online at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/farm/policy/sustain/procurement/pdf/govt-food-usage.pdf

Departmental Property

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much has been spent by his Department on renovation and refurbishment of its properties in each of the last five years. [164369]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development has spent the following amounts on renovation and refurbishments of its UK offices. Much of the expenditure is attributable to a major refurbishment of our East Kilbride office during the earlier years.

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 4,122,660 |
| 2003-04 | 8,954,590 |
| 2004-05 | 4,774,460 |
| 2005-06 | 982,250 |
| 2006-07 | 43,574 |

Departmental Publicity

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on staff working on (a) marketing and (b) branding in the last 12-month period for which figures are available. [167302]

Mr. Malik: The last 12-month period for which figures are available is October 2006 to October 2007. Between October 2006 and April 2007 the Publicity and Marketing Unit was part of the Building Support for Development team. Figures for this period cannot be disaggregated.

Between April 2007 and October 2007 staff costs for the campaigns and marketing team were £218,756, which includes costs for overtime, travelling time and pension and national insurance contributions.

Developing Countries: Abortion

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his policy is on the provision of safe abortions in developing countries; and if he will make a statement. [165324]

Mr. Malik: DFID recognises that unsafe abortion is a major cause of maternal death and ill-health and believes that no woman should die or suffer as a result of unsafe abortion. A woman should have access to services and care that are safe, humane, accessible and respectful of her decision. She should also be able to access services for safely and effectively managing the complications arising from induced or spontaneous abortion. Lowering abortion-related maternal deaths is a key way to reduce maternal mortality (Millennium Development Goal 5) given that nearly all deaths from unsafe abortion are preventable.

DFID agrees that abortion should never be promoted as a means of family planning in line with the consensus agreed at the International Conference for Population and Development (ICPD) in 1994. Women and men should be able to access and choose good quality contraceptives to prevent unwanted pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections, including HIV.

Developing Countries: Common Sugar Regime

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which countries he expects to receive EU funding following the completion of national sugar action plans, as referred to in the answer of 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 8-9W, on ACP and developing countries: common sugar regime. [165899]

Mr. Thomas: The Sugar Protocol was signed between the European Union and 18 African, Caribbean and Pacific countries: Barbados, Belize, Republic of Congo, Cote d'Ivoire, Fiji, Guyana, Jamaica, Kenya, Madagascar, Malawi, Mauritius, Mozambique, St. Kitts and Nevis, Swaziland, Tanzania, Trinidad and Tobago, Zambia and Zimbabwe.

According to the European Commission all 18 countries will benefit from the transitional assistance for sugar, although the amount allocated to each country will vary. The amount allocated to each country is based on two criteria: the impact of the sugar reform on the sugar sector of the country concerned and the importance of the sugar sector to the economy. The countries were required to draw up a national sugar adaptation strategy to show how they will spend their allocation.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the likely decline in value of African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) countries, as referred to in the answer of 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 8-9W, on ACP and developing countries: common sugar regime preferences. [165900]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has commissioned a number of independent studies looking at the impact of the reform of the European Union (EU) sugar market on the African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) countries that export sugar to the EU. The studies show that the impact of the sugar reform will not fall uniformly on the sugar protocol countries. Some countries will benefit with the opportunity to increase the volume of their sugar export to the EU market under the duty free and quota free market access offer. In other countries sugar may not continue to be an economic industry. Indeed some ACP countries have already taken that decision and are withdrawing from sugar production. We have always been clear that such countries will require transitional assistance. It is not possible to estimate the size of the impact on the individual ACP countries. This will depend on other decisions that they make in response to the reform.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) nations have received technical and financial support from his Department to assist in drawing up their individual sugar action plans as referred to in the answer of 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 8-9W, on ACP and developing countries: common sugar regime. [165901]

Mr. Thomas: DFID provided financial support totalling £200,000 for six Caribbean countries: Barbados, Belize, Guyana, Trinidad and Tobago, St. Kitts and Nevis and Jamaica to draw up their national sugar action plans.

Iraq: Politics and Government

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the humanitarian situation in Iraq. [168545]

Mr. Malik: DFID is very concerned about the humanitarian situation in Iraq and among refugees in the wider region. Many Iraqis are denied adequate protection and access to basic services. There is a lack of reliable information about the situation. However, the UN estimates that over two million people are internally displaced, with a further two million displaced across the region, 80 per cent. of whom are in Syria and Jordan. UNHCR is investigating reports of increased refugee returns from Syria, and the reasons behind such returns. We await the outcome of this work.

DFID is supporting the delivery of emergency relief and protection through contributions to internationally mandated humanitarian agencies. We have recently allocated an additional £5 million to these efforts, bringing our overall humanitarian commitment for Iraq to over £130 million since 2003 and £15 million this year.

Opinion Leader Research

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many contracts were awarded by his Department to Opinion Leader Research in each year since 1997; and what was (a) the title and purpose, (b) the cost to the public purse and (c) the dates of (i) tender, (ii) award, (iii) operation and (iv) completion and its report to the Department in each case. [165268]

Mr. Malik: In 1998, DFID commissioned Opinion Leader Research (OLR) to undertake baseline focus group research among the UK public at a cost of £43,000. In 2002, we funded a project with OLR and the BBC, which involved use of focus groups in the UK to analyse public understanding of international news stories at a cost of £38,247. In 2003, DFID commissioned OLR to undertake further focus group research to explore ways of increasing understanding and support for international development in the UK at a cost of £50,309.

No subsequent contracts were awarded to OLR. Specific dates when contracts were tendered, let, carried out and completed are not held centrally, and could not be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

Poverty: EU Action

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the likely effect of proposed EU Economic Partnership Agreements on the Government's targets to reduce global poverty. [167061]

Mr. Thomas: Growth is important for poverty reduction. Economic Partnership Agreements can deliver growth and development and help countries trade their way out of poverty. In recent years, many of the fastest growing countries, in east Asia particularly, have opened up their borders to international trade. EPAs can increase access for developing country exports into European Union (EU) markets, which is one of their largest export markets. EPAs should also increase trading opportunities and collaboration with the African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) regions themselves and promote integration into the global economy.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Adult Education

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many adults (a) enrolled in adult and community learning programmes and (b) participated in further education in each (i) borough and (ii) region in each year since 1997. [166859]

Mr. Lammy: Figures for adults (aged 19 and above) participating in further education (FE) and adult and community learning (ACL) programmes can be derived from the Learning and Skills Council's (LSC) Individualised Learner Record (ILR). The FE ILR was collated for the first time in 2002-03 and figures are given from that time. Regional and local authority breakdowns for learners on ACL programmes could be provided only at disproportionate cost and are therefore not included.

Adult Education: Oxfordshire

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many adult learner accounts have been taken up in Oxfordshire since September. [167173]

Mr. Lammy: As of 22 November 2007 a total of 791 adult learner accounts had been opened by learners in the trial LSC areas of the South East and East Midlands: 38 of these were opened by individuals in Oxfordshire.

As outlined in "World Class Skills: Implementing the Leitch Review of Skills in England" (July 07), the evaluation of these trials will inform the development of Skills Accounts to give adult learners greater choice, purchasing power and control over their learning, and to drive forward the implementation of demand-led funding within further education.

Anti-Semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many officials from his Department, broken down by grade, attended the cross-government working group on anti-Semitism on 15 November; and if he will make a statement. [167394]

Bill Rammell: I understand that you have already received a reply from the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State at the Department for Communities and Local Government on this question as the lead on cohesion matters. That reply sets out that the cross-government working group did not meet on the 15, but the meeting that took place was between the Parliamentary Under Secretary, his officials and representatives from key Jewish organizations. My officials did not participate in that meeting.

I can assure you that my Department deplores any acts of racial or religious intolerance in higher education. We are committed to tackling any form of anti-Semitism and racial intolerance in general. Although higher education institutions have primary responsibility for ensuring equal opportunities and for abiding by legislation in this area, the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills is committed to encouraging the higher education sector to ensure that discrimination has no place in any of its policies or practices.

Apprentices: Advisory Services

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills who will be responsible for providing information on apprenticeships for those aged over 25 years to (a) employers and (b) job seekers. [167162]

Mr. Lammy: Free impartial advice is available for employers, employees and job seekers through the "learndirect" and "next step" services, operated by the Learning and Skills Council. In addition, "Train to Gain" skills brokers provide specialised support to business on their skill needs, including apprenticeships.

In "World Class Skills" (Cmnd 7181), published in July, we announced the creation of a new universal adult careers service. The unified service will work closely with Job Centre Plus. It will provide free access to every adult in England to a wide range of information, including apprenticeships, and will be fully operational from 2010-11.

Apprentices: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many new apprenticeships were created in (a) Ribble Valley and (b) Lancashire in each of the last three years. [168307]

Mr. Lammy: Figures for those participating in apprenticeships can be derived from the Learning and Skills Council's (LSC) individualised Learner Record (ILR). The table shows the cumulative number of apprenticeship starts from August-July in each year in Lancashire local LSC area. (These figures are not readily available at parliamentary constituency level).

Thousand

| | Advanced apprenticeships | Apprenticeships |
|---|---|---|
| 2004/05 | 1.6 | 4.1 |
| 2005/06 | 1.4 | 3.2 |
| 2006/07 | 1.9 | 3.9 |

Apprentices: Oxfordshire

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many modern apprenticeships he expects to be started in the (a) Oxford and (b) Banbury travel to work area in each of the next three years; [167165]

(2) how many of the new 281,000 apprenticeships for 16 to 18-year-olds he expects to be made available in Oxfordshire. [167176]

Mr. Lammy: Our apprenticeship data models do not have the level of detail for local areas so we are unable to answer these questions.

Assessments: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the average net marginal cost was of a student taking (a) a GCSE in English literature, (b) a GCSE in English language, (c) a GCSE in mathematics, (d) an A-level in English literature, (e) an A-level in English language and (f) an A-level in mathematics at a further education college in the latest period for which figures are available. [166892]

Bill Rammell: We do not hold information on the net marginal cost of providing courses to learners in further education colleges. Colleges may identify this cost in their internal financial records but there is no requirement on them to share it with the Department or with the Learning and Skills Council.

The Learning and Skills Council funds all colleges on the basis of a national funding formula which includes base funding rates for all qualifications. The base funding rates the Learning and Skills Council will offer to further education colleges in respect of each learner undertaking the courses identified in this question in 2007-08 are:

| | Funding rate for each 16-18 year old learner in 2007-08 | Funding rate for each 19+ year old learner in 2007-08 |
|---|---|---|
| GCSE English Literature/Language/ Mathematics | 622 | [1]610 |
| A level English Literature/Language/ Mathematics | 862 | [1]845 |

[1]Colleges receive this full funding rate for 19+ year old learners eligible for full fee remission in 2007-08. Where 19+ year old learners are not eligible for full fee remission the rate offered by the Learning and Skills Council is reduced and the college will ask the learner to contribute a proportion of the course fee.

Burgess Report

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department has spent in implementing recommendations of the Burgess report since its publication. [165530]

Bill Rammell: The Department has not spent any money on implementing Burgess recommendations.

The Burgess Group's final report on proposals for national credit arrangements was published in December 2006 and the Group's final report on measuring and recording student achievement was published in October 2007. The Burgess Group was an HE sector group and the recommendations are for implementation by the HE sector. Work on the credit recommendations is being taken forward by a sector-led Credit Issues Development Group. Universities UK and Guild HE are currently considering their response to the report on measuring and recording student achievement.

On recording achievement, I welcome the proposal to develop a Higher Education Achievement Report, to help present a more complete picture of a graduate's skills and knowledge than is captured solely in the overall degree classification. However, I believe progress can best be made by building on the current system, and certainly not by replacing degree classifications. The HE sector will need to consider carefully the best way to provide the additional information, while maintaining stability in the system.

Chemistry: Graduates

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people graduated with chemistry degrees in (a) 2005 and (b) 2007. [166748]

Bill Rammell: The latest available information is shown in the table. Figures for 2006/07 will be available in January 2008.

The latest figures published by the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service (UCAS) show that the number of students who have been accepted for entry to full-time undergraduate courses in chemistry in autumn 2007 is up by nearly 9 per cent. compared to 2006, and is up by nearly 13 per cent. compared to 2005.

First degrees obtained in chemistry, English higher education institutions, academic year 2004/05 to 2005/06

|---|---|
| 2004/05 | 2,260 |
| 2005/06 | 2,110 |

Note:
Figures have been rounded to the nearest five.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what percentage of (a) beef, (b) lamb, (c) pork and (d) dairy products used in his departmental headquarters were imported products in the most recent period for which figures are available. [166651]

Mr. Lammy: For the period 1 January to 30 June 2007 the percentage of imported beef, sheep meat, pork and dairy products used within DIUS headquarters buildings was 84 per cent. of beef, 93 per cent. of lamb, 76 per cent. of pork and 7 per cent. of dairy products.

Departmental Manpower

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many civil servants in his Department and its predecessors (a) transferred to other Government Departments and (b) left the Civil Service in each of the last five years. [162728]

Mr. Lammy: The Department was formed in the Machinery of Government changes announced on 28 June 2007. Its formation involved the headcount transfer of 536 staff from the former Department for Education and Skills and 243 from the Department of Trade and Industry (total 779 staff). There have been no significant numbers of staff movements or departures since that date. The latest staffing figure for my Department is a headcount total of 761 staff or full-time equivalent of 727.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisors

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether any of his Department's special advisers have declared a conflict of interest; and if he will make a statement. [164160]

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether any of his Department's special advisers have declared a conflict of interest. [164511]

Mr. Lammy: Special advisers are appointed under terms and conditions set out in the "Model Contract for Special Advisers". Copies of the Model Contract are available in the House Libraries.

Departmental Public Participation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the likely cost of student policy juries in 2007-08. [164850]

Bill Rammell: In October, John Denham announced an ambitious listening programme which will put the voices of England's 2.3 million university students at the heart of Government. This new approach will ensure students are able to make their views and ideas heard through a range of mechanisms with Ministers responding to specific issues raised.

The student juries being run between now and Christmas are one element of the student listening programme. Costs for the five student juries, to be held in November and December 2007, have been budgeted at £20,000 in total (excluding VAT). We will also pay participants' reasonable expenses.

Departmental Publicity

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many full-time equivalent staff are responsible for brand management and marketing in his Department and its agencies. [165241]

Mr. Lammy: DIUS currently employs a team of 7.2 FTE staff who are responsible for marketing and brand management. The team is responsible for marketing campaigns through the paid-for media—TV, press, radio—such as the current Student Finance Campaign—as well as delivery of DIUS information through key channels publications and the corporate website. The team ensures that appropriate branding is visible on all DIUS communications.

National Weights and Measures Laboratory

National Weights and Measures Laboratory employs 0.4 FTE staff responsible for brand management and marketing.

Intellectual Property Office

The only marketing undertaken in the UK-IPO is in relation to commercial services where 1.6 staff are currently engaged. Brand management is a very small part of the activity—less than 0.2 FTE.

For a limited time, one person from IPO was recently seconded to support the branding of a newly formed DIUS. This secondment will cease at the end of this year.

Departmental Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what percentage of questions tabled for answer on a named day to his Department received a substantive answer on the day due in the last year for which figures are available. [162614]

Mr. Lammy: The Department's PQ tracking system is currently unable to break down the data requested and to do so would incur disproportionate cost. This Department aims to ensure that Members receive a substantive response to their named day question on the named day, and endeavours to answer ordinary written questions within a working week of being tabled. Unfortunately, this is not always possible, but this Department makes every effort to achieve these time scales.

Educational Institutions: Registration

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many colleges and other educational establishments were (a) investigated and (b) subsequently removed from the Government Register of Educational Providers in relation to immigration-related considerations in the latest period for which figures are available. [163788]

Bill Rammell: The Register of Education and Training Providers was established on 1 January 2005. Since that date, all colleges which want to recruit international students need to appear on the Register. The Home Office will not grant anyone leave to enter or remain in the UK unless he or she is studying at a provider on the Register. The operation of the Register therefore directly helps the Home Office tackle immigration abuse in the education sector.

Since 1 January 2005, 256 colleges on the Register of Education and Training Providers have been investigated by the Borders and Immigration Agency. Of these, 114 have been found to be in breach of the Immigration Rules, and therefore removed from the Register.

General Elections

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [166894]

Mr. Lammy: Officials keep under review, and update, the stock of corporate briefing. No additional briefing was prepared in respect of any prospect of a general election in the autumn. We have not been able to identify any costs incurred in relation to any preparations and do not believe that any were incurred.

Graduates: Debt

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Reading, East of 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1756W, on graduates: debt, (1) what assessment he has made of the effect of course choice on the average amount of time needed by (a) male and (b) female students in higher education to repay debts incurred during study; [166899]

(2) what assumptions about (a) the gender pay gap, (b) fertility, (c) nuptuality, (d) real earnings growth and (e) graduate income premium he made in estimating the average amount of time needed by graduates to repay debts incurred during study by (i) men and (ii) women. [166900]

Bill Rammell: We estimate that a male student who entered higher education in 2006/07 will take an average of 11 years to repay their student loan. We estimate that this will be 16 years for a female. These periods are counted from the statutory repayment due date, which is the April following the year of graduation.

The calculations are based on assumptions about graduate lifetime earnings, derived from the British Household Panel Survey and the Labour Force Survey. The calculations therefore take account of earnings growth due to career progression, gender, age and periods spent unemployed or inactive for other reasons such as having children. Real earnings growth for the graduate population as a whole is assumed to be 1.95pp above inflation.

Separate analysis of the benefits of higher education estimates that over the working life, the average net graduate earnings premium is comfortably over £100,000 in today's valuation, compared to what a similar individual would have earned if they just had A- levels.

Higher Education: Fees and Charges

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the purpose is of the Intercalating Year Abroad fee; what method is used for calculating the Intercalating Year Abroad fee; and if he will make a statement. [167057]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 22 November 2007]: English higher education institutions are permitted, under the Education (Student Support) Regulations 2007 (SI 2007 No, 176) to charge a tuition fee for a student studying abroad for a year as part of their degree course, of up to half the maximum fee for other home undergraduates. The amount actually charged is a matter for the institution. Students who spend a full academic year abroad on the European Commission's Erasmus scheme have their tuition fees waived for that year. This information applies to England only.

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what guidance his Department provides to universities on the nature, level and extent of services to be provided to students as consideration for the Intercalating Year Abroad fees levied. [167058]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 22 November 2007]: Higher education institutions are autonomous and it is up to them to determine what services they offer to students during periods spent abroad as part of their course. These will vary according to the course the student is undertaking, and whether or not the student is on a work placement or is attending another university. Higher education institutions participating in the European Commission's Erasmus scheme must have the Erasmus university charter, a document outlining an institution's responsibilities under Erasmus. The British Council, who manage Erasmus in the UK, issue an operational handbook outlining the rules higher education institutions need to abide by.

Higher Education: Romford

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what projections his Department has made of the numbers of students entering higher education in Romford over the next five years. [168425]

Bill Rammell: The Government have a target to increase participation in higher education towards 50 per cent. of those aged 18-30 with growth of at least a percentage point every two years to the academic year 2010-11. The Government do not make projections about the number of students entering higher education from specific areas.

Higher Education: Student Numbers

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when the Government expect to meet their 50 per cent. participation rate target in university education for young people aged 18 to 30 years. [161952]

Bill Rammell: Our long-term vision is that the UK should be a world leader on skills, in the upper quartile of OECD rankings by 2020, meeting the recommendations of the Leitch review. Consistent with that vision, we have set a long-term primary target to increase the proportion of the workforce with higher level skills from under 30 per cent. now to over 40 per cent. by 2020 and as a contribution towards that goal, a supporting target to increase participation in higher education towards 50 per cent. of those aged 18-30 with growth of at least a percentage point every two years to the academic year 2010-11. The precise date on which we reach these targets will depend on the outcome of future spending reviews and on continuing to increase demand for higher education among people of all ages and backgrounds who would benefit from entering higher education. Our policies will therefore continue to increase and widen participation.

Innovation

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether he plans to set up a central innovation unit in his Department. [166269]

Mr. Lammy: The Department already has an Innovation Directorate led by Dr. David Evans, Director of Innovation (who the Secretary of State has asked to lead the work in preparing a science and innovation strategy for the Department.)

Older Workers

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the types of learning required to help older people remain economically active; and if he will make a statement. [167764]

Mr. Lammy: Older people are a hugely valued part of our society, contributing more and more in later life. Almost 8 million people over 50 work and age legislation means that age need no longer be a barrier to working, training or promotion. Our economic success is increasingly dependent on our older work force being as skilled and as productive as younger workers, but too many older workers do not have the basic literacy, numeracy and work place skills they need to succeed, and too few are engaging in education and training to change that.

Our strategy for World Class Skills sets bold targets and our reforms include supporting individuals, including older workers, into sustainable employment and progression in work and in skills. We are committed to ensuring equal opportunities for all learners. Our targets cover workers and learners of all ages and our reforms balance skills and economic prosperity with fairness and inclusion. We will give greater ownership and choice to individuals over their training through skills accounts backed up by a new universal adult careers service that will provide free skills health checks for people of any age at key stages in working life.

We are also working with employers through Train to Gain and the Skills Pledge to meet skill needs and to ensure that all employees including older people have the basic skills, including literacy and numeracy and Level 2 skills (equivalent to five good GCSEs), needed to sustain and progress in employment. We are increasing funding for Train to Gain from £440 million in 2007/08 to over £900 million in 2010/11. We want to encourage all employers in England to make a Skills Pledge that is a specific promise that every eligible employee will be helped to gain basic skills and a full Level 2 qualification.

Skilled Workers: Trade Unions

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he is taking to encourage more employers to work with trade unions on developing the Skills for Life programme. [167054]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 22 November 2007]: Employers and trade unions have a key role to play in supporting people to improve their literacy, language and numeracy skills.

The Government make a contribution of £3 million each year to the Union Learning Fund to help develop a focus on Skills for Life within Union Learning Fund projects and to help give Union Learning Representatives (ULRs) the skills to support literacy, language and numeracy learners.

Our efforts to improve skills in the work force will be much more effective if they are delivered with the joint support of employers, learners and those, like trade unions, who can support learning. Through the Skills Pledge, we are encouraging employers to commit to addressing the skills needs of their employees and, in particular, people with poor basic skills and without a full Level 2 qualification.

We have a number of initiatives in place to encourage employers to address Skills for Life needs and to sign the Skills Pledge. In each case, we have encouraged partners to work with the TUC/ Unionlearn to maximise the effectiveness of addressing skills needs.

We have been working with Business in the Community (BITC) to engage large, high-profile employers since 2003. BITC have recruited over 30 senior business leaders as Employer Champions for Skills for Life and have worked with over 150 major companies including, DHL, SERCO and VT Shipbuilding.

Since 2004, BITC have run an annual Skills for Life Award recognising best practice in delivering Skills for Life programmes. Each of the award winners, and many of the runner-up entrants, has delivered programmes in its organisation in partnership with relevant trade unions.

We are working with the Skills for Business network through Asset Skills as the lead Sector Skills Council on Skills for Life. Sector Skills Councils have a role in raising awareness of literacy, language and numeracy skills among the employers they represent, in supporting them in addressing needs within their footprint and in ensuring that qualifications reflect the literacy, language and numeracy requirements of their sectors. Asset Skills has recently signed a joint agreement with Unionlearn to support joint activity on Skills for Life.

Working with the Cabinet Office and Government Skills SSC, we want to raise basic skills levels across central Government and to influence the public sector more widely. Cabinet Office consults with the relevant unions on the approach to staff development across central Government and there are a number of examples where PCS has worked closely with central Government Departments on Skills for Life—for example with the Department for Work and Pensions and Inland Revenue.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the effect on employers of their working with trades unions to improve the skills of their work forces. [167056]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 22 November 2007]: In recent years, with the help of the Union Learning Fund (ULF), trade unions and their Union Learning Representatives have been really successful in working with employers to raise skill levels in the workplace. There are now over 18,000 trained Union Learning reps who have helped over 400,000 workers back into learning since ULF was introduced in 1988. Over 150,000 last year alone, many of whom were Skills for Life learners, those most in need of new skills who employers and training providers find it so difficult to reach.

An evaluation of the Union Learning Fund (2001-05) which surveyed a range of employers involved in ULF, showed that almost two-thirds of those employers who responded had a learning agreement in place as a result of ULF and 75 per cent. reported an increase in Skills for Life learning.

Students: Public Participation

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether a formal assessment was made of the quality of student representation provided by the National Union of Students before the decision to establish the National Student Forum was taken. [163212]

Bill Rammell: The Government are strongly committed to a new style of politics and citizen engagement. We are ambitious to find new ways to engage the British people in the policy-making process through informed debate.

The Forum will not duplicate or attempt to replace the work of student representative bodies, of which the NUS is one, but will provide a new and complementary way for students to engage with policy-makers nationally. Therefore, the quality of existing representative groups is not at issue. We greatly value the representation and advocacy work of the National Union of Students, unlike the last Government who sought to decimate the NUS through the introduction of voluntary membership of student unions, and it is one of our key partners in the creation of the Forum. The Forum is intended to provide students from a wide range of personal and academic backgrounds with direct access to Government and policy-making agencies, giving a greater voice to students at a national level.

Tuberculosis: Vaccination

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether there is a funding gap for work to research and develop a new tuberculosis vaccine being undertaken in the UK, with reference to the answer of 23 May 2007, Official Report, column 1340W on tuberculosis: vaccination. [163357]

Ian Pearson: The Medical Research Council (MRC) has recognised the need to increase funding for translational research into new vaccines, including vaccines against tuberculosis, and has made £3.5 million available in 2007-08 for such research.

Vocational Training: Advisory Services

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills who is responsible for providing information on training places for adults to (a) employers and (b) jobseekers. [167163]

Mr. Lammy: Many employers already train their staff to a high degree and do not require any support in identifying training opportunities. For those employers who are unclear of where to turn we have established the Train to Gain service. Skills brokers support employers to understand their skills needs and then provide a detailed plan of how to meet those needs, including a choice of provider offering training places, often delivered on the employers premises. In addition, many training providers offer advice and support to local businesses on training places.

DWP colleagues advise that currently, Jobcentre Plus customers can access information, advice and guidance on training opportunities from NextStep, LearnDirect and, in some locations, skills coaches funded by the LSC.

Vocational Training: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many skills brokers working through the Train to Gain programme received public funding in 2006-07; what their performance targets were; how many and what value of payments were related to their performance; and how their performance was assessed and measured. [166896]

Mr. Lammy: There are around 450 Train to Gain skills brokers working in England for the LSC. Skills brokers' performance targets for 2006-07 were 47,770 employer engagements, of which at least 51 per cent. had to be "hard to reach". We define hard-to-reach as employers that are not IiP recognised and have not accessed substantial vocational training leading to a qualification within the last 12 months. The interim data for 2006-07 indicate that there were 52,370 engagements of which 72 per cent. were categorised as "hard to reach".

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how much was spent on Train to Gain brokers in 2006-07; and what percentage of the Train to Gain budget for that year this figure represents; [166897]

(2) how much he expects to be spent on Train to Gain brokers in 2007-08; and what percentage of the Train to Gain budget for the year this figure represents. [166895]

Mr. Lammy: Train to Gain is a new service that has just completed its first year of full national operation. In that time it has engaged more than 52,000 employers and resulted in more than 240,000 learners commencing training, many for the first time in their adult careers. More than 70 per cent. of the employers engaged by skills brokers are classified as hard to reach (not IiP accredited and no recorded investment at a publicly funded training provider). The total budget for Train to Gain was £288 million of which £25.4 million (8.8 per cent. of the budget) was allocated to skills brokerage. This figure included many one-off set up costs associated with this new mechanism for engaging with employers. The overall budget for Train to Gain has increased to £430 million with expenditure on skills brokers remaining constant at around £24 million (5.8 per cent. of the budget). From April 2009, skills brokerage will be integrated with the information, diagnostic and brokerage services delivered through Business Link.

Vocational Training: Oxfordshire

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many (a) companies and (b) organisations in Oxfordshire have signed the Skills Pledge. [167174]

Mr. Lammy: The Skills Pledge is a voluntary public commitment by the leadership of a company or organisation to support all its employees to develop their basic skills including literacy and numeracy, and work towards relevant valuable qualifications to at least level 2 (equivalent to five good GCSEs). If companies or organisations want to go beyond this and extend the commitment to help staff gain wider skills and additional qualifications as well that is welcome. The Skills Pledge is open to all employers in England.

As at November 2007, the available information indicated that there were six companies or organisations in Oxfordshire which have signed the Skills Pledge. We do not collect separate information on companies or organisations.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many Train to Gain places have been made available in the (a) Banbury and (b) Oxford travel to work areas. [167175]

Mr. Lammy: Train to Gain is a major aspect of the drive to create a demand-led service and does not generate places in the traditional sense. Through Train to Gain, employers can access the advice and support they need to help them identify and then meet the skills their businesses need to succeed. We do not collect information on travel to work areas. In the first year of its operation, there were a total of 853 learners funded through Train to Gain in the wards of Banbury and Oxford. The breakdown was as follows: Banbury 433, East Oxford 302 and West Oxford 118.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Local Policing

12. Chris Bryant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to increase transparency and accountability in arrangements for local policing. [167492]

Mr. McNulty: We are strongly committed to increasing transparency and accountability in arrangements for local policing, from giving local communities a better opportunity to shape local policing priorities and the response to those priorities through the roll-out of neighbourhood policing, to our plans to provide every community with monthly crime information for their local area.

We want to build further on this progress, and that is why we asked Sir Ronnie Flanagan to look specifically at how local accountability arrangements could be strengthened as part of his Independent Review of Policing, the final report of which we look forward to in the new year.

Migration

13. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had with ministerial colleagues on the co-ordination of migration policy between Government Departments. [167493]

Mr. Byrne: Home Office Ministers discuss migration policy with ministerial colleagues on a regular basis through the Cabinet Committee structure, in particular the Ministerial Committee for Domestic Affairs Sub-Committee on Migration.

Several Government Departments are represented on the Migration Advisory Committee and the Migration Impact Forum.

We also work closely with individual Departments on a range of more specific issues relating to migration policy. For example, in June 2007 we published our joint Home Office/Foreign Office International Strategy on migration.

Security Staff

14. Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made identifying security staff working illegally. [167494]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary on 13 November on Security Industry Authority licensing checks and the issue of entitlement to work in the UK. The Home Secretary instigated a retrospective check of all non-EEA licences and will make a further statement when that is complete.

Identity Cards

15. Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the likely effect of the introduction of identity cards on the incidence of crimes related to identity fraud. [167495]

Meg Hillier: Our plans for a National Identity Scheme will provide people with a secure means of protecting their identity and help citizens to prove their identities easily, quickly, simply and with vastly improved security. It is considered that this will have a significant impact upon identity fraud.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when passports will become designated documents under section 4 of the Identity Cards Act 2006. [166098]

Jacqui Smith: No decision has been taken yet on the timetable for the designation of passports and this will require approval by Parliament of an order under section 4 of the Identity Cards Act 2006.

Cannabis

16. John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research she has commissioned on trends in the use of cannabis. [167496]

Mr. Coaker: The British Crime Survey provides consistent trend data on the use of cannabis. Since the launch of the Government's Drug Strategy in 1998 the survey has shown a reduction in the level of cannabis use.

Terrorist Suspects: Detention

17. Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the reasons were for the increases in periods of detention before charge for terrorist suspects introduced in each of the last 10 years. [167497]

Mr. McNulty: The increases in the maximum period of pre-charge detention for terrorist suspects in the last 10 years have been agreed by Parliament on the basis that they were needed for operational reasons.

20. Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations she has received on proposals to increase the maximum period of detention, of terrorist suspects without charge beyond 28 days. [167500]

Mr. McNulty: We have undertaken an extensive consultation on extending the maximum period of pre-charge detention for terrorist suspects and have received representations from a range of stakeholders, including the police, civil liberty groups, the judiciary and wider community groups.

Border Security

18. Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the potential contribution of the e-borders scheme to the security of the UK's borders. [167498]

Mr. Byrne: The e-borders programme is a key component of our wider strategy to strengthen and modernise our border control and will mean that we will be able to count people in and out of the country.

It sits as part of our programme to introduce biometric visas, and a visa waiver programme to provide the UK with a new and robust offshore border control designed to complement the UK counter-terrorism strategy.

In developing e-borders, we have undertaken a thorough assessment of the requirements of the core agencies, including the Border and Immigration Agency, UKvisas, HM Revenue and Customs, the police service and the security and intelligence agencies.

E-borders is already being successfully tested and trialled through an operational prototype. Since November 2004, Project Semaphore has generated nearly 17,000 alerts and over 1,300 arrests.

Government Advisers

22. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will take steps to ensure that religious leaders who are advising on Government policy do not have an extremist background. [167502]

Mr. McNulty: The Government have made clear that they are fundamentally rebalancing their engagement with Muslim organisations towards those organisations which take a leadership role in rejecting and condemning violent extremism and upholding shared values. That will be the guiding principle in engaging with religious leaders who advise Government.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

23. Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of antisocial behaviour orders in reducing antisocial behaviour in the last 12 months. [167503]

Mr. Coaker: Three independent reports have confirmed that our approach to tackling antisocial behaviour is working. Also, we have appointed IPSOS Mori to undertake a qualitative study investigating the circumstances in which different antisocial behaviour interventions are most effective. Antisocial behaviour orders are just one of these. The outcome is to be published in 2008.

Youth Crime

24. Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of levels of youth crime. [167504]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available from the Home Office recorded crime statistics. This data series solely covers offences recorded by the police and no details of the alleged offenders are collected. The Home Office's Offending Crime and Justice Survey 2006 gives figures for young people's self-reported offending. According to this research, 24 per cent. of 10 to 17-year-olds committed an offence in the 12 months prior to the survey.

Immigration

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her latest estimate is of the number of people held in detention under immigration law. [167501]

Mr. Byrne: As at 29 September 2007, 2,325 persons were recorded as being in detention in the UK solely under Immigration Act powers.

Alcoholic Drinks: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department is taking to reduce alcohol-related antisocial behaviour in Chelmsford. [167064]

Mr. Coaker: We are strongly committed to tackling, not tolerating, antisocial behaviour. That is why local crime and disorder reduction partnerships were introduced under the Crime and Disorder Act 1998. These enable the police, local authorities and other agencies representing the local community to work together to identify the crime and disorder problems in their area and take action to tackle them.

Specifically in Chelmsford, a Section 30 Dispersal Order was introduced in Chelmsford Town Centre on 15 November; the police carry out high visibility patrols; the licensing laws are enforced; a Pub Link Scheme is in operation; educational programmes are in place for young people and adults, and Chelmsford also has a local Drug and Alcohol Strategy which is being reviewed for 2008.

Antisocial Behaviour: Criminal Proceedings

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government have taken to provide support to victims and witnesses of antisocial behaviour before, during and after relevant court proceedings. [162985]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office is responsible for the policy on antisocial behaviour. The Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 introduced special measures for witnesses in proceedings for antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs). These measures were introduced to address concerns about the protection of vulnerable and intimidated witnesses. The measures include screening witnesses from the defendants, giving evidence through video link or in private, and the use of video recorded evidence. This makes it easier for witnesses to give evidence in the Crown and magistrates court during an ASBO hearing. Special dedicated antisocial behaviour response courts have been established in magistrates courts sitting in their civil capacity to ensure that witness issues are addressed. Local agencies have also developed efficient case management systems which includes working in partnership with key agencies to provide support to victims after court proceedings. In addition the Home Office has issued a good practice guide to practitioners on how best to support victims and witnesses of antisocial behaviour through the whole length of the witness pathway. A range of detailed guidance is set out on our website at:

http://www.respect.gov.uk/members/article.aspx?id=8342

Antisocial Behaviour: West Midlands

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government have taken to reduce levels of antisocial behaviour in the West Midlands since 1997. [162984]

Mr. Conker: We are strongly committed to tackling, not tolerating, antisocial behaviour. That is why local crime and disorder reduction partnerships were introduced under the Crime and Disorder Act 1998. These enable the police, local authorities and other agencies representing the local community to work together to identify the crime and disorder problems in their area and take action to tackle them.

Antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) were introduced in 1999 and the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 created a range of additional tools for tackling antisocial behaviour and we are working hard across Government and with agencies on the ground to ensure that the measures that are already in place are being used as effectively as possible. Presently, the Home Office is reviewing and updating the current guidance for the tools and powers available to practitioners.

Specifically in the West Midlands; Coventry has established a multi-agency tasking process to ensure police, housing and local authority resources, including the citywide warden service are deployed in the right areas. Wolverhampton has established a dedicated phone line to allow members of the public to tackle antisocial behaviour and in Birmingham the local authority has implemented a Family Intervention Project, run by Shelter, and has appointed a parenting co-ordinator to deliver evidence based parenting programmes across the city. The Local Government User Satisfaction Survey (LGUSS) shows that the vast majority of local authorities in the West Midlands have seen a significant reduction in the levels of perception of antisocial behaviour in 2006-07 compared with 2003-04. The data from this survey can be found on the Respect website at:

www.respect.gov.uk

Anti-Terrorism Control Orders

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assistance individuals subject to control orders receive with their living costs. [162208]

Mr. McNulty: Individuals subject to control orders are not routinely prevented from taking employment or from receiving state benefits, including where appropriate, job seekers allowance, housing benefit and asylum support. However, if the terms of a control order prevent an individual gaining employment or render him ineligible for other benefits, the Home Office will make necessary subsistence payments.

If an individual subject to a control order is required to move from their current residence, the Home Office may provide suitable alternative accommodation and pay council tax and utility costs.

In some circumstances, the Home Office may pay the line rental for a telephone and/or provide pre-paid telephone cards. This may be appropriate where a controlled person is prohibited by the terms of the control order from using telephones outside his residence and/or using mobile telephones.

All control order obligations are tailored to the individual concerned and in each case must be necessary and proportionate for purposes connected with preventing or restricting involvement by that individual in terrorism-related activity.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether any of the individuals who have been subjected to control orders have been treated for self-inflicted injuries. [162210]

Mr. McNulty: Since control orders came into force in 2005, we are aware of two individuals who have been treated for self-inflicted injuries while on a control order. The Home Office, police and (as appropriate) the Prison Service take the mental and physical health of all individuals subject to a control order seriously. This includes monitoring the impact of the control order on the individual's (and his family's) physical and mental health; seeking representations from the individual on the impact of the control order on him and his family; and regularly reviewing the control order and its constituent obligations in the light of the order's impact on the individual's personal circumstances.

Arrests

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many arrests on average were made by each police officer in (a) England and Wales and (b) each police force area in each year since 1997. [167098]

Mr. McNulty: Information on arrest rates is not collected centrally and is a matter for each police force.

British Nationality: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many citizenship ceremonies have taken place in Northern Ireland in each of the last 12 months; and how many people have become British subjects at these ceremonies, broken down by country of birth. [166207]

Mr. Byrne: A total of 31 citizenship ceremonies were held in Northern Ireland during the last 12 months. 520 people became British citizens at these ceremonies. A full breakdown by month and nationality is as follows.

A table giving the full breakdown of ceremonies by month and nationality has been deposited in the House of Commons Library.

The information has been provided from local management information and is not a National Statistic. As such, it should be treated as provisional and therefore subject to change.

Children: Protection

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many specialist child protection officers have been employed in each police force area in each of the last five years. [165670]

Mr. McNulty: Figures collected by the Home Office, on police officer and staff numbers by function, do not separately identify child protection officers.

Commissioner of the Police for the Metropolis

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what meetings she had with the Commissioner of the Police for the Metropolis in each week since June 2007; what the (a) location and (b) duration of each meeting was; whether a record of each meeting was kept; who attended each meeting; what the cost was of each meeting, broken down by (i) administrative and (ii) other costs; and if she will make a statement. [167397]

Mr. McNulty: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary and I have regular meetings with the Metropolitan Police Commissioner to discuss official business.

Community Relations

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what training is being provided to neighbourhood police teams on dealing with radicalisation in their local communities; where such courses are delivered; and what the duration of such courses is. [165839]

Mr. McNulty: I refer to the reply I gave on 19 November 2007, Official Report, column 504-05W to my hon. Friend, the Member for Rotherham (Mr. MacShane).

In addition to the advice and training already available to Neighbourhood Policing Teams, some also receive bespoke 'Intelligence and Community Engagement' training, which examines the issues relating to neighbourhood policing teams' engagement with local communities. This training, which lasts a day and is delivered in force, is being piloted in four police forces and consideration is now being given to its wider dissemination. Police personnel are also able to learn about how to deal with radicalisation through a specific internet website.

The National Policing Improvement Agency is currently completing a major Training Needs Analysis for Counter-Terrorism which includes an analysis of training needs in the areas of radicalisation and extremism. The new learning programme will be available in 2008.

Community Support Officers: Manpower

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers there were in each of the last four years in each police force area. [165674]

Mr. McNulty: Figures for the four years from 31 March 2004 to 31 March 2007, the most recent published period, are given in the following table.

Police community support officer strength[1] (FTE)[2] by police force: 31 March 2004 to 31 March 2007

[2] Full-time equivalent includes those on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave.
[3] Strength figures as at 31 March 2005 onwards include those staff on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave. Therefore these figures are not comparable with those provided for other years in the table.

Crime

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many investigations resulted in the police taking no further action in (a) England and Wales and (b) each police force area in each of the last three years; and if she will make a statement. [167100]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not collected centrally. The Home Office collects information on the number of offences recorded and detected by the police but no information is held on the actual number of investigations undertaken by the police.

Departmental Buildings

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent by her Department on renovation and refurbishment of its properties in each of the last five years. [164370]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Opinion Polls

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what opinion polls the Department has conducted of (a) the public and (b) staff since 27 June 2007; and what the (i) name of the firm employed to conduct the poll, (ii) purpose and (iii) cost to the public purse was in each case. [164959]

Mr. Byrne: The information is as follows.

(a) Since 27 June 2007 the Department has conducted one wave of public opinion polling across a broad range of Home Office issues, of during August 2007. This polling was carried out by Ipsos MORI, at a cost of £13,875 (ex VAT).

The polling was used to give the Department a better understanding of public priorities, concerns and satisfaction levels. This will help direct the Department's strategy and future policy initiatives.

(b) The Home Office headquarters, Border and Immigration Agency and Identity and Passport Service have not conducted any opinion polls of staff since 27 June 2007. The Criminal Records Bureau employed the research company Ipsos MORI to conduct a staff survey between 10 and 28 September 2007. This is an annual consultation exercise with staff to gain feedback on any issues of concern that senior management can take steps to address and it was undertaken at a cost of £25,000.

Departmental Publicity

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department and its agencies spent on managing their corporate identities in the last 12-month period for which figures are available. [167351]

Mr. Byrne: Over the past 12 months £77,069 has been spent on managing corporate identity when Border and Immigration Agency became a shadow executive agency.

Departmental Wines

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will take steps to ensure that English wine is served exclusively or at the request of guests at meals, parties and receptions hosted by her Department; and if she will make a statement. [164287]

Mr. Byrne: All public procurement procedures must comply with the EC treaty. The key principles of the treaty, from a public procurement point of view, are the free movement of goods and services, and non-discrimination on the grounds of nationality. This legislation is designed to ensure that all public procurement across the European Union is fair, transparent and non-discriminatory.

This means that the Home Department cannot specify that it will buy goods (eg wine) only from a particular country or locality, as that would discriminate against producers from other EU member states.

However, the Government are committed to increase opportunities for small and local suppliers to tender for contracts, thus increasing competition and securing better value for money. The Home Office does this by advertising contracts on the Home Office eSourcing Portal www.homeoffice.bravosolution.com which reduces bureaucracy in the procurement process.

The facility management contractor for the Department's headquarters building includes a number of English wines on its hospitality menu for selection at departmental functions.

Drugs: Misuse

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what drugs programmes are administered by her Department; and what the budget for each was for the last five years for which figures are available. [164798]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office is responsible for administering the national sports-based Positive Futures social inclusion Programme, Blueprint drug research programme and the Drug Interventions Programme. The Home Office is also jointly responsible with the Department of Health and Department for Children, Schools and Families for the management of the FRANK drug awareness campaign. The Home Office also contributes to and manages the cross-Government Young People Substance Misuse Partnership Grant.

Total expenditure on these drugs programme was captured within the Home Office departmental report for 2006-07 on our previous strategic objective that fewer people's lives are ruined by drugs and alcohol. The relevant figures are set out as follows, including outturn figures for 2006-07 where an estimate was published previously:

|---|---|---|
| | Resource | Capital |
| Outturn | | |
| 2003-04 | 96,351 | 0 |
| 2004-05 | 206,904 | 2,174 |
| 2005-06 | 184,468 | 800 |
| 2006-07 | 211,472 | 20,272 |
| Planned | | |
| 2007-08 | 192,876 | 1,500 |

Notes:
1. 2004-05 includes net in-year budget transfers of about £24,000, which were subsequently processed in line with PES 2005 12.
2. 2006-07 includes £17,459 misallocated capital that is being corrected.
3. 2006-07 and 2007-08 figures both exclude £11,273 resource disbursed as grants under local area agreements and now classified separately on the HM Treasury database.

Entry Clearances: Employment

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of the number of A2 nationals likely to enter the UK for employment purposes annually (a) under existing arrangements; and (b) following full right of access under EU law. [162669]

Mr. Byrne: The Border and Immigration Agency has not made any estimates of the number of A2 nationals likely to enter the UK for employment purposes following full right of access under EU law. Figures on migration since January 2007 are available in the quarterly releases of Romanian and Bulgarian accession statistics which can be found on the BIA website http://www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk/aboutus/reports/bulgarianandromanianaccession.

I will place in the House Library copies of the most recent quarterly release.

Harassment: Complaints

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints of (a) sexual and (b) racial harassment were received by the Metropolitan Police in each year since 1997. [167414]

Mr. McNulty: This is a matter for the Metropolitan police.

Human Trafficking

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions her Department has had with the Scottish Executive on Operation Pentameter 2. [167181]

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what (a) advice and (b) resources would be made available to local authorities in addressing the problems of increased mortality as a consequence of an influenza pandemic; and if she will make a statement; [164973]

(2) if she will make a statement on the development of policy for the handling and management of the deceased as a consequence of increased mortality during any future pandemic influenza outbreak; when she plans to issue revised guidance; and what discussions she has had with devolved authorities on the co-ordination of policy. [164844]

Mr. McNulty: On 30 August 2007, the Home Office published Planning for a possible Influenza Pandemic—A framework for planners preparing to manage deaths, for consultation. This draft document provides guidance to local authority planners faced with the task of managing excess fatalities in the event of pandemic influenza. It was produced by the Home Office in consultation with a working group representing all the Departments involved in this task together with the Local Government Association, the Faith Communities Consultative Council and representatives of the funeral industry. Representatives of the devolved Administrations also attend the working group.

After the close of the consultation period on 30 November 2007, we will consider the views of respondents and the need for any revisions to the document. The Departments with responsibility for processes such as medical certification of the cause of death; and burial and cremation certification will issue guidelines to their operational counterparts in light of the consultation. We will ensure that local authorities are informed of any changes and make revisions to the publication during the first quarter of 2008. It is not proposed that additional resources for managing excess deaths will be made available to local authorities during an influenza pandemic.

Missing People: Finance

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funding her Department provided to the charity Missing People in 2006-07; how much has been provided for 2007-08; and what the allocation will be in 2008-09. [167128]

Mr. McNulty: In 2006-07, the Home Office provided funding of £600,000 to Missing People with an additional £300,000 one-off payment. In 2007-08, £600,000 has again been provided from the Home Office to the charity. The baseline budget proposed for funds to Missing People from the Home Office in 2008-09 is £600,000, but this allocation is subject to final decision by Ministers.

National Missing Persons Bureau

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information technology equipment and resources are available to the police National Missing Persons Bureau. [167147]

Mr. McNulty: The Police National Missing Persons Bureau (PNMPB) currently use a Metropolitan Police Service system called Merlin to record and search records of missing persons. They also have access to PNC (Police National Computer) to carry out checks on missing/wanted persons and utilise open source facilities such as the internet and electoral roll for various searches. The PNMPB has responsibility for the UKMissingkids.com website and, therefore, has the requisite software to host this site.

In April 2008, the PNMPB will transfer to the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA). From this time, accessibility to technology and resources will be significantly enhanced. The NPIA is implementing Hermes as the database for the PNMPB. Hermes is a purpose-built database developed and implemented in to the Missing People charity through the Invest to Save Initiative in 2004-05. The shared technology between the bureau and the charity will facilitate effective transfer of data between the two organisations and collaborative efforts on research and analysis projects.

The PNMPB, under the NPIA, will also have access to, and be able to search, the PNC. In addition, the bureau will be able to triangulate reports of missing persons with serious offences and the activities of sexual and dangerous offenders by having direct access to ViSOR (Violent and Sex Offender Register), INI (IMPACT Nominal Index) and SCAS (Serious Crime Analysis Section) data. They will also be able to access the child homicide database CATCHEM (Central Analytical Team Collating Homicide Expertise and Management), the National Injuries Database, and liaise with the National DNA Database custodian—the NPIA.

National Missing Persons Bureau: Manpower

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff work for the police National Missing Persons Bureau; and at what grade. [167129]

Mr. McNulty: The Police National Missing Persons Bureau is currently staffed by Metropolitan Police Service employees as follows:

1 x band D

2 x full-time band E, plus 1 x part-time (3 days per week) band E

1 x band E currently on maternity leave and being covered by agency staff.

The bureau is overseen by a band C member of staff who is able to commit one fifth of his working hours to this role due to his other responsibilities.

In April 2008, the PNMPB will transfer to the National Policing Improvement Agency. From this time, the staffing structure will become:

1 x Bureau Manager, grade 3a

1 x Police Liaison Officer, seconded police sergeant, or civilian grade 2b

1 x Strategic Analyst, grade 2b

1 x Tactical Analyst, grade 2b

6 x Intelligence Officers, grade 1b

The bureau will be headed up by a grade 3b member of staff who also heads the Serious Crime Analysis Section.

National Security

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the review by Lord West on the protection of strategic infrastructure assessed potential vulnerabilities of (a) civil nuclear installations, (b) military nuclear sites and (c) the national electricity grid. [166326]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary's statement of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 44-45 WS.

The review addressed the programme of work to protect the electricity sector and other parts of the critical national infrastructure. Lord West also considered the protective security framework for civil nuclear power stations, responsibility for which falls to the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform. However, the review did not address protective security for military nuclear sites, responsibility for which falls to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department from which Government Departments the 160 counter-terrorism advisers she announced in her statement of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-72, on national security, will be sourced. [167387]

Mr. McNulty: Counter-terrorism security advisers are employed by police forces.

Offenders: Deportation

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to the Prime Minister's oral statement of 14 November on national security, to which countries the 4,000 foreign prisoners referred to are to be deported. [165835]

Mr. Byrne: Nationals of all countries can be considered for deportation. The Chief Executive of the Border and Immigration Agency, Lin Homer, wrote to the Home Affairs Committee on 20 November 2007 and explained that up to the first week of November, approximately 3,500 foreign national prisoners have been removed or deported in 2007. This already represents a 48 per cent. improvement on the total number of FNPs removed for the entire calendar year of 2006, and over 130 per cent. more than for the calendar years 2004 and 2005. A copy of this letter is available from the Library of the House.

Passports: Fraud

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps are being taken to manage people who arrive at airports in the UK without the passports with which they checked in at their departure airport. [165572]

Mr. Byrne: All arriving passengers are subjected to a Border and Immigration Agency Warnings Index check. Where the passenger does not hold a passport, they are subject to further examination in order satisfactorily to establish their identity and nationality. Additional checks may also be conducted including checks with the police, Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs, UKVisas and the Identity and Passport Service.

Passengers who arrive without documentation and claim asylum are interviewed, photographed and have their fingerprints taken; their personal details are cross-checked against records.

Where a passenger arrives without a document and the inbound flight details are not known, inquiries are conducted in order to establish the carrier and to identify if there are any grounds to suspect that the passenger's entry has been facilitated by a third party. If such a party is detected then prosecution under section 25 of the Immigration Act 1971 (as amended) may follow.

Foreign nationals who arrive undocumented and are unable to provide a statutory defence for their actions may have committed an offence under section 2 of the Asylum and Immigration (Treatment of Claimants) Act 2004 and may be prosecuted accordingly.

Police

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police forces operate a system of named local police officers. [165663]

Mr. McNulty: The full implementation of Neighbourhood Policing is due to be completed by April 2008 when all 43 police forces in England and Wales will have local neighbourhood policing teams covering their entire force area.

Police forces, where such a Neighbourhood Policing team is fully in place, will aim to provide the names of individual neighbourhood policing team members together with their team contact details through written updates to the local community (such as local policing summaries) and individual police force websites. Police forces are also currently looking at other ways of conveying this information to the general public through a range of publicity material.

(2) whether information on the size of the routine police presence at (a) designated and (b) non-designated airports is held centrally. [168505]

Mr. McNulty: The uniformed police contribution to airport security in the UK is a local matter for the airport operator and the police force for the area concerned. Whether an airport is designated or not, neither party is required routinely to provide information centrally on the police presence.

Police: Allowances

[1] This table contains full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number. Because of rounding, there may be an apparent discrepancy between totals and the sums of the constituent items.
[2] Full-time equivalent excludes those on career breaks or maternity leave.
[3] Figures for 1997 to March 2002 exclude those officers on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave. Therefore figures after March 2002 are not directly comparable with prior years.
[4] Figures from April 2002 onwards include those officers who are on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave. Therefore figures before and after that date are not directly comparable.
[5] Boundary changes on 1 April 2000 transferred some resources from the Metropolitan police to Essex, Hertfordshire and Surrey police forces.
[6] Officers per 100,000 population for City of London and Metropolitan police are combined.

Police: Misrepresentation

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were charged with wasting police time, other than by making malicious complaints against the police, in each police force area in England and Wales in each year since 1997. [167018]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not held centrally. Wasting police time by giving false reports is a summary offence and is not included in the Home Office recorded crime statistics.

Police: Rural Areas

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on her policy for rural policing. [166965]

Mr. McNulty: The full implementation of Neighbourhood Policing is due to be completed by April 2008 when all 43 police forces in England and Wales will have local neighbourhood policing teams covering their entire force area. Neighbourhood policing is designed to be tailored to the priorities and needs of local communities whether they are urban or rural.

The NPIA National Neighbourhood Policing Programme Team is in the final process of designing a guide to assist practitioners at all levels in the service in delivering and sustaining neighbourhood policing within rural communities. This is identifying and addressing neighbourhood priorities, improving engagement and delivering safer neighbourhoods where people have confidence in the police and their partners to deal with the issues that affect them directly.

"Building Communities, Beating Crime" provided a vision of a police service that is both accessible and responsive to the needs of the citizen. "Neighbourhood Policing—Your Police, Your Community, Our Commitment" sets out the plans to deliver a neighbourhood policing team in every area by 2008. This guide will assist in making the vision and plans a reality.

Police: Stun Guns

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions Taser stun guns have been (a) drawn, (b) arced as a demonstration warning, (c) applied in a drive stun and (d) fired by each police force since 2003. [165669]

Mr. McNulty: Five police forces in England and Wales started trialling the use of Taser in April 2003. In September 2004 my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary approved chief officers throughout England and Wales to deploy Taser to authorised firearms officers in their force where a firearms authority has been granted in accordance with criteria laid down in the ACPO Manual of Guidance on Police Use of Firearms.

Since 20 July 2007 authorised police firearms officers in England and Wales have been able to deploy Taser in operations or incidents where the use of firearms is not authorised, but where they are facing violence or threats of violence of such severity that they would need to use force to protect the public, themselves or the subject. The deployment of Taser by specially trained police units who are not firearms officers, but who are facing similar threats of violence, is also being trialled in 10 police forces. The 12-month trial began on 1 September 2007.

The use of Taser by police forces in England and Wales has been provided by the Association of Chief Police Officers and is shown in the following table. The figures in the table do not include uses by authorised firearms officers outside a firearms operation or in the trial by specially trained units. These figures have not yet been centrally collated and verified.

Terrorism: Control Orders

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females issued with control orders under the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 have absconded, broken down by age group; and how many were subsequently re-captured in each year since the Act came into force. [167431]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the hon. Gentleman to written ministerial statements in relation to control orders published on 11 December 2006, 16 January 2007, 22 March 2007, 24 May 2007, 21 June 2007 and 17 September 2007.

Terrorism: Convictions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many (a) males and (b) females were (i) prosecuted and (ii) convicted of terrorist-related offences in each of the last five years, broken down by age group; [167424]

(2) how many (a) males and (b) females who were (i) prosecuted and (ii) convicted of terrorist-related offences were resident in Southend in each of the last five years. [167425]

Mr. McNulty: We do not collate this information in the format requested.

Statistics compiled from police records show that between 11 September 2001 and 31 March 2007, 1,228 arrests were made under the Terrorism Act 2000 or under other legislation, where the investigation was conducted as a terrorist investigation. Of those charged 41 were convicted under the Terrorism Act and 183 under other legislation including conspiracy to murder.

This information can be found on the Home Office website:

Terrorism: Detainees

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Answer of 13 November 2007, Official Report, column 86W, on terrorism detainees, how many of the eight people detained and charged were charged with terrorism offences only. [165946]

Mr. McNulty: All eight individuals were charged with terrorism-related offences. However, not all offences with which suspected terrorists may be charged are necessarily contained in the Terrorism Act. Many are charged with offences under other legislation such as the Firearms Act or the Explosives Substances Act. The breakdown of charges for the eight individuals is listed as follows:

| 2. | 1x Preparation of Terrorist Acts (Sec 5 (1) TACT 2006)1x Possession of a Prohibited Weapon (Sec 5.1 Firearms Act 1968)1x Possession of ammunition (Sec 1.1b Firearms Act 1968)1x Possession of a silencer without a firearms licence (Sec 1.1b Firearms Act 1968) |
| 3. | 1x Having information about acts of terrorism (Sec 38b (1)(a) and (2) TACT 2000 |
| 4. | 1 x Preparation of Terrorist Acts (Sec 5 (1) TACT 2006) |
| 5. | 1x Conspiracy to Murder (Sec 1 (1) Criminal Law Act 1977)1x Preparation of Terrorist Acts (Sec 5 (1) TACT 2006) |

| 8. | 1x Conspiracy to cause explosions (Section 3 (1a) of the Explosives Substances Act 1883) |

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what international comparisons of detention without charge limits she has made between the UK and (a) European, (b) North American and (c) Commonwealth countries; and if she will place the information in the Library. [168495]

Mr. McNulty: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs published a document entitled "Counter-Terrorism Legislation and Practice: A Survey of Selected Countries" in October 2005. This can be found at: www.fco.gov.uk/Files/kfile/QSpercent20Draftpercent2010percent20FINAL1.pdf. We remain informed on the counter-terrorism legislative systems of other countries.

Tobacco: Young People

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) police cautions and (b) fines were issued to (i) confectioners and tobacconists and (ii) other retailers selling tobacco products to those aged under 16 years in each year since 1997; what the average fine levied was in each year; and how many such offences were recorded in each year. [166837]

Mr. McNulty: Information on the number of recorded offences of retailers selling tobacco products to those aged under 16 years is not collected centrally.

This is a summary offence and is not included in the police recorded crime statistics.

Statistics on the number of police cautions issued, the number of fines imposed and the average fines have been provided by the Ministry of Justice and are given in the table for 1997 to 2005. No information is collected centrally to distinguish between confectionists, tobacconists and other retailers. Data for 2006 are due for publication in late November.

West Yorkshire Police: Rescue Services

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the West Yorkshire Police Service has a duty to respond to water rescue; and if she will make a statement. [166279]

Mr. McNulty: This is a matter for the Chief Constable of West Yorkshire Police.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Land Mines

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in clearing the land area and area contaminated by mines and unexploded ordnance in Afghanistan in accordance with the Afghanistan Compact. [167420]

Mr. Malik: I have been asked to reply.

Through the Afghanistan Compact and the Afghanistan National Development Strategy (ANDS) the Government of Afghanistan is committed to 'reducing the area of land contaminated by mines and unexploded ordnance (UXO) by 70 per cent. by 2010'.

Estimates at the end of May 2007 put total contaminated land in Afghanistan at 778 square kilometres. Despite a shortfall in funding for demining activities during 2006, 133 square kilometres of previously contaminated land was cleared. This exceeded the target set by the mine action programme for Afghanistan (MAPA) of 110 square kilometres of land to be cleared each year in order to meet the Compact benchmark. The Government of Afghanistan is confident in its ability to meet the target it has set for itself.

The Government of Afghanistan was, however, unable to meet its international treaty (Ottawa convention) obligation on the destruction of stockpiled anti-personnel landmines by 1 March 2007. It has subsequently set out in the Afghanistan Compact to 'destroy all remaining stockpiled anti-personnel mines by the end of 2007' and is confident that the two remaining stockpiles, located in the Panjshir Province, will be destroyed by this new deadline.

Afghanistan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what percentage of UK aid to Afghanistan was channelled through (a) the core budget of the Government of Afghanistan, (b) UN-administered trust funds and (c) UK administered projects in the latest period for which figures are available. [167252]

Mr. Malik: I have been asked to reply.

76 per cent. of DFID's 2006-07 bilateral aid budget for Afghanistan was channelled through the core budget of the Government of Afghanistan.

Less than 1 per cent. of DFID's 2006-07 bilateral aid budget for Afghanistan was channelled through UN-administered trust funds.

The remainder, approximately 23 per cent. of DFID's 2006-07 bilateral aid budget for Afghanistan was channelled through UK administered projects.

Afghanistan: Reconstruction

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received from the Afghan Government on improved international co-ordination of reconstruction and development assistance to Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [167262]

Mr. Malik: I have been asked to reply.

My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for International Development, discussed international co-ordination of reconstruction and development assistance with president Karzai during his visit to the UK in October. They discussed the Afghan National Development strategy (ANDS), due to be published in March 2008, and agreed that this strategy will encourage greater donor co-ordination. In addition, the Foreign Secretary and the Secretary of State for International Development also discussed this issue with president Karzai and other representatives of the Government of Afghanistan during their visits to Afghanistan earlier this year.

It is critical for Afghanistan's future development that the donor community co-ordinates its assistance in support of Afghan Government priorities. Co-ordination of international assistance and improved effectiveness of aid is a major objective of DFID's policy support to Afghanistan. This is why DFID Ministers and officials are regularly engaged in dialogue with the Government of Afghanistan on the development of the ANDS and the most appropriate way for the international community to support it. In recent weeks both the Afghan Minister of Education and the Deputy Minister of Finance have visited DFID and discussed this issue along with others.

Azerbaijan: Politics and Government

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the ability of (a) opposition politicians, (b) the media, (c) members of the judiciary and (d) other representatives of civil society in Azerbaijan to be able to operate free from Government interference or pressure; and if he will make a statement. [166751]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We have serious concerns on these issues and regularly raise them at all levels with the Government of Azerbaijan. The EU last reviewed progress on the EU European Neighbourhood Policy Action Plan for Azerbaijan with members of the Government of Azerbaijan on 18 October 2007. The EU underlined the importance of the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms, as well as identifying further steps to strengthen democracy and media freedom.

Despite some positive legislative reform, freedom of expression and freedom of the media has deteriorated significantly in the last two years. A number of journalists have been jailed under criminal libel laws that have restricted debate. Others have faced harassment and beatings. We have raised these issues and specific cases regularly with the authorities, most recently with the Minister for Foreign Affairs.

The Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) and Council of Europe have identified a number of shortcomings in the judicial system. The Ministry of Justice has taken important steps to improve the training of judges, but there is still significant room for improvement.

The political Opposition faces impediments to its ability to operate freely. Together with international partners, we have stressed to the Government of Azerbaijan how important it is that the forthcoming Presidential elections are held in full compliance with the commitments undertaken to the EU, OSCE/Office for Democratic Institutions and Human Rights and Council of Europe.

Azerbaijan: Prisoners

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Azerbaijan on the prison conditions of (a) Farhad Aliev and (b) Rafig Aliev; and if he will make a statement. [166750]

Mr. Jim Murphy: As my right hon. Friend the Member for Ashfield (Mr. Hoo), then Minister for Europe stated in his reply to the hon. Member's question on this subject on 16 January 2007, Official Report, column 991W, we reminded the Government of Azerbaijan of the need to respect the right of access to appropriate medical care, in light of concerns about Farhad Aliev's health. Through international bodies, including the EU and Council of Europe, we continue to raise our concerns about overall prison conditions with the Government of Azerbaijan. The authorities in Azerbaijan are working with international partners to make improvements to conditions and health care in their prisons. While improvements have been made, overall conditions remain a concern.

Belgium: Politics and Government

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Belgium. [167400]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Negotiations to form a new Government in Belgium continue, following elections earlier this year. We continue to work closely with the current Belgian Government and look forward to working with the new Government when negotiations are complete.

Bosnia: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on Bosnia and Herzegovina, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount of assets frozen is by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166068]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU sanctions, along with our EU partners.

There are no EU financial sanctions imposed on Bosnia and Herzegovina. EU Common Position 2004/694/Common Foreign and Security Policy imposed an asset freeze on individuals indicted by the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia. To date no funds have been identified in the UK.

British Overseas Territories: Nature Conservation

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions the Government have had with authorities of each of the overseas territories on amendments to animal protection regulations; and if he will make a statement. [167332]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not had specific discussions with the overseas territories on amendments to their animal protection regulations. Environmental issues within each overseas territory are the responsibility of the local government. The Overseas Territories Environment Programme has provided funding to Montserrat, Turks and Caicos Islands and Anguilla to update their more general environmental legislation, which includes animal protection legislation.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government will be taking palliative action in relation to the effect of climate change on reef environments in Her Majesty's overseas territories. [167360]

Meg Munn: The Government are concerned about the effect that climate change is having on reef environments in the overseas territories, which account for approximately 2 per cent. of the world's coral. The United Kingdom chaired the International Coral Reef Initiative (ICRI), a forum to discuss the protection and safeguarding of coral reefs from 2003 to 2005. The current chairs are Mexico and the USA. The next meeting of ICRI will take place in Washington in January 2008. Particular attention will be given to the protection of coral reefs in the Caribbean, including the overseas territories.

The Overseas Territories Environment Programme, a joint Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Department for International Development funded programme, identified mitigation of the effects of climate change as a priority for the overseas territories. Through this programme, we have funded a number of climate change-related projects including an ongoing study of the coral reefs in the British Indian Ocean Territories (BIOT) territorial waters. We have also funded the establishment of a coral reef identification guide for use by marine biologists.

Regular scientific expeditions to BIOT to monitor the marine environment, including coral reefs, are undertaken by the BIOT environmental adviser from Warwick University.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much the Government have allocated to the United Kingdom Overseas Territories Conservation Forum; and if he will make a statement. [167364]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not provide funding for the administration of the United Kingdom Overseas Territories Conservation Forum. Through the Overseas Territories Environment Programme, a joint FCO and Department for International Development (DFID) funded programme, we have provided funds to the United Kingdom Overseas Territories Conservation Forum to carry out specific projects. The FCO provided £68,502 to the United Kingdom Overseas Territories Conservation Forum for project activities in 2006-07. DFID has provided £81,706 so far this financial year for project activities.

Bulgaria: Children

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Bulgarian Government on the standard of care given to children in (a) state institutions and (b) adult institutions. [167052]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 22 November 2007]: The UK has actively supported Bulgaria in its efforts to improve standards of child care given to children in institutions, both during the country's accession negotiations and since it joined the EU. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has recently completed a project contributing to the introduction of inclusive education for children with special educational needs and from ethnic minorities.

Much, however remains to be done. Our embassy in Sofia has raised the issue with the Bulgarian Prime Minister, Justice Minister and Minister of Labour and Social Policy and we remain in close touch with the authorities. We are pleased that they are harnessing EU funds to help speed up implementation of reforms in this area.

The embassy is also in regular contact with members of the non-governmental organisation (NGO) community active in this field. Our staff are encouraging NGOs to work together and alongside the Bulgarian authorities, to help implement the necessary reforms. The Bulgarians have announced that they will direct €5 million of EU structural funds for 2008 to deal with this problem.

Burma: Mining

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government is taking to ensure that gems originally mined in Burma and processed in third countries will not be sold in the UK. [167153]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The UK played a key role securing EU agreement at the General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) on 15 October to extend sanctions against Burma. These measures were formally adopted at the GAERC on 19 November, including the prohibition of the import of timber, metals, minerals and precious and semi-precious stones from Burma, and an investment ban in these sectors. The October GAERC made clear the EU stood ready to review, amend or reinforce these measures and requested relevant bodies to elaborate further restrictive measures.

The regulation which will follow the adoption of the Common Position will address a number of points related to the implementation of the sanctions, including direct and indirect sales of precious and semi-precious stones from Burma. This will be negotiated in the coming weeks. The UK will press for the strictest possible implementation of the agreed sanctions.

CIC Material

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reason material referring to the CIC, redacted from a copy of a covering letter sent by his Department to the hon. Member for Billericay on 19 July was described as sensitive. [167674]

Dr. Howells: In assessing our response to the hon. Member's request that I "confirm that Lord Hutton was made aware of" John Williams's document, made in his letter to me of 18 June, we redacted the reference to material used by John Williams in his drafting because it was not relevant to the request and because we wished to protect the process that Williams used.

However in considering our response to the hon. Member's subsequent request for the release of this information we concluded that the public interest in releasing this information outweighed that in withholding it.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what percentage of (a) beef, (b) lamb, (c) pork and (d) dairy products used in his departmental headquarters were imported products in the most recent period for which figures are available. [166654]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The percentage of imported beef, lamb, pork and dairy products used within the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) in the UK is as follows:

| | Percentage |
|---|---|
| Beef | 22 |
| Lamb | 40 |
| Pork | 38 |
| Dairy Products | 10 |

The information in the table refers to the period August 2007 to October 2007, as this is the most recent for which figures are available.

The procurement of FCO catering supplies is based on value for money, having due regard to propriety and regularity.

Departmental ICT

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which manufacturers' software is used in his Department. [167229]

Meg Munn: The information necessary to provide a comprehensive answer is not held centrally, as Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) departments are responsible for their own budgets; to collate the information requested by my hon. Friend would incur disproportionate cost.

However, the providers of corporate software in use across the FCO network include Microsoft (desktop operating system and office automation), Oracle (financial and human resources), McAfee (anti-virus), Adobe (portable document reader), Citrix (web-based applications) and Hewlett-Packard, Sophos, Mailmarshall and Clearswift (network management).

Many other software products are in use to meet specific functional needs in the UK and at posts overseas.

Departmental Manpower

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) how many reports have been made to his Department's nominated officers under paragraph 16 of the revised civil service code since its publication on 6 June 2006; [162447]

(2) how many allegations of victimisation for whistleblowing have been reported to his Department by departmental staff since 6 June 2006; [162448]

(3) when his Department's whistleblowing procedures were reviewed to reflect the provisions in the revised civil service code. [162449]

Meg Munn: I refer the hon. Member to the reply the Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office my hon. Friend the Member for Lincoln (Gillian Merron) gave to him on 19 November 2007, Official Report, columns 596-97W.

Departmental Official Hospitality

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what entertainment or hospitality members of his Department's management board received in each of the last three financial years; and if he will make a statement. [164752]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Paragraph 4.3.5 of the Civil Service Management Code sets out the rules on the registration of hospitality. The Government are committed to publishing an annual list of hospitality received by members of departmental boards. The first list for 2007 will be published as soon as it is ready after the end of the current calendar year.

For previous years the information requested is not held centrally, but all Foreign and Commonwealth Office Board members are clear that all hospitality accepted must adhere to Diplomatic Service Regulations No. 4 which follows paragraph 4.3.5 of the Civil Service Management Code.

Departmental Publicity

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department and its agencies spent on managing their corporate identities in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [167348]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not record expenditure on managing its corporate identity as an identifiable activity. This information could be obtained only by examining individual invoices and this could be done only at disproportionate cost. This also applies to the expenditure of the Department's agencies, Foreign and Commonwealth Office Services and Wilton Park.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department and its agencies spent on managing their corporate identities in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [167356]

Mr. Malik: I have been asked to reply.

The last 12 month period for which figures are available is October 2006-07. Management of the DFID corporate identity is a minor, routine function of the campaigns and marketing team, with no staff or budget dedicated to this activity.

The only specific amount spent between October 2006-07 was £389.34, used to purchase the intellectual property rights for the DFID emergency aid logo.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much has been spent by his Department on advertising in the last 12 months. [167957]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not keep a central record of amounts spent on advertising. The information required to answer this question could be obtained only by requiring individual budget holders in the FCO to examine all invoices for the last 12 months. This would incur disproportionate cost.

Expenditure on recruitment advertising makes up a large part of the Department's overall expenditure on advertising. For details of expenditure on recruitment advertising in 2006-07, and preceding financial years, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Member for Ashfield (Mr. Hoon), then Minister for Europe (Mr. Hoon) to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1605W.

Departmental Recruitment

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many people aged (a) 30 to 39, (b) 40 to 49, (c) 50 to 59 and (d) 60 to 69 years have (i) applied for jobs, (ii) received interviews and (iii) gained (A) temporary and (B) permanent jobs in his Department in 2007. [165106]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Recruitment in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) is split into two specific areas—volume recruitment (jobs in generalist grades, such as administrative assistant, administrative officer and operational officer); specialist recruitment (jobs which require specific skills or expertise such as researchers, legal advisers, accountants). This area also includes temporary recruitment (short-term contracts for work on specific projects). Figures on those recruited into each area are provided as follows:

Volume recruitment

| Age band | Applied | Interviewed | Temporary Employment | Permanent Employment |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| A1 Administrative Assistants | | | | |
| 30-39 | 386 | 52 | 0 | 24 |
| 40-49 | 101 | 29 | 0 | 8 |
| 50-59 | 86 | 16 | 0 | 6 |
| 60-69 | 7 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| A2 Administrative Officers | | | | |
| 30-39 | 262 | 21 | 0 | 10 |
| 40-49 | 131 | 4 | 0 | 2 |
| 50-59 | 29 | 2 | 0 | 0 |
| 60-69 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| B3 Operational Officers | | | | |
| 30-39 | 1,551 | 57 | 0 | 13 |
| 40-49 | 655 | 6 | 0 | 5 |
| 50-59 | 132 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| 60-69 | 12 | 0 | 0 | 0 |

Note:
Figures include applications/interviews from campaigns spanning 2006-07.

Specialist Recruitment

| Age band | Interviewed | Temporary employment | Permanent employment |
|---|---|---|---|
| 30-39 | 29 | 1 | 2 |
| 40-49 | 29 | 13 | 8 |
| 50-59 | 17 | 0 | 3 |
| 60-69 | 3 | 14 | 0 |
| 70+ | n/a | 4 | 0 |

Notes:
1. For specialist recruitment campaigns, data are currently only available from interview or assessment onwards.
2. For fixed term contracts of less than one year's duration, appointees are not required to go through a full application and interview process—this explains the figures in the 60-69 and 70+ groups.

Fast stream

| Age band | Assessment centre | Interviewed | Permanent employment |
|---|---|---|---|
| 30-39 | 3 | 1 | 1 |
| 40-49 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| 50-59 | 0 | 0 | 0 |

Note:
Fast stream data only take into consideration the stages of selection administered by the FCO. The Cabinet Office runs the selection processes prior to this, however statistics are not yet available for the 2007 cohort.

Departmental Written Questions

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether it is his Department's practice to attach to Written Answers hard copies of earlier replies cited in such Answers where these were previously given to hon. Members other than the hon. Member to whom the Answer is addressed. [167768]

Meg Munn: I refer the hon. Member to the reply my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House of Commons gave to him today (UIN 168300).

Entry Clearances: Biometrics

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether foreign nationals with visas containing biometric data will be required also to obtain an identity card. [166096]

Dr. Howells: From next year, we will incrementally require all foreign nationals, who are subject to immigration control and in the UK for over six months, to apply for an identity card (Biometric Immigration Document). This will eventually include applicants applying for further leave to remain in the UK, who have previously been issued with a biometrically enabled visa.

Eritrea and Ethiopia: Relations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of the relations between Eritrea and Ethiopia on stability in the Horn of Africa. [165365]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government continue to be concerned by the potential for relations between Eritrea and Ethiopia to affect stability in the horn of Africa. Crucially, the dispute over their mutual border remains unresolved.

Tension on the border is rising with more forces being deployed by both sides. We are monitoring the situation closely and urging maximum restraint by both sides and a de-escalation of their military build-up.

We are also urging both sides to agree a way forward which will allow demarcation of the border to proceed to the normalisation of their relations.

European Union

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many EU flags are (a) held and (b) owned by his Department and its agencies. [164538]

Meg Munn: The number of EU flags (various sizes) purchased, held and owned by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office since January 2005 is 105.

Foreign Workers: Conditions of Employment

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures are in place to protect domestic workers of foreign diplomats in the UK from potential exploitation. [167021]

Meg Munn: Private servants that work for foreign diplomats in the UK are protected from potential exploitation by UK law. We expect foreign diplomats to obey our laws and regulations and take seriously any alleged violation by those entitled to immunity. We would take appropriate action if any allegations of exploitation were to be brought to our attention.

Private servants of foreign diplomats that are recruited from overseas are also protected from potential exploitation by our entry clearance rules. These aim to ensure that foreign diplomats provide written confirmation of the terms and conditions of their workers' employment, together with a separate undertaking that their workers will be adequately maintained and accommodated. Private servants are also given details of where they can find out about their rights under the UK's criminal and employment laws.

France: Overseas Residence

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect on UK citizens living in France of the French Government's decision to alter the healthcare arrangements for non-French nationals below the official relevant age; and if he will make a statement. [167038]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 22 November 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Minister of State, Department of Health my right hon. Friend the Member for Bristol, South (Dawn Primarolo) to the hon. Member for South-West Devon (Mr. Streeter) on 12 November 2007, Official Report, column 59W.

I raised this issue with the French Minister for Europe, Jean-Pierre Jouyet, during my visit to Paris on 15 November. Monsieur Jouyet acknowledged the serious concern about the effect of this decision and agreed to ask his colleagues to look again at the matter.

Our embassy in Paris will also continue to follow the issue closely. It has posted information on its website for those who could be affected.

Gough Island and Tristanda Cunha: Nature Conservation

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking to protect the native sea bird population on Gough Island. [167238][1]

Meg Munn: Rats and mice have been identified as the main predators of seabirds on Gough Island. The Overseas Territories Environment Programme, a joint Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Department for International Development funded programme, provided £54,954 for the period 2005-07 to the Tristan da Cunha Administration, with technical support being provided by the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds, to assess the potential for the eradication of these rodents from Gough Island.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance the Government has offered Tristan da Cunha to tackle verminous rodents. [167235]

Meg Munn: The Overseas Territories Environment Programme, a joint Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Department for International Development funded programme, provided £54,954 for the period 2005-07 to the Tristan da Cunha Administration to carry out a feasibility study, with technical support from the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds, on the eradication of introduced rats from Tristan da Cunha and Gough Island. The study will provide costed options for consideration by the local community.

Iran: Negotiations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what forms of EU-Iran dialogue are under way; and if he will make a statement. [166130]

David Miliband: The only formal EU-Iran dialogue is the human rights dialogue which was established in 2002 and has been suspended since June 2004. This dialogue yielded limited results, and in its absence, EU member states continue to raise human rights issues with the Iranians both as the EU, and bilaterally.

The EU's High Representative for the Common Foreign and Security Policy, Javier Solana, has an important role with regard to the Iranian nuclear issue, on which he negotiates with Iran on behalf of the E3+3.

Iran: Politics and Government

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Iran. [168547]

Dr. Howells: The political establishment in Iran is preparing for the next Majlis (parliamentary) elections on 14 March 2008. Candidates will need to register by early January, and they will be vetted by the Guardian

1. [Official Report, 6 December 2007, Vol. 468, c. 10MC.]

Council (which can veto candidates it considers contrary to the interests of the Islamic Republic) six to seven weeks before the election date. In the last round of parliamentary elections, the Guardian Council vetoed the candidacies of more than a third of the 8,000 candidates, most of whom were reformists, and 85 of who were incumbent MPs. We are concerned that this may happen again—the Guardian Council has appointed hardliners to the election monitoring panel and reformists appear to be being discouraged from standing.

A key issue in the election is likely to be the economy, especially inflation, where estimates range from the official Iranian figures of around 12 per cent. to independent Iranian estimates of almost twice that. Within this, housing, foodstuffs and medicines have all been subject to above average price growth, making life harder for ordinary Iranians. Iran's increased isolation, and the possibility of further multilateral sanctions as a result of Iran's refusal to abide by its obligations on its nuclear programme, are also having an impact on international investment in and trade with Iran.

We are concerned by the continued clampdown on internal opposition, which has been going on for several months but appears to be intensifying in the run up to the election campaign—including, most recently, the arrests of three women affiliated with the Campaign For Equality, which is seeking to end legislation which discriminates against women. This is taking place against the backdrop of a wider deterioration in the human rights environment, including an increase in executions (close to 250 executions this year, compared to 177 for the whole of 2006), including multiple executions (eight reported cases of multiple executions since 22 July this year) and the execution of juveniles (three confirmed cases this year).

Iran: Weapons

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely effect on Iranian weapons procurement of the proposed US arms package for states neighbouring or near to Iran. [167363]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not made an assessment of the impact of any US decisions on Iranian conventional weapons procurement.

Iraq: Politics and Government

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Iraq. [168546]

Dr. Howells: It is vital that Iraq's political leaders take advantage of recent improvements in the security situation to make substantive progress in the political process. We continue to press Iraq's political leaders to move the reconciliation process forward through the completion of a thoroughgoing and broadly supported constitutional review and early passage of legislation key to this process, such as that on de-Ba'athification, provincial powers, elections, hydrocarbons and revenue sharing.

We welcome the agreements reached by Iraqi political leaders on some of these contentious issues in August and urge them to follow through on the commitments made.

Japan: Whales

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Japanese counterpart on Japanese resumption of whaling. [167139]

Meg Munn: There have been no recent discussions between my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and Japanese Ministers on this issue.

The UK has consistently criticised Japan for her lethal whaling operations that are authorised under special permits (so called "scientific" whaling) and has urged Japan to end its scientific whaling activities.

The Government are deeply concerned at the latest Japanese proposals which include a plan to take 50 Humpback whales. In response, we are considering a high level diplomatic protest to the Japanese Government, following consultation with like-minded anti-whaling countries.

Lebanon: Overseas Aid

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with the Lebanese Government on emergency aid and reconstruction relief to those displaced by fighting in the Nahr al-Bared refugee camp. [166985]

Mr. Malik: I have been asked to reply.

The UK Government engage with the Lebanese Government through the British embassy in Beirut. The embassy has regular discussions with the Lebanese Palestinian Dialogue Committee, in the Prime Minister's Office, which is responsible for co-ordinating relief efforts and also with the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) for Palestinian Refugees, which oversee reconstruction relief. Her Majesty's ambassador to Lebanon visited Nah al-Bared camp on 6 November 2007.

DFID does not have a bilateral programme or presence in Lebanon. This is consistent with the UK's policy to increasingly support middle income countries through multinational organisations such as the World Bank and the European Commission. However, DFID is providing UNRWA with long term financial support (£100 million) up to 2011 to help them address problems facing Palestinian communities in Lebanon and elsewhere. We are also providing almost £1 million to the Mines Advisory Group (MAG) for the clearance of unexploded ordnance in Lebanon.

Lebanon: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on Lebanon, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount of assets frozen is by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166049]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU sanctions, along with our EU partners.

There are no EU financial sanctions imposed on Lebanon. EU Common Position 2005/888/Common Foreign and Security Policy, inter alia, places an asset freeze on those suspected of involvement in the murder of the former Prime Minister of Lebanon, Rafiq Hariri. This Common Position implements UN Sanctions and to date no individuals have been targeted for the assets freeze by the UN. Consequently the UK has not frozen any assets.

Liberia: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on Liberia, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount of assets frozen is by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166050]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU sanctions, along with our EU partners.

EU member states do not systematically share detailed information concerning the value of funds they have identified and frozen. However, they are legally obliged to freeze all funds and economic resources belonging to persons listed under the sanctions regime. It is prohibited to make funds or economic resources available, directly or indirectly, to these persons.

The reported balance of UK frozen funds in relation to UN and EU sanctions on Liberia amounts to £266,181.46 and 1,227.00 in euros.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether Mr. Blair's speech to the Al Smith Memorial Dinner on 19 October 2007 reflects Quartet policy on Iran; and if he will make a statement. [162878]

David Miliband: The role of the Quartet is to support the Middle East Peace Process. It does not have a formal policy towards Iran. However, the Quartet has said that it supports the efforts of responsible regional states to help calm the situation, and will continue to promote a negotiated, comprehensive, just and lasting Middle East peace in line with relevant UN Security Council Resolutions. It has urged all states in the region to work closely with Mr. Blair to this end and encouraged robust international support for his efforts.

Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what preparations have been made for the non-proliferation treaty review conference talks in 2010, what role he expects the European Union will play in these talks; and if he will make a statement. [166063]

David Miliband: The United Kingdom strongly supports the European Union's Common Position of strengthening the three key pillars—non-proliferation, disarmament and peaceful use of nuclear technology—of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty (NPT). EU member state played an important role in the positive outcome to this year's NPT Preparatory Committee. We will continue to work closely with European Union partners to achieve success in the new non-proliferation treaty (NPT) review cycle.

Pakistan: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what conclusions were reached at the 12 November Commonwealth Ministerial Action Group on the situation in (a) Pakistan and (b) Zimbabwe; and what action was agreed in each case. [166144]

David Miliband: The Commonwealth Secretariat issued a statement following the Commonwealth Ministerial Action Group (CMAG) meeting on 12 November. The full text is available at:

http://www.thecommonwealth.org/press/31555/172244/121107cmag.htm

My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown, represented the UK at the meeting.

Zimbabwe is no longer in the Commonwealth, and was therefore not discussed.

Pakistan: Terrorism

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of UK financial assistance to Pakistan is for counter-terrorism purposes; and if he will make a statement. [166125]

David Miliband: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Berwickshire, Roxburgh and Selkirk (Mr. Moore) on 20 November 2007, Official Report, columns 743-44W and the reply my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development gave to the hon. Member for Berwickshire, Roxburgh and Selkirk on 19 November 2007, Official Report, columns 533-34W. The total planned expenditure on UK co-operation with Pakistan in 2007-08 is £111.7 million of which £2.3 million (2 per cent.) is for counter- terrorism programmes funded through the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Global Opportunities Fund.

Redundancy Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1584W, on redundancy pay, how much was spent by his Department on voluntary redundancy payments in the last 12 months. [166285]

Meg Munn: Between November 2006 and October 2007 the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) spent £1,749,531 on voluntary redundancy payments.

These departures formed part of a restructuring programme to enable FCO Services, an Executive Agency of the FCO, to operate successfully as a Trading Fund from April 2008.

Somalia: Politics and Government

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had on the situation in Somalia; and if he will make a statement. [166019]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government monitor the situation in Somalia very closely and raises issues with international interlocutors on a regular basis. Most recently my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, discussed Somalia with the Ethiopian Foreign Minister during their meeting on 13 November 2007.

The Government are very concerned by the current situation in Somalia. We are working hard with our international partners, through the EU, the UN and the International Contact Group, to help Somalia address its very difficult circumstances. The three strands of our policy cover political, security and humanitarian issues. By pursuing each of these areas in parallel, we hope to help Somalia leave violent conflict behind and develop, in time, to its full potential.

Spain: Repatriation

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what regulations apply to the (a) return and (b) treatment of the bodies of deceased UK citizens from Spain. [167335]

Meg Munn: The transport and treatment of bodies within Spain and authority for their transfer out of the country is a matter for the Spanish regional health authorities.

Sudan: Frontiers

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Government of Sudan on its rejection of the findings of the Abyei Boundary Commission report. [166364]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not raised the Abyei Boundary Commission report with the Government of Sudan. However, the Abyei boundary dispute is a key issue for continued progress on implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA). My right hon. Friends the Foreign Secretary and the Secretary of State for International Development and my noble Friend the Minister of State for Africa, Asia and the UN Lord Malloch-Brown, have all raised CPA implementation including Abyei, in their contacts with the Government of Sudan.

Sudan: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent progress has been made on establishing peace in Darfur. [166898]

Meg Munn: The start of new political talks in Libya on 27 October, and the announcement of a cessation of hostilities by the Government of Sudan, were welcome steps towards ending the conflict in Darfur. We support the African Union (AU) and UN current efforts to encourage the rebel movements to agree a common platform and for all groups to take part in formal negotiations. Only a political process can provide a sustainable solution to the Darfur conflict.

But the people of Darfur continue to suffer violence. We are pressing for the prompt and effective deployment of the UN-AU hybrid force in Darfur, as mandated by UN Security Council Resolution 1769, to restore security on the ground. We have agreed with other donors to set up the Darfur Community Peace and Stability Fund, to support recovery activities at community level where leaders deliver security on the ground and allow foil humanitarian access.

The situation in Darfur remains complex. We are working with international partners to keep the focus on these issues.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which countries have pledged troops to the UNAMID peacekeeping operation in Darfur; and how many troops each has pledged. [164101]

David Miliband: The African Union (AU)-UN hybrid peacekeeping force in Darfur (UNAMID), mandated by UN Security Council Resolution 1769 of 31 July 2007, will consist of approximately 19,500 troops and a 6,500-strong civilian police component. The UN Department of Peacekeeping Operations (DPKO) has the task of generating the force in consultation with the AU. This particular force generation is complex and requires multilateral negotiations with potential contributing countries. The UN Secretary-General, in his report on UNAMID deployment of 5 November 2007, noted that the DPKO has received contributions from a number of countries to cover most of the military capabilities required for UNAMID, but critical shortfalls on helicopters and ground transport remain. The DPKO is now conducting pre-deployment assessments before confirming final troop contributions. We are pressing the DPKO, the AU and the Government of Sudan for the prompt and effective deployment of the UNAMID force.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the work of the Assessment and Evaluation Commission tasked with monitoring and enforcing the Comprehensive Peace Agreement in Sudan. [166361]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Assessment and Evaluation Commission (AEC) has made progress as a forum for dialogue on issues of contention between the parties to the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA). It published on 3 November the Factual Report on the Status of the CPA Implementation and has opened offices in both Khartoum and Juba. The AEC's effectiveness is ultimately dependent on the National Congress Party and Sudan People's Liberation Movement's willingness to co-operate. The recent political impasse within the Government of National Unity over delays in implementing the CPA demonstrates their difficulties in reaching consensus on key CPA issues.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) financial support, (b) personnel and (c) equipment his Department has provided to the Assessment and Evaluation Commission tasked with monitoring and enforcing the Comprehensive Peace Agreement in Sudan. [166362]

Mr. Jim Murphy: At present, we do not provide financial support or equipment to the Assessment and Evaluation Committee (AEC)—most support is provided by the US and Norway. However, representatives from our embassy in Khartoum attend AEC plenary meetings, and currently chair the AEC's security sub-committee.

Syria: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on Syria, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount of assets frozen is by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166075]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU sanctions, along with our EU partners.

There are no EU financial sanctions imposed on Syria. EU Common Position 2005/888/Common Foreign and Security Policy, inter alia, places an asset freeze on those suspected of involvement in the murder of the former Prime Minister of Lebanon, Rafiq Hariri. This Common Position implements UN Sanctions and to date no individuals have been targeted for the assets freeze by the UN. Consequently the UK has not frozen any assets.

Terrorism: East Africa

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the threat posed to the UK by terrorist factions in East Africa, with particular reference to Somalia. [164096]

David Miliband: Al-Qaeda and its local affiliates have a long history of terrorist activity in East Africa, from the Nairobi and Dar-es-Salaam bombings of 1998 through to more recent activity in Somalia. Al-Qaeda has exploited the absence of an effective government in Somalia to use the country as a base for both terrorist training and planning. This threat is mainly focused on the region, but is sometimes directed against the UK. The UK is home to a small number of extremists of East African origin, as the failed 21 July 2005 attacks in London demonstrated.

The UK's policy is to return peace, stability and governance to Somalia. We, with our international partners, are supporting the Transitional Federal Institutions, established by the Transitional Federal Charter. This envisages elections at the end of the transitional period in order to establish a democratically elected government in Somalia. Resolving the instability and lack of governance in Somalia through this mechanism will help counter the terrorist threat in the country.

Terrorism: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on designated terrorist groups, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount of assets frozen is by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166051]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU sanctions, along with our EU partners.

EU member states do not systematically share detailed information concerning the value of funds they have identified and frozen. However, they are legally obliged to freeze all funds and economic resources belonging to persons and entities listed under the sanctions regime. It is prohibited to make funds or economic resources available, directly or indirectly, to these persons and entities.

The reported balance of UK frozen funds in relation to UN and EU terrorist sanctions amounts to £457,768.23 and US$58,123.07.

Uganda: Human Rights

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the threat by Uganda State House militia Commander Major Kakooza Mutale to kill anyone who opposes President Museveni; and if he will make a statement. [165893]

David Miliband: I have received no reports of threats by any member of the Uganda State House militia against opponents of President Museveni. Our high commission in Kampala closely monitors the internal political situation in Uganda and regularly presses the Ugandan Government to respect the rights of the Opposition.

Ministers have also raised governance issues with the Ugandan Government, notably during Foreign Minister Kutesa's visit to the UK in September.

Western Sahara: Asylum

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government plans to take in response to the human rights situation of Western Saharawi refugees in the Tindouf camps and the actions of the Moroccan Government. [167406]

Dr. Howells: The UK is concerned about the welfare of the people of Western Sahara. We have set out our concerns about human rights and the humanitarian situation in the region in the Foreign and www.fco.gov.uk.

We have raised human rights issues with Morocco. We continue to support ongoing confidence building measures for the region, such as establishing a regular telephone and mail service between Tindouf and the territory, and family visits between the territory and the camps.

The UK remains concerned that the issue of the status of Western Sahara remains unresolved, with consequent problems for the people of the region. The UN Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 1783 on 31 October, which renewed the mandate of the UN Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara until 30 April 2008. The resolution also calls upon the parties to continue negotiations under the auspices of the UN Secretary-General without preconditions and in good faith. The UK fully supports these negotiations, with a view to achieving a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution, which will provide for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to support a census to establish the number of Western Saharawi refugees. [167407]

Dr. Howells: It remains part of the UN Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara's (MINURSO) mandate to identify and register qualified voters to take part in any referendum. The UK is concerned that the issue of the status of Western Sahara remains unresolved, with consequent problems for the people of the region. The UN Security Council unanimously adopted Resolution 1783 on 31 October, which renewed the mandate of MINURSO until 30 April 2008.

The resolution also calls upon the parties to continue negotiations under the auspices of the UN Secretary-General without preconditions and in good faith. It is the UK's policy to fully support these negotiations, and the work of the Secretary-General and his Special Envoy, Peter van Walsum, with a view to achieving a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution, which will provide for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara.

The UK has provided over £200,000 to the European Commission Humanitarian Aid Organisation to provide food aid to Western Saharan refugees currently living in refugee camps.

Zimbabwe: Banks

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the lending activities of British banks in Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [165584]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The activities of banks incorporated in Britain and operating in Zimbabwe are subject to EU regulations. We take very seriously any allegation of a breach of article 6 of Regulation 314/2004 and will always investigate. We are determined to see that EU sanctions are properly enforced.

Zimbabwe: Overseas Aid

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what options he is considering for assistance to Zimbabwe in the event of a change of Government in that country. [167183]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 22 November 2007]: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has said that Britain will contribute its share to supporting recovery in Zimbabwe but only when significant policy and administrative reforms are implemented within Zimbabwe. We are working with key partners in the international donor community and multilateral institutions to develop a co-ordinated approach to that assistance. Our focus would include support for stabilising the economy and moving towards sustainable recovery.

HEALTH

18 Weeks Programme

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the National Implementation Director of his Department's 18 weeks programme has spent on (a) travel and (b) other expenses in the last 12 months. [165698]

Mr. Bradshaw: The following table sets out the amount spent on travel and other expenses by the National Implementation Director for 18 weeks in the 12 months to October 2007.

| | £ |
|---|---|
| Travel | 9,156 |
| Other expenses | 5,082 |
| Total | 14,238 |

The National Implementation Director for 18 Weeks has spoken at or participated in 139 national, regional and local events over this period.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff work for the National Implementation Director of his Department's 18 weeks programme, broken down by pay band. [165697]

Mr. Bradshaw: Three people report directly to the National Implementation Director. These are Head of Service Transformation, Orthopaedics Programme Manager and a personal assistant.

Their Agenda for Change paybands are band 8D, band 8D and band 6 respectively.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when changes have been made to the methods of measurement of his Department's target that patients should wait no more than 18 weeks for treatment since the target was announced; and what the (a) date of and (b) reason for the change was in each case. [165692]

Mr. Bradshaw: No changes have been made to the methods of measurement of the target that by December 2008, no-one will have to wait more than 18 weeks from the time they are referred by their general practitioner for hospital treatment.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in what percentage of cases his Department's target that patients should wait no more than 18 weeks for treatment will apply; and if he will make a statement. [165694]

Mr. Bradshaw: An operational tolerance is needed to account for when it would be clinically inappropriate to treat patients or where patients choose to wait longer than 18 weeks from referral.

The Department is currently considering the tolerance level needed to reflect this. The operational tolerance will be confirmed in the NHS Operating Framework for 2008-09.

Latest figures show that seven out of 10 patients are already being treated in 18 weeks or less. The NHS is making good progress towards effectively ending waiting next year.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many representations his Department has received expressing concern about meeting the 18 week waiting time target. [166371]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department receives a wide range of written and other representations on issues relating to 18 weeks. Information on the number of representations specifically expressing concern about meeting the target could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the evidential basis was for the statement made by the Minister for Public Health to the Science and Technology Committee on 24 October that the Abortion Act 1967 did not require further amendment at the present time; whom she consulted before making this statement; what recent representations he has received on this statement from (a) hon. Members, (b) Members of the House of Lords and (c) members of the public; and if he will make a statement. [165745]

Dawn Primarolo: Departmental officials working in this area constantly review scientific evidence which might affect the science that underpins the Abortion Act 1967, as amended. As part of this ongoing work officials reviewed all of the evidence submitted to the Science and Technology Committee inquiry into scientific developments relating to the Abortion Act 1967 and agreed with the consensus of opinion which was that there was no new scientific evidence that warranted a change to the Act.

The Royal Colleges and Professional Bodies, including the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists and the British Medical Association, which the Department and the Government look to for advice submitted evidence to the Committee outlining their views, therefore no wider consultation was necessary.

Since 24 October we have received one representation in the form of an oral parliamentary question from hon. Members; no direct representations from the House of Lords and 84 letters on abortion issues in general from members of the public.

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 6 April 2005, Official Report, column 1538W, on accident and emergency departments, what recent assessment he has made of the trend in attendances at type one accident and emergency departments; and what effect (a) better reporting, (b) increased satisfaction with accident and emergency services and (c) any other factors have on this trend. [166320]

Mr. Bradshaw: Data show that there were 13.6 million attendances in 2006-07 at type 1 accident and emergency departments, a 0.4 per cent. increase since 2005-06.

The assessment referred to in the previous answer has not been repeated.

Alcoholic Drinks: Labelling

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions he has had with other European Union member states on alcohol warning labels; and if he will make a statement. [166022]

Dawn Primarolo: The Committee on National Policy and Action is part of the implementation structure for the European Union Alcohol Strategy. It met in Luxembourg on 5 November.

The Committee heard a presentation by the representative of Finland about its recent notification to the Commission stating an intention to legislate for a warning label in both Finnish and Swedish for alcohol products marketed in Finland.

The United Kingdom representative described the voluntary agreement made with the UK alcohol industry in May 2007 for the inclusion of information on labels relating to alcohol unit content and guidelines on sensible daily consumption, along with advice on alcohol and pregnancy; and argued for an approach which provides information to consumers on alcohol unit content and sensible daily consumption, rather than generalised warnings about alcohol.

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many alcohol-attributable hospital admissions there were (a) in each London borough and (b) in the Greater London area (i) in each of the last four financial years and (ii) in 2007-08; [166511]

(2) how many alcohol-attributable (a) routine hospital admissions and (b) accident and emergency admissions there were (i) in each London borough and (ii) in the Greater London area in (A) each of the last four financial years and (B) 2007-08. [166512]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested has been placed in the Library. Data for 2007-08 are not yet available.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effect on public health of low pricing of bulk purchase alcohol in supermarkets. [168114]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is commissioning an independent review of the evidence on the relationship between alcohol price, promotion and harm. Among other things, this will consider the evidence on the effects of low pricing of alcohol and the promotion of this by supermarkets.

Atkinson Morley Hospital

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total expenditure incurred by NHS Estates was in the disposal of the Atkinson Morley hospital. [166719]

Mr. Bradshaw: This property was owned by St. George's Healthcare NHS Trust, and was sold by the Trust, not NHS Estates. London Strategic Health Authority has advised that the total expenditure incurred through the sale of the Atkinson Morley hospital was £1.5 million.

Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust: Finance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effect on the financial position of Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust of the private finance initiative agreement used to finance the development of Queen's Hospital, Romford. [167284]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Full Business Case (FBC) for Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust's private finance initiative (PFI) scheme was approved by the Department and HM Treasury in 2003. To be approved, an FBC must demonstrate that the private finance option is affordable to the local health economy (i.e. national health service trusts and primary care trusts as commissioners) and value for money when compared with the public capital funded alternative.

PFI unitary payments are just one component of an NHS trust's expenditure.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the financial position of Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust is. [167285]

Mr. Bradshaw: Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust is forecasting a year end deficit of £14.3 million at quarter 1 2007-08.

As a result of the Department introducing the new loans system in 2006-07, there are 17 national health service trusts, where the financial challenges are such that the Department either could not give a loan because the trusts could not afford to meet the repayments, or where a loan was agreed, but the amount is very large and could only be repaid over a very extended time scale.

Departmental officials have worked in partnership with strategic health authorities (SHAs) on a review process to identify long term solutions for the 17 NHS trusts, Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust being one of them. The results of this recently completed review process are now being discussed with the SHAs and solutions are being prepared in the context of the Operating Framework for 2008-09.

Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust: Nurses

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many positions exist for nurses in Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust. [167288]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not held in the format requested.

There were 28 vacancies which had been advertised for three months or more for qualified nursing, midwifery and health visiting staff in the Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust region as at 31 March 2007. This equates to a vacancy of 1.5 per cent.

Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust: Public Appointments

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in appointing a chief executive for Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust. [167437]

Mr. Bradshaw: John Goulston has been acting as Interim Chief Executive of Barking, Havering and Redbridge hospitals NHS trust since 15 October 2007. We are informed that his six month contract contains the option to extend his stay to nine months, and that the Chief Executive post will be advertised within this time period.

Biologics

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much each strategic health authority spent on biologics in each of the last three years. [167607]

Dawn Primarolo: To provide the information requested would involve a bespoke data collection and analysis exercise that could be carried out only at disproportionate cost, as there are over 1,400 preparations, which can be considered to be 'biologics'.

Broomfield Hospital: Cleaning Services

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the Patient Environment Action Team scores for cleanliness were in the Broomfield Hospital in Chelmsford in each year since 1997. [166243]

Ann Keen: The following table shows the national health service's Patient Environment Action Team assessments for levels of cleanliness at Broomfield Hospital from 2001.

| | Levels of cleanliness |
|---|---|
| 2001 | Amber |
| 2002 | Amber |
| 2003 | Green |
| 2004 | Acceptable |
| 2005 | Good |
| 2006 | Good |
| 2007 | Acceptable |

Notes:
1. From 2001-03 the scale was Green, Amber, Red—Green = good, amber = acceptable.
2. From 2004 onwards the scale changed to a 5-point one of Excellent, Good, Acceptable, Poor, Unacceptable.
3. Since 2005, assessments have been undertaken by self-assessment with a percentage independently validated.

Care Homes: Nutrition

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment his Department has made of the effect of the implementation of the Commission for Social Care Inspection's guidance on clinical triggers: The management of nutritional care; [166629]

(2) what progress the Commission for Social Care Inspection has made in developing suitable training for inspectors of standards of nutritional care. [166630]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We are informed by the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) that it produced the guidance for inspectors in June 2006. It is also available to service providers on the CSCI professionals website at:

www.csci.org.uk/professional/default.aspx?page=7346&key.

The guidance was developed in collaboration with a dietician. It reflects best practice as advised by nutritional groups and includes the need for services to carry out nutritional screening on admission and on a periodic basis for those people at risk of malnutrition.

CSCI inspects providers against national minimum standards (NMS), published by the Secretary of State under section 23(1) of the Care Standards Act 2000. These include:

> Standard 8—Healthcare, of which Standard 8.9 relates to nutritional care—"nutritional screening is undertaken on admission and subsequently on a periodic basis, a record maintained of nutrition, including weight gain or loss, and appropriate action taken."
> Standard 15—Meals and Mealtimes, includes a range of guidance to ensure that services provide people with a wholesome appealing balanced diet, at a time and place to suit the individual and that assistance when eating is offered as required.

The "State of Social Care" report, published by CSCI in December 2006, indicates the level of achievement of the NMS by services for adults and older people since 2002-03 up to 2005-06. Copies of the report are available in the Library. Levels of achievement were given as percentages of services for younger adults and older people meeting or exceeding individual standards. These percentages are shown in the table, together with the most recent figures for the 2006-07 inspection year.

| | Healthcare | Percentage Meals and mealtimes |
|---|---|---|
| Care homes for younger adults | | |
| 2002-03 | 86 | 81 |
| 2003-04 | 89 | 86 |
| 2004-05 | 89 | 88 |
| 2005-06 | 88 | 90 |
| 2006-07 | 88 | 90 |
| Care homes for older people | | |
| 2002-03 | 73 | 78 |
| 2003-04 | 78 | 82 |
| 2004-05 | 78 | 84 |
| 2005-06 | 78 | 85 |
| 2006-07 | 79 | 86 |

CSCI participated as a stakeholder, in collaboration with the Department of Health, in the development of the Nutrition Action Plan. As a stakeholder, CSCI has made a commitment that it will use the Annual Quality Assurance Assessment (AQAA) to ask all providers to confirm that they carry out nutritional screening for people at risk of malnutrition. Where evidence raises concern about nutrition and malnutrition, CSCI will ensure that this is fully explored during the next inspection of the service and will track through the AQAA, the assessment of individual person centred plans to make sure that where required, nutritional screening has taken place.

CSCI will be meeting with Skills for Care on 27 November 2007 to discuss the competences required by inspectors on nutritional care. The outputs from this work will inform training requirements, which will be delivered to inspectors within CSCI's overall training programme.

Care Homes: Standards

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his most recent estimate is of the cost of implementation of the National Framework for NHS Continuing Healthcare (a) in total and (b) broken down by major cost area. [165823]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The estimated overall cost to the national health service is £219 million in the first full year of implementation. This includes an allowance for primary care trusts to continue to pay the high band nursing care contribution for all those people receiving it, when the framework was implemented on 1 October 2007.

Chlamydia: Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consideration his Department has given to the merits of developing a tariff for chlamydia screening in the system of payment by results, as recommended on page three of the Health Protection Agency's Annual Report of the National Chlamydia Screening Programme for 2006-07. [166441]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department of Health consulted on how the payment by results system impacts on access to sexual health services as part of the Options for the Future of Payment by Results: 2008-09—2010-11 consultation document published on 15 March 2007.

There were a number of responses from stakeholders with an interest in sexual health and we will be considering their views in establishing our development priorities for sexual health payment by results. We will also take into account newly emerging recommendations such as that by the Health Protection Agency.

Cocoa: Labelling

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy to regulate labelling to identify the country of origin on products containing cocoa. [165928]

Dawn Primarolo: Origin labelling rules are harmonised at European Union level and, while the European Commission is currently reviewing legislation in this area, neither the Commission nor the United Kingdom has plans to introduce mandatory origin labelling for products containing cocoa.

Meanwhile, there is nothing to stop manufacturers from declaring this on a voluntary basis—provided it is accurate and not misleading.

Cost Benefit Analysis

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) with reference to the answer of 28 June 2006, Official Report, column 458W, on cost benefit analysis, if he will make available the results of the evaluation of demonstration sites; [164596]

(2) with reference to the answer of 28 June 2006, Official Report, column 459W, on cost benefit analysis, when the results referred to in the answer were published; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the results. [164601]

Mr. Bradshaw: The evaluation report of the demonstration sites was published on 23 October. A separate report, written by the subgroups overseeing the projects in six speciality areas, was published on the same day.

Both reports are available online. The evaluation report is available at:

www.npcrdc.ac.uk/Evaluation_of_Closer_to_Home_Demonstration_Sites.htm.

The speciality subgroup report is available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_079728

Copies of both publications have been placed in the Library.

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list all services purchased from consultants in 2006-07. [167836]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect information on all the services purchased from consultants in the format requested. To do so would attract disproportionate cost.

A new system will be introduced in April 2008 called SHOWA, which will be able to gather such information for the Department.

Departmental Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when his Department expects to reply to the letter of 28 February 2007 from the hon. Member for Southend West to Lord Hunt of Kings Heath enclosing an e-mail from Autumn Fredericks; what the reason for the time taken to reply is; and if he will make a statement. [165746]

Mr. Bradshaw: A reply was issued on 12 June 2007.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what written guidance on the Comprehensive Spending Review was (a) sent in 2007 by HM Treasury to his Department and (b) has been circulated internally within his Department. [162825]

Mr. Bradshaw: As is normal in the run-up to a spending review, HM Treasury provided numerous pieces of guidance to all Departments, including the Department of Health, on preparations and evidence for the 2007 comprehensive spending review.

Departmental Manpower

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many reports have been made to his Department's nominated officers under paragraph 16 of the revised Civil Service Code since its publication on 6 June 2006; [162434]

(2) how many allegations of victimisation for whistleblowing have been reported to his Department by departmental staff since 6 June 2006; [162435]

(3) when his Department's whistleblowing procedures were reviewed to reflect the provisions in the revised Civil Service Code. [162436]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given the Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office my hon. Friend the Member for Lincoln (Gillian Merron) on 19 November 2007, Official Report, column 596W.

Departmental Official Hospitality

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what entertainment or hospitality members of the Department's management board have received in each of the last three financial years; and if he will make a statement. [164753]

Mr. Bradshaw: Paragraph 4.3.5 of the Civil Service Management Code sets out the rules on the registration of hospitality. The Government are committed to publishing an annual list of hospitality received by members of departmental boards. The first list for 2007 will be published as soon as it is ready after the end of the current calendar year.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he intends to publish programme budgeting data for 2006-07 on his Department's website. [166426]

Mr. Bradshaw: England level programme budgeting expenditure data were published as part of the Department's resource accounts on 11 October 2007. Primary care trust level data were published on the Department of Health's website on 29 October 2007, and are available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/programmebudgeting

Dermatology: Private Sector

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department paid to private healthcare providers for dermatological services in 2006-07. [166496]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information is available on the total amount the Department and the national health service spend on contracts with independent sector treatment centres and other private sector bodies but this is not broken down in a way that allows spend on dermatological services to be determined.

Diabetes

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the Government has allocated to research into diabetes since 1997. [167899]

Dawn Primarolo: Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's total expenditure on health research has been devolved to and managed by national health service organisations. The NHS has reported spending from this funding in support of diabetes as follows:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2001-02 | 13.9 |
| 2002-03 | 17.5 |
| 2003-04 | 18.2 |
| 2004-05 | 19.3 |
| 2005-06 | 21.4 |
| 2006-07 | 24.8 |

These data were not collected centrally prior to 2001.

The Department now funds NHS research and development through the National Institute for Health Research (NIHR). The Institute's Diabetes Research Network, one of six topic specific networks, brings together NHS staff and resources to support randomised controlled trials and other well-designed studies for commercial and non-commercial sponsors. The NIHR is investing £20 million over five years in the network.

The Medical Research Council (MRC) is one of the main agencies through which the Government support medical and clinical research. The MRC is an independent body funded by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills.

MRC expenditure on research concerned with diabetes since 1999 has been:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 1999-2000 | 6.5 |
| 2000-01 | 8.6 |
| 2001-02 | 9.8 |
| 2002-03 | 11.4 |
| 2003-04 | 11.4 |
| 2004-05 | 9.8 |
| 2005-06 | 13.9 |

Earlier comparable figures are not available.

Eastbourne Hospital: Hip Replacements

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hip replacement operations were performed on patients over 65 at the Eastbourne district general hospital in each year since 1997. [165399]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is not available in the format requested. However, the information in the table shows data for the years 2002-03 to 2005-06 for East Sussex hospital NHS trust, which Eastbourne district general hospital is a part of. Data prior to 2002-03 are not available in readily accessible form.

Count of finished consultant episodes with a hip replacement operation performed on patients aged 65 years and over at East Sussex hospital national health service trust 2002-03 to 2005-06

| | NHS hospitals England |
|---|---|
| | Finished consultant episodes |
| 2005-06 | 940 |
| 2004-05 | 803 |
| 2003-04 | 846 |
| 2002-03 | 786 |

Notes:

1. Codes used for hip replacement operations were: total prosthetic replacement of hip joint (W37—W39) and prosthetic replacement of head of femur (W46—W48).
2. Finished consultant episode (FCE)

An FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Please note that the figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year.

3. Ungrossed data

Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

4. Finished consultant episode (FCE) with an operation

A count of FCEs with an operation is the number of finished consultant episodes where the procedures were mentioned in any of the 12 (four prior to 2002-03) operative procedure fields in a HES record. A record is only included once in each count, even if a procedure is mentioned in more than one operative procedure field of the record. Please note that more procedures are carried out than finished consultant episodes with an operation. For example, patients undergoing a cataract operation would tend to have at least two procedures—removal of the faulty lens and the fitting of a new one—counted in a single finished consultant episode.

General Practitioners

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many GPs are currently registered as having a special interest, broken down by specialty. [166503]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are currently more than 1,700 general practitioners with a special interest. Information to provide a breakdown by specialty is not available centrally.

General Practitioners: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what average annual earnings for general practitioners in the East Sussex Downs and Weald Primary Care Trust were in each year since 1997. [165338]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on the average annual earnings for general practitioners in East Sussex Downs and Weald Primary Care Trust is not held centrally.

General Practitioners: Location

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to encourage the location of GP practices on high streets. [164761]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is for primary care trusts to commission primary medical care services from general practitioners (GPs) and other providers that best meet local needs. Some of these services may be GP led health centres situated on high streets because of their convenient location and good transport links.

General Practitioners: Older Workers

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many practising general practitioners are over (a) 80, (b) 75, (c) 70 and (d) 65 years of age; and what percentage of practising general practitioners each figure represents. [165082]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is shown in the following table.

General practitioners (GPs) by age band as at September 2006

| | Headcount | Percentage |
|---|---|---|
| All GPs (excluding retainers and registrars) | 33,091 | 100.0 |

Great Western Ambulance Service NHS Trust

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reason the Great Western Ambulance Service NHS Trust was disconnected from the combined emergency services STORM telephone system in the joint control room in Devizes; and what system has replaced it. [166513]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not hold this information centrally. It is a matter for the ambulance trust to decide locally what systems they use or discontinue using within their control rooms, and this extends to shared control rooms with other emergency services.

Great Western Ambulance Service NHS Trust: Manpower

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) required and (b) actual number of paramedics is in the Great Western Ambulance Service NHS Trust. [166517]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not set specific requirements for numbers of paramedics. Work force planning is a matter for individual trusts to undertake, working with their commissioners and strategic health authorities. Plans need to be, and are, regularly reviewed as circumstances change.

Data are available for ambulance staff breakdown, as at September 2006, through the Information Centre for health and social care 2006 Non-Medical Workforce Census. There were 375 ambulance paramedics up until 30 September 2006, when the last work force census was taken.

Health Services: Equality

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to improve the compliance of primary care trusts with the public sector gender duties; and what support the Government will provide to NHS organisations to help them reduce gender inequalities in health outcomes. [163934]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department is committed to tackling gender inequalities within the health and social care sector by recognising the specific health needs of men and women. There has been increased awareness amongst healthcare professionals of the correlation between gender and health and its impact on access, quality of health care and medical treatment for men and women. The Department's commitment to create a patient-centred service which extends choice and is responsive to all patients and users, especially with regards to the gender perspective will ensure that any gender differences in treatment and access are eliminated.

The Department commissioned the Men's Health Forum to work with five primary care trusts (PCTs) to develop a tool to assist PCTs in providing gender sensitive services. PCTs will be able to identify where changes can be made and how to approach the implementation of the gender duty. The results of this project—the "Gender Equity Audit" report was launched on 6 November 2006 at the Men's Health Forum Conference—Putting Gender on the NHS Agenda: Implementing the Gender Equality Duty in the NHS.

Research is currently being undertaken by the Department, on the different way men and women access health services and what difference this has on health outcomes. It is intended that the outcomes of this research will provide the evidence base to identify actions to take in tackling gender health inequalities. The research will target a range of national health service organisations, including PCTs, and will take account of overlapping inequality issues such as age, ethnicity, sexual orientation.

The Department has produced and disseminated guidance for the NHS by developing "Creating a Gender Equality Scheme: A practical guide for the NHS" and "10 Steps to Developing Your Single Equality Schemes" web guidance. A series of regional and national events recently disseminated guidance on developing Single Equality Schemes that incorporate the requirements of the gender equality duty. A further series of local events is currently under consideration.

The Department's Equality and Human Rights Group has established the Gender Equality Advisory Group to bring together key stakeholders in developing and prioritising gender actions which will inform the prioritisation of departmental policy and initiatives to provide ongoing support for the NHS.

Health Services: EU Countries

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if, prior to ratification of any European Reform Treaty, the Government will put forward and insist upon amendments designed to ensure that citizens of the United Kingdom domiciled in (a) France and (b) any member state of the European Union shall be entitled to the provisions for healthcare available to the domestic nationals of that country. [166005]

Dawn Primarolo: It is for each individual state to determine who and what is covered for health care.

Health Services: Newcastle upon Tyne

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what projections for the population of the City of Newcastle in 2006-07 and 2007-08 were used in allocating resources for health services; how those projections were calculated; and what methodology will be used to project the population of the city for 2008-09. [167213]

Mr. Bradshaw: The 2006-07 and 2007-08 revenue allocations to primary care trusts (PCTs) used 2003 based Office for National Statistics (ONS) sub-national population projections for 2006 and 2007 respectively, adjusted for cross boundary flows of patients between PCTs using 2004 general practitioner practice lists. A detailed explanation of the methodology is contained in "Resource Allocation: Weighted Capitation Formula (Fifth Edition)" which is available in the Library and also at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Policyandguidance/Organisationpolicy/Financeandplanning/Allocations/DH_076396.

The population projections used for allocations to Newcastle PCT are shown in the following table.

| Allocation year | Population |
|---|---|
| 2006-07 | 258,859 |
| 2007-08 | 258,398 |

A one-year PCT revenue allocation has been announced for 2008-09. The funding formula will be frozen in 2008-09, this means that no data or formula changes, including population, will be implemented for that year. All PCTs will receive a flat-rate increase on their 2007-08 revenue allocation.

Health Services: Romford

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans there are to establish a walk-in medical centre in Romford. [167441]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department no longer has responsibility for planning walk-in centres. It is for the local national health service organisations to plan and develop services for their local communities.

Hospices: Children

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding each primary care trust has provided to children's hospices in each of the last five years. [163711]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: That information is not collected centrally.

Hospital Beds: Greater London

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government has taken to increase the number of hospital beds in London since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [166232]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is for the local national health service to provide appropriate levels of care to their local communities.

Hospital Beds: Intensive Care

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) high dependency and (b) intensive care beds there were in each Government region in each year since 1995; and if he will make a statement. [166233]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on the number of high dependency beds was not collected before March 1999.

The bi-annual adult critical care provision census collects the number of high dependency and adult intensive care beds started in March 1999 with the latest census in July 2007. Tables have been placed in the Library which give the number of critical care beds broken down by the relevant national health service regional structure.

The KH03 collects the total number of days for all types of intensive care beds,(including paediatric and neonatal). Those data are available back to 1995. This information has also been provided.

Hospitals: Hotels

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by each hospital trust on hotel accommodation for families of patients in (a) their own trust area and (b) other trust areas in the last year for which such information is available. [166671]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 20 November 2007]: This information is not collected centrally. The arrangement and responsibility for any such provision is a local matter.

Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 17 October 2007, Official Report, column 1170W, on influenza, whether the public engagement programme has commenced; what workstreams are anticipated as part of that programme; whether it will seek to understand public attitudes with respect to the prioritisation of (a) intensive care beds, (b) vaccines and (c) antivirals; whether he intends to undertake the programme prior to publication of the national framework for responding to an influenza pandemic; and if he will make a statement. [166323]

Dawn Primarolo: The contract for the public engagement programme has been awarded. Public workshops are planned for early 2008.

The aim of the project is to engage with the public to understand how they might think and react in the event of an influenza pandemic; including seeking their views on prioritisation of intensive care beds, vaccines and antivirals. This will enable us to refine the communications strategy that supports the "National Framework for Responding to an Influenza Pandemic", which has just been published.

Influenza: Vaccination

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the level of take up of influenza vaccine by pensioners over 65 years old in West Chelmsford constituency in each year since 1997. [166244]

Dawn Primarolo: Flu vaccine uptake data were collected for the first time on those aged 65 and over from 2000-01. Data are collected by primary care trust (PCT) and strategic health authority. Data are not collected by constituency. Due to geographical changes West Chelmsford fell within North Essex PCT, Essex Health Authority (HA), and Chelmsford PCT between 2000-01 to 2006-07.

The percentage uptake of those aged 65 and over who received a flu vaccine in North Essex in 2000-01 and 2001-02, Essex HA in 2002-03, Chelmsford PCT 2003-04 to 2005-06 and North Essex in 2006-07 is available in the Library.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to point (9) in his letter to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire of 2 October 2007, reference PO00000234668, whether any foreign Governments have arranged to purchase vaccine for use in the event of an influenza pandemic from manufacturers in the UK. [166459]

Dawn Primarolo: We do not have any information on this as it is a commercial decision between United Kingdom manufacturers and foreign Governments.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate has been made of the take-up of influenza vaccinations by pensioners over 65 years old in (a) Ribble Valley, (b) Lancashire and (c) England in each year since 1997. [167775]

Dawn Primarolo: Data are not collected by constituency. For data which are available, I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 29 October 2007, Official Report, column 1035W.

Data are not available by county.

Influenza vaccine uptake data for those over 65 years of age were collected for the first time from 2000. The uptake of influenza vaccination in those over 65 years of age in England from 2000 is shown in the following table:

| | Uptake in those aged 65 years and over (%) |
|---|---|
| 2000-01 | 65.3 |
| 2001-02 | 67.7 |
| 2002-03 | 68.5 |

| 2004-05 | 71.5 |
| 2005-06 | 75.3 |
| 2006-07 | 74.0 |

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not held centrally.

A 2005-06 audit of health care escorts and bedwatches activity in all prison establishments in England and Wales identified the following activity[1]:

Medical Treatments: Procurement

Mr. Havard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what statutory obligations there are upon the Centre of Evidence-based Purchasing to consider the outcomes of product assessments by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence in its evaluations of medical devices. [166113]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are no statutory obligations upon the Centre of Evidence-based Purchasing (CEP) to consider the outcomes of product assessments by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence in its evaluations of medical devices.

However, the Centre of Evidence-based Purchasing works closely with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to ensure that respective work-programmes complement one another and build on each other's efforts. For example, if NICE issues some clinical guidelines around a particular disease or technology, CEP can support that guidance by doing a piece of work on the specific products that support that guideline, perhaps by reviewing the market, or providing the national health service with comparative specifications to compare the products that are available.

Medical Treatments: Statistics

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when and by whom the decision was taken that the statistics published on 8 November on referral to treatment times would include data on non-admitted patients. [165691]

Mr. Bradshaw: The decision to publish referral to treatment data for non-admitted patients was made on 19 October. The date of publication was dependent on these data being of sufficient quality.

The Department's Director-General for NHS Finance, Performance and Operations, made the decision to publish these data on 8 November.

Methadone

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have been on methadone programmes for over five years. [166377]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not collected centrally.

Milton Keynes Hospital: Maternity Services

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the ratio of midwives to bays was in the delivery suite of Milton Keynes hospital in each shift in the last three months. [167589]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not held centrally. It is the responsibility of individual national health service acute trusts to ensure that staffing levels are sufficient and do not compromise patient safety.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many births there were in Milton Keynes Hospital in each month in each of the last five years. [168047]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 26 November 2007:

As the National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question about how many births there were in Milton Keynes Hospital in each month in each of the last five years. (168047)

Figures on live births in hospitals are available from birth registration information. The latest available figures by place of birth are for 2005. The attached table shows the figures requested for the calendar years 2001 to 2005, for the General Hospital in Milton Keynes.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to assist Milton Keynes hospital in meeting the Government aspiration of a one-to-one midwife per birth ratio in its delivery suite. [168048]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Local national health service trusts are responsible for the provision of maternity services. This year NHS organisations, including Milton Keynes Hospital NHS Foundation Trust, have been required to review maternity services, including an assessment of their workforce capacity. A range of mechanisms are in place to support local recruitment of midwives if needs are identified, for example to enable midwives who are not practising to return to work in maternity services.

National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what occasions his Department has agreed to a delay in implementing a National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence technology appraisal. [166382]

Dawn Primarolo: Directions that came into force on 1 January 2002 require primary care trusts and national health service trusts to make funds available to ensure that a health care intervention recommended by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence is normally available to NHS patients within three months of NICE issuing new technology appraisal guidance. There have been 12 appraisals for which the funding direction has been waived or amended. Details are given in the following table.

| NICE appraisal title | Guidance publication date | Period of waiver |
|---|---|---|
| Weight reduction for people with morbid obesity | July 2002 | Complete waiver |

NHS Treatment Centres: Private Sector

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to open new private sector diagnostic and treatment centres for NHS patients; and if he will make a statement. [165160]

Mr. Bradshaw: As part of the Phase 2 Independent Sector (IS) Procurement Programme, the Secretary of State has announced that approvals are in place for two new PET-CT schemes which will provide scanning services in the North and South of England, and for a new renal scheme which will provide dialysis services in Cheshire and Merseyside, Yorkshire, Lincolnshire and Nottinghamshire to proceed to financial close. Seven other Phase 2 IS schemes will also proceed through the procurement process. These services will be run by the IS but funded by the national health service, and free to NHS patients.

NHS: Billing

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether suppliers using NHS Shared Business Services are required to use the OB10 invoicing system; how many suppliers the NHS Shared Business Services deals with; and what the impact on costs to (a) his Department and (b) Xansa are from OB10 being used. [164589]

Mr. Bradshaw: NHS Shared Business Services (SBS) Ltd is running a trial programme to establish the take up rate for electronic invoicing and OB10 is their preferred supplier. Neither client trusts nor suppliers are required to use the OB10 e-invoicing system and enrolment is entirely at the discretion of suppliers.

At present, NHS SBS has over 90,000 suppliers registered on its system.

No record of cost is being kept. NHS SBS is a 50/50 joint venture with Xansa Ltd. The Department's share of any profits made by NHS SBS will be passed on to its national health service customer base. If costs of NHS SBS reduce as a consequence of using OB10, the NHS's share of these will be fed back to its customers by way of additional profit distribution.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the NHS Shared Business Service costs (a) his Department and (b) Xansa to run. [164590]

Mr. Bradshaw: In the last accounting year, NHS Shared Business Services made an operating loss after tax and interest of £13.268 million. This loss is borne equally by the two stakeholders.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS (a) trusts and (b) other organisations are implementing the OB10 invoicing system; what guidance his Department has given on the OB10 system; what assessment he has made of the effect on the price the NHS organisations pay for services and goods of the OB10 system; what estimate he has made of the net financial effect on the NHS of the OB10 invoicing system; and whether (i) the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency, (ii) NHS Supply Chain and (iii) Collaborative Procurement Hubs (A) are using and (B) plan to use the OB10 system. [164591]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is up to individual national health service trusts and organisations to decide on whether e-invoicing is appropriate for their organisation and, if appropriate, the preferred supplier. Records are not held centrally on the number of NHS customers of OB10 or any other e-invoicing system.

No guidance on the use of OB10, or any other e-invoicing system, has been issued by the Department.

Use of e-invoicing systems such as OB10 has a number of benefits that should produce savings for all users. Costs are saved in the NHS trust because invoices do not have to be opened, scanned and distributed, and matching them to the order is simplified. There is greater accuracy and certainty for both supplier and the trust and suppliers benefit from speedier payment, in line with the Government's prompt payment policy.

No estimate has been made of the net financial impact on the NHS of the use of OB10.

The NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency do promote the use of OB10 among its suppliers, but do not mandate its use. NHS Supply Chain do not use OB10 and they already have their own integrated e-ordering and e-invoicing system.

No records are kept centrally regarding the e-invoicing policy of each NHS Collaborative Procurement Hub.

NHS: Finance

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what market forces factor is used for each NHS trust. [166379]

Mr. Bradshaw: The market forces factor indices that are used to inform central payments to National Health Service Trusts and NHS Foundation Trusts for activity provided at national tariff in 2007-08. Copies have been placed in the Library.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 15 November 2007, Official Report, column 381W on NHS: finance, (1) whether the NHS is now expected to plan and manage its expenditure on a separate near-cash and non-cash basis; [167627]

(2) on what date his Department agreed with HM Treasury that the NHS would not plan or manage its expenditure on a separate near-cash and non-cash basis. [167628]

Mr. Bradshaw: Under the current financial regime, the national health service is not expected to manage its expenditure on a separate near-cash and non-cash basis. While HM Treasury require Departments to manage expenditure on a near-cash and non-cash basis, it is a matter for the Department to decide whether this requirement is extended to the NHS.

NHS: Loans

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 29 October 2007, Official Report, column 890W, on NHS: loans, when his Department estimates that the £777,881,000 in loans issued to NHS trusts in the UK on 22 March 2007 will be paid back. [167852]

Mr. Bradshaw: The loans issued to NHS trusts on 22 March 2007 will be repaid in accordance with the loan terms shown in the following table:

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS trusts propose to declare interest payments on the loans given on 22 March 2007 on their end of year balance sheets in future financial years. [167888]

Mr. Bradshaw: National health service trusts declare interest payable on the loans issued on 22 March 2007 in their annual financial statements under the 'Interest Payable' heading on the face of the Income and Expenditure Account, and provide a more detailed breakdown of this figure in the associated note to the financial statements.

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS trusts in receipt of loans issued on 22 March 2007 (a) included the loans on their end of year balance sheets for the financial year 2006-07 and (b) propose to include the loans on their end of year balance sheets for 2007-08. [167889]

Mr. Bradshaw: Under national health service accounting policies, as set out in the NHS finance manual, NHS trusts are required to include the outstanding value of loan principal on their balance sheets from the time the loan is issued until such time as the principal is fully repaid.

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total annual interest payable on the £777.881 in loans issued to NHS trusts on 22 March 2007 will be. [167890]

Mr. Bradshaw: The total interest payable in 2007-08 on the £777.881 million of loans issued to national health service trusts on 22 March 2007 is £38.705 million. The interest payable each year is calculated on the outstanding value of loan principal, and therefore reduces in future years as loan principal is repaid.

NHS: Procurement

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what contingency plans there are for national emergencies within the contract for supply chain logistics due to be managed by the Supply Chain Management Division of the NHS Business Service Authority; and if he will make a statement. [165277]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are no special arrangements in the NHS supply chain contract for contingency plans in the event of a national emergency. However, if required the NHS supply chain, under the direction of the NHS Business Services authority, will re-prioritise demand to ensure that emergency deliveries can be made on request and that in these circumstances delivery is to be made to the national health service within four hours of an order being placed.

NHS: Public Participation

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by (a) the NHS, (b) his Department and (c) Sutton Merton Primary Care Trust on the consultation on Better Healthcare Closer to Home. [166721]

Mr. Bradshaw: A total of £280,000 was spent on the Better Healthcare Closer to Home consultation. The Department did not contribute separately to the funding of the consultation.

The costs were divided equally between the following organisations:

Sutton and Merton Primary Care Trust (PCT)
East Elmbridge and Mid Surrey PCT
Epsom and St. Helier University Hospitals NHS Trust
Surrey and Sussex Strategic Health Authority (SHA)
South West London SHA.

Options for the Future of Payment by Results: 2008-09 to 2010-11

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to publish his Department's response to its consultation on Options for the Future of Payment by Results: 2008-09 to 2010-11. [166442]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department expects to publish its response to the "Option for the Future of Payment by Results: 2008-09 - 2010-11" consultation before the end of this year.

Patient Choice Schemes

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which web browsers are compatible with Choose and Book; [164552]

(2) what web browsers are compatible with (a) each element and (b) all elements of the NHS information technology programme. [164553]

Mr. Bradshaw: The choose and book professional application is fully compatible with Microsoft Internet Explorer version 6.0 (IE6). Users are advised to employ IE6, but can also use Internet Explorer version 7.0

(IE7). Instructions on optimum browser configuration for IE7 have been published on the choose and book website.

The choose and book patient application currently supports Microsoft Internet Explorer version 5.0 (IE5) and above. Microsoft Internet Explorer is used by over two thirds of all internet users in the United Kingdom, and for this reason was selected as the browser for which the patient web application was originally devised in order to provide access to the greatest number of patients in the shortest possible time. While this means that the site is not yet accessible to all internet users, work is in hand to ensure full accessibility, including to those who access via the Firefox and Safari web browsers. A new release of the patient application will mean that the Firefox browser will be supported from December 2007.

All the national programme's core applications and services require web browser functionality. Suppliers are delivering solutions which will in due course be accessible via all versions of IE or Firefox. However, in the short term, some current versions of suppliers' solutions are limited to IE6.

Patients: Transport

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on the Hospital Travel Costs scheme in each year since 1997-98 for which figures are available; and how many patients received grants under the scheme in each year. [167830]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect information on the cost of the Hospital Travel Costs scheme, nor on how many patients have claimed a reimbursement under the scheme. It is for primary care trusts, as local commissioners of healthcare services, to make provisions so that patients with either a financial or a medical need for transport can travel to and from their treatment or care.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in the budgets of which NHS organisations funding for the Hospital Travel Costs scheme is held; and whether this money is ringfenced. [167831]

Mr. Bradshaw: Funding for the Hospital Travel Costs Scheme is built into financial allocations to primary care trusts (PCTs), who commission hospital services on behalf of patients. This has not been explicitly identified, in line with the policy to devolve decision making to a local level.

PCTs are responsible for reimbursing healthcare providers for the payments made under the scheme for all patients resident within their districts. Where the treatment given is within the scope of the national tariff, reimbursement will be included in the tariff payment. Where the treatment given is outside the scope of the national tariff, the PCT should make arrangements for healthcare providers to be reimbursed at periodic intervals.

Pharmacy

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether he plans to give the NHS Business Services Authority the (a) power and (b) additional resources to monitor the number of claim payments for medicines use reviews by each contractor; [166395]

(2) how many pharmacies exceeded the limit on claim payments for medicines use reviews in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006; [166398]

(3) by how much pharmacy contractors exceeded the limit on claim payments for medicines use reviews in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006. [166399]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 20 November 2007]: It is for primary care trusts to monitor medicines use review service provision by community pharmacies and adjust individual community pharmacy remuneration according to that service provision. Therefore there are no plans to change the role of the Prescription Pricing Division (PPD) of the NHS Business Services Authority.

During the financial year April 2005 to March 2006, 25 pharmacies exceeded the limit of 250 on payments for medicines use reviews (MURs). In the financial year April 2006 to March 2007, 126 pharmacies exceeded the limit of 400. These figures do not take account of the pharmacies to whom the lower limit of 200 applied because they started providing the service mid year. In 2005-06 and 2006-07, the average number of MURs per pharmacy was 39 and 96 respectively.

In the financial year 2005-06, excess payments to those pharmacies that exceeded the limit was £42,218 (1,966 claims) and in the year 2006-07, the excess payment was £67,650 (2,706 claims). These figures do not reflect any recovery of excess payments made by primary care trusts (PCTs) nor does it take account of the pharmacies to which the lower limit of 200 applied because they started providing the service mid year. This is a matter for PCTs as they can locally commission and fund additional MURs above the national threshold.

Social Services: Finance

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much is planned to be spent by each local authority and in total by all local authorities on (a) direct payments for social care, (b) supported and other accommodation, (c) nursing home placements, (d) equipment and adaptations, (e) meals, (f) other services, (g) assessment and case management, (h) day care, (i) residential care home placement and (j) home care for elderly people; and what percentage of their total health and social care budgets each of these figures represent. [167845]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not available centrally.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much each local authority is planning to spend on care for elderly and disabled persons who are in (a) critical need, (b) substantial need, (c) moderate need and (d) low need according to Fair Access to Care Services guidance to local authorities in 2002 in 2007-08; and what each authority spent on each of these categories in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05, (iii) 2005-06 and (iv) 2006-07. [167851]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not held centrally.

It is for individual local authorities to manage and direct their own resources in accordance with local priorities and the needs of the communities to which they are accountable. Local authorities should refer to the "Fair Access to Care Services—Guidance on Eligibility for Adult Social Care". A copy has been placed in the Library.

Spinal Injuries

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people with spinal cord injuries were discharged from hospital to a nursing home in each year since 2001, broken down by age. [167152]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on the number of people with spinal cord injuries discharged from hospital to a nursing home is not collected centrally.

Steroids: Death

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of fatalities caused by the abuse of anabolic steroids and other performance-enhancing drugs in each of the last 10 years. [166641]

Dawn Primarolo: There have been two deaths in England between 1997 and 2006 in which anabolic steroids and other performance-enhancing drugs were implicated or may have played a contributory part.

Statistics from The National Programme on Substance Abuse Deaths

Surgery: Private Sector

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his Department's policy is on offsetting costs of private operations in order for a person to return to work and leave statutory sick pay. [164670]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 15 November 2007]: The Department has no policy of offsetting the cost of private operations.

By December 2008, national health service patients can expect a maximum wait of 18 weeks from general practitioner referral to the start of consultant-led treatment. Most patients will be treated much quicker than that, allowing them to return to work much more quickly where appropriate. Latest figures for patients who started their treatment in August 2007 show that seven out of 10 patients are already being treated in 18 weeks or less.

The introduction of patient choice is increasing patients' ability to choose a provider that can treat them rapidly. The Hospital Travel Costs Scheme, part of the NHS Low Income Scheme, ensures that no one is denied access to the hospital of their choice because they cannot afford the cost of travel.

Finally, practice-based commissioners have flexibility to use their resources to achieve longer-term budget savings and better patient outcomes by commissioning social care or preventative interventions. Such interventions could be focused on helping people to return to work.

Sutton and Merton Primary Care Trust: Manpower

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many non-clinical staff are employed by Sutton and Merton Primary Care Trust; and how many were employed in (a) 1997, (b) 2001 and (c) 2005. [166720]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not collected in the format requested. Sutton and Merton Primary Care Trust (PCT) was formed in 2002, and so figures for 1997 and 2001 are unavailable. Also, figures for 2007 are not yet available.

The following table shows figures for non-clinical staff employed by Sutton and Merton PCT from 2002 to 2006.

National Health Service Hospital and community health services: NHS staff in the Sutton and Merton Primary Care Trust by each specified staff group as at 30 September each specified year

Headcount

| GP practice staff | 463 | 463 | 598 | 815 | 602 |

Notes:

1. More accurate validation processes in 2006 have resulted in the identification and removal of 9,858 duplicate non-medical staff records out of the total workforce figure of 1.3 million in 2006. Earlier years' figures could not be accurately validated in this way and so will be slightly inflated. The level of inflation in earlier years' figures is estimated to be less than 1 per cent. of total across all non-medical staff groups for headcount figures (and negligible for full-time equivalents). This should be taken into consideration when analysing trends over time.
2. General practitioner (GP) practice staff (excluding practice nurses) includes direct patient care, administrative and clerical and other staff paid by GP practices, which are contracted by the PCT.
3. Sutton and Merton PCT was formed in 2002.

for 2007 are not yet available. Also, Merton, Sutton and Wandsworth Primary Care Trust was the organisation in existence in 1997 covering the London borough of Merton.

Thrombosis: Medical Treatments

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has for the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to assess therapies for venous thromboembolism which are being developed. [166380]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is developing a clinical guideline on the prevention of venous thromboembolism in all hospital patients. NICE expects to publish this guidance in 2009.

In June 2007, the Secretary of State made a 'minded' technology appraisal referral to NICE of the drug dabigatran etexilate for the prevention of venous thromboembolism following elective hip or knee replacement surgery in adults. NICE has undertaken a consultation on the remit and scope of this appraisal and a final decision on its referral to NICE will be taken shortly.

Tobacco

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding his Department has provided towards national tobacco strategies in each of the last five years. [166697][1]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has provided the following funding to support the Government's national tobacco strategies set out as follows:

The Department awarded a grant of £2,670,000 to Cancer Research UK (CRUK) under section 64 of the Health Services and Public Health Act 1968 to fund the charity's Light and Mild campaign in 2003-04. A further grant of £300,000 grant was made in 2006-07 for CRUK's media campaign on the harmful constituents of secondhand smoke.

The Department awarded a grant of £5,000,000 to British Heart Foundation (BHF) under section 64 of the Health Services and Public Health Act 1968 to fund the charity's media campaign in 2004-05 on heart disease caused by smoking. A further grant of £4,000,000 was made in 2005-06 to BHF for a media campaign highlighting the dangers of smoking and heart disease.

Tuberculosis

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many cases of atypical tuberculosis were recorded in each of the last five years; which species of mycobacteria was responsible for each infection; and where these infections occurred; [164597]

(2) what definition his Department uses of (a) typical and (b) atypical tuberculosis. [165970]

Dawn Primarolo: The terms typical tuberculosis and atypical tuberculosis are not formally recognised and are therefore not defined.

We have interpreted typical tuberculosis to mean "tuberculosis"—a clinical disease that is defined by either:

confirmation by laboratory culture of a sputum or other sample of infection, due to Mycobacterium tuberculosis complex (including M. tuberculosis, M. bovis and M. africanum).

or in the clinician's judgment in the absence of culture confirmation, clinical and/or radiological signs and/or symptoms compatible with tuberculosis, which are treated with a full course of anti-tuberculosis treatment.

We have interpreted "atypical tuberculosis" to mean disease caused by "atypical mycobacteria", or non-tuberculous mycobacteria. It refers to infections caused by all other organisms of the family Mycobacteria excluding tuberculosis (caused by M. tuberculosis complex) and leprosy (caused by Mycobacterium leprae). Most of these organisms are ubiquitous in the environment and do not usually cause disease in humans except in individuals whose immune system is compromised. There are over 125 known "non-tuberculous mycobacteria" (the preferred term to describe these organisms).

Disease or infection due to non-tuberculosis mycobacteria is not currently notifiable and therefore there are no reliable data on the number of cases in the last five years.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of drug-resistant tuberculosis there have been in each year since 1997, broken down by strategic health authority area. [166449]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of cases of drug-resistant tuberculosis (TB) by strategic health authority are shown in the following table, with data from 1998-2006.

The Enhanced Tuberculosis Surveillance system (ETS) started in 1999. Prior to this, National TB Surveys were carried out every five years and this provided data for 1998.

Working Parties

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many working parties there are under the direction of his Department. [166373]

Mr. Bradshaw: In a survey carried out in autumn 2006, the Department identified over 200 working parties, including task forces and steering groups, which engaged stakeholders in working with the Department on policy, strategy and delivery. Such working parties, are set up by the Department's policy sections as needed and disbanded when no longer required.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Adoption: Standards

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to support efforts designed to meet the National Adoption Target; and if he will make a statement. [164704]

Kevin Brennan: There is no national adoption target currently. This target ended in March 2006.

Children in Care

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what research he has commissioned into the causes of the recent increase in the number of (a) babies, (b) children and (c) young people taken into care; and if he will make a statement. [164711]

Kevin Brennan: No such research has been commissioned. The numbers of children, by age, who were taken into care[1] in England in each of the past four years were as follows:

[1] Children 'taken into care' are those who became looked after during the course of the year under a care order or were detained for child protection.

Children: Sexual Offences

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made by his Department in improving protection for children from sex offenders; and if he will make a statement. [166707]

Kevin Brennan: The safety of children and young people, including their protection from sex offenders, is a top priority. The Department for Children, Schools and Families is working with the Home Office and the Department of Health to introduce the toughest ever vetting and barring system, under the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006, for all those working with, or seeking to work with, children and vulnerable adults. This will incorporate a robust, independent and expert barring process and will provide a modern and improved vetting service for employers, including parents. Pending the implementation of this new vetting and barring service, we have strengthened existing arrangements in a number of ways. We have extended the range of offences which will result in automatic inclusion on List 99 to include cautions as well as convictions for sexual offences against children. We have strengthened and clarified the requirements for safe recruitment in schools and further education colleges and required better record keeping on recruitment checks from these institutions.

On 13 June 2007, the Home Office published the Review of the Protection of Children from Sex Offenders. This set out a number of actions to help improve the protection of children from sex offenders. Work is underway to put these steps in place.

Departmental Assets

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what departmental assets are planned to be sold in each financial year from 2007-08 to 2010-11; what the (a) description and (b) book value of each asset is; what the expected revenue from each sale is; and if he will make a statement. [164156]

Kevin Brennan: The Department will be publishing an asset management strategy in December 2007, which will provide details of our planned disposals up to 2010-11.

Departmental Cost Effectiveness

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what efficiency savings projects his Department put in place under the Spending Review 2004 targets; on what date each was initiated; how much each was expected to contribute to the target; how much has been saved by each; and if he will make a statement. [164147]

Kevin Brennan: The Department is jointly committed with the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS), to the efficiency target set originally for the Department for Education and Skills (DfES).

The DfES target is 2.5 per cent. a year over the Spending Review 2004 period. This means being able to demonstrate cumulative gains against our baseline of £1.45 billion in 2005-06, £2.9 billion in 2006-07 and £4.35 billion in 2007-08.

The Department put in place an Efficiency Programme to manage the efficiency gains. Details of this programme and the initiatives which underpin it are detailed in the Efficiency Technical Note which can be found on the Department's website.

The Department reports progress towards our Gershon target in the Department's Autumn Performance Report. This is about to be published in December 2007.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of his departmental staff were previously employed by other departments, broken down by the other departments concerned. [161933]

Kevin Brennan: The Department was created as part of the Machinery of Government changes announced on 28 June 2007. The vast majority of our staff are from the former Department for Education and Skills, with the exception of 40 staff who transferred in from the Home Office as the Respect Task Force, now known as the Youth Task Force and part of Youth Directorate in my Department. This represents around 1.4 per cent. of our staffing headcount total of 2,931 staff.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people were employed by his Department and its predecessor on 1 January in each of the last five years; and how many of these staff were (a) permanent employees, (b) temporary staff and (c) contractors. [163199]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 30 October, Official Report, column 1131W.

Geronimo Communications

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what payments his Department and its predecessors made to Geronimo Communications in each year since 1997. [164506]

Kevin Brennan: Details of payments made to Geronimo Communication by the Department and its predecessors over the last nine years are set out as follows:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 1999-2000 | 320,132 |
| 2000-01 | 715,379 |
| 2001-02 | 1,221,349 |
| 2002-03 | 1,347,384 |
| 2003-04 | 1,153,197 |
| 2004-05 | 459,374 |
| 2005-06 | 2,441,139 |
| 2006-07 | 2,013,211 |
| 2007-08 (to October 2007) | 1,157,691 |

The data were requested for the last 11 years, however, the Department is only able to supply nine years. The Department is only required to retain financial records and original documentation for six years after the end of the financial year in which the transaction took place.

The Department for Children, Schools and Families was created on 28 June 2007 as a result of a Machinery of Government change and the expenditure recorded above includes those of the two predecessor departments, the Department for Education and Employment (DfEE) and the Department of Education and Skills (DfES). The expenditure for 2007-08 will also include any costs incurred by the newly created Department for Universities, Innovation and Skills, where these costs relate to areas formerly the responsibility of the Department for Education and Skills.

Parents: Training

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) when training programmes provided by the National Academy for Parenting Practitioners are expected to begin; [167540]

(2) how much funding his Department has committed to the establishment of the National Academy for Parenting Practitioners. [167541]

Beverley Hughes: The Academy has already begun delivering training programmes. There are two strands. The first, which began in September, is training practitioners across the country in Sure Start Children Centres, Extended Schools, Youth Offending Teams and other local settings, including voluntary and community groups, in skills for working effectively with parents. The second strand, to be offered initially from January 2008, is training practitioners to deliver established evidence-based parenting skills courses.

The Department for Children, Schools and Families has committed a total of £30 million in grant funding to the National Academy for Parenting Practitioners over the three year period, 2007-10. The Academy's purpose is to improve the skills of the work force in working effectively with families and ensure there are sufficient practitioners trained to deliver evidence-based parenting programmes. It will map existing parenting support provision across the country in order to identify under-served locations and groups; and conduct research, including evaluating specialist parenting programmes, for example for foster parents.

Primary Education: Havering

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the levels of numeracy and literacy are among primary school leavers in (a) Romford and (b) the London borough of Havering. [168426]

Jim Knight: Levels of literacy and numeracy in primary school leavers are most conveniently measured by the proportions of children gaining national curriculum level 4 and above in English and mathematics, since this represents the expected national standard. Information on the percentages of 11-year-olds in Romford and Havering achieving these levels since 1997 is provided in the following table. Constituency level figures are not yet available for 2006/07, but will be published on the Department's website in December.

Pupils: Absenteeism

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the rate of (a) authorised and (b) unauthorised absence is from English schools by children in their last year of compulsory education. [162188]

Kevin Brennan: The following table showing the rate of absence by national curriculum year group has been published in Statistical First Release 11/2007—'Pupil Absence in Secondary Schools in England, 2005-06'.

Updated information relating to the 2006/07 school year is intended for publication in February 2008.

Schools: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for what reasons local authorities are under an obligation to remove surplus school places; and if he will make a statement. [168196]

Jim Knight: Section 13 of the Education Act 1996 places local authorities under a duty to secure that "efficient primary education, secondary education and further education are available to meet the needs of the population of their area".

Funding used to maintain empty school places can represent an inefficient use of resources that could be better spent raising standards for parents and pupils.

However, there is no 'surplus places rule' that would prevent the addition of provision where surplus places exist. As statutory guidance makes clear

"Where proposals add to surplus capacity but there is a strong case for approval on parental preference and standards grounds, the presumption should be for approval. The LA in these cases will need to consider parallel action to remove the surplus capacity thereby created."

Skilled Workers: Havering

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to ensure that residents from the London borough of Havering will have the necessary skills to ensure they can take advantage of jobs resulting from the Olympics in 2012. [168417]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

This year the Learning and Skills Council is introducing a £5 million package of measures across London to ensure that Londoners are motivated into work or training and able to compete for London 2012 opportunities and good jobs beyond 2012. This package will improve skills and training opportunities for Londoners in four key sectors related to the London 2012 Olympic games and Paralympic games: sport, customer service, audio-visual and construction. Demand for skilled workers in these four sectors is forecast to increase in the run-up to 2012 and beyond.

Specific measures include advanced apprenticeships in sporting excellence and apprenticeships in sports and leisure; bursaries towards UK coaching certificates; training for people on incapacity and health benefit to enable them to become construction trade A1 assessors; preparing local residents for construction apprenticeships at Kings Cross station; delivering new apprenticeships in customer service/ hospitality; co-funding the research and development of a new customer service 'gold standard' to raise the bar of customer services in London for the games; and increasing the number and quality of work-based learning programmes on offer in the audio-visual industry. Additionally, the LSC has invested in the LDA-led personal best programme, graduates of which will have the opportunity to be interviewed for the London 2012 volunteering programme; and has entered into a training partnership with the Olympic delivery authority, construction skills and the London Development Agency with the objective of ensuring National Skills Academy for Construction status for the whole Olympic site.

Truancy

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government has taken to reduce truancy since 1997. [167895]

Kevin Brennan: The Department focuses on reducing all unnecessary absences from schools, not just those which are unauthorised. Overall absence rates have been substantially lower than the 1996-97 rate of 7.23 per cent. in all but two of the last nine years for which full data are available. Partial data for 2006-07, which we placed in the Library of the House in October 2007, indicate that the downward tend is continuing.

There is no direct measure of truancy. Unauthorised absence is often used as a proxy for truancy, but it is an imperfect measure because it also includes lateness and some term time holidays. It is also well known that unauthorised absence tends to rise when schools take a tougher line on absence generally, as it has done in recent years, without necessarily reflecting any underlying increase in truancy. That is why my Department has moved away from focusing narrowly on rates of unauthorised absence.

We now know that a small minority of pupils account for large proportions of absence: in secondary schools, just 7 per cent. of pupils account for 62 per cent. of unauthorised absences and 32 per cent. of all absences. That is why we are now focusing our efforts on reducing persistent absence, which includes truancy, in schools where this problem is most acute. This is proving highly effective. Last year, our targeted challenge and support in 436 secondary schools helped to reduce the number of persistent absentees in those schools by over 20 per cent. We are continuing that focus on reducing persistent absence across all local authorities and their schools.

Young People: Employment

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) 16 to 18 and (b) 18 to 24-year-olds were classed as not in employment, education or training by local authorities for (i) up to six months, (ii) six to 12 months, (iii) 12 to 18 months, (iv) 18 to 24 months and (v) over 24 months in each year since 1992. [165244]

Jim Knight [holding answer 19 November 2007]: The information requested is not available. The Department's estimates of the number and proportion of young people not in education, employment or training (NEET) cannot be disaggregated to regional or local authority level, and do not show durations of time spent NEET. However, it is possible to produce snapshot estimates of the numbers and proportions of 16 to 18-year-olds[1] NEET by local authority using Connexions data, and of 18 to 24-year-olds[2] NEET by local authority using the Annual Population Survey (APS), formerly the Local Labour Force Survey (LLFS). These estimates are shown in the table.

As with all survey estimates the NEET estimates from the APS and LLFS are subject to sampling error. Estimates from the APS and LLFS will not be directly comparable to estimates from Connexions.

Estimates from Connexions (covering the period November to January) are only available for 2005 and 2006, LLFS estimates (covering the period May to April) are available between 2001/02 and 2004/05, and APS estimates (covering the period January to December) are available for 2005 and 2006.

[1] Connexions estimates relate to people of calendar age 16 to 18.

[2] Local Labour Force estimates relate to people of academic age 18 to 24.

In line with the Employment (NT) Order 2002 the Northern Ireland Office has processes in place to allow staff to request flexible working hours to enable them to balance their family and employment responsibilities. As decisions are made by the business area concerned the information on the number of staff who have applied to work flexible hours under this order is not collated centrally.

Departmental Publicity

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many full-time equivalent staff are responsible for brand management and marketing in his Department. [165214]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office does not have any full-time equivalent staff responsible for brand management and marketing. However, from time to time, staff in various parts of the office are engaged in related activities, including maintaining and ensuring the application of corporate branding. Therefore a percentage of their time will be periodically devoted to brand management and marketing activities.

Manpower: Government Departments

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the full-time equivalent headcount in his Department is; what the forecast full-time equivalent headcount for his Department is for (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10; and if he will make a statement. [163989]

Mr. Woodward: The National Statistics Public Sector employment figures for the second quarter of 2007 show that the NIO had 140 FTE Home Civil Servants in post. In addition to these staff the Department had 1,367 Northern Ireland Civil Servants in post for the same quarter (excluding its agencies and NDPBs).

The NIO's CSR07 settlement reduced the Department's administration cost budget by 5 per cent. year on year, from 2008-09 through to 2010-11. These administration cost reductions will be re-allocated to front line service delivery areas, and so may not have a direct effect on overall headcount numbers. The Department is currently finalising work to allocate its CSR07 settlement across all spending areas and it will then be in a position to establish headcount figures for the three CSR07 years. This information will be available in advance of the start of the 2008-09 financial year.

Opinion Leader Research

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many contracts were awarded by his Department to Opinion Leader Research in each year since 1997; and what was (a) the title and purpose, (b) the cost to the public purse and (c) the dates of (i) tender, (ii) award, (iii) operation and (iv) completion and report to the Department in each case. [165259]

Mr. Woodward: The NIO has awarded no contracts to Opinion Leader Research since 1997.

Police Service of Northern Ireland: Telephone Services

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many calls have been received by the Police Service of Northern Ireland's 0845 600 8000 line; how many (a) arrests and (b) convictions have resulted from information received on this line; and how much it has cost to operate this service in the last 12-month period for which figures are available. [166726]

Paul Goggins: The number of calls made to the Police Service of Northern Ireland's telephone number for non-emergency calls, 0845 600 8000, in each of the last 12 months is set out in the following table.

| | Number of calls to 0845 600 8000 |
|---|---|
| 2006 | |
| November | 13,128 |
| December | 11,913 |
| 2007 | |
| January | 12,874 |
| February | 12,292 |
| March | 13,319 |
| April | 13,370 |
| May | 14,635 |
| June | 16,396 |
| July | 16,210 |
| August | 16,800 |
| September | 16,064 |
| October | 16,632 |

As figures are not held on the outcome of the calls, I am not able to supply information on the number of arrests and convictions that have resulted from the use of the line.

The total cost to the PSNI of operating their non-emergency number, 0845 600 8000, from November 2006 to October 2007 was £2,043.

This line allows people to access the PSNI quickly in non-emergency situations and helps to reduce the demand placed by inappropriate calls to '999'.

Proscribed Organisations

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the security threat posed by Republican dissidents. [168484]

Paul Goggins: The latest IMC report assesses that dissident republicans continue to pose a threat. The recent gun attacks on police officers highlight the danger these groups still pose.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Energy: Summertime

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment his Department has made of the likely effect on UK domestic gas and electricity bills of maintaining British Summer Time in winter and introducing double British Summer Time in summer. [168762]

Mr. McFadden: We consider that the present situation is a satisfactory compromise between those who prefer lighter mornings and those who prefer lighter evenings and we are not convinced that a change to our wintertime and summertime arrangements would be in the best interests of the UK.

Portugal experimented with a move to central European time (1992-96) and we understand their Government concluded that there was insignificant energy saving to offset the negative impact of the change and reverted to Greenwich Mean Time.

Nuclear Power

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the evidential basis is for the figure of 7.5 per cent. of Britain's total energy coming from nuclear sources, with reference to the Prime Minister's speech to the Worldwide Fund for Nature forum at the Foreign Press Association on 19 November. [167915]

Malcolm Wicks: In terms of energy inputs (i.e. the quantity of fuels used directly or converted into other forms of energy such as electricity or petroleum products) nuclear accounts for 7.5 per cent. of the UK's demand for primary fuels (rounding to the nearest 0.5 per cent.). The figures behind this percentage are as follows. They can be found in this Department's National Statistics publication, "Energy Trends, September 2007", Table 1.2:

| Primary fuel input basis equivalent | Million tonnes of oil |
|---|---|
| Inland consumption of nuclear electricity | 17.1 |
| Total inland energy consumption | 232.1 |

In terms of energy consumed, nuclear accounts for 19 per cent. of the electricity generated in the UK and electricity accounts for 18.5 per cent. of the energy used in the UK. Hence nuclear accounts for 3.5 per cent. of the energy used in the UK (19 per cent. of 18.5 per cent.).

Post Offices: Closures

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether sub-postmasters whose post offices have been proposed for closure are permitted to speak publicly against that closure without putting their compensation package at risk. [163840]

Mr. McFadden: A sub-postmaster is able to respond to the consultation as much as any other member of the public and we would not look to reduce their compensation simply because they do not agree with the decision.

Wind Power

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what proportion of overall energy needs is met by wind power in (a) Ribble Valley, (b) Lancashire and (c) England. [168305]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department does not hold statistics for wind power generation in (a) the Ribble Valley or (b) at a county level. However, according to the latest statistics published in the Digest of United Kingdom Energy Statistics, 2007 (DUKES), 1.1 per cent. of the electricity generated in the UK in 2006 was from onshore and offshore wind, up from 0.7 per cent. in 2005. The corresponding percentage for (c) England is not yet available for 2006, but in 2005 it was 0.2 per cent.

DUKES can be accessed online at:

www.berr.gov.uk/energy/statistics/publications/dukes/page39771.html

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Ministerial Statements

Mr. Randall: To ask the Leader of the House on how many occasions Ministers gave oral statements on the introduction of Government consultation papers in each of the last five years. [168625]

Helen Goodman: This information is not held centrally in the form asked for. In the last five calendar years there have been a total of 350 oral statements made to the House.

| | Number |
|---|---|
| 2003 | 82 |
| 2004 | 75 |
| 2005 | 55 |
| 2006 | 69 |
| 2007 | 70 |

The content of these oral statements is available as a matter of public record.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association: Finance

Mr. Marshall: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what estimate has been made of the monetary value of the accommodation, facilities and services provided to the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association for its headquarters in 7 Millbank in each of the last five years; and what the figure is expected to be in 2007-08. [168346]

Nick Harvey: The resource cost of accommodation, facilities and services used by the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association for its international secretariat in 7 Millbank is estimated to have been around £150,000 per annum since 2002-03. A similar cost is expected in 2007-08.

Influenza: Vaccination

Mr. Vara: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission whether doses of the antiviral drug Tamiflu have been purchased by the House authorities for use by their staff in the event of an influenza pandemic. [168379]

Nick Harvey: No doses of the antiviral drug Tamiflu have been purchased by the House authorities for use by their staff in the event of an influenza pandemic. There is, however, a project in place to co-ordinate and refresh the House's business continuity and disaster recovery plans. Flu pandemic planning is included in the scenarios that are being considered and arrangements are commensurate with the national framework for responding to an influenza pandemic.

Medical Equipment

Mr. Keetch: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission when defibrillators were installed at the Palace of Westminster; how many times they have been used; and if he will make a statement. [168637]

Nick Harvey: Defibrillators were installed in the Palace of Westminster in 2000, and introduced in other parliamentary buildings in 2002. They have been used six times to date.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Standards

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what public service agreement targets were set in the latest Comprehensive Spending Review for (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) non-departmental public bodies for which his Department has responsibility. [166657]

James Purnell: Within the new performance framework announced as part of the comprehensive spending review, all public service agreements (PSAs) will be cross-governmental. DCMS will act as lead department for PSA22, to > "deliver a successful Olympic Games and Paralympic Games with a sustainable legacy and get more children and young people taking part in high-quality PE and school sport".

In addition, DCMS will contribute to the following PSAs led by other Government Departments:

Raise the productivity of the UK economy (PSA1)

Improve the health and well-being of children and young people (PSA12)

Increase the number of children and young people on the path to success (PSA14)

Address the disadvantage that individuals experience because of their gender, race, disability, age, sexual orientation, religion or belief (PSA15)

Increase long-term housing supply and affordability (PSA20)

Build more cohesive, empowered and active communities (PSA21)

Copies of the delivery agreements underpinning these PSAs have been placed in the House Library and are available on HM Treasury's website.

Gun Sports: Olympic Games 2012

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he last had a meeting to discuss the issue of Olympic target pistol shooters; and if he will make a statement. [168216]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 November 2007]: I have not had a meeting to discuss the issue of Olympic target pistol shooters. This issue is being taken forward by colleagues at the Home Office who have recently secured agreement in principle from the Ministry of Defence on use of their ranges by a small squad of elite pistol shooters. To enable this to take place, the Home Secretary will need to use her powers under section 5 of the Firearms Act 1968 and I understand she has written to the First Minister for Scotland about the proposed arrangements and to establish whether he intends to exercise his powers in respect of Scotland.

Health Insurance

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many officials in (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies have private health insurance provided as part of their employment package. [167935]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Neither the Department for Culture, Media and Sport nor our Agency (the Royal Parks) provide private health insurance for employees.

We provide information on two health care schemes available for civil servants to our employees (Benenden Healthcare and CS Healthcare), which they can join at their own cost.

Legacy Lives Conference

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 13 November 2007, Official Report, column 106W, on the Legacy Lives conference, what UK Sport's involvement is in the 2008 Legacy Lives conference in Barbados; and at what cost to the public purse. [168516]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 November 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Vauxhall (Kate Hoey) on 14 November 2007, Official Report, column 240W.

UK Sport is an international partner of the Legacy Lives 2008 conference. As the UK agency for World Class Events UK Sport is providing £30,000 to support the 2008 conference.

Supporting Legacy Lives is part of an ongoing strategy to promote greater knowledge and debate about the legacy benefits that arise from public investment in major sporting events.

Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what financial information is regularly supplied to him by the (a) London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and (b) Olympic Delivery Authority and how frequently it is supplied. [165426]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply as Minister for the Olympics.

The (a) London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and (b) Olympic Delivery Authority provide me and the Olympic Board with monthly financial updates of their spend to date against their respective budgets.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Lee on Solent, Daedalus Airfield

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what steps taken by the management of the Maritime and Coastguard Agency led to the denial of access to Lee on Solent Aerodrome to the local community and general aviation; and if she will make a statement; [168236]

(2) what discussions the Maritime and Coastguard Agency has had with (a) Hampshire Police Authority and (b) others on the closing of Daedalus airfield to (i) general aviation and (ii) the local community; and if she will make a statement. [168520]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The airfield at Daedalus is leased to and operated by the Hampshire Police Authority, which is, as operator, responsible for its safety. As a user of the airfield, the Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) has had regular discussions with Hampshire Police.

Solicitors acting for the Lee Flying Association recently wrote to a number of parties, including the MCA, threatening to bring judicial review proceedings in respect of the recent decision of, I understand, the Hampshire Police Authority to close the airfield to general aviation due to safety concerns. The Hampshire Police have now suspended that decision for 28 days.

The Government are currently considering the situation and in the circumstances, it would be inappropriate and premature for me to say any more at this stage.

Aviation: Medical Equipment

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what regulations cover the carrying of defibrillators on civilian passenger airlines flying in and out of UK airports; and if she will make a statement. [168638]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There are no regulations requiring the mandatory carriage of automated external defibrillators (AEDs) although emergency medical kits are required on all long distance flights. Many UK airlines do carry AEDs on a voluntary basis and this information is generally available on their websites.

Cycling

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what discussions she has had with local authorities on measures to encourage cycling since her appointment as Secretary of State for Transport; [164623]

(2) what meetings she has had with representatives of the cycling community since her appointment as Secretary of State for Transport. [164632]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Both Ministers and officials regularly meet with representatives of the cycling community and local authorities to discuss a wide range of issues, including how to encourage cycling.

Departmental Official Hospitality

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what entertainment or hospitality members of her Department's management board have received in each of the last three financial years; and if she will make a statement. [164745]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Paragraph 4.3.5 of the Civil Service Management Code sets out the rules on the registration of hospitality. The Government are committed to publishing an annual list of hospitality received by members of departmental boards. The first list for 2007 will be published as soon as it is ready after the end of the current calendar year.

Departmental Orders and Regulations

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many regulations her Department has (a) made and (b) revoked in the last 12 months. [167085]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In the 12 months commencing 1 October 2006 the Department for Transport produced 142 general statutory instruments and 1,530 local statutory instruments.

The number of statutory instruments which were revoked or became spent during this period could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Property

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent by her Department on renovation and refurbishment of its properties in each of the last five years. [164365]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The data requested are not in all cases readily distinguishable from other building costs without incurring disproportionate costs. However, the information, where available for the properties occupied by the Department, is as follows:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 2006-07 | 21,251,182 |
| 2005-06 | 19,765,075 |
| 2004-05 | 9,803,969 |
| 2003-04 | 7,773,554 |
| 2002-03 | 7,702,635 |

Eurostar

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what discussions she has had with Network Rail on the timetable for future use of the former Eurostar platforms at London Waterloo; [167663]

(2) when she expects South West Trains to begin running the first commuter services from the former Eurostar platforms at London Waterloo; and what timetable she envisages for the use of the remaining platforms. [167865]

Mr. Tom Harris: Ownership of Waterloo International transfers to the Department at the end of March 2008 following Eurostar's de-commissioning of the facility as an international station. The Department is currently working closely with Network Rail and Stagecoach South West Trains (the train operating company) to finalise the design and costs associated with the partial conversion of Waterloo International to accommodate some domestic passenger services. Works on site are expected to commence soon after the station transfers to the Department and will take several months to complete. Services could then operate into and out of Platform 20 of Waterloo International from the start of the timetable change date in December 2008.

Options to make use of all five platforms are being assessed by the Department and Network Rail as part of the medium term proposals to deliver the Department's strategy for providing additional capacity as set out in its White Paper on Delivering a Sustainable Railway which was published in July 2007.

The medium term proposals would require significant infrastructure alterations at Waterloo. Additionally, it would be linked to the procurement of additional rolling stock to lengthen trains. The timescale for implementation is likely to be around 2012-14.

Fixed Penalties: Appeals

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many recorded challenges against penalty charge notices there were in each region in each of the last five years; and how many of these were successful. [164649]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is not held by the Department.

Information about the number of appeals against parking penalty charge notices in England and Wales is collected by the National Parking Adjudication Service (NPAS) outside London and by the Parking and Traffic Appeals Service (PATAS) inside London. The information on those websites is not presented by regions.

The websites are:

http://www.parking-appeals.gov.uk/about/AnReport.asp

http://www.parkingandtrafficappeals.gov.uk/annualreports.htm

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many recorded challenges against penalty charge notices there were in each local authority area in each of the last five years; and how many of these were successful. [164650]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not held by the Department.

Information on the number of appeals against parking penalty charge notices in England and Wales is collected by the National Parking Adjudication Services (NPAS) outside London and by the Parking and Traffic Appeals Service (PATAS) inside London. The NPAS and PATAS figures are published in their annual reports and can be downloaded from the following website addresses:

http://www.parking-appeals.gov.uk/about/AnReport.asp.

http://www.parkingandtrafficappeals.gov.uk/annualreports.htm.

Minibuses: Licensing

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions her Department has had with the Department for Children, Schools and Families on the interpretation of new driving licence regulations for minibus drivers with post-1997 licences; and if she will make a statement. [168565]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department has had extensive discussions with the Department for Children, Schools and Families previously the Department for Education and Skills. As a result guidance on the options available for incidental driving of minibuses was issued in April 2006.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what consultations took place prior to the implementation of new regulations in respect of minibuses for drivers with post-1977 licences; and if she will make a statement. [168713]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The second European Council Directive (No. 91/439/EEC) introduced higher standards for drivers of passenger carrying vehicles. The Department consulted during 1994 on the "Implementation of the Second EC Directive on the Driving Licence" that introduced changes to the driving of minibuses.

Road Traffic: Schools

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Education on measures to reduce traffic generated by the school run since her appointment as Secretary of State for Transport. [164625]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Secretary of State for Transport met the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families earlier this month to discuss how the two Departments might encourage more children to travel to school by bus, cycling or walking and thereby reduce traffic generated by the school run.

The Department for Transport and Department for Children, Schools and Families have been working together for several years now to reduce traffic generated by the school run and in 2003 launched our joint 'Travelling to School' project, setting out how we want all schools in England to develop an approved school travel plan by 2010 in order to reduce car use for journeys to and from school and to allow many more children to take regular exercise. At the end of March 2007 more than 14,000 schools (56 per cent.) already had an approved plan and we are on target for all schools to have such a plan by 2010.

The 2006 National Travel Survey suggests that the proportion of children travelling by car has now started to fall. 32 per cent. of children age five to 16 travelled to school by car in both 2004 and 2005 but this has fallen to 30 per cent. in 2006.

The Department for Transport and Department for Children, School and Families continue to work together to make further progress.

Roads: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which roads in Wales her Department defines as trunk roads for the purposes of the provisions relating to road-charging schemes in the Local Transport Bill. [168622]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In clause 109 of the Local Transport Bill, "Welsh trunk road" is defined as a road for which the Welsh Ministers are the traffic authority (within the meaning of section 121A of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984).

Transport: Heavy Goods Vehicles

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans her Department has for trials of larger and heavier lorries on UK roads. [167074]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There are no plans to trial larger and heavier goods vehicles in the UK. The Department has commissioned a desk study into the issues surrounding longer and heavier goods vehicles, but the purpose of this is not to advise on whether to allow trials, rather it is to better inform any future decisions.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Absent Voting

Angela Watkinson: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what discussions the Electoral Commission has had on measures to improve the efficiency and security of postal votes. [167996]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission advises me that it has been involved in extensive discussions on measures to improve the efficiency and security of postal votes. These have taken place at pre and post-election seminars with local authorities and with police and other relevant bodies, including the Royal Mail and the Ministry of Justice.

JUSTICE

Asylum: Crime

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many asylum seekers convicted of crimes are being held in each prison in England and Wales. [167716]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the numbers of asylum seekers who are held in custody is not held centrally and would involve detailed cross referencing of BIA case files with Prison Service records to ensure accuracy. As a result, the information required to answer this question cannot be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

Computer Misuse Act 1990

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prosecutions were brought and (b) convictions obtained for offences under the Computer Misuse Act 1990 in 2006. [167115]

Maria Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department, my hon. Friend the Member for Gedling (Mr. Coaker) on 19 March 2007, Official Report, columns 667-68W.

Information for 2006 will be available shortly.

Crime: Firearms

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were convicted for possessing or distributing prohibited weapons or ammunition in each police force area in England and Wales in each year since 1997. [165680]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the number of persons found guilty at all courts of offences for possessing or distributing prohibited weapons or ammunition in England and Wales, by police force area for the years 1997 to 2005 can be found in the following table.

Information for 2006 will be available shortly.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[3] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Law: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he is taking steps to encourage the development of a distinct Welsh legal system. [168631]

Mr. Wills: The Government are committed to enhancing the legislative competence of the National Assembly for Wales through transferring powers by either framework powers in Westminster Bills or through Orders in Council as provided for in the Government of Wales Act 2006. But increasing the legislative competence of the National Assembly for Wales will not establish a separate Welsh legal system.

Mayors' Community Payback Scheme

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many local authorities have participated in the Mayors' Community Payback Scheme. [167554]

Mr. Hanson: We do not collect this information centrally but telephone inquiries indicate that of the 42 probation areas in England and Wales 36 have established Mayors' Community Payback work projects and a total of 63 projects sponsored by mayors are planned, under way or completed. The Mayors' Community Payback Scheme was launched this year to promote public awareness of the significant amount of unpaid work done by offenders on community sentences that benefits local communities and makes reparation for offenders' crimes.

Office of the Information Commissioner: Finance

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what budget was allocated to the Office of the Information Commissioner for (a) the 2007-08 financial year and (b) each of the preceding two financial years. [167983]

Mr. Wills: The grant in aid allocated to the Information Commissioner's Office for each of the last three financial years has been as follows:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 5,050,000 |
| 2006-07 | 5,550,000 |
| 2005-06 | 5,100,000 |

The grant is paid to cover only the Commissioner's freedom of information responsibilities. His data protection work is currently funded by notification fees paid by data controllers under section 26 of the Data Protection Act 1998, which his office retains with the agreement of HM Treasury. In 2006-07, this was £10,200,000.

Penalty Notices

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what terms of reference have been established for the review of penalty notices for disorder; and when this review is expected to conclude. [167551]

Maria Eagle: Work is currently under way to identify opportunities, processes and best practice to improve the payment of penalty notices for disorder (PNDs), and subsequently when they are not paid, and registered as fines, the payment of those fines. This work is expected to conclude in spring 2008.

A review of practice across police forces for PNDs was carried out by OCJR. This was published in March 2006 and is available at:

http://www.crimereduction.homeoffice.gov.uk/policing20.htm.

The purpose of the review was to establish best practice in the use of PNDs and to develop consistency, better management and control of the PND scheme.

Police: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answers of 12 November 2007, Official Report, column 30W, on police: Wales, and 21 November 2007, Official Report, columns 975-6W, on prison officers: dismissal, for what reason the number of dismissals in the first answer differs from the number of reasons for dismissals in the second answer for the years 2005 and 2007. [168795]

Mr. Hanson: The discrepancy in the number of dismissals reported in the answer of 12 November and the number of dismissals for which reasons were given in the answer of 21 November was due to a difference between the local and central records held at Her Majesty's prison and young offenders institution Parc. The correct figures were those given in the answer of 12 November. I will write to the hon. Member shortly.

Prisoners: Food

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average daily cost to the public purse was of food for each prisoner in the most recent period for which figures are available. [168206]

Mr. Hanson: For 2006-07, the last full financial year for which figures are available, the average public sector Prison Service daily food cost per prisoner was £1.97.

Prisoners: Sentencing

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners have completed their tariff and remain in prison. [167617]

Mr. Hanson: Complete information on the total numbers of all life and other indeterminate sentence prisoners held in custody beyond their tariff period is not currently available centrally and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost. However within the Public Protection Unit of the National Offender Management Service, the Pre-Release Section (PRS) maintains a limited database on those offenders sentenced to Imprisonment for Public Protection (IPP). This indicates that, as at 31 October 2007, 428 such offenders were being held in prison beyond their tariff expiry date.

A new database for the whole of the Public Protection Unit is currently in development. The new database will allow, among other things, information to be recorded accurately relating to the tariff, Parole Board reviews and release of all life and indeterminate sentence prisoners. This new database is not likely to be fully operational until the early part of next year as it will be necessary to migrate core information and fully test the system before it goes live.

Probation Officers: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many full or part-time probation officers there were in West Chelmsford constituency in each of the last five years. [167891]

Maria Eagle: Information is not available for the full period requested. Data collected prior to April 2003 were collected by Home Office RDS unit and were not broken down into probation areas. The following table shows full-time equivalent (FTE) figures as at 31 December for each year and relates to Essex probation area in its entirety as information is not collected for districts within probation areas.

The reporting mechanism used within the service means that it is not possible at probation area level to extract numbers pertaining to specific staff groups. The information is broken down as operational and support staff between 2003 and 2005. In addition, in 2006, the Offender Management model was adopted across the National Probation Service and the collection of work force information was modified to reflect this change. Consequently, the information is not directly comparable with previous years.

Staff in post in Essex probation area 2003-06

| Job group | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Operational staff | 331.7 | 347.0 | 339.1 | — |
| Support staff | 67.4 | 85.7 | 136.7 | — |

| Corporate services | — | — | — | 172.5 |
| Total staff in post | 399.1 | 432.7 | 475.8 | 473.8 |

Reoffenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of offenders sentenced to custody had already served (a) a custodial sentence and (b) a community sentence in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [168501]

Mr. Hanson: Information on offenders' previous sentences does not form part of our standard analysis of criminal histories. The most recent available figures for the previous criminal history of offenders sentenced to custody for indictable offences, which detail number of previous convictions and cautions, are given in the "Sentencing Statistics 2005" publication which is available in the House of Commons Library and can be found online at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb0307.pdf

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of recorded crimes committed were committed by offenders who had previously served (a) a prison sentence and (b) a community sentence in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [168502]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is not available as a suspect is not identified for every crime committed. The most relevant available data relate to those sentenced for indictable offences. There are tables published in "Sentencing Statistics 2005" which detail numbers of previous convictions and cautions of those sentenced but do not show what disposals were given for the previous convictions. The publication is available in the House of Commons Library and can be found online at;

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb0307.pdf

Reviews

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to publish the Ministry of Justice review. [168499]

Mr. Straw: The review is continuing. As I told the then Constitutional Affairs Select Committee in oral evidence on 9 October 2007, I will inform Parliament of the findings when the work of the review is complete.

Simple Speedy Summary Justice Scheme

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the estimated cost of savings for the Simple Speedy Summary Justice scheme is. [167564]

Maria Eagle: CJSSS is primarily about making the criminal justice system more efficient by reducing unnecessary hearings and the time taken to deal with cases in the magistrates courts. Improving the speed and effectiveness of magistrates courts could produce net discounted benefits for the criminal justice system worth approximately £137.4 million over 10 years.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of serving military personnel in (a) the Army, (b) the Royal Navy and (c) the Royal Air Force were (i) single, (ii) married without children, (iii) married with children, (iv) divorced without children and (v) divorced with children at the latest date for which figures are available. [165792]

Derek Twigg: The following tables show the number and percentage of UK regular forces in each service who were single, married and divorced at the latest date for which figures are available.

Figures relating to dependent children are available only for Army Other Ranks.

Due to the way marital status was recorded in personnel databases, Naval service figures for married personnel do not include those married personnel not in receipt of a married person's allowance, while single and divorced personnel cannot be shown separately.

Figures are shown at the latest date prior to the introduction of the new Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) system for each service. Information relating to marital status is no longer held centrally, following the phased implementation of the JPA system.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place a copy of the Chief of the General Staff's Briefing Team Report (2007) in the Library. [167177]

Des Browne: Yes. I shall arrange for a copy of the Chief of the General Staffs Briefing Team Spring 2007 report to be placed in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Compensation

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many applications under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme have been turned down because of failure to comply with the time limit in each year since the scheme was set up. [162661]

Derek Twigg: No applications under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme have been turned down because of failure to comply with the time limits set by the scheme.

Armed Forces: Housing

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what mechanisms he uses to assess the condition of the fabric of married quarters over time. [165871]

Derek Twigg: We assess the condition of the fabric of Service Family Accommodation (SFA) against a number of different factors which cover the condition of wall finish, roofs, chimneys, windows, guttering and ventilation.

This assessment is part of a wider assessment of condition covering 102 attributes which are organised into eight categories (Health and Safety, Sanitary, Kitchen, Energy efficiency, Building Fabric, Electrical, Security and Bedroom Standard).

Deficit points are awarded for the extent of defects present for each element of the building fabric and these are broken down into minor (typically between 1 and 2 deficit points), medium (typically between 3 and 6 deficit points) and major defects (typically between 7 and 12 deficit points). The overall number of deficit points is used to determine the condition of the accommodation and the charge that will be applied.

Building fabric defects

| Standard | Minimum | Maximum |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | 0 | 10 |
| 2 | 11 | 20 |
| 3 | 21 | 35 |
| 4 | 36 | and over |

SFA properties are surveyed for condition on a four yearly basis or when an upgrade to the property has occurred.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he plans to take to release void married quarters in advance of the cessation of the project sharing agreement with Annington Homes in November 2011. [165872]

Derek Twigg: The decision to dispose of surplus MOD housing stock is based solely on the military requirement. If the services no longer require houses at a particular site in England or Wales then the MOD hand the properties back to Annington Homes Ltd. (AHL).

Departmental Coordination

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions his Department had with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office about the contents of the Foreign Secretary's recent Bruges speech prior to its delivery. [168564]

Des Browne: In line with the Ministerial Code, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office routinely consult other interested Departments, including the MOD, in the preparation of speeches and public statements.

Departmental Land

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what planning applications in connection with wind farms his Department has objected to since October 2005; what the reason for each objection was; and what the outcome of each application has been. [166990]

Derek Twigg: Since October 2005 the Ministry of Defence has objected to 28 applications (under both Town and Country Planning legislation and the Electricity Act) for wind turbines. These are detailed in the attached table, together with the reasons for objection and the comment status of each planning application. It should be noted that the majority of cases are pending or subject to a public inquiry.

Departmental Manpower

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people aged (a) 30 to 39, (b) 40 to 49, (c) 50 to 59 and (d) 60 to 69 years have (i) applied for jobs, (ii) received interviews and (iii) gained (A) temporary and (B) permanent jobs in his Department in 2007. [165112]

Derek Twigg: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department and its agencies spent on managing their corporate identities in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [167337]

Derek Twigg: Between 20 November 2006 and 19 November 2007, the Ministry of Defence Directorate of Public Relations spent £82,805 on corporate branding and identity.

Accurate information on how much Defence agencies, top level budget areas, trading funds, joint headquarters, single service commands and military units may have spent on managing their corporate brands is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Secondment

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many secondments of staff were made (a) to and (b) from his Department in each year since 1997; which organisations staff were seconded (i) to and (ii) from; how many staff were seconded in each year; for how long each secondment lasted; and what the cost was of each secondment in each year. [167244]

Derek Twigg: The approximate number of UK based civilian staff seconded to and from the Department since 2002 is shown in the following table.

| | Seconded to the Department | Seconded from the Department |
|---|---|---|
| 2002 | 8 | 97 |
| 2003 | 10 | 129 |
| 2004 | 8 | 144 |
| 2005 | 14 | 146 |
| 2006 | 5 | 125 |
| 2007 to date | 12 | 103 |

The other information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Ex-servicemen: Warrington

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veterans resident in (a) Warrington and (b) Warrington South have applied for their Veterans Day badge. [167130]

Derek Twigg: The Service Personnel and Veterans Agency can confirm, based on postcode details of applicants, that a total of 1,339 veterans' lapel badges have been issued to residents in the Warrington area. Unfortunately we are unable to distinguish which applications are from Warrington South.

Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence who the special advisers in his Department are; what expertise each has; and what the cost of employing them was in the latest year for which figures are available. [163397]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's statement of 22 November 2007, Official Report, column 147WS.

Prisoners of War: Compensation

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many applicants for compensation for former civilian detainees of the Japanese received the £4,000 damages settlement compensation; how many of these had received the original ex gratia grant of £10,000; and how many claims under the scheme have not been dealt with. [167821]

Derek Twigg: In October 2006, the Court of Appeal upheld a damages award in the case brought by Mrs. Elias to compensate her for injury to feelings caused by having been discriminated against on the grounds of national origin when her claim for an award under the ex-gratia payment scheme for former Far East Prisoners of War and civilian internees was rejected under criteria based on place of birth (the "birthlink").

The Ministry of Defence subsequently confirmed that it would consider claims for compensation from others who were similarly entitled, and it is anticipated that the majority of former civilian internees that were rejected under the birthlink will be eligible for this compensation.

As at 21 November, 189 offers of compensation have been made. Of these, 23 individuals have separately qualified for an ex-gratia payment under the scheme on criteria based on residence. There is currently one civilian claim for an ex-gratia payment that is under consideration on which a decision has not yet been made.

RAF Menwith Hill: Manpower

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK personnel are employed at RAF Menwith Hill, broken down by employer. [166815]

Derek Twigg: As at 1 November 2007 the following UK personnel were employed at RAF Menwith Hill:

| Employer | Number |
|---|---|
| Ministry of Defence | 232 |
| Ministry of Defence Police and Guarding Agency | 148 |
| Royal Air Force | 4 |
| Royal Navy | 8 |
| UK Contractors | 51 |

I am withholding the number of GCHQ employees in accordance with Government practice not to reveal numbers of personnel working in intelligence at specific locations.

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many US personnel are based at RAF Menwith Hill, broken down by employer. [167000]

Derek Twigg: As at 1 November 2007 the following US personnel were employed at RAF Menwith Hill.

| Employer | Number |
|---|---|
| US Air Force | 173 |
| US Army | 146 |
| US Navy | 58 |
| US Marine Corps | 33 |
| Department of Defense | 220 |
| US Contractors | 558 |

A further 222 US civilians are employed at RAF Menwith Hill by various US agencies in catering and services functions. A detailed breakdown is not available.

Territorial Army: Military Decorations

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will amend the regulations so that members of the Territorial Army can wear medals on Combat Soldier 95 working dress on Remembrance Day Parades and ceremonial occasions. [165907]

Derek Twigg: Where the occasion warrants it, medals are normally worn on Number 2 Dress at Service events such as Remembrance Parades or ceremonial occasions. Where TA personnel are not in possession of Number 2 Dress, which is the soldiers' usual "parade" or "walking-out" uniform, regional commanders have discretion to allow medals to be worn on Combat Soldier 95 working dress for the duration of such events.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Genetically Modified Organisms

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he concluded his consideration of the proposed co-existence separation distances between GM and non-GM crops; and what conclusion he has come to. [167325]

Mr. Woolas: My written ministerial statement of 8 November 2007 explained that we will wait for further developments, including the results of scientific research and the expected EU thresholds for labelling adventitious GM presence in conventional seed, before finalising our coexistence policy. This will include crop separation distances.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will publish the recent representations he has received on the Government's proposals for the co-existence of GM and non-GM crops; and how many were (a) in favour and (b) against the proposal. [167403]

Mr. Woolas: The consultation paper made a number of proposals on how to manage the coexistence of GM and non-GM crops. The summary of responses was published on 8 November 2007 and is available on the DEFRA website.

Climate Change

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what account he takes of the Natural Environment Research Council's research on climate systems in formulating his Department's policy on climate change and adaptation. [167818]

Mr. Woolas: My Department recognises the relevance and importance of the climate change research carried out by the Natural Environment Research Council (NERC). This make a significant contribution to the evidence base for policy formulation. Much of the climate research undertaken with DEFRA funding is done by the Met Office's Hadley Centre in close collaboration with NERC specialists.

This ongoing research effort is currently being strengthened through a new NERC and Met Office joint climate research programme. DEFRA is represented on the Programme Board of relevant NERC climate change programmes, for example quantifying and understanding the earth system (QUEST). DEFRA specialists liaise closely with NERC scientists and theme leaders and there is close collaboration at the highest level between the two organisations. My Department is a partner in NERC's new living with environmental change programme, which I anticipate will enable further important collaborations on climate science and adaptation issues.

Domestic Wastes: Waste Disposal

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research (a) has been and (b) will be undertaken by his Department to assess the effects of fortnightly bin collections on levels of fly-tipping. [165914]

Joan Ruddock: My Department has not commissioned any research to formally assess fly-tipping incidents resulting from local authorities moving to alternate weekly collections of residual household waste.

Many alternate weekly collections have been in place for a number of years and pre-date the collection of fly-tipping statistics. In addition, many schemes run in only parts of a local authority area. Therefore, data from Flycapture, the national fly-tipping statistical database, cannot be used to assess a link between switching to alternate weekly collection of household waste and an increase in fly tipping incidents.

However, my Department has been in discussions with the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) to investigate whether there are any local authorities which are introducing these schemes in the future that would be prepared to carry out some pre and post-scheme analysis of fly-tipping. No local authorities have come forward to date. Discussions have also taken place with two local authorities that have recently introduced alternate weekly collections across the whole of their boroughs and my officials will investigate whether Flycapture can be used in these instances for any meaningful analysis.

My Department actively encourages local authorities to have fly-tipping prevention and enforcement strategies in place, regardless of whether they introduce alternate weekly collections or not.

Flood Control: Expenditure

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent on (a) river flood defences as internal drainage and (b) sea flood defences and England and Wales in (i) 2004, (ii) 2005, (iii) 2006 and (iv) 2007. [166224]

Mr. Woolas: Flood risk management is a devolved issue, and in Wales, is the responsibility of the Welsh Assembly Government.

The following table shows flood risk management (river and sea) spend by the Environment Agency in England. It is not possible to separate these costs into river and sea components because in many areas flood risk arises from both rivers and the sea.

| | | | £ million |
|---|---|---|---|
| | 2004-05 | 2005-06 | 2006-07 |
| Capital | 151 | 202 | 162 |
| Maintenance | 162 | 163 | 176 |
| Other | 62 | 153 | 115 |
| Total | 375 | 618 | 453 |

Capital figures reflect spend on new and improved capital measures to reduce flood risk, including flood warning infrastructure. Maintenance figures reflect spend on maintenance of existing assets. Other Flood Risk Management spend covers the cost of delivering flood warning services, flood mapping, development control, data management such as the National Flood and Coastal Defence Database, regional flood defence committees and other associated costs such as investment in and provision of information systems, accommodation and overheads.

The additional spend in 2005-06 was largely funded from Regional Flood Defence Committee financial balances which are no longer maintained now that the Environment Agency's principal funding source for flood risk management is direct grant from DEFRA.

The following table shows DEFRA's grant to local authorities and internal drainage boards for capital flood risk improvement works:

DEFRA grant to local authorities

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 5.7 |
| 2005-06 | 10.5 |
| 2006-07 | 13.1 |

These figures are for both river and sea flood risk. Further substantial sums were paid to local authorities for coast protection works which are primarily intended to protect against coastal erosion but which also often provide significant protection against sea flooding. Local authorities also receive funding for flood risk maintenance and operational activities through the local government funding arrangements provided by the Department for Communities and Local Government.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, whether her Department's statement of principles with the insurance industry extends to (a) the cost implications of additional landfill tax as a result of flood damaged property to be disposed of and (b) uninsured losses [167261]

Phil Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

The Association of British Insurers Statement of Principles aims to ensure continued widespread availability of flood cover for households in flood risk areas. It does not extend to the cost implications of additional landfill tax or uninsured losses.

Flood Control: Hedges and Ditches

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will establish a national strategy for cleaning ditches and brooks as part of his flood prevention policy. [167515]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The operating authorities (principally the Environment Agency) undertake prioritised programmes of maintenance work on watercourses, including cleaning and dredging where appropriate. Otherwise responsibility for clearance lies with the land owner.

Floods: East Riding

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what mechanisms (a) he has and (b) he plans to put in place to prevent flooding in East Yorkshire. [167697]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Environment Agency is currently preparing the 100-year Hull and Humber Strategies. The Hull Strategy is expected to be delivered in 2008-09 subject to consultation leading to its implementation. It will examine the long-term requirements, risks, cost and benefits of flood defences, and other forms of flood risk management in the Hull catchment.

Floods: West Country

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been spent on flood defences in the West Country since 2002. [168628]

Mr. Woolas: The following table shows the amount spent on flood defences in the west country since 2002.

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 39.3 |
| 2003-04 | 42.1 |
| 2004-05 | 38.3 |
| 2005-06 | 48.7 |
| 2006-07 | 45.1 |
| Total | 213.5 |

Capital support by DEFRA to local authorities and internal drainage boards (now paid through the Environment Agency) in the same area was as follows:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 1.2 |
| 2003-04 | 0.9 |
| 2004-05 | 0.4 |
| 2005-06 | 1.0 |
| 2006-07 | 1.4 |
| Total | 4.9 |

The aforementioned data do not include support for local authority coast protection works which are primarily intended to protect against coastal erosion, but can also often provide significant protection against sea flooding. Nor do they include funding to local authorities for flood risk maintenance and operational activities through local government funding arrangements provided by the Department for Communities and Local Government.

Heating: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the likely increase in carbon dioxide emissions from the use of outdoor heating for smokers following the introduction of the ban on smoking in enclosed public places. [166554]

Mr. Woolas: The Market Transformation Programme (MTP) has recently updated its briefing note on 'Outdoor Heating for Comfort' to take account of the impact of the smoking ban on carbon dioxide emissions from outdoor heaters. The revised briefing note estimates that annual carbon dioxide emissions from patio heaters in commercial premises, would lie between 96 and 282 Kilotonnes $CO_2$. The updated briefing note is available on the MTP website at:

www.mtprog.com

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance he has issued to EAGA partnerships to ensure that Warm Front contractors are locally based. [166306]

Mr. Woolas: Guidance has not been issued to EAGA to appoint locally based installers.

EAGA has been instructed to select installers based on the strength of the tender they have submitted and following checks on financial probity and qualifications. Preference could not be given to local contractors due to regulations governing public procurement in the European Union.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether Warm Front contractors are required to be local businesses. [166307]

Mr. Woolas: Successful installers working on the Warm Front Scheme were chosen on the strength of the tender they submitted and following checks on financial probity and qualifications. Preference could not be given to local contractors per se due to regulations governing public procurement in the European Union.

Nitrate Sensitive Areas: Public Participation

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on progress in the Nitrate Vulnerable Zones consultation. [167855]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The public consultation on the implementation of the EC Nitrates Directive in England was launched on 21 August. The deadline for receipt of responses is 13 December 2007.

A report presenting a summary of my Department's analysis of consultation responses will be published early in the new year.

Recycling: Supermarkets

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has for requiring supermarkets to take greater responsibility for the environmental impact of the waste they generate; and if he will make a statement. [162976]

Joan Ruddock: Supermarkets are already responsible for the environmental impact of the waste they generate.

There are two sets of packaging regulations in place to encourage producers (including retailers) to minimise, recycle and recover packaging and reduce packaging waste.

The Government have created incentives for all businesses to reduce, re-use and recycle their waste. For example, we have announced that the landfill tax escalator will be increased, so that the standard rate of tax will be raised by £8 per annum from £24 now to £48 in 2010.

The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) assists both businesses and consumers in their efforts to be more efficient in their use of materials and reduce the impacts of their waste. WRAP is currently working with food retailers through the 'Courtauld Commitment', a voluntary agreement which aims to halt packaging growth by 2008 and make absolute reductions in packaging waste by 2010. 12 major retailers, representing 92 per cent. of the UK grocery sector, and 12 major brands have signed the commitment since its launch in 2005.

In addition, DEFRA, working with WRAP and the devolved Administrations, has secured the agreement of UK retailers to reduce the overall environmental impact of their carrier bags by 25 per cent. by the end of 2008.

WRAP also has a target to divert 100,000 tonnes of food waste from landfill by March 2008. Retailers, and a number of significant food manufacturers, have agreed to work with WRAP to help deliver this target. More generally, DEFRA is working closely with the food industry to improve its environmental impact through the Food Industry Sustainability Strategy (FISS). The FISS targets a reduction in the food industry's own wastes of 15-20 per cent. by 2010.

Waste Disposal: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with Gloucestershire county council on its proposed waste facility at Javelin Park off Junction 12 of the M5. [167402]

Joan Ruddock: No such discussions have taken place. The Government believe that local authorities are best placed to make local waste management decisions.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Africa: Floods

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the long-term effects of the flooding in Africa; and what additional work his Department is undertaking to assist the flood-hit regions. [165374]

Mr. Malik: In West Africa and the Sahel, the floods have coincided with the most critical time of year, when families face food insecurity. The destruction of crop and food stocks has aggravated the vulnerability of poor families both in the immediate and medium terms. In East Africa, the effects have been as severe—in Uganda, the next successful harvest cannot be expected before February 2008, and it will take at least two harvests for affected households to fully recover their losses.

Across the affected countries, medium term food security needs are being formally assessed by DFID's traditional partners (including the World Food Programme), and DFID will respond as appropriate on the basis of the vulnerabilities identified.

DFID has responded promptly to the humanitarian consequences of the flooding through relief interventions and complementary early recovery activities, where needs have been assessed and identified. Overall, a total of £9.21 million has been allocated for flood response from the UN's Central Emergency Response Fund (CERF)—to which the UK has contributed £42.2 million this year. The Togo contribution (£110,000) was specifically for agricultural recovery.

DFID is also the largest donor to the Common Humanitarian Fund (CHF) in Sudan, contributing approximately £40 million this year, and the Humanitarian Response Fund (HRF) in Ethiopia, contributing £3 million this year. These funds have been drawn down in Sudan (£2.4 million) and Ethiopia (£1 million) for flood response. Some of these funds will be directed towards addressing the longer term effects of the flooding.

Direct DFID funding is being provided where humanitarian and recovery needs remain unmet. So far DFID has contributed £1 million in Ethiopia to the appeal of the international Red Cross (ICRC), some of which is being used for flood response, and a total of £1.834 million in Uganda and Ghana. In. Ghana £343,000 is in support of an agricultural recovery programme being implemented by CARE.

Bangladesh: International Assistance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid and assistance has been provided by the UK Government to Bangladesh in relation to damage caused by Cyclone Sidr. [168793]

Mr. Malik: The UK Government have provided £5 million for Cyclone Sidr relief in Bangladesh: £2.5 million through the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) to local Non-Government Organisations (NGOs) and an additional £2.5 million as announced by the Secretary of State on the 23 November. The UK also accounts for an 18 per cent. share, around £650,000, of the European Commission's (EC) pledge of approximately £3.6 million for emergency aid. DFID has made indirect contributions through the United Nations Central Emergency Response Fund (CERF), which has allocated US $14.7 million to the Bangladesh response. This year, DFID has provided $83.7 million to the Fund, making us the largest donor. The UK is also providing support through some of our existing development programmes in Bangladesh.

DFID has sent two disaster relief experts to Bangladesh to support the DFID country office in its emergency efforts and make recommendations on further UK support. Our Bangladesh office is in regular contact with the Government of Bangladesh's Disaster Management Bureau (to which DFID is providing long-term support), and the UN team concerning the situation on the ground.

Departmental Correspondence

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of inquiries received by his Department from the public were responded to within (a) one week, (b) 14 days, (c) 28 days, (d)

two months and (e) three months in the last period for which figures are available; and in what percentage of cases it took (i) over three months and (ii) over one year to respond. [167370]

Mr. Malik: The Government publish an annual report to Parliament on the Department's performance in replying to Members and Peers correspondence. The report for 2006 was published on 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 101WS. Information for 2007 will be published as soon it is ready after the end of the calendar year. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

DFID does not hold information on public inquiries in the format requested, and it could be collated only at a disproportionate cost. In 2006, the Department's Public Inquiry Point handled 17,545 inquiries. 88 per cent. of letters and 90 per cent. of e-mails were answered within 15 days and 95 per cent. of telephone requests were answered within two days.

Developing Countries: Water

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid and assistance was provided by the Government to improve water and sanitation provisions in developing countries in each of the last five years. [168794]

Mr. Malik: A detailed breakdown of DFID support for the water sector over the last five years can be found in two reports titled "Financial Support to the Water Sector 2002-2004" and "Financial Support to the Water Sector 2004-2006", prepared for DFID by WS Atkins Plc. Both are available on the DFID website: www.dfid.gov.uk.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the environmental impact of the conflict in western Sudan; and what steps he has taken to ensure the long-term integration of sustainable resource management into recovery programmes. [166363]

Mr. Malik: DFID supported the "UN Environment Programme (UNEP) Post-Conflict Environmental Assessment for Sudan-2007". This concentrates on the links between conflict and the environment, including in Western Sudan. The report highlights competition over pastoral land and water in Darfur as a driving force behind the majority of local confrontations over the last 70 years. It also indicates a very strong link between land degradation, desertification and conflict in the region.

Further to this analysis, we are also providing £2.18 million to support a new sustainable livelihoods programme in Darfur in partnership with UNEP, the UN Human Settlement Programme and the UN Resident Co-ordinator's Office. The programme aims to protect environmental assets, support strategies that "do no harm", and promote environmentally-friendly solutions that sustainably protect the livelihoods of ordinary Darfuris. The programme will work with and through others to prevent deforestation, promote woodless construction and improve water resource management.

Trade: Medicine

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether the Government is offering support to countries which wish to use Trade-Related Intellectual Property Rights flexibilities to produce, export or import generic medicines. [165206]

Mr. Malik: The Government support the right of developing countries to utilise TRIPS flexibilities and in particular to facilitate access to cheaper medicines. This includes the right to produce, export or import generic medicines under a compulsory licence. The Government strongly supported the EU Regulation passed in 2006 which enables European generic manufacturers to export medicines under a compulsory licence to developing countries in accordance with the amendment to TRIPS agreed by the World Trade Organisation (WTO) in 2005.

DFID has financed a number of organisations to provide support to developing countries to make better use of their TRIPS flexibilities, including compulsory licensing. These organisations include the UN Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) and the International Centre for Trade and Sustainable Development (ICTSD). Activities include country level analysis of legislation and policy and technical assistance in the form of training and diagnosis.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefits

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the number of children living in households entitled to but not claiming (a) disability living allowance and (b) council tax benefit; and if he will make a statement; [167009]

(2) what the take-up rate of (a) housing benefit, (b) council tax benefit and (c) disability living allowance among those eligible was in each year since their introduction; and if he will make a statement; [167092]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of children living in households eligible for but not claiming housing benefit; and if he will make a statement. [167095]

Mr. Plaskitt: Estimates of the number of children living in households entitled to but not claiming benefit are not available.

Estimates of the take-up rates and number of families not claiming the main income-related benefits—income support, pension credit, housing benefit, council tax benefit and income-based jobseeker's allowance—are available in the DWP publication series entitled 'Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up in 2005-06'. The latest edition includes estimates of take-up in each year since 1997-98. Copies of the latest publication, plus past reports, can be found in the Library.

Estimates of the take-up rate of disability living allowance are not available.

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the take-up rates of (a) housing benefit, (b) council tax benefit and (c) disability living allowance were in 2006-07; [167521]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of children living in households entitled to but not claiming (a) housing benefit, (b) council tax benefit and (c) disability living allowance. [167522]

Mr. Plaskitt: Estimates of take-up in 2006-07 are not available.

The latest estimates relate to 2005-06. These estimates cover the take-up of the main income-related benefits only—income support, pension credit, housing benefit, council tax benefit and income-based jobseeker's allowance—and are available in the DWP publication entitled 'Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up in 2005-06'. Copies of the latest publication, plus past reports, can be found in the Library.

Estimates of the take-up rate of disability living allowance are not available.

Estimates of the number of children living in households entitled to but not claiming benefit are not available.

Carers' Allowances

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many employed people qualify for the carer's allowance. [162622]

Mrs. McGuire: At May 2007, 48,970 carer's allowance claimants were in employment.

Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission will be fully operational; and if he will make a statement. [167812]

Mr. Plaskitt: Subject to parliamentary approval, the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission will become operational in 2008.

Children: Maintenance

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many absent parents in each constituency in Scotland are being dealt with by the Child Support Agency under the old rules. [162755]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty dated 27 November 2007:

In reply to your recent parliamentary question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many absent parents in each constituency in Scotland are being dealt with by the Child Support Agency under the old rules. [162755]

The Agency does not gather information in the format requested. The information available relates to the number of old rules cases with a non-resident parent living in each constituency in Scotland as at September 2007 and is provided in the attached table. Therefore, non-resident parents with more than one case will be counted for each related case.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Notes:
1. Includes all cases with either a full maintenance assessment or an interim maintenance assessment Including those with a nil liability.
2. This table relates to cases. Therefore, non-resident parents involved in more than one case are included multiple times.
3. All figures are rounded to the nearest 100.
4. Cases have been allocated to parliamentary constituency through matching the postcode for a residential address against the Office for National Statistics postcode directory.
5. A component of the old scheme numbers is taken from a 5 per cent. sample of cases on the old computer system. The old scheme figures and the overall totals are therefore subject to a degree of sampling variation. This sampling variation is greater in proportional terms when the number estimated is small.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average processing time was for child support applications in each constituency in Scotland in the latest period for which figures are available. [163463]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available at constituency level.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether money received from (a) war disablement pensions and (b) the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme (i) is included in the calculation of child support payments by the Child Support Agency and (ii) will be included in calculations made by the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. [166303]

Mr. Plaskitt: The current treatment of parents receiving these payments differs between the two existing schemes.

Under the first child support scheme introduced in 1993 any element of a war disablement pension awarded in respect of attendance needs is ignored. The remaining part of that award in respect of a parent, and any periodical payment made under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme, will be taken into account, apart from a £10 a week disregard. If the liability of a non-resident parent receiving one of these payments would otherwise be the minimum amount, the liability is reduced to nil.

Under the second child support scheme, introduced from March 2003, a non-resident parent receiving war disablement pension or periodical payments under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme will be liable for a flat-rate maintenance of £5 per week.

The proposed new calculation rules to be operated by the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission from 2010 will continue to include a flat-rate but at £7 per week for non-resident parents receiving war disablement pension or periodical payments under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the Child Maintenance and Enforcements Commission will sign new contracts with debt collection agencies for debt collection or maintain contracts with agencies signed by the Child Support Agency. [166357]

Mr. Plaskitt: When responsibility for child support functions transfers to the Commission, the Commission will be able to use the contracts currently used by the CSA. Future debt collection arrangements will be for the Commission to determine.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many individuals have received a consolatory payment from the Child Support Agency; [166679]

(2) what the (a) average size and (b) total value has been of consolatory payments made to individuals by the Child Support Agency. [166680]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 27 November 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many individuals have received a consolatory payment from the Child Support Agency. [166679]

and

What the (a) average size and (b) total value has been of consolatory payments made to individuals by the Child Support Agency. [166680]

The Agency does not routinely collect information regarding the number of individuals that receive consolatory payments. The information provided in the table below refers to the total number of consolatory awards made in the most recent complete year. Individuals may receive more than one award in any year.

Child Support Agency consolatory awards

| | 2006-07 |
|---|---|
| Total number of Consolatory awards made | 9,194 |
| Consolatory payments (£ million) | 0.666 |
| Average (£) | 72.44 |

Consolatory awards are not usually large amounts but do acknowledge that a client's case has not been handled as well as it might.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Departmental Pay

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the value of the Christmas bonus was in each year since 1997. [166830]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Christmas bonus has been £10 in each year since 1997.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many incapacity benefit claimants with claims of five years or more duration there were in each year since 1997, broken down by (a) region, (b) local authority area and (c) parliamentary constituency. [162684]

Mrs. McGuire: The available information has been placed in the Library.

Incapacity Benefit: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in receipt of incapacity benefit in West Chelmsford constituency there were in each of the last five years. [166241]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The information is in the following table.

Number of incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance claimants in West Chelmsford parliamentary constituency

| Quarter ending May | West Chelmsford |
|---|---|
| 2003 | 2,260 |
| 2004 | 2,360 |
| 2005 | 2,470 |
| 2006 | 2,430 |
| 2007 | 2,430 |

National Insurance

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many duplicate national insurance numbers have been issued in error in the last three years for which figures are available. [163722]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 13 November 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Epsom and Ewell (Chris Grayling) on 17 September 2007, Official Report, column 2294W. There is no later information available.

Pension Credit

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the estimated cost would be of increasing the pension credit to (a) 20 per cent., (b) 40 per cent. and (c) 60 per cent. of the average wage (i) in gross terms and (ii) net of existing benefits foregone and extra tax paid. [163337]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 14 November 2007]: The costs and savings of changing the level of the standard minimum guarantee to the proportion of the average wage specified in the question are shown in the following table. There are a number of different definitions of average wages. For the purposes of this answer we are using the gross weekly average mean earnings reported by the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings 2007. This figure stands at £549.80. 60 per cent. of this figure is £329.88.

It should be noted that this is a very different definition to the one used to understand low incomes for pensioners. Low income pensioners are often measured as those living in households with an income below 60 per cent. of median household income. Here income is measured as total net disposable household income after deducting housing costs, adjusted for household size. In 2005-06, the 60 per cent. of median income amount after housing costs are deducted stood at the equivalent of £108 for a single person without children.

Cost of changing pension credit standard minimum guarantee to proportions of average wage—2007-08

| | Costs/ savings (£ billion) | Implied standard minimum guarantee (£) | Endpoint of pension credit (£) | Proportion of pensioner households eligible for PC |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 20 per cent. mean wage | saving of 2.1 billion | 109.96 | 143.95 | around one-third |
| 40 per cent. of mean wage | cost of 34.5 billion | 219.92 | 418.85 | around 80 per cent. |

Cost of changing pension credit standard minimum guarantee to proportions of average wage—2007-08

| | Costs/ savings (£ billion) | Implied standard minimum guarantee (£) | Endpoint of pension credit (£) | Proportion of pensioner households eligible for PC |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 60 per cent. of mean wage | cost of 84.0 billion | 329.88 | 693.75 | around 90 per cent. |

Notes
1. The average wage is defined as the mean gross weekly pay for full time employee jobs.
2. The impacts of the proposals on housing benefit and council tax benefit expenditure are included.
3. Costs and savings have been rounded to the nearest £100 million.
4. Pension credit is not subject to income tax, therefore answer provided in gross terms only.
5. The pension credit end point is the level of income at which entitlement to pension credit ceases. This amount can be higher if someone is entitled to additional amounts for caring responsibilities, severe disabilities and certain housing costs.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the proportion of those eligible for pension credit who claimed it in (a) the UK and (b) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each of the last three years. [166604]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Estimates of eligibility and take-up are not available below the level of Great Britain. It is not therefore possible to say how many people are eligible to pension credit and what the take-up rate is for Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency.

Latest estimates of take-up rates for pension credit in Great Britain were published in the "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up in 2005/06" report. A copy of this report is available in the Library.

The following table shows the number of households in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in receipt of pension credit as at May in each of the last three years.

| As at May of each year | Pension credit household recipients |
|---|---|
| 2005 | 5,030 |
| 2006 | 5,130 |
| 2007 | 5,120 |

Notes:
1. The number of households in receipt are rounded to the nearest ten.
2. Household recipients are those people who claim pension credit either for themselves only or on behalf of a household.

Pension Funds: EC Law

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the EU Markets in Financial Instruments Directive on the ability of pension funds to acquire foreign shares. [165824]

Kitty Ussher: I have been asked to reply.

In order to assess the impact of MiFID, research was commissioned by the FSA. This highlighted that potential benefits to investors, which include pension funds, could arise from increased competition and from deeper and more liquid capital markets.

Pensions: Post Offices

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of people in Eastbourne who collect their pensions from the post office. [165317]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested.

Information showing the number of DWP pension payment accounts paid into a Post Office card account for each parliamentary constituency has been placed in the Library.

In addition to the Post Office card account, there are around 25 bank accounts which are accessible at post offices.

Population: Pensioners

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the change in the number of people aged (a) 65 years and over and (b) 75 years and over in each constituency in England since 1997. [167573]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 27 November 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your question regarding what estimate has been made of the change in the number of people aged (a) 65 years and over and (b) 75 years and over in each constituency in England since 1997. I am replying in her absence. (167573)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) does not currently have for the whole of England, parliamentary constituency population estimates from 1997. I am therefore unable to provide an estimate of the numbers aged 65 or 75 years and over in each constituency in England.

ONS is however intending to publish population estimates for parliamentary constituencies in England (and Wales) for mid-2001 to mid-2005 as experimental statistics in December 2007. It will therefore be possible for us to provide population estimates by age (and sex) for parliamentary constituencies in England for these years.

Redundancy Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 23 October 2007, Official Report, column 237W, on redundancy pay, what the (a) average, (b) highest and (c) lowest redundancy payment was; and what the budget for redundancies was in that period. [166288]

Caroline Flint: In the 12 months ending 31 March 2007, £55.8 million was spent on early release payments. Over this period there were no compulsory redundancies.

Based on the average cost to the Department in 2006-07, the overall average early release payment was £50,000. The highest early release cost to the Department, at Grade 6 level, was £240,000 and the lowest early release cost, at Administrative Assistant level, was £9,500 and the overall average cost in that year was £50,000. These payments are based on the cost to the Department not the payment to the individual.

The departmental budget for early releases in 2006-07 was £85 million. £55.8 million has been spent and the balance of £29.2 million has been set aside for future pension provision.

Social Security Benefits: Disabled

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) proportion of people who are entitled to disability-related benefits but are not claiming them. [166514]

Mrs. McGuire: Disability-related benefits consist of disability living allowance and attendance allowance. Estimates of take-up are not available for either.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in West Chelmsford constituency have been found guilty of benefit fraud in each of the last five years. [167893]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available below Government office region level.

State Retirement Pensions

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received on the merits of issuing P60s to confirm state pension payment levels; and if he will make a statement. [165349]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 19 November 2007]: We have had no recent representations. However, state pension customers can request a statement of state pension paid in a previous tax year, by contacting their pension centre. Form BR735 is completed by pension centre staff on receipt of a request and is then issued direct to the customer.

Winter Fuel Payments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what number and percentage of eligible pensioners in (a) Cornwall, (b) South West England and (c) England have claimed winter fuel allowance in each of the last five years. [166580]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information requested is not available in the form requested. We can only assess eligibility for those people who are in contact with the Department and whose circumstances are known. The vast majority of winter fuel payments are made automatically without the need to claim, but those people whose circumstances we are not already aware of, for instance because they are not on state pension or other benefits administered by DWP, would need to make a claim so that their eligibility can be assessed.

The following table shows the number of winter fuel payments made to people in the county of Cornwall and The Isles of Scilly, South West England Government office region and England in each of the last five years.

Payments Made

| | Cornwall and The Isles of Scilly | South West England | England |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 123,410 | 1,132,140 | 9,709,940 |
| 2003-04 | 125,500 | 1,148,050 | 9,813,180 |
| 2004-05 | 125,300 | 1,146,650 | 9,761,980 |
| 2005-06 | 127,410 | 1,163,320 | 9,863,780 |
| 2006-07 | 130,810 | 1,186,270 | 10,028,780 |

2. Government office regions are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant ONS postcode directory.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Departmental Press

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills to which periodicals his Department subscribes. [166870]

Mr. Lammy: A list of periodicals subscribed to by the DCSF library is shown in the following list. Current DCSF library provide information and library services to ex-DFES staff within DIUS, including access to hard copy journals. Ex-DTI staff within DIUS have no access to centralised periodical provision. Individual teams within DIUS have the option to subscribe to periodicals if they wish, however to extract this information would involve disproportionate cost.

Institute for Animal Health: Floods

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) on how many occasions Category 3 drains at the Compton and Pirbright sites of the Institute for Animal Health flooded due to storm water in each of the last five years; and whether in each case there was a back-up of potentially contaminated water into bio-secure areas; [166884]

(2) how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time staff work at the Institute of Animal Health facility at Pirbright; how many buildings and other contractors have worked there in 2007; what bio-security measures are in place to prevent disease transmission by employees, students or contractors; and what other security checks are carried out in respect of individuals with access to the site. [166885]

Ian Pearson: These are matters for the Institute for Animal Health. I have drawn the attention of the Chairman of the Governing Board to the hon. Member's questions.

Prisoners: Education

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many prisoners attained (a) a level 2, (b) a level 3 and (c) a higher than level 3 qualification while in prison in (i) England, (ii) London and (iii) each London borough in each year since 1997. [166927]

Mr. Lammy: The information requested is not available as data were not collected centrally.

The introduction of the Offender Learning and Skills Service (OLASS) from 31 July 2006 means that data on individual offender achievement will increasingly become available for adults, young offenders and juveniles in custody, in England. Data in the format requested will be available from spring 2008 for the academic year 2006/07.

Redundancy: Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills with reference to the answer of 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1754W, on redundancy pay, how much was spent by his Department on voluntary redundancy payments in the last 12 months. [166286]

Mr. Lammy: The position remains unchanged from the response I gave to the hon. Member on 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1754W.

Research: Science

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many scientific research prizes were issued by his Department in each year since 1997; and what their total value was. [166893]

Ian Pearson: The Department of Innovation, Universities and Skills and its relevant predecessor bodies have not issued any scientific research prizes since 1997.

Students: English Language

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what assessment he has made of the effect on the number of students taking up English for speakers of other languages courses of the implementation of the new funding system; [167472]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect on the geographical profile of English for speakers of other languages students of the implementation of the new fees structure. [167473]

Bill Rammell: The first return of learner data is not expected until December 2007, and this will help to develop an understanding of the implications of the Governments changes to ESOL policy for 2007/08 at a national as well as local level. The LSC and the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills are working very closely to analyse the full impact of the ESOL policy changes on demand, as well as on provider behaviour and we have commissioned additional impact assessment work to help us do this. The priority for the Government and the LSC is that public support is available to those who need it most, and we will continue to work towards this agenda.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Detainees

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which NATO members currently involved in ISAF in Afghanistan do not have memoranda of understanding on the transfer of detainees with the Afghan authorities; and if he will make a statement. [166139]

David Miliband: We are aware of a bilateral memorandum of understanding (MoU) between the Afghan Government and The Netherlands, Canada, Norway, and Denmark. The UK also has a bilateral MoU.

Our MoU details the arrangements reached between the UK and Afghan Governments and sets out the responsibilities of both parties before and after the transfer to Afghan authorities of persons detained in Afghanistan by British forces.

Afghanistan: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the UK has put forward a candidate for the position of UN Special Representative for Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [166132]

David Miliband: The contract of the current UN Special Representative of the Secretary-General, Tom Koenigs, runs until February 2008. He has announced his intention to step down. We, and other UN member states, are considering the issue of his successor, which is ultimately a decision for the UN Secretary-General.

Belarus: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on Belarus, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount of assets frozen is by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166067]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU sanctions, along with our EU partners.

EU member states do not systematically share detailed information concerning the value of funds they have identified and frozen. However, they are legally obliged to freeze all funds and economic resources belonging to persons listed under the sanctions regime. It is prohibited to make funds or economic resources available, directly or indirectly, to these persons.

To date no funds have been identified in the UK in relation to EU sanctions on Belarus.

Bosnia: Radioactive Materials

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has made representations to his counterpart in Bosnia-Herzegovina on the theft of 60 radiation generators from nuclear medicine department storage in Banja Luka in the Entity of Republica Srpska in Bosnia-Herzegovina. [166145]

David Miliband: We are aware that on 8 November, 60 lead containers were stolen from the Banja Luka Institute for Medicine. Bosnian police have stated that this theft poses no danger to the public since the radioactive isotopes stored in the containers have expired. The police believe that the lead was stolen for resale. The Bosnian police and Interpol are investigating the theft. I have therefore not made representations on this issue.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has made representations to the International Atomic Energy Agency on the theft of 60 radiation generators from nuclear medicine department storage in Banja Luka in the Entity of Republica Srpska in Bosnia-Hezegovina. [166158]

David Miliband: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply I gave him today (UIN: 166145).

Burma: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on Burma, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount of assets frozen is by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166073]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU Sanctions along with our EU partners.

EU member states do not systematically share detailed information concerning the value of funds they have identified and frozen. However, they are legally obliged to freeze all funds and economic resources belonging to persons listed under the sanctions regime. It is prohibited to make funds or economic resources available, directly or indirectly, to these persons.

The reported balance of UK frozen funds in relation to EU sanctions on Burma amounts to approximately £49,500.

China: Summit Conferences

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what preparations have been made for the EU-China Summit on 28 November; what topics he expects to be on the agenda for this summit; and if he will make a statement. [166064]

David Miliband: The UK has worked closely with the EU Presidency, Commission and Council Secretariat, and with other key member states, to work towards a successful EU-China Summit. I expect the summit to cover issues such as: a review of negotiations on an EU-China Partnership and Co-operation Agreement; discussion of the sectoral dialogues and bilateral agreements (including partnership on climate change and energy co-operation); economic and trade issues; human rights; and discussion of international and regional issues (including Burma and Africa).

Cote d'Ivoire: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on Cote d'Ivoire, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount of assets frozen is by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166070]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU sanctions, along with our EU partners.

EU member states do not systematically share detailed information concerning the value of funds they have identified and frozen. However, they are legally obliged to freeze all funds and economic resources belonging to persons listed under the sanctions regime. It is prohibited to make funds or economic resources available, directly or indirectly, to these persons.

The reported balance of UK frozen funds amounts to £18,352.07, in relation to UN and EU sanctions on Cote d' Ivoire.

Croatia: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on Croatia, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount of assets frozen is by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166071]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU sanctions, along with our EU partners.

There are no EU financial sanctions imposed on Croatia. EU Common Position 2004/694/Common Foreign Security Policy imposed an asset freeze on individuals indicted by the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia. To date no funds have been identified in the UK.

Departmental Correspondence

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what percentage of inquiries received by his Department from the public were responded to within (a) one week, (b) 14 days, (c) 28 days, (d) two months and (e) three months; and in what percentage of cases it took (i) over three months and (ii) over one year to respond. [167384]

Meg Munn: The percentage of general inquiries received by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office from members of the public and responded to within:

| | Percentage |
|---|---|
| one week | 59.2 |
| 7 to 14 days | 4.2 |
| 14 to 28 days | 5.6 |
| One to two months | 19.7 |
| Two to three months | 0.5 |
| Transferred to other Government departments or indecipherable | 10.8 |

Unfortunately, I am unable to provide the hon. Member with statistics before 1 August 2007 as letters received before that date were not recorded.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [168108]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office employs 12,788 staff overseas, of which 2,439 are UK-based and 10,349 are locally employed. UK-based staff are British citizens. We have no central records of the nationality of local staff.

Departmental Health Insurance

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many officials in (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies have private health insurance provided as part of their employment package. [167932]

Meg Munn: No UK-based member of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) or its agencies has private health insurance provided as part of their employment package. FCO staff, like other civil servants, have access to the national health service in the UK. While serving overseas FCO staff are covered by an employee health care scheme which offers access to NHS standards of care. Those serving in the United States gain access to this standard of care through an in-country insurance scheme contracted for that purpose.

FCO policy is that staff recruited locally by our missions overseas should be covered for medical care in accordance with local law and local good employer practice.

Departmental Orders and Regulations

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many regulations his Department has (a) made and (b) revoked in the last 12 months. [167079]

Meg Munn: In the period 1 November 2006 to 31 October 2007, there were 21 statutory instruments which were prepared by the Foreign and Commonwealth and made by the Queen in Privy Council. The information requested about which statutory instruments have been revoked in the last 12 months could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Publicity

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department and its agencies spent on staff working on (a) marketing and (b) branding in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [167306]

Meg Munn: It would incur disproportionate cost to collate the information requested by the hon. Member to answer his question.

Deportation

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with which countries the UK is discussing repatriation arrangements with a view to signing new agreements for deportations; and if he will make a statement. [167423]

David Miliband: We have signed memorandums of understanding concerning the provision of assurances in respect of persons subject to deportation with Jordan, Libya and Lebanon. Arrangements allowing deportations with assurances are in place with Algeria.

Our discussions with other countries are less advanced, and it would not be helpful to identify the countries concerned. We will update the House if and when we reach agreement.

Dudley Ankerson

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 19 November 2007, Official Report, column 559W, on Dudley Ankerson, whether Mr. Dudley Ankerson's association with his Department has been confirmed in official documents published by his Department. [168567]

Meg Munn: The 2006 edition of The Diplomatic Service List, published by The Stationery Office, confirmed Dr. Dudley Ankerson as a member of HM diplomatic service.

Gaza: Fuels

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Israeli Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary on resuming fuel supplies for Gaza. [168656]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised Gaza with the Israeli Prime Minister, Ehud Olmert, and the Defence Minister, Ehud Barak, during his recent visit to Israel, the occupied Palestinian territories and Egypt (17 to 20 November). My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary also stressed to the Israeli Foreign Minister, Tzipi Livni, the need to ensure that adequate supplies entered Gaza.

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the effect of the fuel blockade on Gaza. [168657]

Dr. Howells: Following Israel's announcement of its intention to cut fuel supplies to Gaza, diesel and petrol imports have been cut by about 40 per cent.. So far, municipalities and hospitals are being prioritised for available fuel and are largely unaffected. Supplies of industrial fuel for Gaza's power station and cooking gas have not been affected. Our Consulate-General in Jerusalem and the office of the Department for International Development in Jerusalem are following the situation closely.

Iran: Nuclear Power

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Iranian nationals received training in Britain in nuclear-related disciplines in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [168448]

David Miliband: It is not possible to provide these figures, as universities are only required to supply data relating to the highest level of subject classification rather than a detailed course breakdown (e.g. number studying physics, rather than number studying nuclear physics). Similarly, universities are not obliged to provide nationality data, only the country of domicile.

However, through the voluntary vetting scheme and now the academic technology approval scheme (ATAS), we do have the means, and have used it, to stop Iranian applications for proliferation-sensitive subjects where there are concerns. Under ATAS, non-European economic area students intending to undertake postgraduate study in the UK in areas which have been identified as sensitive need to apply for counter-proliferation clearance from the Government before taking up their study.

Iran: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on Iran, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount of assets frozen is by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166072]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU sanctions, along with our EU partners.

EU member states do not systematically share detailed information concerning the value of funds they have identified and frozen. However, they are legally obliged to freeze all funds and economic resources belonging to persons and entities listed under the sanctions regime. It is prohibited to make funds or economic resources available, directly or indirectly, to these persons and entities.

The reported balance of UK frozen funds in relation to UN and EU sanctions on Iran amounts to £512,982,378.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether it is the Government's policy that credit guarantees on British exports to Iran should be curtailed; and if he will make a statement. [166127]

David Miliband: The Government, through the Export Credits Guarantee Department (ECGD), are not progressing applications for new cover for Iran. No new export credit guarantees have been issued for Iran since September 2006. As part of their work to increase multilateral sanctions against Iran, the Government are discussing ways of denying Iran access to export credit finance.

Iraq: Christianity

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the government of Iraq on the persecution of Christians in that country. [168493]

Dr. Howells: We recognise that Christians in Iraq, like all other communities, have been badly affected by the high levels of violence in the country. We continue to press the Iraqi government to take action to protect people regardless of faith or political persuasion and to take tough measures against those perpetuating the violence. I raised our concerns about the position of Iraqi Christians last month with the Iraqi Minister of Human Rights during her visit to the UK.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many personnel have been employed by private military security companies under contract to his Department in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [165894]

David Miliband: The number of personnel employed by companies under contract to the Government fluctuates during the contracted period as the Government's requirements change. Currently, Foreign and Commonwealth Office contracts require provision of 371 expatriate, third country national and local national personnel in Iraq and 530 expatriate, third country national and local national personnel in Afghanistan.

Islam: Internet

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the costs were of the Radical Middle Way website in each year for which figures are available. [168435]

Dr. Howells: According to the organisers, the cost for the Radical Middle Way website for 2007-08 is £26,400. The total cost for website development from the Radical Middle Way's launch in February 2006 to its completion in March 2007 was £35,000.

Middle East

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish the itinerary of his recent visit to Israel and the occupied territories; and a list of his engagements. [167786]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited Israel and the occupied Palestinian territories on 17 to 19 November 2007. I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on 20 November, Official Report, columns 127-128WS, which details the meetings he undertook.

National Security

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the statement of the Prime Minster of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-72, on national security, what estimate he has made of the cost of the roadshows of mainstream Islamic scholarship to be held (a) in Britain and (b) abroad announced by the Prime Minster in (i) 2007 and (ii) in each year for which figures are available; and how he plans to assess the effectiveness of these roadshows. [168436]

Dr. Howells: The Government's contribution to the Radical Middle Way (RMW) in Britain project for financial year 2007-08 is £275,000, jointly funded by the Department for Communities and Local Government and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO). Our contribution to the overseas element of RMW for financial year 2007-08 is £125,000. The total contribution from the Government for previous years, from RMW's launch in February 2006 to March 2007, was £412,129.24, jointly funded by the FCO and the Home Office.

The effectiveness of the project has been, and will continue to be, evaluated through both quantitative (attendance, website hits and uptake of RMW material) and qualitative (interviews with participants, partners and audiences) measures.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the statement of the Prime Minister of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-72, on national security, if he will publish details of how the £400 million to be spent in the next three years by his Department on tackling radicalisation and promoting understanding overseas announced by the Prime Minister will be used; and how he plans to assess the effectiveness of this initiative. [168438]

Dr. Howells: As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister said in his statement to the House on 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-72, the Government will report back on action overseas with other countries to counter extremism when we launch the full national security strategy.

North Korea: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on North Korea, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount is of assets frozen by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166048]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU sanctions, along with our EU partners.

EU sanctions on North Korea implement UN sanctions and to date no individuals or entities have been targeted for the assets freeze by the UN. Consequently the UK has not frozen any assets.

Nuclear Disarmament

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reasons the UK voted against the resolution Towards a Nuclear-weapon-free World: Accelerating the Implementation of Nuclear Disarmament Commitments at the UN First Committee on Disarmament and International Security on 17 October 2007; and if he will make a statement. [166997]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The United Kingdom abstained on rather than voted against this resolution at the UN General Assembly's First Committee. The resolution contained a great deal that we would have been happy to endorse. However, we remained unable to support the text because it gave no recognition to the significant nuclear disarmament achievements of most nuclear weapons states since the end of the cold war. We made this clear in an oral explanation given at the time of the vote, which will be deposited in the Library of the House.

Nuclear Test Ban

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are taking to encourage the governments of (a) China, (b) India and (c) the USA to sign the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty. [168607]

Dr. Howells: China and the US signed the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban treaty (CTBT) in 1996 but have not yet ratified it. India has neither signed nor ratified the treaty.

The United Kingdom strongly supports the earliest possible entry into force of the CTBT. We continue to take every appropriate opportunity, both bilaterally and through the EU, to urge all states who have not yet done so to sign and/or ratify the CTBT without delay and without condition. We most recently took action with India in April 2007, with the US in September 2007, and agreed EU action with China in November 2007. The UK also continues to support the outreach activities of Ambassador Ramaker, the Special Representative of the ratifiers of the treaty, staff of the Provisional Technical Secretariat and the Executive Secretary of the CTBT. In addition, the UK actively participates in the annual events held under the provisions of article XIV of the treaty to facilitate entry into force.

Occupied Territories

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he visited a Jewish settlement in the occupied west bank during his recent visit to Israel and the occupied Palestinian territories; and if he will make a statement. [168568]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary informed the House that he did not visit any settlements during his recent visit to Israel, the occupied Palestinian territories and Egypt between 17 to 20 November. I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary gave to him on 20 November, during Foreign and Commonwealth Office oral questions, Official Report, columns 1089-1090.

Overseas Property

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what risk assessment his Department conducts in formulating advice to UK citizens purchasing property abroad; [168616]

(2) what criteria are used by his Department when conducting a risk assessment in formulating advice to UK citizens purchasing property abroad. [168617]

Meg Munn: Decisions on property purchases overseas are for the individuals concerned. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not get involved in purchases or disputes, nor can it offer legal advice to individuals planning to purchase property. We would always advise British citizens intending to purchase a property overseas to engage a local lawyer. Where we are aware of particular problems that have been encountered by significant numbers of purchasers we will provide general information in our travel advice for the country concerned. This information is based on the knowledge and experience of the relevant diplomatic posts.

Portugal: European Council

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations (a) he and (b) his ministerial colleagues have made to their (i) Portuguese and (ii) Belgian counterparts on the decision to split the December meeting of the European Council between Lisbon and Brussels. [162081]

David Miliband: My hon. Friend the Minister for Europe and UK officials have discussed the location of the Intergovernmental Conference (IGC) with the Portuguese presidency. The Government prefer a single location for logistical and environmental reasons, but the location of any IGC is at the discretion of the presidency, while EU heads of state have agreed that all formal meetings of the European Council must take place in Brussels.

Carbon emissions from all central Government ministerial and official air travel has been offset since April 2006.

Saudi Arabia: Rape

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Saudi Arabian government in the case of the rape victim who was recently sentenced to 200 lashes and six months in prison; and if he will make a statement. [167877]

Dr. Howells: The Government have raised, and will continue to raise, this case with Saudi authorities.

The facts to hand on this case are disturbing. We will seek clarification on next steps, not least in light of the court's view that media attention has increased the level of the sentence. We are also concerned to hear that her lawyer has had his licence revoked for defending her case.

We urge the Saudi authorities to again review the case. Victims of sexual assault should not suffer further punishment.

Sudan: Electoral Law

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to the Government of Sudan on its progress towards the enactment of an electoral law. [168170]

Meg Munn: We had encouraged the National Congress Party and Sudanese People's Liberation Movement (SPLM), the two largest parties, to agree the electoral law for approval by the Sudanese Parliament. Since the SPLM's withdrawal from the Government of National Unity, we have been urging both sides to continue dialogue on their differences on the implementation of the comprehensive peace agreement, but the draft electoral law has not been one of the main sticking points.

We have provided technical support including assistance to draft the electoral bill presented to the Sudanese Parliament, a visit for Sudanese election officials to observe the Scottish elections, and equipment for the National Constitutional Review Commission, the committee responsible for drafting the legislation.

Sudan: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on Sudan, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount of assets frozen is by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166074]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU sanctions, along with our EU partners.

EU member states do not systematically share detailed information concerning the value of funds they have identified and frozen. However, they are legally obliged to freeze all funds and economic resources belonging to persons listed under the sanctions regime. It is prohibited to make funds or economic resources available, directly or indirectly, to these persons.

To date no funds have been identified in the UK in relation to UN or EU sanctions on Sudan.

Terrorism

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on his Department's proposed role over the next three years in tackling radicalisation and promoting understanding overseas, as referred to in the Statement by the Prime Minister on 14th November 2007. [167263]

David Miliband: As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister said in his statement to the House on 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-672, the Government will report back on action overseas with other countries to counter extremism when we launch the full national security strategy.

UN Security Council

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what specific interim proposals for the reform of the UN Security Council the UK has proposed, as referred to in the Prime Minister's Mansion House speech of 12 November. [166134]

David Miliband: The UK is discussing permanent and interim reforms with a range of countries. The UK seeks a Security Council that is more representative of today's world, yet no less effective or capable of taking the tough decisions needed to address threats to international peace and security.

Zimbabwe: Sanctions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the implementation of European Union sanctions on Zimbabwe, with particular reference to the UK's compliance; what the total amount of assets frozen is by (a) EU member states and (b) the United Kingdom in line with these sanctions; and if he will make a statement. [166076]

David Miliband: The UK is firmly committed to the full implementation of all EU sanctions, along with our EU partners.

EU member states do not systematically share detailed information concerning the value of funds they have identified and frozen. However, they are legally obliged to freeze all funds and economic resources belonging to persons listed under the sanctions regime. It is prohibited to make funds or economic resources available, directly or indirectly, to these persons.

The reported balance of UK frozen funds in relation to EU sanctions on Zimbabwe amounts to approximately £172,000.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Admiralty House

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the council tax band is of the official ministerial residence in Admiralty House occupied by Lord Malloch Brown. [165875]

Edward Miliband: The official residences in Admiralty House are in Westminster City Council Council Tax band H.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which Minister previously occupied the official ministerial residence in Admiralty House occupied by Lord Malloch Brown. [165876]

Edward Miliband: The official residence currently occupied by my right hon. Friend Lord Malloch Brown was most recently occupied by my right hon. Friend the Member for Kingston upon Hull, East (Mr. Prescott)

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent on (a) repairs and (b) furnishing or refurbishing in each of the official ministerial residences in Admiral House in each of the last three years. [165877]

Edward Miliband: Occupying departments are responsible for the relevant costs associated with the ministerial residences in Admiralty House.

The Cabinet Office is responsible for costs associated with the common parts of Admiralty House as well as for maintaining the fabric of the entire building. These costs are not separately identifiable from the cost in relation to the whole building, which includes office space and meeting rooms.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Hague: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the Winter Supplementary Estimates (HC 29), if he will break down the Security and Intelligence Agencies' (a) main estimate and (b) winter supplementary estimate provision by subhead in (i) near cash and (ii) non-cash terms. [166850]

Edward Miliband: I refer the right hon. Member to the answers given by the Chief Secretary to the Treasury to the right hon. Member for West Dorset (Mr. Letwin) on 24 October 2007, Official Report, column 404W.

Influenza

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what preparations have taken place for the co-ordinated relaxation of specific (a) regulations and (b) targets during any future outbreak of pandemic influenza; which (i) regulations and (ii) targets are being considered; and if he will make a statement. [168240]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

Over the last 12 months and during exercise Winter Willow, Government Departments, devolved administrations and agencies have begun to identify regulations that may need to be relaxed to ensure that essential services are sustained during a pandemic and/or to manage the consequences of a pandemic.

Regulations that have been identified will be kept under review as part of ongoing United Kingdom pandemic flu contingency planning.

Any requirement to amend specific regulations or targets will depend upon the nature and scale of any pandemic. Unfortunately this information will only become available during the pandemic.

It would therefore be unhelpful to focus on specific regulations or targets at this time.

Official Hospitality: Charities

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what Government policy is on the use of Government facilities for fundraising by registered charities; and if he will make a statement. [167665]

Edward Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Tunbridge Wells (Greg Clark) by the then Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Hilary Armstrong) on 22 March 2007, Official Report, column 1099W.

Smith Institute

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the value was of invoices sent by the Cabinet Office to the Smith Institute (a) since 27 June 2007 and (b) in 2006-07. [167666]

Edward Miliband: The Cabinet Office did not send any invoices to the Smith Institute in the periods to which the hon. Gentleman refers.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what percentage of (a) beef, (b) lamb, (c) pork and (d) dairy products used in (i) the Cabinet Office and (ii) No.10 Downing Street were imported products in the most recent period for which figures are available. [166640]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made on 8 November 2007, Official Report, columns 19-20WS, by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Jonathan Shaw).

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Office. [168095]

Gillian Merron: Checks on nationality are carried out on recruitment to the Cabinet Office (including the Prime Minister's Office). The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Public Sector: Computer Software

Gordon Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent discussions he has had on the use of Linux Open source computer software in the public sector. [165144]

Gillian Merron: None. The Government's approach to Open Source was set out in my reply to the hon. Member for Falmouth and Camborne (Julia Goldsworthy) on 25 October 2007, Official Report, column 486W.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcohol Disorder Zones

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made on the implementation of alcohol disorder zones under the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006; and if she will make a statement. [167972]

Mr. Coaker: The regulations for Alcohol Disorder Zones were laid in Parliament on 21 November 2007. Subject to final approval, the regulations will commence in early January 2008.

Alternatives to Prison: Cannabis

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) antisocial behaviour orders, (b) police cautions and (c) official warnings for cannabis possession were issued in (i) England and (ii) each London borough in each year since 1997. [166936]

Mr. Coaker: Antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) first became available in April 1999. The number of ASBOs issued in each year from April 1999 up to December 2005 (latest available) in (i) England (ii) London and (iii) each London borough can be found in the following tables. The number of ASBOs issued in Greater London shown in tables 1 and 2 differs due to the basis on which the ASBOs have been counted. Table 1 shows the number of ASBOs based on the location of the court that issued them and table 2 shows the number of ASBOs based on the local authority area in which the boundary prohibitions apply.

Data showing the number of offenders cautioned in England and London for all offences from 1997 to 2005 are in table 3. Data for 2006 will be available in late November 2007. The number of cautions issued in each London borough is not available, as police forces only supply cautions data for the whole of the force area.

The available information on formal warnings for cannabis possession (now known as cannabis warnings) is given in table 4. The data relate to the number of recorded offences detected by this method and are not available prior to 2004-05.

[1] This local authority area table differs from criminal justice system area (cjsa) tables in that an issuing court can be outside the area in which the restrictions have been imposed. For example, an issuing court may be in Kent (cjsa) but restrictions apply solely to a local authority area within London.
[2] Between 1 April 1999 to 31 May 2000 data were collected on aggregate numbers only by police force area (pfa).

[2] The London total is the number of offenders cautioned in the Metropolitan and City of London Police force areas.
[3] From 1 June 2000 the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons aged under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the totals.

Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average number of recorded incidents of anti-social behaviour for each police officer was in (a) England, (b) London and (c) each London borough in each year since 1997. [166938]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally. Antisocial behaviour is not, in itself, an offence as defined by statute. It is the outcome of incidents of antisocial behaviour that will be recorded as crimes by the police as appropriate e.g. criminal damage.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many anti-social behaviour orders were issued in (a) Ribble Valley and (b) Lancashire in each year since 2001. [167776]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The available information is shown in the following table:

Number of ant-social behaviour orders issued at all courts, as reported to the Home Office by the Court Service, in the Lancashire Criminal Justice System area and Ribble Valley borough council[1] area by year, January 2001 to December 2005

| Area | 2001 | 2002 | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | Total issued January 2001 to December 2005 |

[1] The local authority area is derived from the area in which the boundary prohibitions apply. The court that issued an ASBO can be outside the area in which the prohibitions have been imposed. For example, an issuing court may be in the North Yorkshire Criminal Justice System area, but restrictions apply solely to a local authority area within Lancashire.

However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Arson: Young People

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of arson were carried out by people under the age of 18 years who were convicted of such offences in each police force area in each year since 1997. [167012]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not held centrally. Offences of arson recorded by the police are collected by the Home Office but details of the age of the alleged offenders of such offences are not available.

Statistics on those convicted for arson offences are held by the Ministry of Justice.

Crimes of Violence: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) incidents of violence against the person and (b) police emergency call-outs resulting from incidents occurring (i) on and (ii) in the vicinity of premises licensed to sell alcohol for consumption on the premises under the Licensing Act 1964 there were in each year since 1997 in England and Wales, broken down by police force area. [166836]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office collects data on the number of offences of violence against the person recorded by the police. However, no information is collected centrally on the location of such incidents. Details of the location for emergency call-outs is not collected centrally.

Firearms: North East Region

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents involving (a) replica firearms, (b) air rifles and (c) BB guns have been reported in (i) Teesside, (ii) the north-east and (iii) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each of the last five years. [166593]

Mr. Coaker: Available information is given in the following table in which (a) 'replica firearms' are denoted as imitation firearms and (b) air rifles are incorporated within the figures for offences involving air weapons.

(c) Statistics on the number of offences involving BB guns have only been collected separately since April 2004. Data prior to that date are not available centrally.

Data collected centrally for recorded crime involving firearms in England and Wales are only available at police force area level. Information on Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland is therefore included within the north-east region which includes Cleveland, Northumbria and Durham police forces.

[3] The National Crime Recording Standard was introduced on 1 April 2002.Figures for some crime categories may have been inflated by this.
[4] Figures are not available centrally. Data were collected separately since April 2004.

Human Trafficking: EC Action

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her policy is on the EU anti-trafficking hotline. [164485]

Mr. Coaker: We fully recognise the need for trans-national work to combat human trafficking and welcome the continued efforts of the European Union in this area. However, we foresee some difficulties with a proposed EU hotline, including issues relating to the management and dissemination of information received and language difficulties. The value of an EU hotline over and above national arrangements and existing structures would have to be demonstrated.

Human Trafficking: Prostitution

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of human trafficking for sexual purposes have been discovered in each of the last three years; from which countries the persons arrived; and how many successful prosecutions resulted. [165679]

Mr. Coaker: From 2003 to date, the Poppy Project has supported a total of over 253 women who were accepted as being victims of trafficking. These victims have their origins in a number of countries, however the top five countries of origin for referrals to the project are Lithuania, Albania, Nigeria, Thailand, and China.

The nationality of those convicted of trafficking and their victims are broadly similar with most originating from Eastern Europe, Africa, the Far East, the United Kingdom and South America.

Since the commencement of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 there have been 67 convictions for trafficking for sexual exploitation.

Licensing: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many licences to sell alcohol were revoked in each year since 1997 as a result of the sale of alcohol to persons under the age of 18 years in England and Wales, broken down by (a) police force area and (b) local authority area. [166834]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply.

This information is not held centrally.

Past and future statistical bulletins on licences to sell alcohol include the number of licences revoked, but do not indicate why. Licences may be revoked for a number of reasons or a variety of factors, including sales to children.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many licences to sell alcohol were suspended for 48 hours in each year since 1997 as a result of the sale of alcohol to persons under the age of 18 years in England and Wales, broken down by (a) police force area and (b) local authority area. [166835]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply.

The offence of persistently selling alcohol to children which can lead to a suspension of the permission to sell alcohol for 48 hours was introduced only in April 2007. No records are currently held centrally of the number of such actions taken.

Police and Justice Act 2006

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to implement sections 19 to 21 of the Police and Justice Act 2006. [167535]

Mr. McNulty: There is no date set yet for the commencement of Sections 19 to 21 of the Police and Justice Act 2006. While not explicitly reviewing the role of partnerships or Overview & Scrutiny Committees and Community Call for Action, local accountability and local involvement arrangements are being reviewed by Sir Ronnie Flanagan as part of his wider review of policing. This review is scheduled to be published in the new year. Work will be taken forward thereafter to implement these sections.

Police: Finance

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much on average a band D council tax payer in London paid towards policing costs in (a) 1996-97, (b) 1997-98, (c) 1998-99 and (d) 1999-2000; and if she will make a statement. [167245]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 22 November 2007]: The information requested is set out in the following table:

Metropolitan Band D council tax

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 1996-97 | 56.00 |
| 1997-98 | 63.27 |
| 1998-99 | 76.48 |
| 1999-2000 | 82.51 |

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on levels of police funding for North Yorkshire. [167559]

Mr. McNulty: North Yorkshire police authority, like every other police authority in England and Wales, has received a sustained increase in police funding over the last 10 years. Total grants to North Yorkshire have increased by nearly £27 million (42.9 per cent.) since 1997-98.

Police: Road Traffic Control

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many roadside checks for (a) speed, (b) use of seat belts and child restraints, (c) vehicle safety and roadworthiness and (d) influence of alcohol or drugs were conducted by each police force in each of the last three years. [167001]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally.

Police: Rural Areas

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she introduced the rural policing grant; for how long a period it applies; how many police officer posts it has created; and how such posts will be funded once the grant ceases. [166964]

Mr. McNulty: The rural policing fund was introduced part way through 2000-01 when £15 million was made available to enhance the policing service in rural areas at no cost to the metropolitan forces. From 2001-02 the Fund rose to £30 million per annum benefiting 31 forces. All shire forces benefited except Cleveland, Hertfordshire, Nottinghamshire and South Wales.

In 2006-07 four former specific grants including the rural policing fund were amalgamated into a single special formula grant which can be used for any purpose.

Police: Telephone Services

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the single non-emergency number in the five first wave areas; [167105]

(2) what representations she has received on funding for the single non-emergency number; [167106]

(3) how much her Department has spent on the single non-emergency number. [167107]

Mr. McNulty: Following consideration of the assessment of the programme Ministers have decided not to continue to directly fund the live single non-emergency areas but will continue to provide funding to support the national 101 routing infrastructure to ensure that the number remains available for use by local areas wishing to implement or develop their own locally funded 101 service.

Ministers acknowledge the many benefits achieved by the live areas. Evaluation and assessment of the 101 service found that it had successfully demonstrated the benefits it was intended to achieve around improving access to and delivery of local community safety services. Importantly, through better partnership working and information about what problems are happening where, it has also helped local police and councils to target their resources more effectively and efficiently. It is hoped that the lessons learned and good practice will be mainstreamed into local operations wherever possible.

Representations on funding were received from the existing live police and council partnership areas. These representations were taken into careful consideration in deciding the future for the 101 service.

The Home Office will have spent £41 million to the end of 2007-08 on the development, implementation, support and live operation of the 101 service. The good practice and lessons learned for improving local services from this work, together with continued funding support for the national 101 telephony infrastructure, will help to inform and support further improvements to community safety and the maintenance or development of locally funded 101 services in local areas.

Robbery: Mobile Phones

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of robberies recorded involved the theft of a mobile telephone in each year since 1997. [166857]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally. The Home Office collects statistics on offences recorded by the police but thefts of mobile phones cannot be separately identified from thefts of other items.

Security Guards: Licensing

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many security firms have made representations to her Department on the Security Industry Authority's licences; and what those representations were. [166476]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office receives regular and frequent correspondence on a range of matters relating to the work and remit of the Security Industry Authority (SIA). The representations cover a range of issues. Over the past year the most frequent subjects have been inquiries about individual licence applications, and responses to a consultation exercise on the future options for the licensing of private investigators.

Serious Organised Crime Agency: Pensions

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what undertakings were given at the time of the formulation of the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) to (a) serving and (b) former police officers or their representative body, the Public and Commercial Services Union, on the effect that SOCA would have on access to the police pension on attaining 30 years service or 50 years of age; and if she will make a statement. [165596]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 20 November 2007]: At the time of the formulation of the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) it was stated that ex-police officers could retire from SOCA at whatever age their existing pension scheme allowed them to take their pension. Any decision to work beyond that point would be entirely optional and subject to mutual agreement between the individual and SOCA. Ex-police officers could retire from SOCA, take their lump sum and after a short break rejoin SOCA; but they would not be able to draw a full pension and a salary once they rejoined if this took them over their previous salary (i.e. abatement would apply). This was set out in SOCA Update Issue 13 and reiterated by the Director-General Designate at several road shows across the country.

It should be noted that SOCA is not a police force; however, arrangements were put in place to ensure that any police officer joining SOCA on 1 April 2006 under the Transfers to SOCA Scheme 2006, having been previously directly recruited into the NCS/NCIS on or before 31 March 2006, retained their entitlement to police allowances and membership of the police pension scheme.

Sexual Assault Referral Centres: Finance

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what direct financial support her Department gives to each sexual assault referral centre in England and Wales; whether it is her policy that local police authorities should share in the costs of (a) establishing and (b) running sexual assault referral centres; what her policy is on whether the sexual assault referral centres should be partly financed by primary care trusts; what discussions she has had with the Department of Health about the centres; what guidelines her Department issues on (i) capital set up and (ii) running costs of the establishment of policies and procedures for sexual assault referral centres; what steps her Department is taking to encourage the establishment of sexual assault referral centres in England and Wales; how many sexual assault referral centres there are in England and Wales; and how they are financed. [165648]

Mr. Coaker: There are currently 19 Sexual Assault Referral Centres (SARCs) with a further 17 centres under development with the support of Home Office funding. The existing SARCs are primarily funded by police forces and primary care trusts, although funding sources and operating costs vary across the SARC network. The direct financial support for SARCs provided by the Home Office is set out in the attached table. In 2007-08 there have been three funding streams available to SARCs: capital start-up grants for new SARCs, grants to support the development of good practice in existing SARCs, and grants for independent sexual violence advisers based in SARCs.

"National Service Guidelines on Developing SARCs", published jointly by the Home Office and the Department of Health in 2005, make clear that the primary responsibility for establishing and running SARCs sits with police forces and Primary Care Trusts, although they also encourage Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships to support the development of SARCs through local area agreements. These guidelines also provide guidance on the set up and running costs of SARCs. Guidance on policies and procedures is provided in "Getting Started" guidance produced by the National SARC Steering Group and updated in 2006. The Home Office also employs an expert consultant in SARC development to assist those setting up SARCs with establishing partnerships, costing proposals and developing operating procedures.

The Home Office and Department of Health engage in regular discussions about SARC development and are working in partnership to develop guidance for primary care trusts and local authorities on commissioning services for victims of sexual violence, including SARCs. Ministers from both Departments sit on the Inter-Departmental Ministerial Group on Sexual Offending, which includes the development of SARCs within its remit.

The Government have encouraged the development of SARCs through the publication of guidelines, the provision of start-up funding, the work of the expert consultant, and practitioner workshops. In October the Government published in draft the National Indicator Set for Local Strategic Partnerships which will be in operation from 2008-09. This included an indicator on access to support services for victims of serious sexual offences, including services provided by SARCs. We have also made clear through the new Making Communities Safer public service agreement that tackling serious sexual offences, including through the provision of support services to victims to reduce harm, is a priority for the Government.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many mobile camera speed checks were carried out in each police force area in each of the last five years. [166883]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally.

Terrorism: Control Orders

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females issued with control orders under the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 were resident in Southend in each year since the Act came into force, broken down by age group. [167432]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given on 26 November 2007, Official Report, column 203W.

Theft: Bicycles

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the ratio between the (a) recorded and (b) actual levels of theft of bicycles. [166933]

Mr. McNulty: The British Crime Survey (BCS) routinely collects information on whether victims report crimes to the police and these are published annually by the Home Office in their statistics bulletin 'Crime in England and Wales'. The most recent published figures show that 36 per cent. of BCS incidents of bicycle theft were reported to the police.

Video Games: Young People

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences were recorded in respect of retailers selling video games or DVDs to underage customers in England and Wales in each year since 1997, broken down by police force area; how many (a) police cautions and (b) fines were issued; and what the average fine levied was. [166838]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the number of recorded offences of retailers selling video games or DVDs to underage customers is not collected centrally. This is a summary offence and is not included in the police recorded crime statistics.

Statistics on the number of police cautions issued, the number of fines imposed and the average fines have been provided by the Ministry of Justice and are given in the following table for 1997 to 2005. Data for 2006 are due for publication in late November.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Adult Education: Parents

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he has commissioned research on the relationship between adult and community learning and the educational attainment of the children of those involved in such learning. [164460]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 15 November 2007]: I have been asked to reply:

Within Adult Safeguarded Learning, the Family Learning programme involves parents in supporting their children's learning and aims to develop the skills and knowledge of both the adult and the child. We are committed to widening family and inter-generational learning and to building links between adult learning and our agendas on parenting, children and extended schools. We have not commissioned research which looks specifically at the relationship between adult and community learning and child attainment but the Centre for Research on the Wider Benefits of Learning (which the Department manages jointly with DCSF) has produced a number of reports on the relationship between parental learning in general and children's education: "A model of the inter-generational transmission of educational success" by Leon Feinstein, Kathryn Duckworth and Ricardo Sabates (2004); "Does education have an impact on mothers' educational attitudes and behaviours?" by Leon Feinstein and Ricardo Sabates (2006); and "Are there effects of mothers' post-16 education on the next generation?" by Leon Feinstein and Kathryn Duckworth (2006). The Centre for the Economics of Education (also jointly managed by DIUS and DCSF) has also published research on family learning such as "Parent's education and child's education: a natural experiment" by Arnaud Chevalier (2004).

Children in Care

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many babies aged under one year were taken into social care as a consequence of (a) interim full care orders and (b) police or emergency protection orders in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [164705]

(2) how many (a) babies, (b) children and (c) young people were taken into care in each region in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [164710]

(3) what estimate he has made of the average time taken to place children for adoption in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [164703]

Kevin Brennan: The numbers of children looked after who were taken into care in England, aged under one year and who were subject to interim and full care orders or police or emergency protection orders, during the years ending 31 March 1997 to 2007, are shown in table 1.

Information on the number of children looked after who were taken into care, broken down by age, in each region since 1997 is not readily available. However, information on the number of children who started to be looked after by age on starting and by local authority, during the years ending 31 March 2003 to 2007, has been published and can be found respectively in tables C1 and LAC1 at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000741/index.shtml

A copy of table C1 (table 2) follows and an edited version of table LAC1 (table 3) showing regional figures only is also shown. A local authority level table, including regional breakdowns, on children who started to be looked after broken down by age on starting for 2007 will be published at the same web address on 29 November.

Information on the average time between a child entering care and the various stages of the adoption process has only been published since 2004 and is therefore not readily available prior to that. The following table 4 is derived from table E3 of the previously mentioned publication, and summarises the average time between entry into care and placement for adoption for years ending 31 March 2004 to 2007.

[5] Only the first occasion on which a child started to be looked after in the year has been counted.

1. Rounding and suppression—to ensure that no individual child can be identified, we have used the following conventions throughout the tables:
Regional figures have been rounded to the nearest 10
Local authority figures have been rounded to the nearest 5
Numbers from 1 to 5 inclusive have been suppressed and replaced by a hyphen (—). Zero (0) is shown only when the number submitted was zero.
2. At 31 March 2006, 6,980 children looked after by local authorities in Greater London were placed outside the area of the local authority responsible for their care. This represents 59 per cent. of all the children looked after by local authorities in Greater London.

Information on children looked after by local authorities is collected for the period 1 April to 31 March in the annual SSDA903 return which is completed by 150 local authority social services departments in England.

Children: Disabled

Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what discussions he had with the Scottish Executive on the allocation of additional funding to Scotland for expenditure on disabled children and their families arising from the Government's response to the 2006 review of support for disabled children and their families, Aiming High for Disabled Children; and if he will make a statement. [168295]

Jim Knight [holding answer 26 November2007]: No discussion between the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families and Scottish Executive Ministers has occurred on this matter.

Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales should receive settlements which reflect the increased CSR settlement for education and children's services in England announced at the time of the 2006 Budget. As part of this settlement, the Department has allocated £340 million to improve services for disabled children in England. This is equivalent to an increase of £34 million, £11 million and £20 million respectively for Scotland, Northern Ireland, and Wales. However, it will be up to the devolved Administrations to decide how much of their overall allocation should be directed to services for disabled children.

Children: Protection

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average length of time was which children whose safety had been identified as a possible cause for concern were required to wait for an initial assessment by social services in each local authority in the latest period for which figures are available. [166149]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 19 November 2007]: Data are not currently collected on the length of time children wait for an initial assessment by children's social care services. Data are collected on what proportion of initial assessments are completed within the target timescale which is seven working days of children being referred to children's social care. The figure for 2006-07 was 68 per cent. within the target timescale.

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what practical information and guidance will be given to local authorities to enable them to achieve good practice in relation to the new performance indicators for safeguarding children. [167149]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 22 November 2007]: The Government will provide guidance to local authorities on the operation of the national indicator set. It is now consulting on the detailed definitions of the set to ensure that the methodology for measuring individual national indicators at a local level is sound. The consultation seeks views on the methodology, frequency of reporting and data source of each individual indicator. The consultation can be accessed from:

www.communities.gov.uk/localgovernment/performanceframeworkpartnerships/nationalindicators/and closes on 21 December.

In addition, on 20 November the Government published the second phase of the operational guidance to support the negotiation of local area agreements (LAAs). It explains how local strategic partnerships can use their local vision, evidence and the radically streamlined national indicator set to develop their LAA. It highlights the importance of engaging with councillors, communities, voluntary groups and businesses to agree shared priorities, a timetable for implementation and the new, more flexible arrangements for performance management and area based grant. The guidance is available on:

www.communities.gov.uk/publications/localgovernment/laaoperationalguidance

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether all local authorities will be required to comply with all the new indicators for the local authority performance framework on safeguarding children. [167150]

Kevin Brennan: All top tier local authorities and their strategic partners will have to report back at least annually on their performance against all 198 cross-Government indicators in the new national set, which was published on 11 October 2007.

In addition, each area will agree with Government up to 35 improvement targets—plus the 16 statutory education and early years targets—drawn from indicators in the national set. Local areas may also set themselves an unlimited number of local targets which will not be subject to central performance monitoring and which need not be drawn from the national indicator set.

From 2009 performance against all 198 national indicators will be published each year by the Audit Commission, as part of the inspectorates' comprehensive area assessment of local authorities. This will also report on each local authority's direction of travel and use of resources and will assess risks in the area.

Children: Speech Impaired

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps are being taken by (a) the Children's Workforce Development Council, (b) the Training and Development Agency and (c) the Children's Workforce Network to define competencies for the children's work force on supporting children with speech, language and communication difficulties; and if he will make a statement; [165910]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the web portal developed by the Children's Workforce Development Council to assist the children's work force support children with speech, language and communication difficulties; [165911]

(3) what assessment has been made by the Children's Workforce Development Council of the merits of including speech, language and communication in (a) the Qualifications and Credit Framework and (b) the Integrated Qualifications Framework; what discussions his Department has had with the Children's Workforce Development Council on including speech, language and communication into these frameworks; and if he will make a statement. [165912]

Kevin Brennan: The Children's Workforce Network is working together to consider the needs of children and young people with a range of disabilities including speech, language and communication. A key part of this work is embedding the common core for children, young people and families in all qualifications which support the children's work force. The common core sets out the skills needed to communicate effectively with children and young people.

The Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC) is also working with the Network to consider future action to ensure that the work force has the right skills and qualifications to meet the needs of children and young people with disabilities. The Training and Development Agency has developed new National Occupational Standards for Supporting Teaching and Learning in schools which were developed in consultation with practitioners and include a specialist unit 'Support pupils with communication and interaction needs'.

The Integrated Qualifications Framework (IQF) is currently in its testing phase and will not be fully operational until 2010. A suite of generic cross sector qualification units, based on the Common Core of Skills and Knowledge has been developed for the IQF. It is currently available as part of the test and trial of the Qualifications and Credit Framework (QCF) being developed by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority. CWDC is working with partners, including DCSF and DIUS, who has responsibility for the QCF, to consider what else needs to be done to address the needs of children and young people with disabilities.

CWDC's web-based portal was launched on 26 September. It was developed with support from a wide range of partners and has been welcomed by practitioners. It is too early to say what impact it will have on the work force but CWDC is now working with partners to assess its use and consider how it can be further developed to ensure that the work force has access the right training and qualifications.

The Government have commissioned a review of services to children and young people with speech, language and communication needs, led by the hon. Member for Buckingham (John Bercow). It is examining work force issues in this area. The hon.

Member will produce an interim report in March 2008 and a final report, including recommendations to the Government, in July 2008. Contributions to the review can be made at:

www.dcsf.gov.uk/bercowreview/index.shtml

Common Assessment Framework: Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent estimate is of spending on the Common Assessment Framework for each year from 2007-08 to 2015-16; and if he will make a statement. [166340]

Kevin Brennan: The Common Assessment Framework process is part of the wide range of reforms under the ECM agenda, and so the costs are not identified separately. The allocation for ECM implementation is £63 million in 2007-08. This is part of the Children's Services grant (2007-08: £193 million).

Introduction of the CAF is designed to be cost neutral with minimal implementation costs offset by anticipated efficiencies arising from improved ways of working.

Cumbria

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department plans to move any of its offices to Westmorland and Lonsdale constituency. [166570]

Kevin Brennan: There are no plans for the Department for Children, Schools and Families to move any of its offices to Westmorland and Lonsdale constituency.

Departmental Accountancy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which items in his Department's budget have been reclassified, according to the classifications in HM Treasury's Consolidated Budgeting Guidance, as a result of the decisions taken in the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review; what the (a) former and (b) new (i) classification and (ii) sum budgeted is in each case; and what activity is supported by each item. [164491]

Kevin Brennan: There are two such items that have been reclassified with HMT agreement as a result of the comprehensive spending review (CSR) 2007:

Academies Delivery—the Consolidated Budgeting Guidance (Chapter 4) permits the costs of direct frontline service provision or support activities that are directly associated with frontline service delivery within Departments to be classified as programme expenditure. In keeping with this, the Treasury has agreed to reclassify the costs of the Academies delivery function within the Department which has a value of £3.72 million in 2007-08.

Consultancy—as a result of discussions with HMT about the classification of consultancy costs in the light of the 2007 Consolidated Budgeting Guidance (Chapter 4), the Department has reclassified £2.8 million of such costs from programme to administration with effect from 2008-09.

In addition to these two items, the Department is exploring with HMT a case to score as programme some staff early release costs resulting from the commitment in the comprehensive spending review to deliver real terms savings of 5 per cent. year on year in administration costs. The Consolidated Budgeting Guidance (Chapter 4) permits such payments to be exceptionally scored as programme rather than administration where a case explicitly linked to improved efficiency has been agreed in advance with the Treasury.

The detail of all classification changes will be published in chapter 3 of the 2008 edition of Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses.

Departmental Alcoholic Drinks

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will take steps to ensure that English wine is served exclusively or at the request of guests at meals, parties and receptions hosted by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [164293]

Kevin Brennan: All public procurement procedures must comply with the EC Treaty. The key principles of the Treaty, from a public procurement point of view, are the free movement of goods and services, and non-discrimination on the grounds of nationality. This legislation is designed to ensure that all public procurement across the European Union is fair, transparent and non-discriminatory.

This means that this Department cannot specify that it will only buy goods (e.g. wine) from a particular country or locality, as that would discriminate against procedures from other EU member states.

However, the Government are committed to increase opportunities for small and local suppliers to tender for contracts, thus increasing competition and securing better value for money. This Department does this by advertising appropriate contracts on Contrax Online and Supply2gov and by reducing bureaucracy in the procurement process.

Departmental Pay

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people in his Department and its predecessors earned over £100,000 in each year since 1997. [167186]

Kevin Brennan: The numbers of staff earning £100,000 or more for my and predecessor Departments since 2004 is provided as follows. Information before 2004, can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

| | Number of people |
|---|---|
| 2004 | 15 |
| 2005 | 27 |
| 2006 | 23 |
| 2007 | 20 |

Departmental Public Consultation

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department has spent on (a) citizens' juries, (b) focus groups and (c) other deliberative forms of public opinion research in each month since January 2006. [166585]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested is as follows:

(a) The Department for Children, Schools and Families has conducted five citizen's juries since January 2006. The cost for the first jury in Bristol was £5,7047 inc. VAT. The total costs for the four deliberative debates in London, Leeds, Portsmouth and Birmingham was 467,704 inc vat.

(b) The Department also ran nine focus groups as part of the Time to Talk consultation in Sutton, Birmingham and Sheffield with children aged 11 to 16 to capture their views on the key issues and challenges. The total costs for the nine focus groups was £18,835.25 inc. VAT, this included the facilitation, analysis, and production of a short film of the events. Data on other focus groups since January 2006 are not readily available as we do not classify our research expenditure in this way, so we cannot break it down by these categories. To gather the information in such a way would incur disproportionate costs.

(c) The Department has not conducted any other deliberative debates since January 2006.

Departmental Public Consultations

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many citizens juries were arranged for his Department and its predecessors for each year between 1997 and June 2007; which organisations were commissioned to conduct each citizens jury; and what the cost was of each. [163597]

Kevin Brennan: My Department did not arrange any citizens juries between 1997 and June 2007.

Departmental Stationary

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much Department for Children, Schools and Families headed notepaper his Department has bought; and at what cost. [166908]

Kevin Brennan: The number of letter headed note paper purchased for Department for Children, Schools and Families was 281,000 sheets and the total spend was £5,262.35 for the period 28 June 2007 to 20 November 2007.

Dyslexia

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will place in the Library a copy of the research his Department has commissioned on (a) the incidence of dyslexia and (b) the ways in which the condition affects families. [165866]

Kevin Brennan: Data have been collected in the School Census since 2004 on the primary types of need of children with statements and at School Action Plus—where the school involves external support or advice to meet the child's needs. Figures for January 2007 for pupils in schools with a specific learning difficulty (which includes dyslexia, dyscalculia and dyspraxia) show that there are 75,920 pupils either with a statement of SEN or supported at School Action Plus. The Department has not commissioned further research into the incidence of dyslexia.

To identify and disseminate best practice in improving outcomes for children with dyslexia, we are working with the British Dyslexia Association, Dyslexia Action, Xtraordinary People and the Professional Association of Teachers of Students with Specific Learning Difficulties on the No to Failure Project. This project is supporting schools in three local authority areas to become project trailblazers, where children are being screened for dyslexia and individual specialist tuition is then provided to those who are identified as having dyslexia. The impact of this approach on outcomes is being evaluated. The project is also evaluating the impact of providing specialist dyslexia training for teachers, developing examples of good practice which can be extended nationally, and raising awareness of dyslexia as a learning difficulty. We are providing up to £900,000 funding over three years to support this project.

Extended Schools

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) secondary schools and (b) primary schools offered the full range of extended services in each local authority in England in the latest period for which figures are available. [167871]

Beverley Hughes: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Basingstoke (Mrs. Miller) on 21 November, Official Report, column 955W.

Health Education: Alcoholic Drinks

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to ensure that young people receive adequate information on the effects and risks of alcohol; and if he will make a statement. [164482]

Kevin Brennan: The Government are committed to reducing substance misuse-related harm among young people, including that associated with alcohol misuse. Alcohol education is delivered alongside that on drugs and volatile substances and is a vital element of our approach. The Department's guidance, "Drugs: Guidance for Schools (DfES 2004)" is clear that pupils' education about alcohol and its effects should start in primary school, before drinking patterns become established and should be revisited as pupils' understanding and experience increases.

In June of this year, the Government published their next steps in the Alcohol Strategy for England under the title "Safe. Sensible. Social.". This highlights young people as one of three priority groups for Government action on alcohol. To support this, the Department has committed to:

Produce authoritative, accessible guidance about what is and what is not safe and sensible in the light of the latest available evidence from the UK and abroad, to help young people and their parents make informed decisions about alcohol; and

Raise awareness of young people's alcohol use and—through a social marketing campaign—to work to create a culture where it is socially acceptable for young people to choose not to drink and, if they do, to do so later and more safely.

Higher Education: Children in Care

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what arrangements are in place to assist care leavers to progress into higher education. [166368]

Kevin Brennan: Improving outcomes for children in care, including the proportion of care leavers who progress into HE, is of highest priority for the Government. The White Paper "Care Matters: Time for Change", published in June 2007, set out a range of measures to improve the education of children in care. Ensuring that all children in care make better progression at school will enable more care leavers to enter higher education.

The Children and Young Persons Bill, which provides the legislative framework for the changes set out in "Care Matters: Time for Change", was introduced into the House of Lords on 14 November. It will place a duty on all local authorities to pay a bursary of a minimum of £2,000 to all care leavers who enter higher education, on top of the existing support they already receive. This measure will further improve the financial support that care leavers receive for higher education.

Further work to increase the numbers of care leavers progressing into higher education takes place through the "Aimhigher" programme. It helps people from under-represented backgrounds, including care leavers, to be able and willing to consider higher education as a viable option. The programme brings together local partnerships of schools, colleges and universities to design and deliver a range of aspiration and attainment-raising activities.

Higher Education: Romford

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what percentage of 18 to 22 year olds from Romford were studying at university (a) in 1997 and (b) at the latest date for which figures are available; [168421]

(2) what the rate of participation by 18-year-olds in higher education in Romford was in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; [168432]

(3) what percentage of 18 to 22 year olds from Romford were studying at university (a) in 1997 and (b) at the latest date for which figures are available. [168434]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

The main measure for tracking progress on increasing participation is currently the higher education initial participation rate (HEIPR). This is the sum of the HE initial participation rates for individual ages between 17 and 30 inclusive. It covers English-domiciled first-time entrants to HE courses, which are expected to last for at least six months, at UK higher education institutions and English, Scottish and Welsh further education colleges, and who remain on their course for at least six months. The earliest figure is 39.3 per cent. for 1999/2000 and the latest available figure is 42.8 per cent. for 2005/06.

Equivalent figures for the 18 to 22-year-old age group are 33.4 per cent. for 1999/2000 and 36.2 per cent. for 2005/06.

Equivalent figures for 18-year-olds are 19.3 per cent. for 1999/2000 and 21.3 per cent. for 2005/06. Figures for 2006/07 will become available in 2008. The HEIPR is not disaggregated below national level.

HEFCE's "Young participation in Higher Education" publication includes the proportion of young people who enter higher education at age 18 or 19 by parliamentary constituency, although this only covers the years up to 2000. Participation rates based on this work are given on the supporting POLAR website (www.hefce.ac.uk/polar). These indicate that, for the cohort reaching 18 in 1997, the proportion of young people from Romford who entered higher education at age 18 or 19 was 22 per cent. For the cohort reaching 18 in 2000, the proportion of young people from Romford who entered higher education at age 18 or 19 was also 22 per cent.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the percentage of young entrants to full-time first degree courses from state schools in Romford was over the past five years. [168427]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not available at a local level.

The latest available information on higher education entrants from state schools is shown in the table. This shows the proportion of UK-domiciled young (aged under 21) entrants to full-time first degree courses at higher education institutions in England, who are from state schools. The figures cover the period 2001/02 to 2005/06 inclusive. Figures for 2006/07 will become available in 2008. This information is taken from the annual "Performance Indicators in Higher Education", which are published by the Higher Education Statistics Agency.

Percentage of UK-domiciled young (under 21) entrants to full-time first degree courses at higher education institutions in England, who are from state schools

| Academic year | Percentage |
|---|---|
| 2001/02 | 85.2 |
| 2002/03 | 86.4 |
| 2003/04 | 86.1 |
| 2004/05 | 85.9 |
| 2005/06 | 86.9 |

Influenza

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) if he will make a statement on contingencies prepared for the possible re-deployment of school staff in support of other public services as a consequence of any future influenza pandemic, as identified in Exercise Winter Willow; [164907]

(2) if he will provide an update on the policy for the closure of schools in the event of any future influenza pandemic, identified as a consequence of Exercise Winter Willow; and if he will make a statement. [164908]

Kevin Brennan: The Government's policy on possible school closures remains that set out in the Department's guidance to schools and local authorities published in July 2006. It is possible that we will advise schools and group early years and childcare settings to close when a pandemic reaches their area. The decision on whether to issue such advice cannot be taken before there is a pandemic, as the decision will be based on the evaluation by expert advisers of the level of threat to children and young people from the pandemic strain of virus.

Officials from my Department are in discussion with partners in local government about the possibility of school staff assisting other services if schools were to close during a pandemic. However, we would hope that schools, working with their local authorities, would support remote learning by students during a pandemic, which would involve some, if not all, of a school's teaching staff.

Minibuses: Licensing

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the impact of new driving licence regulations for minibuses on extra-curricular activities in schools; and if he will make a statement. [164478]

Jim Knight [holding answer 20 November 2007]: With the Department for Transport and its agencies we assessed in 2006 the impact of the Motor Vehicles (Driving Licences) Regulations 1999 and we issued the policy statement for schools in April 2006 which I refer to in my reply to the hon. Member on 22 November.

Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many fixed period exclusions there were in each year since 1997. [166705]

Kevin Brennan: The available information is given in the table:

Maintained primary, secondary, all special schools, city technology colleges and academies[1, 2]: number of fixed period exclusions 2003-04 to 2005-06: England

| | 2003-04[3, 4] | 2004-05[4] | 2005-06[5] |

Video Games: Violence

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been allocated to Dr. Tanya Byron's review. [164862]

Kevin Brennan: The Government believe it is important to help parents and their children get the best from new technologies while protecting children from inappropriate or potentially harmful material on the internet and in video games. We will ensure that Dr. Byron has the necessary resources to complete a thorough review. The review is due to report by the end of March 2008.

An indicative budget of £250,000 has been allocated to the review, not including salaries and expenses of the civil servants on the review's secretariat. This figure is subject to possible amendment in line with the terms of reference, such as to meet needs for stakeholder engagement or qualitative research. This has been agreed in accordance with the Cabinet Office guidelines and value for money assessments.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 27 November 2007:

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

James Brokenshire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people under the age of 18 years died as a consequence of excessive alcohol consumption in the last period for which figures are available. [167988]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 27 November 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many young people under the age of 18 years died as a consequence of excessive alcohol consumption in the last period for which figures are available. I am replying in her absence. (167988)

The latest calendar year for which figures are available is for deaths registered in 2006. There was one death in young people aged under 18 in England and Wales in 2006 with an underlying cause of death which was alcohol-related.*

The National Statistics definition of alcohol-related deaths only includes those causes regarded as being most directly due to alcohol consumption and toxic effects of alcohol (ie poisoning). It does not include other diseases where alcohol has been shown to make some contribution to increased risk, such as cancers of the mouth, oesophagus and liver (although these would not generally apply to deaths of young people aged under 18) and does not include drug poisoning deaths where alcohol was also mentioned. Apart from deaths due to poisoning with alcohol (accidental, intentional or undetermined), the definition excludes any other external causes of deaths, such as road traffic deaths, and other accidents and violence.

* Selected using the National Statistics definition of alcohol-related deaths. The International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes for the definition are listed below:

F10—Mental and behavioural disorders due to use of alcohol

G31.2—Denegration of nervous system due to alcohol

G62.1—Alcoholicpolyneuropathy

142.6—Alcoholic cardiomyopathy

K29.2—Alcoholic gastritis

K70—Alcoholic liver disease

K73—Chronic hepatitis, not elsewhere classified

K74—Fibrosis and cirrhosis of liver (excluding K74.3-K74.5—billiary cirrhosis)

K86.0—Alcohol induced pancreatitis

X45—Accidental poisoning by and exposure to alcohol

X65—Intentional self-poisoning by and exposure to alcohol

Y15—Poisoning by and exposure to alcohol, undetermined intent.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the likely effect of the capital gains tax changes announced in the pre-Budget report on the farming sector. [168758]

Jane Kennedy: The Government take a range of factors into consideration when formulating tax policy, and keep all aspects of policy under review.

Council of Economic Advisers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many times the Council of Economic Advisers has met in full session (a) since June 2007; and (b) in each year since 1997. [167724]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 13 March 2007, Official report, column 281W and the answer I gave on 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 200W.

Elderly: Death

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people resident in the Peterborough city council area over the age of 65 died during the winter months in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [168121]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 27 November 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many people resident in the Peterborough City Council area over the age of 65 died during the winter months in each year since 1997. I am replying in her absence. (168121)

Figures for winter deaths are calculated using a definition of winter as a four-month period from December of one year to March of the next year. The table below provides the number of winter deaths of people resident in Peterborough unitary authority over the age of 65, for the years 1996/97 to 2004/05 (the latest available).

Table 1: winter deaths of persons over the age of 65[1], Peterborough unitary authority[2], 1996-97 to 2004-05

| Winter | deaths (persons) Peterborough |
|---|---|
| 1996-97 | 465 |
| 1997-98 | 404 |
| 1998-99 | 495 |
| 1999-2000 | 426 |

| 2002-03 | 449 |
| 2003-04 | 394 |
| 2004-05 | 432 |

[1] Winter deaths are defined as those occurring in December of one year, plus those occurring in January to March of the following year.
[2] Using boundaries as of 2007 for all years.

Employment: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of people in the Peterborough City Council area are classified as (a) professionals and (b) skilled workers; and if he will make a statement. [168122]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked top reply.

Letter Colin Mowl, dated 27 November 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about employment. I am replying in her absence. (168122)

The Office for National Statistics compiles employment statistics for local areas from the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

The percentage of people resident in the Peterborough City local authority who are employed in professional and skilled trades occupations for the 12-month period ending March 2007 was, respectively, 10 and 9 per cent. of all those in employment.

Professional and skilled workers are classified using the Standard Occupational Classification (SOC) 2000 for Professional Occupations and Skilled Trades Occupations respectively.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

Financial Services Authority: Public Participation

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the codes of practice developed by the (a) Cabinet Office on consultation and (b) Better Regulation Executive on the principles of good regulation apply to consultations conducted by the Financial Services Authority. [167825]

Kitty Ussher: The Cabinet Office code of practice on consultation applies to all UK public consultations by Government Departments. It is not a statutory code and cannot prevail over statutory or mandatory external requirements such as those contained in the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000. The Act places consultation requirements on the Financial Services Authority (FSA) and sets out what should accompany the consultation document.

With regard to (b), the principles of good regulation are specified in the Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006. The FSA will need to have regard to the principles in the Act and the draft regulators' compliance code that flows from it.

Gift Aid

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what information his Department holds on charities that receive income tax refunds under the gift aid scheme; and if he will make a statement; [167629]

(2) how much was refunded to higher rate income tax payers under the gift aid scheme in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [167630]

(3) in how many cases income tax claimed by charities under the gift aid scheme has been deemed ineligible in each of the last five years, broken down by reason for ineligibility; and if he will make a statement; [167631]

(4) how much income tax claimed under the gift aid scheme by charities was deemed ineligible in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [167632]

(5) how much income tax was passed on to charities under the gift aid scheme in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [167633]

Jane Kennedy: The information held by HMRC on charities that receive income tax refunds under the gift aid scheme is:

charity name;

registered charity number;

HMRC reference number;

name and address of authorised charity official making income tax repayment claim (or their nominee); company or trust status;

accounting date; and charity's nominated bank name, account number and sort code.

Details of income tax paid to charities under the gift aid scheme, and the cost of income tax relief given to higher rate donors is available to the public on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/charities/menu.htm

Figures for 2006-07 show total repayments to charities under gift aid of £830 million and £220 million of gift aid relief claimed by higher rate taxpayers.

The number of ineligible gift aid claims made by charities and the total income tax included on those claims is available only at disproportionate cost.

Insurance

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the number of independent brokers within the United Kingdom commercial insurance market; what the annual value of the market is; and what his policy is for the future of this sector. [167826]

Kitty Ussher: The Financial Services Authority is responsible for the regulation of independent brokers within the United Kingdom. The FSA currently authorises 8,225 general insurance intermediaries. Research carried out by the British Insurance Brokers' Association (BIBA) in 2006 indicated that 3,857 out of the total of regulated insurance intermediaries conducted general insurance broking as a core activity. The 2006 BIBA research indicated that total general insurance income from the primary UK market was £8.2 billion, of which £7.8 billion is generated by insurance brokers.

Insurance Companies: Disclosure of Information

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what requirements there are for commercial insurance brokers to disclose commission to clients; and what assessment he has made of the adequacy of those requirements. [167824]

Kitty Ussher: The Financial Services Authority set the requirements for commercial insurance brokers to disclose information to clients and is responsible for assessing the adequacy of those requirements. Insurance Conduct of Business Rule (ICOB) rule - ICOB 4.6.1R sets out the requirement for insurance brokers to disclose commission, when asked, to clients. The FSA review of commission disclosure in the commercial market is nearing completion and the findings will be announced shortly.

Insurance: Equal Opportunities

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what policy objectives he has for diversity and competition within the commercial insurance sector; and what his policy is for regulation of the sector. [167827]

Kitty Ussher: The Government strongly encourage competition in all sectors of the economy and have strengthened the UK's competition legislation through the Competition Act 1998 and Enterprise Act 2002. Enforcement of the competition legislation is the responsibility of the Office of Fair Trading, the Competition Commission and the economic regulators.

Regulation of the commercial insurance sector falls within the responsibilities of the Financial Services Authority.

Insurance: Public Participation

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the Financial Services Authority (FSA) to publish its consultation document on the hard disclosure of commission earned by brokers of commercial insurance; and what assessment he has made of the FSA's procedures for consulting before finalising that document, with particular reference to consultation with small independent brokers. [167828]

Kitty Ussher: The Financial Services Authority expects to publish the independent report on its findings on the hard disclosure of commission earned by brokers of commercial insurance shortly.

The Chancellor has made no specific assessment of FSA procedures for consulting before finalising this particular document. However, the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 requires the FSA to consult on proposed rules and to produce a cost benefit analysis. The Act also requires the FSA to publish an account of representations made to it and its response to them.

Low Incomes: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in Peterborough constituency were paid less than the minimum wage in the latest period for which figures are available. [168140]

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question to asking how many people in the Peterborough constituency earned less than the minimum wage in the latest period for which figures are available. I am replying in her absence. (168140)

Members: Correspondence

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether it is his Department's practice to attach to written answers hard copies of earlier replies cited in such answers where these were previously given to hon. Members other than the hon. Member to whom the answer is addressed. [167767]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 26 November 2007]: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer he received on 26 November 2007, Official Report, column 133W from my hon. Friend the Deputy Leader of the House. Treasury Ministers' written answers which cite earlier replies invariably give the Hansard column reference.

Minimum Wage: Manpower

Colin Burgon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many officials are employed to enforce minimum wage requirements in the Yorkshire and the Humber region; and what the planned number of such staff is for 2008-09. [168566]

Jane Kennedy: The Yorkshire and Humber region is covered by the NMW compliance teams based in Shipley and Sheffield. The staffing information for these teams can be found in the following table:

Mortgages: Repossession Orders

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the likely number of mortgage repossessions in (a) 2008 and (b) 2009. [167626]

Kitty Ussher: The Treasury does not produce a forecast for mortgage repossessions. The Council of Mortgage Lenders publishes a range of statistics on UK housing and mortgage markets, including on repossessions, available at:

http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/statistics

National Savings

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value is of unclaimed assets in national savings accounts. [164124]

Kitty Ussher: National Savings and Investments (NS&I) estimates that there is approximately £466 million of unclaimed assets held with them in dormant accounts. NS&I offers a free tracing service to anyone who thinks that they may have unclaimed money in an NS&I product (www.nsandi.com/help/tracing_service.jsp). To date, it has achieved 48,000 successful traces and reunited customers with £47.8 million.

Northern Rock

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what meetings he has had with the Governor of the Bank of England on Northern Rock in the last 12 months. [166509]

Kitty Ussher: The Chancellor regularly meets with the Governor to discuss a range of issues. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to publish his Department's statement of the principles governing its approach to any bid to acquire Northern Rock; and if he will make a statement. [166617]

Kitty Ussher: The statement of principles, which governs our approach to proposals for the future of Northern Rock and its business was published on 19 November 2007. Copies are available in the Library of the House.

Ovarian Cancer: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cases of (a) ovarian and (b) breast cancer were diagnosed and cured in Peterborough constituency in each year since 1997. [167560]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked top reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 27 November 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many cases of (a) ovarian and b) breast cancer were diagnosed and cured in Peterborough constituency in each year since 1997. I am replying in her absence. (167560)

Numbers of newly diagnosed cases of a) ovarian cancer and b) breast cancer registered in the Peterborough parliamentary constituency between 1997 and 2004, the latest year for which figures are available, are given in Table 1 below.

It is not possible to say whether or not patients are cured. For most cancers, but not breast, five-year survival rates are often taken to be 'cure' rates.

Survival rates by parliamentary constituency are not available, but one- and five-year survival for eight common cancers including breast cancer by government office region and strategic health authority, for patients diagnosed in 1997-99 and followed up to 31 December 2004, are available on the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=11991&Pos=9&ColRank=l&Rank=272

Survival rates for ovarian cancer are available for England only, in -One- and five-year survival of patients diagnosed 1999-2003 and followed up to 2004: 21 common cancers, by sex and age', on the National Statistics website at:

Register of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Civil Partnerships

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 20 November 2007, Official Report, column 709W, on register of births, deaths, marriages and civil partnerships, what the underlying assumptions were for the original business plan which proved to be incorrect; who was responsible for drawing them up; who is responsible for drawing up the revised assumptions; and if he will make a statement. [168389]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 27 November 2007:

The National Statistician and Registrar General for England and Wales has been asked to reply to your recent parliamentary question asking what the underlying assumptions were for the original business plan which proved to be incorrect; who was responsible for drawing them up; who is responsible for drawing up the revised assumptions. I am replying in her absence. (168389)

The assumptions in the business case were the responsibility of the officials who prepared the case, as they will be for the revised case. Those found to be incorrect related to costs and timescales for implementation, as is not unusual when discussions are undertaken with prospective suppliers after business case approval has been obtained.

Revenue and Customs: Pay

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what bonuses were paid to staff working on tax credits in each (a) month, (b) quarter and (c) year between April 2003 to September 2007; [167659]

(2) what the 10 largest bonus payments made to staff working on tax credits were in the last 12 months. [167660]

Jane Kennedy: The information is not available for all staff working on tax credits. For information up to May 2007 I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend gave the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 395W. As he explained, staff in various parts of HM Revenue and Customs, not only the Tax Credit Office, may be deployed to tax credits work or deal with tax credits in addition to other work. It is not possible to isolate those in receipt of bonus payments.

For the number and value of bonus payments made to Tax Credit Office staff since new tax credits were introduced in 2003, I refer the hon. Member to the answers my right hon. Friend gave the hon. Member for Yeovil on 23 October 2006, Official Report, column 1646W, 25 July 2006, Official Report, column 1393W, 29 June 2006, Official Report, column 587W, and 12 December 2005, Official Report, columns 1792-93W.

The Director of the Tax Credit Office continues to recognise exceptional performance—including examples of excellent customer service—through a recognition bonus scheme. The number and value of bonus payments made to Tax Credits Office staff from June 2007 to September 2007 inclusive are shown as follows:

| 2007 | Total number of staff awarded a bonus payment | Total value paid[1] (£) |

| June | 2 | 500 |
| July | 6 | 1,150 |
| August | 19 | 5,400 |
| September | 82 | 12,000 |

[1] Per calendar month.

The 10 largest recognition bonus scheme payments made to TCO staff in the last 12 months were:

| 2007 | Amount paid (£) |
|---|---|
| March | 1,000 |
| March | 800 |

| March | 600 |
| September | 600 |
| February | 500 |
| May | 500 |
| September | 500 |
| November | 500 |

Tax Yields

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of total tax revenue was raised by (a) income tax, (b) national insurance, (c) VAT and (d) council tax in each year since 1997. [166347]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 27 November 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what proportion of total tax revenue was raised by (a) income tax, (b) national insurance, (c) VAT and (d) council tax in each year since 1997. I am replying in her absence. (166347)

Detailed statistics about types of tax payable by UK residents to general government and the European Union for calendar years are published on a regular basis in table 11.1 of the annual ONS publication "United Kingdom National Accounts (The Blue Book)". The Blue Book was last published in June. However, the table was updated in the monthly "Public Sector Finances First Release", on both calendar year and financial year bases, published on 20 July. Differences between the figures in the Blue Book and Public Sector Finances are a result of differing revisions policies for the National Accounts and the Public Sector Finances; the latter are the more up to date. The table is not a regular feature of the First Release, although most of the figures themselves are updated every month. The data in the table below are consistent with the dataset for the "Public Sector Finances" published on 20 November 2007.

In answering this question total tax revenue has been defined consistently with the Total taxes and social contributions series in table 11.1. Value Added Tax includes receivables for central government and the European Union. The financial year has been used because the UK adopts this as its fiscal base.

Taxation: Rugby

Paul Rowen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what criteria are used to determine whether proceeds from rugby league testimonial events are regarded as taxable income; and how many people have been contacted about their potential tax liability arising from such events. [167919]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The tax treatment of testimonial payments depends upon the facts of each individual case. Under established case law, a testimonial payment will be fully taxable as earnings from employment where it is a contractual right or is customary at the player's club.

Confidentiality rules mean that I cannot comment on the number of players that have been contacted about the taxability payments received.

Unemployment: Young People

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what percentage of 18 to 24 year olds are unemployed in West Chelmsford constituency; and what the equivalent figures were on 27 November in each of the last five years. [167892]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 27 November 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many and what percentage of 18 to 24 year olds are unemployed in West Chelmsford constituency; and what the equivalent figures were on 27th November in each of the last five years. I am replying in her absence. (167892)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles unemployment statistics for parliamentary constituencies from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions. These are annual surveys and the estimates derived from them cover twelve month periods, rather than a particular day.

However, from the annual LFS and the APS, there is only one period in the last 5 years where the sample size is sufficient to provide an estimate of the number of unemployed 18 to 24 year olds in West Chelmsford. For April 2004 to March 2005, there were 1000 unemployed persons aged 18 to 24 resident in West Chelmsford. This was 7 per cent of all 18 to 24 year olds in West Chelmsford. This percentage is not the same as the unemployment rate, which is defined as the number unemployed as the percentage of the number of economically active persons in the age group of interest. The unemployment rate for 18 to 24 year olds in West Chelmsford in this period was 10 per cent.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, they are based on very small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

ONS also compiles statistics for local areas of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA). The table, attached, shows the number of JSA claimants aged 18 to 24, resident in West Chelmsford, claiming in November for 2002 to 2006 (data for November 2007 are not yet available).

These numbers are not the numbers of claimants on the 27th of each November; the JSA claimant count date is the second Thursday of each month. These numbers cannot be shown as the percentage of all persons aged 18 to 24, as the working age population estimates for parliamentary constituencies cannot be broken down into different age groups.

Number of claimants of jobseeker's allowance aged 18 to 24 resident in the West Chelmsford parliamentary constituency in November of each year from 2002 to 2006

| November | Number |
|---|---|
| 2002 | 160 |
| 2003 | 185 |
| 2004 | 155 |
| 2005 | 230 |
| 2006 | 270 |

Welfare Tax Credits

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the number of children living in households entitled to but not claiming (a) child tax credit, (b) working tax credit and (c) child benefit in the most recent period for which figures are available; [167523]

(2) what the take-up rates for (a) child tax credit, (b) working tax credit and (c) child benefit were in 2006-07. [167524]

Jane Kennedy: Child and working tax credits were introduced in April 2003.

Estimates of take-up rates for child and working tax credit in 2005-06 and 2006-07 are not available. Estimates for 2003-04 and 2004-05 are produced in the HMRC publications "Child Tax Credit and Working Tax Credit. Take-up Rates" for each relevant year. These publications are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-take-up.htm

Table 7 of these publications also detail the estimated number of in-work entitled non-recipients, by family size.

A precise take-up rate for child benefit is not available, but it is estimated that approximately 2 per cent. of families, although entitled, do not claim child benefit. The number of children living in households eligible for but not claiming child benefit is not available.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Violent Extremism

12. Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the preventing violent extremism programme. [168033]

Hazel Blears: The preventing violent extremism programme has been established to deliver the Government's commitment to support a community-based response to violent extremism. This includes work to support alternative voices, strengthen the resilience of faith institutions, support vulnerable individuals, build the capacity across communities to resist and reject violent extremism, and to promote shared values.

Energy Efficiency

14. Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans her Department has to improve the energy efficiency of existing homes. [168035]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government have a wide ranging programme of activities to improve the energy efficiency of existing homes. As part of this, my Department has a major programme of work in hand to roll out Energy Performance Certificates which provide an energy performance rating for houses being sold.

My Department is also taking forward the Decent Homes Programme which is designed to tackle the worst housing conditions in the social housing sector and which includes measures to improve energy efficiency.

Property Revaluations

15. Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to revalue properties for council tax purposes. [168036]

Mr. Dhanda: The Government will stand by their commitment not to revalue during this Parliament. With the forthcoming three-year settlement for local government concluding in 2010-11 they would not expect to consider revaluation before that date. Even then there would need to be clear benefits given the costs to households that could be involved.

Cabinet System: Local Government

16. Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the Government plan to publish a review of the cabinet system in local government. [168037]

Mr. Dhanda: On 5 October we published the results of our evaluation of councils' executive arrangements, including the cabinet system. This evaluation, undertaken by a team of academics, clearly demonstrates that the cabinet system enhances local leadership. And the new measures in the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 will further strengthen the cabinet system.

Affordable Housing

17. Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what provision will be made in the Housing and Regeneration Bill to enable more affordable homes to be built. [168038]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Housing and Regeneration Bill will set up the new Homes and Communities Agency, which for the first time will bring together land and money to deliver new housing. The new agency will have responsibility for land and a budget of billions for affordable housing, including shared ownership.

The Bill will also make it easier for councils to build council homes by making changes to the Housing Revenue Account system.

21. Laura Moffatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress she is making on increasing affordable housing in the south-east. [168042]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government have increased significantly the funding for housing in England from £7.8 billion over the last three years to over £10 billion for the three years 2008-11. We expect this funding, and other sources, to generate 110,000 social housing units over the next three years in comparison with 78,000 units over the last three years. The South East's proposed provisional share of this is £1.37 billion. We expect this additional investment to fund over 12,700 affordable homes per year in the period 2008-11. This compares with an average of 8,200 affordable homes per year over the previous three years.

Home Information Packs

18. Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on progress on the home information packs scheme. [168039]

Yvette Cooper: On 22 November, I set out our intention to complete the phased roll out by extending coverage to the rest of the market from 14 December, in line with the criteria set out on 11 June.

Thames Gateway

19. Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the likely effect of the number of dwellings planned in the Thames Gateway development on the effectiveness of that development. [168040]

Yvette Cooper: The target of 160,000 new homes in the Thames Gateway was set in 2006 with reference to the three regional spatial strategies (RSS) that cover the Thames Gateway area. The regional and local planning authorities are best placed to make assessments on the impacts of development on their areas and these assessments are made as part of the development of their regional and local strategies.

Non-domestic Buildings: Sustainability Standards

20. Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what standards of sustainability she sets for new non-domestic buildings constructed with support from public funding. [168041]

Mr. Iain Wright: All new non-domestic buildings, including those constructed with support from public funding are required to meet the standards sets out in Building Regulations, including Part L—Conservation of Fuel and Power.

My Department is also working with other Government Departments to consider the future standards that might be set for energy performance of new non-domestic buildings, including those owned or occupied by the public sector.

Additionally, the UK Government Sustainable Procurement Action Plan which was published on 5 March 2007, sets out detailed plans for how the Government will move towards a sustainably built and managed central Government estate. This includes using sustainable procurement to make rapid progress against the cross Government sustainable operations targets announced in June 2006.

Community Land Trusts

22. Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assistance the Government are providing for the development of community land trusts. [168043]

Mr. Iain Wright: Community Land Trusts (CLTs) are an additional option to help deliver affordable housing, if more land can be brought forward and if we can ensure that they provide housing in line with current standards for the delivery of social housing.

The Housing Corporation and Salford University are working together to support 14 pilot CLTs, seven in rural areas and seven in urban areas.

CLTs were also invited to bid for Housing Corporation funds through the National Affordable Housing Programme this year.

Zero-carbon Housing

23. Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress her Department has made in discussions with manufacturers of building materials on the development of materials for the construction of zero-carbon housing. [168044]

Yvette Cooper: Through the 2016 Taskforce, we are having constructive discussions with the Construction Products Association, which represents the UK's manufacturers and suppliers of construction products components and fittings, about a range of issues associated with the delivery of zero carbon homes, including the Government's Standard Assessment Procedure for the Energy Rating of Dwellings.

Comprehensive Spending Review

24. Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received from local authorities on the effects of demographic trends on grant allocations made under the comprehensive spending review. [168045]

Hazel Blears: We have received a number of representations from local authorities on various issues relating to population and grant distribution. Issues include the time lag in funding for fast growing populations; adequately reflecting changes in international immigration; taking into account population mobility; and taking into account short-term migration, illegal immigrants and temporary residents.

Asylum: Higher Education

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's policy is on whether local authorities may pay fees for asylum seekers to attend university on the basis that such persons are UK residents or foreign students; and if she will make a statement. [166176]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

The fees for international students including those who are seeking asylum are not regulated. Higher education institutions are therefore able to determine the fee that they charge. Asylum seekers are not eligible for tuition fee loans from the Government.

Charity Commission: Accountability

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Statement by the Prime Minister of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-672, on national security, when she expects the new unit in the Charity Commission to strengthen governance and accountability announced by the Prime Minister to be set up; what she expects its costs to be; and how she plans to measure the effectiveness of this unit. [168360]

Mr. Dhanda: The Charity Commission launched its new Faith and Social Cohesion Unit on 9 November 2007.

The budget for the new unit is £1.4 million over the course of 2007-08 and 2008-09. This will be jointly funded by DCLG and the Commission.

The Commission is currently working with a range of partners to finalise its success measures, which will include the number of new registrations of Muslim charities.

Community Relations: Religion

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Statement of the Prime Minister of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-72, on national security, when she expects to announce the independent review to examine with communities how to build the capacity of Islamic seminaries referred to by the Prime Minister; who she expects to carry out the review; when she expects it to report; what she expects its costs to be; and if she will make a statement. [168402]

Mr. Dhanda: Details of the review are currently being developed, working closely with Muslim stakeholders, academics, theologians and others. We will announce further details in due course.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Statement of the Prime Minister of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-72, on national security, when she expects the Green Paper on interfaith groups announced by the Prime Minister to be published. [168408]

Mr. Dhanda: We intend to open consultation on an interfaith strategy in December.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Statement by the Prime Minister of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-72, on national security, when she expects the advisory group on citizenship education classes run by mosque schools announced by the Prime Minister to be set up; who she expects its members to be; what she expects its costs to be; and if she will make a statement. [168444]

Mr. Dhanda: In partnership with the Department for Children Schools and Families we are in discussion with a range of Muslim and educational stakeholders about establishing an advisory group and what its role will be. We expect the costs of the advisory group itself to be minimal. We will make further announcements once the advisory group is up and running.

Departmental Correspondence

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of inquiries received by her Department from the public were responded to within (a) one week, (b) 14 days, (c) 28 days, (d) two months and (e) three months; and in what percentage of cases it took (i) over three months and (ii) over one year to respond. [167380]

Mr. Dhanda: Information on the departmental handling of correspondence from Members of Parliament and Peers is published annually by the Cabinet Office. The 2006 annual report was published by way of a written ministerial statement on 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 101WS. Information for 2007 will be published as soon as it is ready after the end of the calendar year.

Departmental ICT

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which manufacturers' software is used in her Department. [167232]

Mr. Dhanda: According to central records Communities and Local Government uses software products from over 350 different manufacturers. However not all of these are end-user applications. For example, some products are used to manage systems, networks and security. The software suppliers with the largest Communities and Local Government footprint in terms of software products used on the corporate network and in our major web facing business applications are:

Adobe Systems, Inc.
Ahead Software AG
Artemis International Solutions Corporation
Business Objects
Business Web Software
Cognos, Inc.
Hewlett-Packard
IBM
Macromedia, Inc.
Mediasurface
Microsoft Corporation
Novell, Inc.
Open Text Corporation
Oracle Corporation
SAPAG ScanSoft, Inc.
Sun Microsystems, Inc.

This list of manufacturers does not include software used in the Department's executive agencies, NDPBs or the Government offices.

Emergency Calls: Fire Services

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average time taken to respond to an emergency telephone call by the fire brigade was in (a) England, (b) London and (c) each London borough in each year since 1997. [166939]

Mr. Dhanda: The following table shows the average response times taken by the fire and rescue services in London and England between 1997 to 2005, the most recent calendar year for which data are available. The table shows the time from the initial call to attendance, and the time from mobilisation to attendance (i.e. the actual driving time). Information for individual London boroughs is not available centrally.

Average response time (in minutes) to fires by brigade area and year of call, London, 1997 to 2005[1,2,3]

| Year | England | | London | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | First call to attendance | Mobilisation to attendance | First call to attendance | Mobilisation to attendance |

[1] Excluding late call and heat and smoke damage only incidents.
[2] Excluding incidents not recorded during periods of industrial action in 2002 and 2003.
[3] A small number of incidents with response time greater than an hour have been excluded so that results are not skewed by likely reporting errors.

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Public Appointments

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what human rights expertise candidates for appointment as commissioners of the Equality and Human Rights Commission are required to demonstrate as part of the appointments process. [165818]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

Individuals with relevant knowledge or experience to enable the EHRC to deliver successful outcomes for equality and human rights were invited to apply for the post of commissioner.

Candidates were asked to demonstrate in their application and interview:

"a commitment to the equalities, human rights and good relations (social cohesion) agendas, and an understanding of the communities that the EHRC will champion and the issues they face".

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what factors she took into account in appointing Joel Edwards as a commissioner of the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [165828]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

Commissioners are appointed on the basis of relevant experience or knowledge of discrimination and human rights and the desirability of the commissioners together having experience and knowledge relating to the relevant matters.

Joel Edwards was appointed as EHRC Commissioner following a comprehensive selection process consistent with the requirements of the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments. This involved detailed paper assessment and interview by an expert panel. A shortlist of candidates was put to the Lord Privy Seal for her final agreement.

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Standards

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what arrangements are in place for periodic review of the work of the Equality and Human Rights Commission; and if she will make a statement. [165822]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

Although the Equality and Human Rights Commission (EHRC) is an independent body, it is required like all non departmental public bodies to operate under the terms of a Management Statement and Financial Framework document, in this case agreed with the Lord Privy Seal. In addition, the EHRC is required by statute to:

prepare a statement of accounts in respect of each financial year in such form as the Lord Privy Seal may direct; for each financial year prepare a report on the performance of its functions in that year; and prepare and regularly review its strategic plan, and send the plan and each revision to the Lord Privy Seal who must lay a copy before Parliament.

The Commission will be held to account annually to Parliament on the use of public funds.

There is close liaison between the Government Equalities Office and the EHRC which enables Government to monitor, inform and review the EHRCs progress against the responsibilities set out in the Equality Act 2006.

Fire Services: Hoaxes and False Alarms

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government have taken to reduce the numbers of false alarms for the fire service since 1997. [166957]

Mr. Dhanda: My Department published guidance on reducing the number of false alarms from fire-detection and fire-alarms systems in 2004. Since then, the Government have introduced the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005. This sets out the duties of the responsible person for fire safety in non-domestic premises, part of which includes maintenance of fire precautions. The Government expect fire and rescue services to adopt policies that allow them to respond to real fires without being distracted by false alarms.

Floods

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the costs to local authorities arising from repair and restoration of infrastructure damaged by flooding in 2007. [167255]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

The Association of British Insurers Statement of Principles aims to ensure continued widespread availability of flood cover for households in flood risk areas. It does not extend to the cost implications of additional landfill tax or uninsured losses.

Government Office for London

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the future of the Government office for London. [167568]

Mr. Dhanda: The Government office for London represents central Government in London and will continue to do so. It delivers a range of central Government functions on behalf of Ministers from 11 Whitehall Departments. These functions include negotiating local area agreements with London boroughs, undertaking Secretary of State planning casework, and co-ordinating civil emergency and resilience preparations across the capital.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government has taken to increase the availability of affordable housing in the West Midlands since 1997. [166479]

Mr. Iain Wright: In 2003 my right hon. Friend the Member for Hull, East (Mr. Prescott), as Deputy Prime Minister, published "Sustainable Communities: building for the future", a document setting out a programme of action to tackle key housing problems including lack of affordable housing.

The programme of actions included the establishment of Regional Housing Boards in each of the regions to develop a Regional Housing Strategy on which to base advice to Ministers about strategic housing priorities and allocation of housing capital funding from the new Regional Housing Pot.

The West Midlands Regional Housing Board (RHB), in its first West Midlands Regional Housing Strategy published 2005, identified the need for affordable housing as a key regional priority, particularly in the south and west of the region.

On that basis the RHB made recommendations to Ministers about allocations of funding for the Affordable Housing Programme (formerly Approved Development Programme—ADP), administered by the Housing Corporation, resulting in an allocation to the West Midlands of £377 million pounds over the period 2004-05 to 2007-08, to subsidise delivery of 8,500 new affordable homes.

Prior to the formation of the RHB, the ADP was allocated on an annual basis through the Housing Corporation and in 2003-04 the allocation was £84.11 million. Therefore, over the five year period 2003-04 to 2007-08 allocations to the West Midlands for the provision of new affordable housing total £460 million.

In October 2007 the Government announced their overall funding for housing capital allocations for 2008-11. The West Midlands was allocated £209 million for 2008-09 (18 per cent. higher than 2007-08); £228 million for 2009-10 (11 per cent. in-year rise), and £245 million for 2010-11 (7 per cent. in-year rise).

This additional funding comes with a higher target for delivery of affordable housing, with the West Midlands expected to achieve 10,800 new affordable homes over the period 2008-11.

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 14 November 2007, Official Report, column 329W, on housing: low incomes, how many (a) local authority and (b) housing association socially rented houses will be built in each region in (i) 2007-08, (ii) 2008-09 and (iii) 2009-10. [167904]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 26 November 2007]: We are on course to deliver 30,000 social rented homes in 2007-08. Of these we are expecting 28,000 to be provided through Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme. The remainder will be through other sources including local authorities who we estimate will provide around 300 social rented homes.

The following table shows forecast social rented completions by region through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme for 2007-08

| Region | Forecast |
|---|---|
| North East | 518 |
| Yorkshire and Humberside | 907 |
| North West | 1,932 |
| East of England | 3,794 |
| East Midlands | 1,517 |
| West Midlands | 1,448 |
| London | 8,004 |
| South East | 4,727 |
| South West | 2,781 |
| Total | 25,682 |

Note:
The balance to 28,000 will be made up by completions through recycled capital grant fund which cannot be forecast by region.

In 2007-08 we are providing over £2.0 billion to the Housing Corporation for the provision of affordable housing. We have made available funding totalling some £2.5 billion in 2008-09 and £2.8 billion in 2009-10 to support delivery of new affordable homes. Decisions have yet to be finalised as to the distribution of this funding and the resulting homes between the regions. The funding is being made available to bids from both housing associations, developers and local authorities through the Housing Corporation's bidding round for the National Affordable Housing Programme.

Housing: West Midlands

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Government have spent on housing in the West Midlands since 1997. [166480]

Mr. Iain Wright: In the period 1997-98 to 2007-08 the Government have allocated a total of £1.599 billion capital funding to West Midlands local housing authorities.

This total funding includes:

£1.092 billion for non-specific housing investment for the 34 local housing authorities in the region;

£114 million to support local authorities' investment in Disabled Facilities Grants for people with disabilities that necessitate adaptations to their homes;

£195 million to the two Housing Market Renewal Pathfinders in Sandwell and North Staffordshire for investment to address housing low demand and regeneration; and £198 million to the three arms length management organisations in Solihull, Sandwell and Wolverhampton to ensure that the all the council homes in those areas are brought up to the Decent Homes standard.

In addition to the funding allocated directly to local housing authorities, there is separate Government funding (the Affordable Housing Pot, formerly Approved Development Programme), administered by the Housing Corporation in each region, to deliver new affordable housing.

Since 2003-04, allocations to the West Midlands from the Affordable Housing Pot have totalled £461 million.

Local Authorities: Children

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) if she will assess the effects on local authorities of the legislative framework for meeting the needs of unaccompanied asylum-seeking children; [165539]

(2) what assessment her Department has made of the pressures on local authorities arising from meeting the needs of unaccompanied asylum-seeking children and care leavers. [165540]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 20 November 2007]: I have been asked to reply.

Local authority services for unaccompanied asylum seeking children are governed by the same legislative framework as services for all other children in the community.

The Department collects statistical information on an annual basis concerned with all children looked after by local authorities; including children who enter care because they are unaccompanied asylum seekers (UASC) with no adult in this country able to take responsibility for their care. The DCSF manages the UASC Leaving Care Costs Grant, which is intended to provide assistance for local authorities towards meeting the leaving care costs of supporting unaccompanied asylum seeker children.

Planning Permission: Quarrying

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with Rochdale metropolitan borough council on the planning application to re-open Ding quarry and the associated environmental impact assessment. [168932]

Mr. Iain Wright: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State would not discuss the application for new operating conditions for Ding quarry in view of her quasi-judicial role in relation to any appeal which might be submitted in the future. The Department has offered informal and general advice to Rochdale metropolitan borough council about the procedure and timescale for applying environmental impact assessment to reviews of mineral permissions for dormant quarries and also about the mineral permission review legislation as it applies to dormant quarries.

Planning: Quarrying

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consideration she has given to the compatibility of existing planning permissions for dormant quarries and planning and environment law. [168931]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning permissions for active and dormant quarries are compatible with current planning and environment law. However, mineral permissions do differ from other planning permissions in that many were granted just after the Second World War and they can involve continuous development over many years, and sometimes decades. As with other planning permissions, mineral consents and permissions are property rights which cannot, in general, be taken away with without compensation. The Planning and Compensation Act 1991 and the Environment Act 1995 introduced legislation to initially review old mineral permissions granted before 22 February 1982 and then periodically review, at 15 year intervals, all mineral permissions to ensure that operations are in accordance with conditions which reflect the most up to date environmental standards. In 2000, regulations were introduced applying environmental impact assessment to reviews of mineral permissions where the remaining development is likely to have significant effects on the environment.

Quarrying

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions (a) she and (b) her officials have had with quarry owners on re-opening dormant quarries. [168934]

Mr. Iain Wright: Neither Ministers in my Department nor my officials have had recent discussions with quarry owners on re-opening dormant quarries.

Quarrying: Finance

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the economic effects of re-opening dormant quarries. [168933]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department has made no assessment of the economic effects of re-opening dormant quarries.

Social Rented Housing: Construction

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) local authority and (b) housing association socially rented houses were built in each (i) region and (ii) local authority area in each year from 1997 to 2006. [167902]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The following table shows the number of local authority and registered social landlord new build social rent houses for each year from 1996-97 to 2005-06, by region.

Social rent new build is only part of total affordable housing supply. In 2005-06, for example, acquisitions added a further 2,407 social rent dwellings, and total affordable supply including intermediate rent and low cost home ownership was 44,923.

A table showing information of total social rent (registered social landlord plus local authority) new build by local authority has been placed in the Library of the House.

HEALTH

18 Weeks Programme: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the annual budget of the Central Secretariat for his Department's 18 weeks programme is. [165699]

Mr. Bradshaw: Departmental servants provide the secretariat to the 18 weeks programme as part of their wider responsibilities. The cost of the secretariat function is not recorded separately.

18 Weeks Programme: Internet

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the annual cost of running the website for his Department's 18 weeks programme is. [165700]

Mr. Bradshaw: In the period November 2006 to October 2007 the annual cost of running the 18 weeks website was £108,508. This includes staff costs, website development and maintenance.

Nearly 9,000 people are registered with the website and receive regular updates on 18 weeks programme developments and support. Over 1,100 people visit the website every day.

Abortion: Medical Ethics

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will introduce legislation to amend section 4 of the Abortion Act 1967 to remove the duty on a physician with a conscientious objection to treatment under the Act from having to prove it; and if he will make a statement. [167388]

Dawn Primarolo: Section 4 of the Abortion Act provides that, except where treatment is necessary to save the life of, or prevent grave permanent injury to, the pregnant woman,

> "no person shall be under any duty, whether by contract or by any statutory or other legal requirement, to participate in any treatment authorised by this Act to which he has a conscientious objection".

A doctor is only required to prove that they have a conscientious objection should the matter arise in legal proceedings.

It is accepted parliamentary practice that proposals for changes in the law on abortion come from Back-Bench Members and that decisions are made on the basis of free votes. The Government have no plans to change the law on abortion.

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provision the alcohol harm reduction strategy contains for the treatment of under-18 year olds; and what associated initiatives are located in Wirral West constituency. [166366]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

'Safe. Sensible. Social'. The updated alcohol harm reduction strategy for England identifies under-18s as a priority group for Government action on alcohol and sets out the reduction of drinking by young people as a Government objective. Actions specifically aimed at addressing young people's alcohol misuse include producing guidance for young people and their parents about what is and what is not safe; a social marketing campaign to challenge attitudes around drinking; and tackling underage sales.

£25 million has been allocated in this financial year for treatment for under-18s from the adult pooled treatment budget for substance misuse. Alcohol is the biggest presenting problem for those under-18s who access treatment. The adult pooled treatment budget can also be accessed if local strategic partnerships identify greater need and adult targets have been met.

On the basis of information supplied by the Wirral dug and alcohol action team, (DAAT), there are a number of initiatives in Wirral West that aim to reduce the harms associated with substance misuse, including alcohol young people, through the Young People's Substance Misuse Service. They are:

School drug advisers: support all schools in Wirral in developing policies for drug education and managing drug-related incidents;

School nurses/looked after nurses: provide screening and basic information to young people;

Connexions: provides a universal support service designed for and with young people;

Churches Action on Substance Misuse (third sector);

Forum Housing (third sector): provides support to young people living in supported accommodation;

Sports and recreation (regeneration): offers diversionary activity to young people at risk of or involved in substance misuse;

Response: works with organisations, which provide services to young people at risk of or involved in alcohol misuse;

Youth offending services;

Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service (CAMHS): responds to the needs of young people with complex substance misuse problems.

Blood: Donors

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much blood was donated via the national blood donor scheme in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [167254]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Blood Service (NBS) is responsible for managing the blood supply in England and North Wales. In the last five financial years, the NBS collected the following amounts:

| | Units of blood collected[1] (million) |
|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 2.323 |
| 2003-04 | 2.285 |
| 2004-05 | 2.143 |
| 2005-06 | 2.012 |
| 2006-07 | 1.969 |

[1] These figures are rounded to the nearest 10,000.

Bone Diseases: Medical Treatments

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will ensure that patients with ankylosing spondylitis do not face delays in receiving the two anti-TNF treatments recently approved by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) if the final appraisal decision is delayed by an appeal in support of the one anti-TNF treatment that NICE rejected. [168179]

Dawn Primarolo: Funding for licensed treatments should not be withheld because guidance from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is unavailable. In December 2006, we issued refreshed good practice guidance which asks national health service bodies to continue with local arrangements for the managed introduction of new technologies where guidance from NICE is not available at the time the treatment or technology first becomes available.

Cancer: Drugs

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in trials of the cancer drug sorafenib; and when a decision on the licensing of sorafenib will be made. [166852]

Dawn Primarolo: The European Commission adopted a decision on the licensing of sorafenib on 19 July 2006 for treatment in advanced renal cell carcinoma. This marketing authorisation is valid across the Community. On 29 October 2007, the Commission issued a decision extending the indication for sorafenib to include treatment of hepatocellular carcinoma.

Care Homes: Standards

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to review the implementation of the National Framework for NHS Continuing Healthcare; and if he will make a statement. [165821]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The National Framework for National Health Service Continuing Healthcare and NHS-funded Nursing Care will be reviewed on 30 September 2008.

Chlamydia Infection: Screening

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what resources will be made available to local chlamydia screening teams to implement the National Chlamydia Screening Programme's men's strategy. [168143]

Dawn Primarolo: In February 2005, individual primary care trusts (PCTs) were notified of their funding for implementing the targets in the White Paper 'Choosing Health: making healthy choices easier'. For chlamydia screening, £70 million was allocated in PCTs mainstream allocations for 2006-07 and 2007-08. It is for strategic health authorities and PCTs to determine how this funding is allocated to meet the health care needs of their local populations. A copy of the White Paper is available in the Library.

The men's strategy, launched in conjunction with the Men's Health Forum in November, identifies how the Health Protection Agency, who manage the programme, will work with PCTs and local chlamydia screening programmes to increase screening in men.

Clinical Trials: Advisory Services

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will hold discussions with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence on improving access for the general public to information relating to (a) drug trials and (b) timetables of drug trials. [166851]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has no role in the timetabling of drug trials or in the provision of information on drug trials to the general public. NICE'S role is to provide national guidance on promoting good health and preventing and treating ill health, including advice on the clinical and cost effectiveness of medicines and other treatments.

Clinical trials are registered on the publicly accessible International Standard Randomised Controlled Trial Number Register which is available at:

www.controlled-trials.com/isrctn/and the UK Clinical Research Network Portfolio Database which is available at:

www.pfsearch.ukcrn.org.uk/.

Connecting for Health Programme: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much he expects Connecting for Health to cost in each financial year from 2007-08 to 2010-11, broken down into (a) resource and (b) capital costs. [165708]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department's NHS Connecting for Health agency is responsible both for ensuring delivery of the IT systems for the national programme for information technology, and for maintaining the critical business systems previously provided to the national health service by the former NHS Information Authority. Information covering all the agency's responsibilities is in the table.

Figures for 2008-09 to 2010-11 are those used to inform the comprehensive spending review, announced by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer on 9 October. However, these will be subject to revision as the agency responds over time to the evolving IT needs of the NHS.

£ million

| | Revenue | Capital |
|---|---|---|
| 2007-08 (forecast outturn) | 500.0 | 826.0 |
| 2008-09 | 853.2 | 826.0 |
| 2009-10 | 786.9 | 1049.7 |
| 2010-11 | 785.9 | 835.8 |

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will provide a breakdown of his Department's capital underspend in 2006-07; and how much of that underspend was due to changes in the timetable for the delivery of the Connecting for Health programme. [165706]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department's Resource Accounts 2006-07 includes a breakdown of the capital underspend in 2006-07. These accounts were laid before Parliament on 15 October 2007 and a copy is available in the Library. Changes to the timetable for the delivery of the Connecting for Health programme has resulted in capital slippage of £466 million in 2006-07.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date his Department's proposals for (a) the outsourcing of NHS logistics and (b) the advanced contract for pandemic influenza vaccine were (i) referred to and (ii) approved by HM Treasury. [165711]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department's proposal for the outsourcing of national health service logistics was referred to HM Treasury on 3 August 2006 and approval was granted on 4 September 2006. The Department's proposals for advanced supply contracts for pandemic influenza vaccine were referred to HM Treasury on 9 May 2007 and HM Treasury approval was granted on 1 June.

Depressive Illnesses

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were treated for depression in each primary care trust in each of the last 10 years. [167642]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information is not collected centrally about diagnoses for any condition in primary care, so reliable data is not available about the number of people who have been treated for depression in each primary care trust for any year.

We estimate that around seven million adults in England have a common mental health problem, which will include depression, and that approximately 90 per cent. of those people are managed entirely within primary care.

However, we know that there is a significant level of unmet need for people suffering with depression. This is why the Government announced on 10 October its commitment to building a new psychological therapy service, with additional investment rising to £170 million over the next three years. By 2011, this service will help to treat 900,000 more people with depression, anxiety and other conditions.

Drugs: Internet

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will introduce regulations to restrict the (a) supply and (b) prescription of drugs over the internet. [166606]

Dawn Primarolo: In the United Kingdom there are strict legal controls on the retail sale, supply and advertisement of medicinal products. It is unlawful for medicinal products for human use to be marketed, manufactured, imported from a third country, distributed and sold or supplied in the UK except in accordance with the appropriate licences or exemptions. These legal controls apply equally to medicines for human use sold or supplied via internet or e-mail transactions.

Medicines legislation does not prohibit the remote prescribing of prescription medicines by a practitioner. These prescriptions must meet the usual requirements set down in medicines legislation.

Medicines that are brought into the UK by an individual for his or her own personal use or that of a member of his/her family, including those purchased via the internet and by mail order, are not regarded as being imported for sale or supply, because they are not going to be placed on the market by that individual and accordingly are not subject to the controls of medicines legislation. There are no plans at this time to change the legislation.

Websites based overseas fall outside the control of UK medicines legislation. The Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency works closely with international regulatory authorities to ensure that, wherever possible, offending websites are amended to reflect the law.

East Midlands Regional Strategic Health Authority

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what public consultation meetings will be held by East Midlands Regional Strategic Health Authority in December 2007; what the purpose of those meetings is; and who has been invited to them. [168703]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We understand that East Midlands Strategic Health Authority has no plans to hold any meetings as part of formal public consultations in the east midlands during December.

General Practitioners: Easington

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many practising NHS general practitioners there are in Easington constituency; and what the ratio of GPs to head of population is in the constituency. [166032]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not available at constituency level. The following table shows the number of general medical practitioners (excluding retainers and registrars) per 100,000 population in the County Durham Primary Care Trust area as at 30 September 2006.

| | GMPs (excluding retainers and registrars)[1] | Number (headcount) and percentage GMPs (excluding retainers and registrars)[1] per100,000 population |

General Practitioners: Greater London

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many GPs there are per head of population in (a) Havering and (b) London. [167316]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is held at primary care trust (PCT) and strategic health authority (SHA) level.

The latest figures available for general practitioners (GPs) per head of population at Havering PCT and London SHA can be found in the following table.

| Health organisation | GPs per population as at September 2006 |
|---|---|
| Havering PCT | 54.8 |
| London SHA | 64.8 |

Health Centres

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the planned health centres to be open for seven days a week will be additional to the existing network. [165716]

Mr. Bradshaw: Yes. The £250 million access fund announced by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 10 October is for additional primary medical care services beyond existing provision.

Health Services: Speech Impaired

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance he has issued to general practitioners on referring children with a speech, language or communication disability to an appropriate service; and if he will make a statement. [167614]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 26 November 2007]: No such guidance has been issued.

The ability to communicate is fundamental to a child's learning and development. 'Aiming High for Disabled Children: better support for families' (published by HM Treasury and Department for Education and Skills, May 2007) recognised the importance of therapy services, such speech and language therapy, as being key to improving outcomes.

On 11 September my right hon. Friends the Secretary of State for Health and the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families announced a review of services for children and young people with speech, language and communications needs. The review will be lead by the hon. Member for Buckingham (John Bercow).

The review will build on the investment and improvements to speech and language therapy and the resources made available in the last 10 years. The review will advise on a number of areas including examples of good practice in commissioning and delivering services which are responsive to the needs of children, young people and families and which can be viewed as benchmarks for the delivery of local services across England.

The review will make an interim report in March 2008 and a full report by July 2008.

Human Papilloma Virus: Vaccination

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health who is responsible for the implementation of the national vaccination programme for human papilloma virus. [167525]

Dawn Primarolo: Primary care trusts (PCTs) will be responsible for local planning and delivery of the vaccination programme. National guidance will be issued by the Department in order to assist PCTs in their work.

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms will be used to (a) audit the take-up of the human papilloma virus vaccine through the national vaccination programme and (b) ensure comprehensive coverage of women over 16 years of age in the programme. [167526]

Dawn Primarolo: National immunisation statistics for primary care trusts (PCTs) in England will be collected by the Department.

PCTs will be responsible for commissioning immunisation services to vaccinate girls under the age of 18 as part of a catch-up programme. Mechanisms to achieve this will be decided by individual trusts.

The Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation has advised that human papilloma virus vaccination would be most efficiently delivered through schools.

Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) with reference to the answer of 15 October 2007, Official Report, column 923W, on influenza, what plans he has to stockpile antibiotics for use in the event of an influenza pandemic; [166321]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of courses of antivirals which would be required in order to offer chemoprophylaxis protection to NHS staff against future occurrence of the disease in the event of an influenza pandemic. [166456]

Dawn Primarolo: The range of antibiotics needed to treat bacterial complications arising from pandemic influenza has been identified and published in the form of Clinical Management Guidelines.

The Government have secured a stockpile of H5N1 vaccine for use by health care workers and is also progressing work to ensure that the appropriate face masks are made available to them. The current stockpile of antivirals is intended for the treatment of symptomatic cases, not prophylaxis. There are currently no plans to offer them to NHS staff for prophylaxis in the event of an influenza pandemic.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the Answer of 15 October 2007, Official Report, column 923W, on influenza, if he will estimate the proportion of excess deaths in each year since 1997-98 which occurred in those vaccinated against seasonal influenza. [166325]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not held centrally.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the current thresholds are for (a) baseline and (b) epidemic seasonal influenza activity, expressed in terms of the general practitioner consultation rate per 100,000 population; what the evidential basis underpinning these thresholds was; what representations his Department has received from (i) the Health Protection Agency and (ii) other interested parties on these thresholds; what discussions officials in his Department have had with the Health Protection Agency on the subject of thresholds for influenza activity; what the content of such discussions was; and if he will make a statement. [166384]

Dawn Primarolo: The current thresholds for baseline and epidemic seasonal flu activity is as follows:

GP consultation rates of 0 to 30 per 100,000 population per week—baseline activity rates of 30 to 200 per 100,000 population per week—normal seasonal activity rates of >200 per 100,000 population per week—epidemic activity.

The threshold level was changed in 2004-05 following assessment of the indicators of influenza activity by the Health Protection Agency, and in discussion with the Birmingham Research Unit of the Royal College of General Practitioners and the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation Respiratory Panel.

The Department has asked the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to review the use of antivirals and threshold levels used for seasonal influenza.

Influenza: Vaccination

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations his Department has received from (a) officials in the Health Protection Agency and (b) other interested parties on the effectiveness of vaccination against seasonal influenza; what the content of these representations was; and if he will make a statement. [166386]

Dawn Primarolo: The aim of the Government's influenza immunisation policy is to protect those who are most at risk of serious illness or death should they develop influenza. Although vaccination may not protect all elderly people from flu virus infection experts, including those from the Health Protection Agency (HPA), advise that the majority of those immunised benefit by suffering a less severe illness. The HPA press release of 24 October endorsed the Government's influenza vaccine campaign.

United Kingdom policy is constantly under review by the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation to take into consideration all available evidence. A new study from the HPA on the causes of winter hospital admissions adds to the evidence base.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which groups of workers are eligible for (a) antiviral chemoprophylaxis and (b) vaccination against A/H5N1 in the event of an outbreak of avian influenza. [166438]

Dawn Primarolo: Based upon detailed risk assessments during an outbreak, all workers, and others, who are identified as having been at risk of exposure to the H5N1 virus will be offered chemoprophylactic preventative treatment with the antiviral Oseltamivir (Tamiflu) within 24-48 hours of disease confirmation. Additionally, all workers who are identified as being at risk of potential exposure, for example through engagement in culling and disposal of birds, will be offered antiviral chemoprophylaxis prior to commencing these activities.

All those offered antiviral prophylaxis will also be offered seasonal influenza vaccine. Vaccination with H5N1 vaccine is not offered during outbreaks of avian flu. There is a small stock of H5N1 vaccine which is held for possible use in the event of a human flu pandemic.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to strengthen the criteria for prioritisation of vaccination in the event of an influenza pandemic, as recommended by his Department's Joint Committee on Vaccinations and Immunisations at its meeting of 20 June 2007. [166450]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has commissioned a series of studies to predict the impact of vaccinating specific risk groups, including strategies that prevent the spread of disease as well as preventing flu cases and flu-related deaths. This work is being used to develop a detailed strategy for the prioritisation of pandemic flu vaccine.

Liver Diseases

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were admitted to hospital in England as a consequence of (a) alcoholic liver disease and (b) cirrhosis in each of the last 10 years. [166823]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is in the following table:

Data for NHS hospitals England for 1996-97 to 2005-06

| | Alcoholic liver disease | Cirrhosis of the liver |
|---|---|---|
| 2005-06 | 39,725 | 24,042 |
| 2004-05 | 35,909 | 20,800 |
| 2003-04 | 32,070 | 18,355 |
| 2002-03 | 28,645 | 16,700 |
| 2001-02 | 25,757 | 15,182 |
| 2000-01 | 23,777 | 14,663 |
| 1999-00 | 22,482 | 14,502 |
| 1998-99 | 19,531 | 13,834 |
| 1997-98 | 18,205 | 12,749 |
| 1996-97 | 16,252 | 11,806 |

Notes:

Ungrossed Data Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed). Assessing growth through time Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. During the years that these records have been collected the National Health Service there have been ongoing improvements in quality and coverage. These improvements in information submitted by the NHS have been particularly marked in the earlier years and need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. Changes in NHS practice also need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. For example a number of procedures may now be undertaken in outpatient settings and may no longer be accounted in the HES data. This may account for any reductions in activity over time. Data Quality HES are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain. Finished admission episodes (FAE) A FAE is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year. All Diagnoses count of episodes These figures represent a count of all FAEs where the diagnosis was mentioned in any of the 14 (7 prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in a HES record. ICD10 code used for Alcoholic Liver Disease = K70 ICD10 code used for Cirrhosis of Liver: K70.3 Alcoholic cirrhosis of liver K71.7 Toxic liver disease with fibrosis and cirrhosis of liver K74.3 Primary biliary cirrhosis K74.4 Secondary biliary cirrhosis K74.5 Biliary cirrhosis, unspecified K74.6 Other and unspecified cirrhosis of liver.

Code K70.3 is also included within the data for Alcoholic Liver Disease. These figures should not be added together as this would cause double counting.

NHS: EU Nationals

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what his estimate is of the number of French nationals in the UK who have accessed NHS services in each of the last five years; [167034]

(2) what the cost to the public purse has been of French nationals living in the UK accessing NHS services in each of the last five years. [167035]

Dawn Primarolo: Entitlement to free national health service hospital treatment is based upon ordinary residence in the United Kingdom, not nationality or payment of taxes. Successive Governments have not required the NHS to submit statistics on the number of foreign nationals living in the UK who have accessed NHS services, nor any costs to the public purse involved. It is therefore not possible to provide this information.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the Answer of 23 October 2007, Official Report, column 272W, on NHS: Finance, how many NHSnet users there are; and what personally identifiable information is contained in the programme budgeting atlases. [166322]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Programme Budget Atlases contain no direct personally identifiable information in the sense of names, identification numbers, postcodes etc. However, some of the statistics contained within the atlases are based on very small numbers of events and may, therefore, have the potential to identify an individual. There are now some 300,000 registered NHSnet users, over 132,000 of whom use the system on a daily basis.

Primary Care Trusts: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much money will be transferred to primary care trusts from the Ministry of Justice in each financial year between 2008-09 and 2010-11 to fund the transfer of responsibility for healthcare escorts and bedwatches; [165702]

(2) whether the money to fund healthcare escorts and bedwatches from 2008-09 will be drawn from the budget of his Department. [165704]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The total budget for healthcare escorts and bedwatches activity in a 2005-06 audit indicated an annual spend of £16.9 million[1].

This amount, uplifted for pay, prices, population changes and where applicable, local allowances, will be transferred from the Ministry of Justice to this Department for each year covered by the current comprehensive spending review settlement.

Primary care trusts will shortly receive a communication confirming their allocations for the provision of healthcare escort and bedwatches services for each prison establishment in England for this period. Allocations for 2008-09 will be based on local historical spend as identified in the audit. Allocations for 2009-10 and beyond will then be re-distributed based on a fair shares model agreed with Her Majesty's Prison Service, which will take into account a number of factors including prison type, category and operational capacity.

Final adjustments are currently under way.

Prostate Cancer

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the survival rate of those treated for prostate cancer in (a) Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust and (b) London NHS trusts is. [167293]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 27 November 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the survival rate of those treated for prostate cancer in a) Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust and b) London NHS trusts is. I am replying in her absence. (167293)

Survival rates by NHS Trust are not available, but one and five-year survival for eight common cancers including prostate cancer by government office region and strategic health authority, for patients diagnosed in 1997-99 and followed up to 31 December 2004, are available on the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=11991 &Pos=9&ColRank=1&Rank=272

Queen's Hospital Romford: Alcoholic Drinks

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many alcohol related injuries were treated in accident and emergency at Queen's Hospital, Romford, since its establishment. [167439]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not held centrally.

Queen's Hospital Romford: Epilepsy

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans there are to appoint a specialist epilepsy nurse at Queen's hospital, Romford. [167315]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are informed that Barking, Havering and Redbridge Hospitals National Health Service Trust has funding for an epilepsy nurse and will be advertising this post shortly.

Scientific Advisory Group on Pandemic Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) on what dates the Scientific Advisory Group on Pandemic Influenza met in 2007; and if he will place in the Library copies of the minutes of these meetings; [166389]

(2) if he will place a copy in the Library of the empirical evidence referred to in section 2.4 of his Department's Pandemic Influenza Scientific Advisory Group's Subgroup on Modelling summary, dated November 2007, which demonstrates that local epidemics of pandemic influenza will vary in profile between primary care trust areas; [166457]

(3) if he will consider the merits of a contingency strategy for an appropriate response in the event of an extreme pandemic as recommended in his Department's Pandemic Influenza Scientific Advisory Group's Subgroup on Modelling summary, dated November 2007. [166458]

Dawn Primarolo: The Scientific Advisory Group on Pandemic Influenza has not met in 2007.

The empirical evidence referred to, from the Department's Pandemic Influenza Scientific Advisory Group's Subgroup on Modelling, concern 1918-19 influenza pandemic mortality data from England and Wales. The actual documents used by the Department are tables produced by Niall Johnson as part of his PhD project in the Department of Geography, University of Cambridge (1996-2001). The raw data in the Department's possession has been placed in the Library.

The Pandemic Influenza Scientific Advisory Group's Subgroup on Modelling summary, dated November 2007 does not recommend a contingency strategy for an extreme pandemic.

The modelling summary defines an extreme pandemic as one where the case fatality rate (CFR) is above the historic range, i.e. above 2.5 per cent. and indicates that a policy question is how the response might change for such a pandemic. It does not recommend Government devises a contingency strategy for the situation. It recommends: "Based on historical pandemics, a 'reasonable worst case' for a pandemic would be a CFR of 2.5 per cent." This is the upper end of the CFR range considered in the contingency planning as described in the cross-Government "national framework for responding to an influenza pandemic".

Sexually Transmitted Diseases: Havering

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) 15 to 19-year-olds and (b) adults over the age of 19-years-old in the Havering Primary Care Trust area were (i) tested for and (ii) diagnosed with sexually transmitted infections in 2006. [167113]

Dawn Primarolo: Information on the number of people tested for sexually transmitted infections in genitourinary clinics (GUM) is not currently collected centrally.

Information on the number of diagnoses in young people 15 to 19-years-old and adults over the age of 19 diagnosed in GUM clinics is only currently available at strategic health authority (SHA) level.

Information for 2006 for the London SHA, which includes Havering Primary Care Trust (PCT) is given in the following table.

| | Chlamydia | Gonorrhoea | Syphilis | Herpes | Warts |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 15 to 19 years | 4,373 | 1,083 | 27 | 612 | 1,488 |
| Over 19 yrs | 16,198 | 5,368 | 895 | 4,583 | 11,541 |

Notes:
1. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are for diagnoses made in GUM clinics only. Diagnoses made in other clinical settings, such as general practice, are not recorded in the KC60 dataset.
2. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are the number of diagnoses made, not the number of patients diagnosed. Individual patients may have more than one diagnosis in a year.
3. The information provided has been adjusted for missing clinic data.
4. There is no reporting GUM clinic in the Havering PCT area.
5. Age groups are only available for chlamydia, gonorrhoea, primary and secondary syphilis, anogenital herpes and anogenital warts only.
6. STI testing data in GUM clinics is not collected by age group.

Source:
Health Protection Agency, KC60 returns

In addition to diagnoses made in GUM clinics, the national chlamydia screening programme (NCSP) has been running since 2003 in England. Information according to postcode of residence for those who have had a test and are positively diagnosed within the Havering PCT for 2006 is given in the following table.

| | Age group | Years |
|---|---|---|
| | 15 to 19 | 20 to 24 |
| Tests | 168 | 259 |
| Diagnoses | 16 | 30 |

Notes:
1. The data from the NCSP are for diagnoses made outside of GUM clinics and include diagnoses made by the Boots pathfinder project in London.
2. The data available from the NCSP are the number of tests and diagnoses made and not the number of patients tested and diagnosed.
3. The NCSP screens those aged under 25 years.
4. Data as of 15 November 2007

Skin Cancer

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will collate figures for five-year survival rates for skin cancer on a regional basis. [166504]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 27 November 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking Mr Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will collate figures for five-year survival rates for skin cancer on a regional basis. I am replying in her absence. (165504)

As noted in a response to a similar question you asked previously (Official Report volume 467, No. 10, column 921W, 21 November 2007) sub-national analyses of survival from specific cancers are only routinely undertaken for eight cancers, and do not include skin cancer. Further there are no plans to produce equivalent figures for other cancer sites. However, figures are available for skin cancer diagnosed during 1971-90 in England and Wales, broken down by region, and were provided in the earlier reply.

The sub-national analyses of survival for the eight cancers were produced in collaboration with the London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine (LSHTM). LSHTM were funded by National Centre for Health Outcomes Development (NCHOD)/Department of Health to produce analyses for these eight common cancers only. These figures were used by the National Heath Service as part of the Compendium of Clinical and Health Indicators.

Smoking: Young People

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of (a) 16 and (b) 17 year olds who smoked in each year since 1978, broken down by sex. [166452]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is not available in the format requested. However, latest data on the percentage of adults aged 16 to 19 who smoke in Great Britain, broken down by gender are available from the 2005 General Household Survey and are shown in the following table.

Reducing the number of young people who smoke is a Government priority, which is why the minimum age of sale was raised to 18 from 1 October. Sanctions against retailers who repeatedly flout the law on age of sale will also be introduced.

Tuberculosis

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of tuberculosis were diagnosed in each region of England in each year since 1997; and of these cases, what proportion in each region were of drug-resistant tuberculosis. [167875]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of cases of tuberculosis (TB) by strategic health authority (SHA) are shown in the following table, with data from 1998-2006.

The Enhanced Tuberculosis Surveillance system (ETS) started in 1999. Prior to this, National TB Surveys were carried out every five years and this provided data for 1998.

The following table shows the number of cases of TB that were tested for drug susceptibility, and the number and proportion of those cases that were resistant to one or more of the first-line drugs used to treat TB, by SHA, with data from 1998-2006.

The ETS started in 1999. Prior to this, National TB Surveys were carried out every five years and this provided data for 1998.

SCOTLAND

Remploy

9. Mr. Doran: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what his Department's procurement policy is in relation to Remploy factories in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [167465]

David Cairns: As one of the smallest Government Departments with a limited procurement budget, the Scotland Office does not currently procure goods or services from Remploy although we are currently reviewing our procurement policies. It is the case that this Government will contribute £555 million over the next five years as part of Remploy's restructuring programme. This will ensure the future of many Remploy factories, including that in my hon. Friend's constituency.

Public Expenditure

10. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what public expenditure per person is planned for Scotland in each of the next five years. [167466]

Des Browne: Spending plans for the next three years were included in the recently released comprehensive spending review providing Scotland with total departmental expenditure limits of £27.2 billion in 2008-09, £28.4 billion in 2009-10 and £29.7 billion in 2010-11.

Scotland also benefits from direct spend from Whitehall Departments in reserved areas, which accounts for just under half of all public spending in Scotland.

Devolution

11. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister of Scotland on further devolution of powers to Scotland. [167467]

Constitution

12. Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Justice on constitutional arrangements affecting Scotland. [167468]

Des Browne: I have regular discussions with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Justice whose Department is responsible for, among many other things, the overall management of the UK's constitutional arrangements and relationships including with the devolved Administrations.

Commonwealth Games: Glasgow

13. Mr. Davidson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what support the Government intend to provide for the holding of the Commonwealth games in Glasgow in 2014. [167470]

Mr. Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if his Department will bring forward proposals for the Government to assist with the holding of the Commonwealth games in Glasgow in 2014; and if he will make a statement. [167464]

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the Scottish Executive on the 2014 Glasgow Commonwealth games. [167469]

David Cairns: I wrote to the Scottish Ministers on 21 September offering our full support for the bid and officials in the Scotland Office are working closely with the Scottish Executive on a number of issues to ensure the successful preparation for the games. This will include secondary legislation to protect intellectual property rights.

Further details will be issued shortly before each of those commemorations.

The Department has no plans to mark other historical anniversaries at this time.

Churches: Finance

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport further to the Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR), what funds he expects to be available for churches of heritage value over the CSR period. [167171]

Margaret Hodge: Allocations under the Comprehensive Spending Review to those bodies with responsibilities that include the heritage of places of worship have been notified to those bodies.

The Churches Conservation Trust, which cares for redundant Church of England churches of heritage value, will receive £3.1 million per year in 2008-9 to 2010-11, an increase of £100,000 per year.

We announced on 18 October that English Heritage's funding will be £124.7 million in 2008-09, £126.7 million in 2009-10, and £130.7 million in 2010-11, which will allow them to maintain grants at current levels and progress specified initiatives as outlined in the 'inspired!' campaign on historic places of worship.

The listed places of worship grant scheme, which makes grants equivalent to the VAT incurred in making repairs to listed buildings in use for worship, will continue to operate until March 2011, unless a permanent reduced VAT rate for such repairs is agreed by the European Commission in the interim. Under this scheme, all eligible applications are met, and the funding made available will depend on the number of applications made.

Mr. Sutcliffe: In each of the last five years the Department for Culture, Media and Sport has spent the following on the renovation and refurbishment of its properties.

2006-07—£6.7 million (aggregate figure for work finalised in this year subject to account negotiation). These costs were in pursuance of the recommendations of the "Lyons Report" and allowed the Department, after a refurbishment and modernisation project, to rationalise the size of its estate. This enabled the Department to move most staff from existing outlying properties into the single building which had been refurbished. The Department has closed two outlying properties plus additional floors in its two other remaining properties. The properties and areas that are now relinquished have either been returned to their landlords, or are pending disposal.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many full-time equivalent staff are responsible for brand management and marketing in her Department and its agencies. [165229]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of full-time equivalent staff currently responsible for brand management and marketing to external audiences in the Department and its agencies is set out as follows:

| | Full-time equivalent staff |
|---|---|
| DfT Central | 22 |
| DSA | 7 |
| DVLA | 15.5 |
| GCDA | 1 |
| HA | 8 |
| MCA | 1.5 |
| VGA | 2.4 |
| VOSA | 0.2 |

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much her Department and its agencies spent on staff working on (a) marketing and (b) branding in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [167296]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The estimated annual cost of staff working on marketing and branding to external audiences in the Department and its agencies is set out as follows:

| | Staff cost (£000) |
|---|---|
| DfT Central | 1,080 |
| DSA | 233 |
| DVLA | 329 |
| GCDA | 52 |
| HA | 260 |
| MCA | 65 |
| VCA | 112 |
| VOSA | 6 |

It is not practicable to reliably distinguish staff effort on branding alone.

Heathrow Airport: Public Participation

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) environmental data and (b) model inputs were used in the consultation on Heathrow airport; and if she will place in the Library a copy of her Department's analysis of the consultation responses. [168357]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The consultation document "Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport", published on 22 November, is supported by a series of technical documents setting out in detail the underlying modelling, data and assumptions used. These documents are listed in Annex D to the main consultation document. All the documents are available on the Department for Transport's website: www.dft.gov.uk/heathrowconsultation. The consultation runs until 27 February 2008 and, in line with Government practice, a summary of consultation responses will be published. Copies will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Railway Stations: Security

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the Prime Minister's statement of 14 November 2007, Official Report, column 667, on national security, what plans her Department has to improve security at (a) overground and (b) London Underground railway stations. [168220]

Mr. Tom Harris [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Department for Transport already has in place a range of measures to protect our railway systems. Plans to improve on these measures are being worked through with the railway industry with the aim of ensuring a regime which is proportionate and effective while still allowing people to go about their day-to-day business.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's statement mentioned two specific projects which will build on the measures already in place to protect the rail and underground networks from terrorist attacks: passenger screening and physical protection against vehicle bomb attacks.

Passenger Screening

Last year, the Department for Transport undertook a number of trials at London Underground and National Rail stations, to test the effectiveness of passenger screening equipment and explosives sniffer dogs in an operational environment.

The Department is planning with the British Transport Police (BTP) and other stakeholders how we might increase and improve the screening of passengers and bags, in the light of the evidence from these trials and elsewhere. The aim of such passenger screening would be threefold: deterrence, detection and public reassurance.

We anticipate that this would involve the flexible deployment of dogs and/or portable screening equipment by BTP across the rail network, with a focus on the busiest stations, both overground and London Underground. The exact locations and timing of these deployments would be an operational decision for the British Transport Police.

Physical protection of stations

There are already security measures in place at major railway stations to control normal vehicle access, such as deliveries and staff parking.

Permanent physical vehicle restraints have been installed at the recently-refurbished St. Pancras International station, from which Eurostar now operates. There are agreements in place for similar measures at other key overground and London Underground stations that will be undergoing major redevelopments as part of 'designing in' security. For other significant stations, programmes of work are under active consideration.

Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what progress her Department is making on developing a sustainability labelling scheme for renewable transport fuels; [168674]

(2) what assessment she has made of the potential effect of biofuel production on deforestation; [168675]

(3) what assessment she has made of the potential effect of biofuel production on biodiversity; [168676]

(4) what assessment she has made of the effect of biofuel production on orang-utan habitats; [168677]

(5) what assessment she has made of the effect of biofuel production on food prices. [168678]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government have asked the Low Carbon Vehicle Partnership to carry out a feasibility study into a possible sustainability labelling scheme for biofuels. The work is under way and we will publish our findings as soon as possible.

The rapidly increasing global demand for palm oil and other agricultural commodities for use in the food and other sectors has a number of environmental and social consequences. The biofuel sector currently accounts for a very small fraction of total global demand for these products. Current high cereals prices are due to global factors, including two successive lower world wheat harvests, low global stocks and increased demand for cereals from the food, feed and fuels sectors. Growing global demand for biofuels can be expected to increase crop prices but also the supply of crops in the future.

The Government take very seriously the potential risks associated with unsustainable biofuel production, including deforestation, reduction of biodiversity and any more particular threats to endangered species. We have developed a comprehensive carbon and sustainability reporting mechanism as an integral part of the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO) which is due to come into effect in April 2008. This is designed to encourage transport fuel suppliers to ensure the sustainability of their biofuels. We are also pressing the European Commission to introduce a robust mandatory sustainability framework for biofuels as a part of its forthcoming Renewable Energy Directive. We have said that we will not support any higher targets for future biofuel use until we are satisfied that effective sustainability standards are in place.

From April 2008, we will ask the Renewable Fuels Agency to report on a quarterly basis on the sustainability impacts of the RTFO. This will allow us to monitor very closely any adverse impacts of biofuel production. The Government will monitor how markets are affected by growing biofuel demand and will tailor policies accordingly.

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what scientific (a) reports and (b) evidence she considered prior to introducing her proposal for a Renewable Transport Fuels Obligation. [168141]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Before announcing in November 2005 that it would introduce a Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO), the Government carried out extensive public consultation and a detailed feasibility study into the practicality, as well as the likely costs and benefits, of such a scheme. Copies of the study were placed in the House Libraries, and are available via the Department's website:

www.dft.gov.uk

As part of the feasibility study, the Government commissioned various reports from experts, including on whether and how greenhouse gas and broader environmental and social assurance schemes should be linked to an RTFO. The Government also took into account a wide range of scientific evidence on the costs and benefits of biofuels as part of the development of policy on the RTFO. This included Government-funded studies by Sheffield Hallam university and the Central Science Laboratory considering the lifecycle benefits and impacts of biofuels. Research published by the European Commission's Joint Research Centre in association with the European Council for Automotive Research and Development (EUCAR) and the Oil Companies' European Organisation for Environment, Health and Safety (CONCAWE)) on biofuels and other potential future transport fuels was also taken into account.

The Government will continue to take into account new scientific evidence on the impacts of biofuels as it becomes available, and will continue to tailor their biofuel policies accordingly.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research she has commissioned on the accident rates of left-hand and right-hand drive vehicles using UK roads; and whether her Department collects information categorising accidents by driver position. [168008]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department collects information on whether vehicles involved in reported personal injury road accidents in Great Britain are foreign registered and, if they are, whether they are left hand drive, right hand drive or two wheelers. This information has been collected since January 2005 and is published in table 53 of "Road Casualties Great Britain—2006 Annual Report". Copies of the report have been deposited in the Libraries of the House. This table can also be found on the Department's website at the following address:

http://www.dft.tov.uk/172974/173025/221412/221549/227755/285672/WebTables4153.xls

Information on the number of, or distance travelled by, foreign registered vehicles in Great Britain is not separately available and so a rate cannot be calculated.

Tolls

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people have worked in her Department on national road pricing in each of the last five years, broken down by grade. [164645]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 29 October 2007, Official Report, column 878W, (UIN 159129), which in turn referred to earlier answers provided on this subject.

DEFENCE

Aircraft Carriers: France

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much he expects the UK to receive from France's purchase of the Future Aircraft Carrier design; and what the schedule is for payment of this sum. [167368]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 26 November 2007]: Under the Memorandum of Understanding on Co-operation signed with France the UK has received £70 million from France in respect of the shared Future Aircraft carrier design. A final payment of £45 million is conditional on France's decision to manufacture a carrier based on the Common Baseline Design.

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many units of (a) married and (b) single accommodation are provided at each barracks in (i) the United Kingdom and (ii) Germany; and what percentage of that accommodation is (A) in use, (B) subject to repair and refurbishment and (C) empty. [168171]

Derek Twigg: The requested information is not held centrally and it will take time to determine what can be provided without incurring disproportionate cost. I will therefore write to my hon. Friend and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with colleagues to identify married quarter voids that can be released to alleviate homelessness. [168242]

Derek Twigg: In England and Wales most surplus Service Families Accommodation is returned to its owner, Annington Homes Ltd. Its alternative use is not therefore a matter for the Ministry of Defence (MOD). In Scotland, MOD officials maintain close contact with the Scottish Executive and other bodies on this issue. Some properties have been released to housing associations in the past.

Armed Forces: Mortgages

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will hold discussions with the Council of Mortgage Lenders on the treatment of mortgage applications submitted by armed forces personnel who are then posted overseas. [166902]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We have no plans to hold discussions with the Council of Mortgage Lenders on the treatment of mortgage applications submitted by armed forces personnel who are then posted overseas. There has been no indication of problems in this area but if the hon. Member wishes to give further detail I would be glad to consider it further.

Army: Absenteeism

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel from each regiment or unit were reported as absent without leave in each (a) month and (b) year since 1997. [166982]

Derek Twigg: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Defence Export Services Organisation

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 19 November 2007, Official Report, column 475W, on Defence Export Services Organisation, whether Lord Drayson's opinion was (a) sought and (b) given before the Prime Minister took the decision to transfer the Defence Export Services Organisation's responsibilities to UK Trade and Investment. [167777]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 26 November 2007]: It is not our practice to comment on exchanges of views between Ministers that take place in the normal course of formulating, and reaching decisions on, Government policy.

Departmental Buildings

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what funding has been (a) made available and (b) spent to make the buildings occupied by his Department fully accessible to disabled people. [166831]

Derek Twigg: Expenditure on Disability Discrimination Act-related improvements is contained within overall project costs. Thus, this Department does not identify separately either total funding or the amount spent in making alterations to buildings for these purposes.

Departmental ICT

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been allocated to the Atlas Consortium defence information infrastructure programme; how much is expected to have been spent on the programme by 31 March 2008; and whether he plans to extend the system to in-theatre forces in Afghanistan and Iraq. [167208]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As at 20 November 2007, the Ministry of Defence has an approved allocation of £4.068 billion for the fixed element of the Defence Information Infrastructure Future (DII(F)) programme and an approved allocation of £0.384 billion for the deployed element. This total allocation includes £3.372 billion (at current prices, including VAT) for the presently contracted elements of the programme between the MOD and the DII Delivery Partner, the ATLAS Consortium.

Currently, forecast expenditure to 31 March 2008 is £1.2 billion against the approved allocation.

We have already deployed an interim capability to Afghanistan. The first main deployable element of DII(F) now on contract will be available in 2009 to support our military forces wherever they are deployed, including Afghanistan and Iraq.

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which manufacturers' software is used in his Department. [167231]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information on manufacturers' software is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

HMS Illustrious

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost was of the last refit of HMS Illustrious. [167531]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The last refit for HMS Illustrious cost £118.6 million.

Influenza: Disease Control

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the guidelines on the use of defence assets in addressing a national crisis, such as an influenza pandemic. [164975]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The guidance for the use of defence assets during civil crises is detailed in the military aid section of the recovery guidance on the Cabinet Office Civil Contingencies Secretariat resilience website at:

http://www.ukresilience.info/response/recovery_guidance/generic_issues/military_aid.aspx which is available to all emergency planners.

In summary, the Civil Contingencies Act 2004 mandates that category 1 responders (emergency services) and category 2 responders (e.g. utility companies) must develop contingency plans for civil crises. Apart from the niche capabilities guaranteed by Defence, the guidance states that armed forces are not to be included in the contingency plans, as it is not possible to define in advance what assets can be provided by Defence. MOD is none the less working with the CCS to define what further Defence capabilities are most likely to be required in the event of a major national crisis.

Iraq: Hercules Aircraft

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which recommendations of the Board of Enquiry into the crash of the Hercules XV179 in Iraq in January 2005 have been implemented. [167636]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Recommendations a to f, h to j and l of the XV179 Board of Inquiry have been implemented with work ongoing to implement recommendation k. The recommendations made by the board may be reviewed at the following web address:

http://www.mod.uk/NR/rdonlyres/11CE3621-6E6E-4599-9156-FF1DBF76B596/0/boi_raf_hercules.pdf

Iraq: Military Aircraft

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether the four Army Britten Norman Defender Aircraft have been withdrawn from service in Iraq; [167748]

(2) who has been operating the four Army Britten Norman Defender aircraft while they have been on service in Iraq. [167749]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Army Britten Norman Defender Aircraft are operated by the Army Air Corps. They have not been withdrawn from service in Iraq.

Joint Strike Fighter Aircraft

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 13 November 2007, Official Report, columns 127-28W, on the Joint Strike Fighter Aircraft, what the in-service date is of each category. [166910]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my predecessor on 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 1854W. The System Development and Demonstration phase is due to be completed in late 2013 and the other elements are dependent on when the in-service date is set.

Military Aircraft: Procurement

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what cost limit applies to the purchase of the (a) Eurofighter Typhoon and (b) Joint Strike Fighter aircraft; and how many of each he plans to buy. [167362]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The estimated cost of the Eurofighter Typhoon programme is commercially sensitive information which is protected in order to maintain our negotiating position for future acquisitions on the Typhoon programme. The UK has undertaken, through international MOU arrangements, to procure 232 Typhoon aircraft in three tranches. So far, the UK has contracted for the delivery of two tranches, comprising 144 aircraft. Decisions on tranche 3 will be taken in due course, in conjunction with our partner nations, once we have analysed and considered the relevant information.

With regard to the cost of joint combat aircraft, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 29 October 2007, Official Report, column 974W, and 30 October 2007, Official Report, column 1356W, noting that the procurement cost given includes development and non-recurring costs.

Military Attaches

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment has been undertaken to assess the impact on UK defence sales of the reduction in the number of defence attaché assigned to UK embassies and overseas missions. [166844]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The role of defence attachés is principally to promote the Government's policies in the area of international security co-operation and to give support to current or potential UK operational commitments. Therefore, most defence attachés spend a small proportion of time dealing with defence exports. There are separate staff employed in UK embassies to promote defence exports, where it is necessary. We do not expect an adverse impact on defence sales arising from the redeployment of defence attachés.

Nuclear Weapons

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the function is of the Warhead Pre-Concept Working Group in the nuclear weapons programme; and what the projected cost is of work carried out by this Working Group over the next three years. [168880]

Des Browne: The Warhead Pre-Concept Working Group was set up to co-ordinate research in support of the detailed review described in paragraph 7-4 of the December 2006 White Paper: "The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent" (Cmd 6994). This review will examine the optimum life of the UK's existing nuclear warhead stockpile and assess the range of replacement options that might be available to help inform decisions likely to be necessary in the next Parliament.

The value of work being overseen by the WPCWG in 2007-08 amounts to some £10 million. Comparable levels of expenditure are projected for 2008-09 and 2009-10.

Opinion Leader Research

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many contracts were awarded by his Department to Opinion Leader Research in each year since 1997; and what was (a) the title and purpose, (b) the cost to the public purse and (c) the dates of (i) tender, (ii) award, (iii) operation and (iv) completion and report to the Department in each case. [165272]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Opinion Leader has carried out research for Supporting Britain's Reservists and Employers (SaBRE)—the MOD marketing and communications campaign that aims to gain and maintain the support of the employers of reservists. The research entitled "Opinion Leader Attitudes into Reserve Forces" was quantitative research to capture and track opinion leader attitudes and supportiveness towards volunteer reserves. It was carried out in four waves with summary findings provided to SaBRE on 22 December 2004, 11 July and 21 October 2005 and 2 June 2006. Turnaround for each wave from commission through to delivery was two months. The first wave cost was £1,800 with successive waves costing £1,900 each. These research contracts were awarded and paid for by the Central Office of Information (COI) on behalf of SaBRE. They were not tendered as COI rule it uneconomical to tender projects under £10,000.

Trident Missiles

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether Trident D5 missiles are equipped with permissive action links. [167914]

Des Browne: No. Robust arrangements are in place for the political control of the UK's strategic nuclear deterrent.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what mechanisms exist for the monitoring of UK aid to Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [167623]

Mr. Malik: In Afghanistan, the Joint Co-ordination and Monitoring Board is the overarching body responsible for monitoring political and development progress. It was established to monitor the implementation of the Afghanistan compact and provide a forum to provide direction on major policy issues or blockages (e.g. problems with co-ordination or financing). It meets four times a year and is attended by heads of mission and chaired by the UN special representative and the Afghan President's senior economic adviser.

In addition, various groups meet to co-ordinate international reconstruction and development work in Afghanistan:

Eight consultative groups (sector level) and 22 working groups (line ministry level) all comprising Afghan Government and international community representatives, co-ordinate and monitor the implementation of the compact, contribute to budget formulation, and monitor aid effectiveness with their sector.

The External Advisory Group meets every month and is a forum for donors to discuss progress on the Afghanistan national development strategy (ANDS). Chaired by DFID since August 2006, it is a tool for pushing the government on ANDS issues and preserving donor buy-in.

The Policy Action Group was set up by General Richards and President Karzai as a short term response to security difficulties in the south. It is chaired by the Minister of Education Hanif Atmar and UN assistance mission in Afghanistan (UNAMA). There are four pillars: security, information, reconstruction and development and international.

World bank-led donor meetings are meetings of donors only, with no Government representation, to discuss Afghanistan national development strategy issues. These meetings are usually focused on economic issues.

DFID, the FCO and the Multi-Departmental Post Conflict Reconstruction Unit use a series of internal reporting mechanisms for monitoring aid delivered to Afghanistan.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the office costs for his Department's special advisers for 2007-08 are expected to be, including costs of support staff; and how many full-time equivalent civil servants work in support of such special advisers. [164924]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: One civil servant currently supports the two special advisers in the Department for International Development (DFID); one additional civil servant is being recruited to support the special advisers from December 2007.

Individual civil servants' salary details are not disclosed, to protect the privacy of those concerned.

Papua New Guinea: International Assistance

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what development projects his Department has in Papua New Guinea; and what their budgets are for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [168142]

Mr. Malik: DFID currently funds two development projects in Papua New Guinea (PNG) through the Civil Society Challenge Fund (CSCF). These projects focus on: (i) improving the sexual and reproductive health and gender equity status of the population and; (ii) strengthening the capacity of communities to improve education and income-generation opportunities. DFID's budget for the CSCF for PNG in 2007-08 is £343,235 and £316,010 for 2008-09. DFID also provides assistance to PNG indirectly through its contribution to the European development fund, international financial institutions and the global funds.

Somalia: Asylum

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the number of people displaced from Mogadishu following the latest violence between insurgents and the allied Ethiopian and government troops; and whether any changes are planned to the UK's humanitarian assistance for Somalia. [167206]

Mr. Malik: The office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) estimates that 197,000 people have fled from Mogadishu since the start of October. The Department for International Development (DFID) continues to provide humanitarian assistance on the basis of need. DFID's regional humanitarian adviser has visited Somalia in the last month to assess the situation first hand, and we continue to keep an eye on the emerging situation. So far in 2007, the UK has provided £8.6 million in new commitments to humanitarian operations in Somalia.

Somalia: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether it is Government policy to support additional security options, including the deployment of a robust multinational force or coalition of the willing in Somalia, as suggested in the UN Secretary General's recent report (S/2007/658). [165988]

Mr. Thomas: The Government supports African Union and United Nations efforts to promote peace and security in Somalia. We have contributed financially to the current AU Mission in Somalia (AMISOM), most recently to facilitate the deployment of Burundian troops. We believe that AMISOM should be succeeded by an effective UN mission, provided that the conditions on the ground are right. UN Security Council Resolution 1772 requests that planning for a UN mission takes place and that the international community work to identify actions to create the conditions that would enable deployment to take place.

Sudan

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent estimate he has made of the (a) annual income per household, (b) global acute malnutrition rate, (c) literacy rate and (d) life expectancy in each state in Sudan. [167004]

Mr. Malik: As there has not been a household budget survey in Sudan since 1978, there are no up to date estimates of annual income per household. However, gross national product (GNP) per capita in 2006 was estimated to equal US$ 970. Given that the average household consists of six people, GNP per household can be estimated to be around US$ 5800.

Global acute malnutrition rates in Sudan vary significantly by region, year and season and it is not easy to give an average rate for the whole country. Due to conflict and poor harvests, some areas of Sudan have global acute malnutrition rates well above the emergency threshold of 15 per cent. during the hungry season with, for example, parts of Darfur having rates among children under five of 30-40 per cent. Using an alternative measure of malnutrition, the 2006 household health survey revealed that 31 per cent. of all children under five in Sudan were moderately underweight, while 9.4 per cent. were severely underweight.

In 2000, which is the latest year available, the literacy rate in Sudan was 61 per cent. For the whole of Sudan, average life expectancy at birth was 57 years in 2005. Figures per state are not available.

Sudan: Infant Mortality

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent estimate he has made of the (a) neonatal, (b) post-natal and (c) infant mortality rates in each state in Sudan. [167075]

Mr. Malik: The following table provides information on neonatal, infant and under-five mortality rates in all the states of Sudan in 2006. Child mortality rates tend to be highest in the Three Area region (specifically South Kordofan and blue Nile) and Southern states, reflecting the poor coverage of maternal and other health care services in these states. Despite the conflict in Darfur, child mortality rates in Darfur states tend to be below the average in Sudan, although this is not the case for West Darfur. This is due to the extensive provision of healthcare services by humanitarian agencies. Post neo-natal and infant mortality rates are also higher for females than males.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Emergency Workers (Obstruction) Act 2006: Prosecutions

James Brokenshire: To ask the Solicitor-General how many people have been charged with offences under the Emergency Workers (Obstruction) Act 2006. [167552]

The Solicitor-General: The records held by the CPS provide no information on the number of defendants charged or prosecuted for specific offences. However, the CPS does identify by act and section the number of offences which reached a first hearing in the magistrates courts.

These records show that, as of November 2007, two offences under sections 2 and 4 of the Emergency Workers (Obstruction) Act 2006 had reached a first hearing; one was prosecuted by CPS West Mercia and the other by CPS Gloucestershire.

National Fraud Reporting Centre

James Brokenshire: To ask the Solicitor-General (1) when she expects the proposed national fraud reporting centre to become operational; [167110]

(2) what the (a) establishment and (b) annual running costs of the proposed national fraud reporting centre are expected to be. [167111]

The Solicitor-General: The comprehensive spending review announced new investment of over £28 million from HM Government for 2008 to 2011 in the UK's fight against fraud. Part of this new investment has been earmarked for the establishment of the national fraud reporting centre, which is expected to become operational early in 2009.

Establishment and running costs remain confidential at present under the terms of HM Treasury's settlement letter and due to the commercially sensitive nature of the detailed development work that is now under way towards making the national fraud reporting centre a reality.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children in Care

Ann Coffey: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many children from each local authority area were looked after by another local authority in (a) local authority children's homes, (b) private children's homes, (c) foster care, (d) hostels and (e) under other arrangements; [166237]

(2) how many children aged (a) 0 to five years, (b) six to 10 years and (c) 11 to 16 years old from each local authority area were looked after outside their local authority area in (i) local authority children's homes, (ii) private children's homes, (iii) foster care, (iv) hostels and (v) under other arrangements in each of the last five years. [166238]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 20 November 2007]: The information is not readily available. I will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested and will place a copy of my response in the Library.

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his latest estimate is of expenditure by his Department and its predecessor on all forms of consultancy for each (a) year and (b) quarter from 31 March 1997; and if he will make a statement. [163552]

Kevin Brennan: Historical figures are not available for DCSF and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Figures for the Department for Education and Skills show that it spent the following sums from administration costs on consultancy from 1997:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 1997-98 | 3.9 |
| 1998-99 | 5.0 |
| 1999-2000 | 3.7 |
| 2000-01 | 4.3 |
| 2001-02 | 5.0 |
| 2002-03 | 4.0 |
| 2003-04 | 4.7 |
| 2004-05 | 3.9 |
| 2005-06 | 3.5 |
| 2006-07 | 4.1 |

The costs of consultancy charged to programmes budgets before November 2004 were not recorded centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The total cost of consultancy charged to programmes from November to March 2004-05 was £4.4 million and for the whole of 2005-06 was £18 million. A further £9.5 million in November to March 2004-05 and £8 million in 2005-06 was spent on other external expert advisers on education and children's matters to assist with policy implementation and delivery. The total cost of consultancy charged to programmes for 2006-07 was £41 million with a further £14 million spent on other external expert advisers.

Quarterly information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Official Hospitality

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what entertainment or hospitality members of his Department's management board have received in each of the last three financial years; and if he will make a statement. [164747]

Kevin Brennan: Paragraph 4.3.5 of the Civil Service Management Code sets out the rules on the registration of hospitality. The Government are committed to publishing an annual list of hospitality received by members of departmental boards. The first list for 2007 will be published as soon as it is ready after the end of the current calendar year.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on what dates his Department breached its (a) resource, (b) near cash, (c) administration and (d) capital budgets; what the value of each breach was; and what the reason was for each breach. [164514]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 20 November 2007, Official Report, column 794W, to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws).

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Fallow Initiative

Mr. Doran: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many fallow fields there are in the United Kingdom sector of the North Sea and Atlantic Ocean in which there has been no development over the last 10 years; and which company currently holds the licence to develop in each case. [167866]

Malcolm Wicks: There are 258 discovered fields undeveloped for 10 years or more. Of these:

25 are unlicensed and will be offered in the next licensing round;

84 have been awarded in recent licensing rounds since 2002, of which 58 are on traditional licences, and 26 are on promote licences (where there is no formal operator);

8 have development plans pending approval;

26 have seen seismic activity or appraisal drilling within the past three years;

59 are the subject of significant activity such as seismic reprocessing;

13 currently have technical obstacles to overcome, such as lack of capacity or lack of infrastructure, which are being addressed;

43 have no activity planned and are due to be surrendered for re-licensing within two years if no plan for development is presented. aforementioned

The following table covers all of the aforementioned discoveries and shows operators where applicable.

HM Revenue and Customs: Legal Profession

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which (a) lawyers and (b) legal firms have been given work by HM Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office since 1 January 2005; and what the cost was of such contracts, broken down by (i) lawyer and (ii) firm. [164498]

The Solicitor-General: I have been asked to reply.

The Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office employed 1,738 counsel from the Attorney-General's approved list between 1 January 2005 and 30 September 2007 at a total cost of £32.0 million.

In the same period the Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office also employed the services of 23 legal firms at a total cost of £446,000.

A schedule of total payments to each individual and firm has been placed in the Library.

Post Offices: Closures

Michael Jabez Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the net savings to Post Office Ltd of the closure of (a) the St. Leonards Green Post Office, (b) the White Rock Post Office in St. Leonards, (c) the Hastings Old Town Post Office and (d) the Tilling Green Post Office in Rye. [168450]

Mr. McFadden: The development of proposals for specific post office closures is a matter for Post Office Ltd. with input from Postwatch, local authorities and subpostmasters. The consultation period for the Sussex area plan covering Hastings and Rye constituency closes on 24 December. Final decisions on which post offices will close will be taken by Post Office Ltd. in light of the responses received to the area consultations.

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to ensure that the remaining post offices can accommodate greater numbers of customers as part of the Post Office closure programme. [168522]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, Managing Director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps the Government are taking to ensure the Post Office takes into account local factors such as public transport access before closing a post office. [168530]

Mr. McFadden: In formulating its area plans, Post Office Ltd. is required to consider the availability of public transport and alternative access to key post office services, local demographics and the impact on the local economy.

Postal Services

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to his oral answer of 22 November 2007, Official Report, column 1328, on postal services, what precedents there are for consultations to be suspended in advance of local elections. [168702]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 27 November 2007]: Cabinet Office guidelines clearly state that consultations, and decisions relating to them, should not be launched in an election period. Successive Administrations of both parties have observed these arrangements for many years.

Trade Unions: Finance

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether trades union members who opt out of the union's political fund are charged the cost of the political fund contribution when they pay their union subscription. [164221]

Mr. McFadden: Where trade union members opt out of contributing to their union's political fund, the union must ensure they do not make payments into the political fund via a separate political levy or via other subscription payments to the union. It is also unlawful for a union to penalise individuals who opt out by excluding them from any benefit, or by directly or indirectly placing them at a disability or disadvantage (except in relation to the control or management of the political fund).

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) genetically modified animals and (b) animals with a harmful genetic defect were used in regulated procedures conducted in Scotland under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 in 2006. [167726]

Meg Hillier: Comprehensive statistics of scientific procedures on living animals in Great Britain carried out under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 are published annually. Copies of the publication for 2006 (Cm 7153) can be found in the House Library.

The data are not collected, stored or presented in a way enabling them to be easily broken down between England, Wales and Scotland as the 1986 Act is administered by the Home Office for the whole of Great Britain (it is administered separately in Northern Ireland). However, a special exercise has been undertaken to extract the information requested in relation to Scotland.

During 2006 there were 127,253 genetically modified animals and 11,643 animals with a harmful genetic defect used in regulated procedures conducted in Scotland under the 1986 Act.

Animal Experiments: Primates

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if she will publish the records of discussions within her Department which took place on the grant of a project licence to Professor Tipu Aziz permitting him to conduct scientific procedures on the primate Felix; [165387]

(2) whether the Animal Procedures Committee in granting a licence for experiments on Felix the primate took into account the extent to which those experiments had been (a) documented in scientific literature and (b) previously conducted on (i) non human primates and (ii) human patients. [165388]

Meg Hillier: I have no plans to disclose the records of discussions relating to applications for project licences under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986. Any such records may include information provided in confidence the disclosure of which, other than in the discharge of functions under the Act, is prohibited by section 24 of the same Act.

Under section 20(2) of the 1986 Act, when considering any matter, the Animal Procedures Committee must have regard to the legitimate requirements of science and industry and to the protection of animals against avoidable suffering and unnecessary use in scientific procedures. I am confident that the Committee's advice on individual project licence applications takes full account of all relevant factors in line with this requirement.

Police

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average (a) length of service and (b) retirement age was for police constables in each of the last 10 years. [168641]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is as follows:

(a) The information requested cannot be calculated from the centrally collected data within the police personnel statistics series.

(b) Retirement age cannot be separately identified from the available data. The available data are the age on leaving the service within the following time bands only: 25 and under, 26 to 40, 41 to 55 and over 55.

Police Custody: Wales

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the average occupancy rate was of police custody suites in (a) Wales, (b) Dyfed-Powys police area and (c) Pembrokeshire in (i) 2006 and (ii) since 1 January 2007; [166249]

(2) what the capacity is of police custody units in (a) Wales, (b) Dyfed-Powys police area and (c) Pembrokeshire. [166250]

Mr. McNulty: The provision and operation of, and collation of information in respect of, police custody accommodation are matters for chief constables and police authorities.

Police Patrolling

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the average proportion of a police officer's day spent on patrol in each of the last 10 years. [165675]

Mr. McNulty: Data on time spent on patrol only offers a partial indication of policing activity. Information on time spent on front-line duties by police officers has only been collected since 2003-04. Year by year information is set out in the following table.

Time spent on patrol 2004 to 2007

| | Percentage time spent on front-line duties |
|---|---|
| 2003-04 | 62.1 |
| 2004-05 | 62.6 |
| 2005-06 | 63.1 |
| 2006-07 | 64.2 |

Police: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers are employed in West Chelmsford constituency; and what proportion of their time is spent on street patrols. [166242]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 26 November 2007]: Figures collected by the Home Office show numbers of officers deployed to each Basic Command Unit (BCU) in Essex. The closest BCU to the West Chelmsford constituency is Essex Central. The figures show that on 31 March 2007, the latest published period, there were 506 officers in Essex Central BCU. This figure excludes police community support officers and police staff, and also excludes officers and staff in Central Services, which covers the police HQ in Chelmsford.

The Home Office estimates time spent on patrol, but these figures are not collected or estimated below police force area level.

Police: Injuries

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of police officers were off work for longer than a week as a result of injuries sustained while on duty in each police force in England in the most recent year for which figures are available. [169214]

Mr. McNulty: The available data are for long-term absences due to an assault which occurred within the realms of duty. Long-term absences are those which have lasted for more than 28 calendar days, and assaults include those incidents where there was no injury to the officer. The data are collected "as at" a particular date rather than throughout the course of the year, therefore the data provided are for the number of officers on sick absence as at 31 March 2007.

Police: Resignations

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of police officers in each police force area left the police force within two years of joining in each of the last 10 years. [168640]

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police recruits left the police force within two years of joining since 1997, broken down by police force area; and what percentage of leavers that figure represents. [165671]

Mr. McNulty: Data are available from 2002-03 onwards and are given in the following tables. The number of transfers between forces has been separately identified as these officers, while leaving individual police forces, have not left the police service itself.

JUSTICE

Antisocial Behaviour: Fixed Penalties

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many penalty notices for disorder were issued in the first six months of 2007, broken down by (a) police force area and (b) offences committed; and how many such penalty notices for disorder were (i) paid in full within the 21 day suspended enforcement period, (ii) paid in full outside the 21 day suspended enforcement period, (iii) registered as fines, (iv) contested in court and (v) cancelled. [167981]

Maria Eagle: Finalised data for the whole of 2006 covering the breakdowns requested will be available shortly. I will send the hon. Member a copy when it is available.

Data for 2007 will be available in 2008.

Chemical and Insulating Company Ltd

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Government plans to take in response to the judgment of the House of Lords in Rothwell v. Chemical and Insulating Company Ltd; and if he will make a statement. [168784]

Bridget Prentice: I refer the right hon. Member to my reply on both 13 November 2007, Official Report, column 141W, and 29 October 2007, Official Report, column 798W.

Closed Circuit Television

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidelines there are on minimum pixel density of closed circuit television material used in courts. [168614]

Maria Eagle: There are no guidelines on the minimum pixel density of closed circuit television (CCTV) used in courts. CCTV is used to cover both internal and external areas of courts; the coverage provided varies according to the work of the court and its status. Coverage has evolved over time with a variety of systems and types of cameras being used.

Guidance to courts on the use of CCTV has been revised and the new version will be issued shortly and stresses the need for any system to deliver recognition (of persons and objects) and notes that developments in technology may bring changes in the types of equipment used.

Advice on the use of CCTV is part of the policy document, Safe and Secure, which sets out guidance and practice on security issues for HMCS; this is revised annually and, as a Restricted document, is not available to the general public.

Courts: Interpreters

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much the Courts Service spent on translation and interpretation services in Cambridgeshire in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [168949]

Maria Eagle: The information requested is not collected centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost through the manual searching of individual court files. Her Majesty's Courts Service is giving consideration to the routine collection of data relating to interpreting and translation services used in court.

Courts: Salisbury

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the latest estimate is of the cost of the new courts centre in Salisbury. [169290]

Maria Eagle: The new court centre in Salisbury is being procured via a private developer scheme whereby Her Majesty's Court Service will be taking on a lease for 30 years at an agreed rent which is in line with the market rate for this area of England. The construction value, as published in the OJEU award notice, was estimated at £14,236,706 excl VAT.

Custodial Treatment: Methamphetamine

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have been prosecuted for (a) possession of the drug crystal meth and (b) possession with intent to supply that drug in each of the last six months; how many have been convicted; and how many received a custodial sentence. [166167]

Maria Eagle: Information on the number of persons given prosecutions, convictions and custodial sentences received for possession or possession with intent to supply amphetamines or class B drugs in England and Wales for 2005, the latest year for which data are available, can be viewed in the following table.

Prior to its reclassification to a class A drug on 18 January 2007, Methylamphetamine ("crystal meth") was a class B drug under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971.

Data for 2007 will be available in the autumn of 2008.

The number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts, found guilty and sentenced at all courts for immediate custody for offences under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 Sec 5(2) as amended by Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994, Sec 157, Sch 8, Part II. and Sec 5(3), in England and Wales for the year 2005[1, 2, 3]

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[3] Prior to 18 January 2007 the possession of and/or with intent to supply Methylamphetamine was not a separate offence It was also reclassed from a class B to class A drug on 18 January 2007. Due to reclassification the table shows both amphetamine and class B data as methylamphetamine may have been recorded under one of those offences prior to reclassification The following are new acts and offence descriptions for Methylamphetamine offences:
The Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 S.4 (3)
Supplying or offering to supply a controlled drug (or being concerned in) (Class 'A' Drug) Methylamphetamine (Crystal Meths)
The Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 S.5(2)
Having possession of a class A Drug (Class 'A' Drug) Methylamphetamine (Crystal Meths)

Custodial Treatment: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many persons were (a) convicted of an offence of carrying a bladed article and (b) received a custodial sentence for such a crime in England and Wales in each of the last six months. [166078]

Maria Eagle: Information on the number of persons found guilty and sentenced to immediate custody at all courts for carrying a bladed article in England and Wales for 2005 are shown in the following table.

Data for 2006 will be available shortly.

The number of persons found guilty and sentenced to immediate custody at all courts for the offences under the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 S.1, and the Criminal Justice Act 1988 S.139, S.139(A) and 139(2) as amended by Offensive Weapons Act 1996 S.4(1), in England and Wales for 2005[1, 2, 3]

| | | 2005 | |
|---|---|---|---|

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Departmental Alcoholic Drinks

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will take steps to ensure that English wine is served exclusively or at the request of guests at meals, parties and receptions hosted by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [164290]

Maria Eagle: Catering services to meet my Department's requirements are contracted out and provided by commercial suppliers.

Where opportunities arise, my Department is committed to increasing the scope for small and medium-sized enterprises by encouraging our larger suppliers to increase their use of local suppliers within their supply chain.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of (a) beef, (b) lamb, (c) pork and (d) dairy products used in his departmental headquarters were imported products in the most recent period for which figures are available. [166649]

Maria Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the report published by the Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) on 8 November 2007 that gives the proportion of UK produce supplied to Government Departments, NHS and HM Prison Service.

Copies of the report are available on the DEFRA website at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/farm/policy/sustain/procurement/index.htm

and have been deposited in the House of Commons library.

Departmental Data Protection

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many officials are employed by the Information Commissioner in investigating potential breaches of the Data Protection Act. [167982]

Mr. Wills: 54 staff work in the ICO's case reception and casework and advice departments. These staff make assessments of compliance under section 42 of the Act.

A further 22 staff are employed in the regulatory action division. This Department uses powers including criminal prosecution, non-criminal enforcement and audit to investigate non-compliance under the Act.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [168103]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry has an obligation under the Civil Service Commissioners Recruitment Code to ensure its recruitment processes are operating under open and fair principles. The MOJ only employs applicants who have the right to work in the UK, and an individual's nationality is verified before an offer of employment is made. Civil Service rules enable EEA nationals and certain non-EEA family members to be employed as Civil Servants. The Ministry of Justice does not hold central data in respect of the number of EU foreign nationals employed and they could be collected only at disproportionate costs.

There is also a provision that, in exceptional circumstances, foreign nationals, other than EEA nationals and certain non-EEA family members, may be employed by means of an aliens' certificate under the Aliens' Employment Act 1955. This Act empowers the employing Department's Minister, with the approval of the Minister for the Civil Service, to issue a certificate of employment in certain circumstances. Information on the number of staff employed under the Alien's Employment Act 1955 is collected. The Prison Service currently employs one person under the Act and approved by the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State, Ministry of Justice, with the consent of the Minister for the Civil Service.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether any of his Department's special advisers have declared a conflict of interest; and if he will make a statement. [164159]

Maria Eagle: Special advisers are appointed under terms and conditions set out in the model contract for special advisers. Copies of the model contract are available in the Libraries of the House. Neither of the Ministry of Justice's special advisers have declared any conflicts of interest to the Ministry since their appointment but they are aware of the need to declare any future conflicts that may arise in the course of their work.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the office costs for his Department's special advisers for 2007-08 are expected to be, including costs of support staff; and how many full-time equivalent civil servants work in support of such special advisers. [164931]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice employs two special advisers. Details of their remuneration were published on 22 November 2007, Official Report, columns 148-50WS. They are supported by two full-time equivalent support staff. Given this small number of staff, providing cost information could identify an individual's salary, which is confidential between the individual and the employer. Office costs will be accounted for in the 2007-08 departmental annual report and accounts.

Departmental Pay

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people in his Department and its predecessors earned over £100,000 in each year since 1997. [167196]

Maria Eagle: All those employees earning base salaries of more than £100,000 per year are members of the senior civil service. The senior civil service reward framework is designed by Cabinet Office and common to all departments. The pay of all members of the MOJ SCS is within the SCS pay ranges set by Cabinet Office.

Information relating to employees of the magistrates' courts committees prior to the creation of Her Majesty's Court Service in 2005 is not available, therefore the information provided relates to 2004-05 onwards.

| | Number earning £100,000 or more |
|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 21 |
| 2005-06 | 20 |
| 2006-07 | 20 |

Departmental Secondment

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many secondments of staff were made (a) to and (b) from his Department in each year since 1997; which organisations staff were seconded (i) to and (ii) from; how many staff were seconded in each year; for how long each secondment lasted; and what the cost was of each secondment in each year. [167242]

Maria Eagle: There is currently no requirement for Departments to hold details of secondment information centrally; information on secondments out of the Department or the destination and cost of the secondments is not held on the Ministry of Justice's internal HR system and can be provided only at a disproportionate cost. However information on secondees into the Department and those who entered the Department on loan from other Government Departments is recorded on the Ministry of Justice's internal HR Oracle system and is detailed in the following table.

Inwards secondments (headcount) MOJ (former DCA including only DCA HQ, HMCS, tribunals, OPG, Scotland and Wales Office)

| | Secondment headcount | Loan headcount |
|---|---|---|
| 1 April 1997 to 31 March 1998 | 0 | 4 |
| 1 April 1998 to 31 March 1999 | 0 | 26 |
| 1 April 1999 to 31 March 2000 | 6 | 18 |
| 1 April 2000 to 31 March 2001 | 0 | 7 |
| 1 April 2001 to 31 March 2002 | 1 | 18 |
| 1 April 2002 to 31 March 2003 | 1 | 13 |
| 1 April 2003 to 31 March 2004 | 0 | 17 |
| 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2005 | 1 | 26 |
| 1 October 2005 to 30 September 2006 | 0 | 6 |
| 1 October 2006 to 30 September 2007 | 0 | 12 |

Health Insurance

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many officials in (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies have private health insurance provided as part of their employment package. [167928]

Maria Eagle: My Department and its agencies do not have private health insurance provided as part of their employment package. 74 officials employed in Her Majesty's Courts Service, one of the Ministry's Executive Agencies, do however retain an entitlement to private health insurance following the unification of the former DCA with the Magistrates' Courts Service on 1 April 2005, and the transfer of former Magistrates' Courts Committee (MCC) employees to the Department on TUPE terms. Of these, 53 officials currently retain an entitlement to private health insurance provided by AXA-PPP Healthcare, six retain an entitlement to annual health screening provided by Nuffield Proactive Health and 15 retain an entitlement to paid membership of a healthcare cash plan provided by Westfield Health. All these schemes were closed to new members on 1 April 2005.

The Ministry has recently offered new terms and conditions to former DCA staff, including former MCC employees. Some legacy allowances that were not part of the new deal, including private health insurance entitlements, will be reviewed with the trade unions through the collective bargaining framework by the end of the current financial year. Any changes will be applied to all affected staff.

Housing: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of homes in the Peterborough city council area according to Land Registry data were worth (a) £400,000 or more, (b) £500,000 or more, (c) £600,000 or more, (d) £800,000 or more and (e) £1,000,000 or more in each year since 1997. [168766]

Mr. Wills: Land Registry is able to provide information on the number of properties sold for which prices of £400,000 or more, £500,000 or more, £600,000 or more, £800,000 or more and £1,000,000 or more have been paid. As these figures are extracted using price paid data, no information is available for any properties which have not been sold. This question has been answered on the basis of recorded sales figures in Peterborough within the requested price sectors. These sector-specific sales figures have then been calculated as a percentage of total annual sales in Peterborough from 1997 to 2006.

The figures are reflected in the following table.

Land Registry price reports for Peterborough 1997 to 2006

| | Total sales | Sales £400,000 to £500,000 and percentage of total | Sales £500,000 to £600,000 and percentage of total | Sales £600,000 to £800,000 and percentage of total | Sales £800,000 to £1 million and percentage of total | Sales £1 million plus and percentage of total |

National Security

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the Statement of the Prime Minister of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-72, on national security, when he expects the specialist unit in the Prisons Service tasked with preventing extremists using prison networks to plot future activities announced by the Prime Minister to be set up; what he expects its costs to be; and how he plans to measure the effectiveness of the unit. [168452]

Maria Eagle: HM Prison Service's Extremism Unit was established in March 2007, and is co-ordinating a programme of work to address the risks posed by extremists in prison. The programme includes awareness raising and training for staff, support for Muslim Chaplains, collection and analysis of information, and strategy and policy development. The Unit's costs for the current financial year are expected to be in the order of £350,000. The programme of work co-ordinated by the unit is linked to the CONTEST strategy and is reviewed by Ministers on a regular basis.

Police Custody: Wales

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) on how many days police custody suites in (a) Wales, (b) Dyfed-Powys police area and (c) Pembrokeshire have been used to accommodate prisoners in 2007; [166247]

(2) how many prisoners have been accommodated in police custody suites in (a) Wales, (b) Dyfed-Powys police area and (c) Pembrokeshire in 2007; [166248]

(3) how many cells in police custody units in (a) Wales, (b) Dyfed-Powys police area and (c) Pembrokeshire are reserved for prisoners. [166246][1]

Mr. Hanson: The number of places provided by police forces for Operation Safeguard use may vary according to operational pressures. On 16 November 2007 there were 38 places available for Operation Safeguard use in Wales. No places were available in Dyfed Powys police force area or in Pembrokeshire.

The following table shows the number of nights between 22 January and 20 November 2007 that police cells were used in Wales, by Dyfed Powys police force and in Pembrokeshire for Operation Safeguard, and the number of occasions prisoners were held; one occasion means one prisoner night in a police cell.

| | Nights | Occasions |
|---|---|---|
| Wales | 231 | 4,182 |
| Dyfed Powys | 125 | 615 |
| Pembrokeshire | 80 | 332 |

Prison Places

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 16 April 2007 to the hon. Member for Sunderland South, Official Report, column 480W, on prison places, what the average capital cost was of providing each place in the prisons built in each year since 1997, including all land acquisition, construction, legal and conveyancing costs and other associated costs. [168494]

Mr. Hanson: All prisons constructed since 1997 and run by the private sector have been procured under PFI. The following table provides the net present value figure at the time of the contact award. This figure includes construction, legal, conveyancing and other costs associated with the contract. Land acquisition costs paid by the authority are deemed commercial in confidence and therefore are not able to be disclosed.

| Prison | Contract award | Price NPV (£ million)[1] |
|---|---|---|
| Ashfield | 1 July 1998 | 121 |
| Forest Bank | 6 July 1998 | 197 |
| Dovegate | 27 September 1999 | 240 |
| Rye Hill | 23 July 1999 | 154 |
| Bronzefield | 20 December 2002 | 219 |
| Peterborough | 14 February 2003 | 291 |

Prison Service: Pay

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many area managers in HM Prison Service received bonuses at the end of the 2005-06 financial year; and if he will make a statement. [168183]

Maria Eagle: Records on the personnel corporate database indicate that no special bonuses were awarded to area managers in HM Prison Service at the end of the 2005-06 financial year. However, performance bonuses form part of normal pay arrangements for all senior civil servants and area managers can receive bonuses as part of these arrangements.

1. [Official Report, 20 February 2008, Vol. 472, c. 7MC.]

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the previous area manager for London received a bonus on retirement from HM Prison Service; and if he will make a statement. [168184]

Maria Eagle: Records on the personnel corporate database indicate that the previous area manager for London did not receive a bonus on his retirement.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many members of the HM Prison Service management board received bonuses at the end of the (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07 financial year; and if he will make a statement. [168185]

Maria Eagle: Records on the Personnel Corporate Database indicate that the following special bonuses were awarded to the HM Prison Service management board:

(a) 2005-06: one bonus awarded

(b) 2006-07: Nil.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many area managers in HM Prison Service received a bonus at the end of the 2006-07 financial year; and if he will make a statement. [168186]

Maria Eagle: Records on the personnel corporate database indicate that no bonuses were awarded to area managers in HM Prison Service at the end of the 2006-07 financial year. However, performance bonuses form part of normal pay arrangements for all Senior Civil Servants and Area Managers can receive bonuses as part of these arrangements.

Prison Service: Unfair Dismissal

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to his answer of 17 May 2007, Official Report, column 875W, on prison service: unfair dismissal, for what reason this information is not collected in this form by the Treasury Solicitor; and if he will make a statement. [168542]

The Solicitor-General: I have been asked to reply.

Compensation and associated legal costs are met by the client department out of its appropriation, not by the Treasury Solicitor. There has thus been no operational reason coming from within his own Department for the Treasury Solicitor to collate and monitor these payments. As there has been no call from client departments to produce figures, the Treasury Solicitor has not been able to justify the commitment of public funds to that end. For this reason, the figures requested are not held by the Treasury Solicitor's Department in the form requested and to attempt to gather them now could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Prisoners: Police Cells

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much the Prison Service has paid Suffolk police authority for use of its police cells in each of the last five years. [167906]

Mr. Hanson: Police forces involved in Operation Safeguard charge NOMS in arrears for the cost of making police cells available to accommodate prisoners.

To date in 2007 NOMS has paid Suffolk police force £366,964 for Operation Safeguard usage in 2006 and 2007.

Prisoners are also sometimes held in police cells as "lockouts". A lockout is an emergency measure used to hold prisoners overnight and is only used, for example, when the designated prison's reception will be closed before their arrival time.

£1,847 was paid to Suffolk police in 2006-07 for lockout usage and £1,155 has been paid to date in 2007-08. Information on the amount paid in the three years previous to 2006-07 is not available. As police forces submit invoices in arrears, payments do not necessarily relate to the years in which the lockouts took place.

Prisoners: Special Educational Needs

Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people with learning disabilities were detained in UK (a) prisons and (b) youth offender institutions in the latest period for which figures are available. [168930]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

In 1997, the Office for National Statistics undertook a survey of mental ill health in the prison population of England and Wales. This found that a higher proportion of prisoners had lower intellectual functioning scores than would be expected in the general population.

Further information is available in the report of this survey: "Psychiatric Morbidity Amongst Prisoners in England and Wales" (1998), a copy of which is available in the Library.

Prisoners: Transport

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the total cost was of transporting (a) prisoners on remand to court and (b) sentenced prisoners from court to prison in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [168500]

Mr. Hanson: This information is not available before the start of the current contracts for the escort of prisoners to and from courts in August 2004. There is no requirement for contractors to separate the costs of escorting remand and sentenced prisoners. This information is not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost, as it would involve analysing the individual records of all prisoner movements.

Prisoners: Video Games

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what procedures apply to access by prisoners to computer (a) games and (b) consoles (i) individually and (ii) communally. [168200]

Mr. Hanson: Computer games and consoles for prisoners are used as part of the Incentives and Earned Privileges scheme, in recognition of good behaviour. All games and consoles must be approved by the prison. Prisoners are not permitted access to games with extreme violent, racist or sexually inappropriate themes or to consoles which can connect to the internet.

Prisons

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice for how many of the additional 1,500 prison places announced on 19th June 2007 funding has been secured; and where these funded places will be. [168498]

Mr. Hanson: Funding has been confirmed for the first 500 of the additional 1,500 places announced in June this year. These places will be provided in existing adult male prisons. The current locations are:

Erlestoke, Wiltshire
Ranby, Nottinghamshire
Blundeston, Suffolk
Kirklevington Grange, Cleveland
Isle of Wight
Wymott, Lancashire
Ashwell, Rutland
Highpoint, Suffolk

Decisions on the remaining 1,000 places will be made after Lord Carter has completed his review on the supply and demand of prison places.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what research he has commissioned into the effectiveness of mandatory drug testing of all prisoners upon entry to custody; and what his policy is on the compatibility of such testing with human rights legislation. [168496]

Maria Eagle: Research on the overall impact and effectiveness of mandatory drug testing (MDT) in prisons has been carried out by the Office for National Statistics and Institute of Psychiatry (2005). There are two types of MDT—random and targeted (on reception, frequent programme, risk assessment and suspicion). The research concluded that random MDT provides a good measure of drug misuse in prisons over time. It also suggested that more reception MDT on entry to the prison system might be a better way of detecting and directing users into treatment.

Prisons have discretion to use reception MDT for one of two reasons—to assess the drug misuse problem (and identify need) coming in from both new receptions and prison transfers or to send out a clear message that drug misuse will not be tolerated. So far in 2007-08, 66 prisons have undertaken a degree of reception MDT. However, all local prisons undertake clinical health assessments on reception and indicative drug testing plays an important part in that process. Those declaring a drug problem at the point of their reception may be asked to provide a sample for a drug screen. The result of this clinical drug test is available immediately and is used as part of a clinical substance misuse assessment, prior to the commencement of any prescribed treatment for the management of drug misuse. Not everyone with a drug problem will test positive for drugs on reception into prison. A full clinical assessment therefore is much more effective and immediate in identifying drug treatment need than on-reception MDT.

MDT is a proportionate response to the threat posed by drugs within prisons and hence compatible with human rights legislation. The particular problems arising from misuse of drugs within prisons include disorder and violence, risks to health, and the intimidation and bullying of prisoners and their families to supply drugs. This undermines the rights and freedoms of those prisoners who wish to stay away from drugs. The National Offender Management Service has a duty of care to those held in custody. The extent of MDT undertaken within a prison must be maintained at a level proportionate to the problem experienced with drugs. Prisoners must not be subjected needlessly to drug tests. MDT is compatible with the Human Rights Act as long as it is proportionate and carried out in accordance with the policy and procedures laid down in Prison Service Order 3601. Despite some attempts by prisoners to challenge MDT at the European Court of Human Rights, none has progressed beyond the admissibility stage.

Prisons: Interpreters

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much was spent in each prison on translation and interpretation services in the last year for which figures are available in the prison estate; and if he will make a statement. [168948]

Maria Eagle: This information is not held centrally and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost as it would involve collating the data from 142 prisons individually. Each of the 142 prisons would have to analyse the cost of interpreters or translators which is not kept in a discrete accounting code. Serving prisoners may also volunteer to act as interpreters or translators.

Prosecutions: Crack

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many persons have been (a) prosecuted and (b) sentenced for offences relating to the dealing of crack cocaine in each of the last 10 years in (i) England, (ii) the north-east and (iii) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency. [166599]

Maria Eagle: Data showing the number of defendants prosecuted and sentenced for offences relating to the dealing of cocaine in England, the north-east and Cleveland police force area from 1996 to 2005 are shown in the following table. My Department are not able to provide data for the Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency as the data are not held at the required level. Data for 2006 will be available shortly.

| Sentenced | 2 | 3 | 1 | 11 | 10 | 19 | 16 | 38 | 28 | 36 |

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[3] The sentenced column may exceed those proceeded against, as it may be the case that a defendant found guilty and committed for sentence at the crown court may be sentenced in the following year.
[4] The following offences have been used in the table:
(a) Supplying or offering to supply a controlled drug, (or being concerned in): Cocaine. (Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 Sec 4(3) [Class 'A1 Drug].
(b) Having possession of a controlled drug with intent to supply:-Cocaine. (Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 Sec 5(3) [Class 'A1 Drug].
[5] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates' courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Protests: Stoke Heath Young Offender Institution

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many roof top protests there were at Her Majesty's Young Offender Institution Stoke Heath in each month in the last five years. [168552]

Maria Eagle: The following table lists the number of incidents at height reported, on the incident reporting system (IRS), at HMYOI Stoke Heath in each of the last five years. For the purposes of the collection of data, an incident at height includes not only climbing on to roofs but also climbing on to or up other areas, both internally and externally.

Residence Orders

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many residence orders were made in respect of (a) men and (b) women in 2006. [168182]

Maria Eagle: 33,000 residence orders were given in 2006. Data to enable this figure to be separated between those granted to men and those granted to women is not recorded centrally.

Information to enable the gender of the successful party to be identified can be gathered only by reviewing court files or, for the county courts by reviewing the text of every individual order made and recorded on the court's IT system. This would incur a disproportionate cost.

Road Traffic Offences: Fixed Penalties

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of (a) fixed penalty notices and (b) penalty charge notices for motoring offences were paid in full within the 28 day deadline in each year since 1999. [168610]

Maria Eagle: Available information from 1999 to 2005 (the latest available) is provided in the following tables. 2006 data will be available next year.

Information contained in Table A relates to the number of motoring offences fixed penalty notices issued by result. Data are collected on the disposal (i.e. paid, fine registration certificate issued etc).

Data within Table B relates to penalty charge notices issued by result under the decriminalised parking enforcement scheme.

Truancy: Fines

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) if he will make an assessment of the likely effect on numbers of prison places of any custodial sentences handed out to 17 year olds who have not paid fines for truanting in the first year following implementation of such a policy; [163650]

(2) if he will estimate the likely number of custodial sentences which will be handed out to 17 year olds who have not paid fines for truanting in the first year following implementation of such a policy. [163652]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

None. The main enforcement system is not a criminal one and in practice a custodial sentence for non-participation is not a realistic prospect.

Young Offender Institutions: Fires

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many fires were started by prisoners at each young offender institution in England and Wales in each of the last five years. [168550]

Maria Eagle: The following table lists the total number of 'fire incidents' reported in the incident report system at young offender institutions in England and Wales in each of the last five years. Fire incidents may be actual fires but could, for example, include mischievous activation of fire alarms. To ascertain whether the incident was an actual fire would require the analysis of each incident report, which could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. The data is held in financial years.

Young Offender Institutions: Injuries

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many injuries there were to staff at each young offender institution in England and Wales in each of the last five years. [168553]

Mr. Hanson: Between 1 April 2003 and 31 March 2007 12,967 injuries to staff and prisoners were recorded in young offender institutions.

Young Offender Institutions: Violence

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prisoner on prisoner assaults, (b) riots and (c) assaults on staff there were at each young offender institution in England and Wales in each of the last five years. [168551]

Mr. Hanson: The response to part (a) of the question is provided in the following table which refers to the number of individual assault incidents:

[1] In 2004 Onley and Swinfen Hall were re-rolled to also hold adults. The change in population may be expected to be reflected in the number of assaults.

In respect of part (b) of the question the term 'riot' is not employed in the recording of incidents. The recording of 'acts of concerted indiscipline' is undertaken and applied to an incident where two or more prisoners act together in defiance of a lawful instruction or against the requirements of the regime including passive acts. The following table provides this information in financial years.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Crime of Aggression Special Working Group

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what policy priorities are being pursued by the Government's representative on the Special Working Group on the Crime of Aggression of the International Criminal Court. [168367]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The UK participates actively in the Special Working Group on the Crime of Aggression. The Government expect discussions to continue ahead of a Review Conference in 2010, where any proposal to amend the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court would be discussed.

The Government's view is that any proposal must command the widest possible acceptance and must reflect the primary responsibility of the UN Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security as enshrined in the UN charter.

Departmental Secondment

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many secondments of staff were made (a) to and (b) from his Department in each year since 1997; which organisations staff were seconded (i) to and (ii) from; how many staff were seconded in each year; for how long each secondment lasted; and what the cost was of each secondment in each year. [167241]

Meg Munn: 63 Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) staff are currently on outward loan to other Government Departments and 69 FCO staff are seconded to other organisations or the private sector. 238 staff are on inward loan from other Government Departments and three staff are on secondment from other organisations.

The average length of each interchange loan or secondment is two to three years. The cost of each interchange loan is borne by each staff member's parent Department. Outward loans to other Government Departments incur negligible additional costs as staff transfer on level salary terms. The FCO normally pays up to 20 per cent. additional salary costs for staff on outward secondment.

Complete figures on the numbers of interchanges and secondments from 1997 to 2006 were not collated and cannot be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

Immigrants: Criminal Records

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what criminal records checks are made on non-UK citizens seeking to enter the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [168809]

Dr. Howells: All persons applying for visas and those arriving into the UK are checked against a database. Further checks may also be carried out in accordance with selective criteria both overseas (where the person has applied for a visa) and at the point of entry into the UK.

Pakistan: Politics and Government

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of recent events in Pakistan; and what steps are being considered by his Department to encourage the release of political prisoners. [166367]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Barnsley, Central (Mr. Illsley) on 20 November, Official Report, column 1092.

Through our high commission in Islamabad we are continuing urgently to seek access to political activists and members of civil society who have been detained, and to press for their release. We welcome the release of many of those who have been held under the state of emergency: this is a step in the right direction, but we continue to urge the Government of Pakistan to release all political prisoners as soon as possible.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Leader of the House (1) if she will undertake a review of her Office's compliance with data protection laws; and if she will place in the Library a copy of the last such review; [168234]

(2) how many employees of each grade in her Office (a) have access to confidential or sensitive data and (b) are authorised to download such data to disc; how many of her Office's employees have undergone data protection training in the last 12 months; what the average length of time is that each employee of her Office has spent on data protection training; how many investigations of employees of her Office for improperly accessing confidential information have taken place in the last 12 months; how many such investigations resulted in cases of disciplinary action; and what the circumstances of each of those cases was; [168280]

(3) how many occasions in her Office confidential data have been downloaded onto compact discs (a) without and (b) with encryption in the last 12 month period for which figures are available; how many of those discs have been posted without using recorded or registered delivery; what procedures are in place for the (i) transport, (ii) exchange and (iii) delivery of confidential or sensitive data; what records are held by her Office of information being sent outside the Office; on how many occasions her Office's procedures and rules on data protection have been breached in the last five years; what those breaches were; and what procedures her Office has in place on downloading confidential data onto computer disk before transfer. [168331]

Helen Goodman: I will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by her Department. [168102]

Helen Goodman: All staff in the Leader's Office are British passport holders.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many apprenticeships were created in the London borough of Bexley in each of the last three years. [168648]

Mr. Lammy: Figures for those participating in apprenticeships can be derived from the Learning and Skills Council's (LSC) individualised learner record (ILR). The following table shows the number of apprenticeship starts from August to July in each year in East London local LSC area. (These figures are not readily available at local authority level.)

Business Resource Efficiency and Waste Programme

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans he has for the BREW programme; and if he will make a statement. [166462]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

The Business Resource Efficiency and Resource (BREW) programme was set up to give £284 million additional landfill taxes back to business over three years (from April 2005 to March 2008) through funding for resource efficiency and waste projects.

Future funding of the BREW programme will be subject to future spending decisions which will be carefully balanced with other departmental priorities in tackling waste and climate change.

Departmental Publicity

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much has been spent by his Department on advertising in the last 12 months. [167954]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills was created as a result of machinery of government changes on 28 June. Since that date the Department has spent a total of £2,444,194 on advertising.

Departmental Standards

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he expects to publish his Department's autumn performance report. [164870]

Mr. Lammy: The Department is planning to publish its Autumn Performance Report for 2007 before the house rises for the Christmas recess.

Nanotechnology

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if his Department will assess the potential effect of nanotechnology on the high technology industry; and if his Department will fund (a) relevant skills training and (b) public engagement campaigns to support the development of nanotechnology. [167530]

Ian Pearson: We have recognised that nanotechnology underpins a number of key technology areas where the UK has a strong industrial base, including in the areas of advanced materials, bioscience and healthcare, electronics, and advanced manufacturing. The Technology Strategy Board is currently reviewing its strategies for these technology areas as well as for emerging technologies.

DTI funded two public engagement activities, Nanodialogues and the Nanotechnology Engagement Group (NEG), the final reports of which were launched in June 2007. The cross-Departmental Nanotechnology Research Coordination Group (NRCG) is evaluating the findings from that work to determine what further public engagement is needed.

DIUS and GO-Science are also taking forward the activities begun by the DTI to gain expert, stakeholder and public views on future scenarios for science and technology development, including elements related to nanotechnology. The results of this work are now being assessed with a view to prioritising areas for future public engagement work.

Additionally, the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council (EPSRC) is implementing a programme in nanoscience through engineering to application, in order to build on the platform of earlier investments and to realise the benefits of the technology for society and the economy. The programme has identified doctoral training centres as a key way of enhancing the skills base in this area. EPSRC is also in the process of changing its collaborative training accounts into knowledge transfer accounts and it is possible that these will support training in the nanotechnology area aimed at users.

Research: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much of the £1 billion announced on the publication of the Sainsbury Review to be spent on business, innovation and technology development is additional spending not previously announced. [166878]

Ian Pearson: The Technology Strategy Board will develop and lead a strategic programme worth £1 billion over the next three years (the upcoming CSR period), in partnership with the research councils and the regional development agencies (RDA). This includes £180 million which will be earmarked by the RDAs and £120 million by the research councils to spend jointly on activities with the TSB. The £1 billion is all new money not previously announced.

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what public spending on research and development was (a) in real terms and (b) as a share of gross domestic product in each year since 1992, broken down by (i) region and (ii) county; and what estimate he has made of the equivalent figures for the private sector over the same period. [167214]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 26 November 2007]: Gross expenditure on research and development data is only available at a national level. It is therefore not possible to produce real or percentage of GDP estimates by region split by private and public expenditure. Business expenditure as a percentage of GDP is, however, available at a regional level (but not at a county level). The following tables shows business expenditure on research and development by region (in real terms, 2006 prices).

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Animal Welfare: Fisheries

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what legislative provisions are in place governing the welfare of fish caught for human consumption. [168217]

Jonathan Shaw: There are no legislative provisions covering either recreational anglers or commercial fishing at sea.

The welfare of all farmed animals is protected by the Animal Welfare Act 2006, which makes it an offence to cause unnecessary suffering to any animal. The Act also contains a duty of care to animals; anyone responsible for an animal must take reasonable steps to make sure the animal's welfare needs are met.

The Welfare of Farmed Animals (England) Regulations 2007 set minimum standards for all farm animals, including farmed fish. These regulations replaced the Welfare of Farmed Animals (England) Regulations 2000 on 1 October 2007. The new regulations are made under the Animal Welfare Act 2006 and are very similar to the previous regulations.

In addition to the general requirements of the Welfare of Farmed Animals (England) Regulations 2007, we are working towards further improvements in fish welfare by other means.

The Council of Europe's Standing Committee on the welfare of animals kept for farming purposes adopted a recommendation on fish in December 2005. It is now working on species specific appendices.

DEFRA's research and development programme includes projects on certain aspects of fish welfare, and we will use the findings to support our objective to ensure high standards of fish welfare.

Avian Influenza

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to be able to establish the cause of the recent H5N1 avian influenza outbreak in East Anglia. [167401]

Jonathan Shaw: A full epidemiological investigation is under way to consider the source of this outbreak, including tracings of any possible disease spread. At present, it is too early to draw any conclusions about the source of the outbreak, and all potential sources of infection are being investigated.

A preliminary epidemiological report is being prepared and will be published shortly.

Avian Influenza: Disease Control

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which of the recommendations contained in the Lessons Learned Report published following the outbreak of avian influenza last February have been implemented in full; and if he will make a statement. [165925]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 19 November 2007]: The Lessons Learned report was published on 11 October and copies are available in the Libraries of both Houses. The recommendations in the report have all been accepted and have already been adopted in our response to the current foot and mouth disease, bluetongue and avian influenza outbreaks.

Further to the debate in the House on 13 November, the hon. Gentleman is being sent a full breakdown of our response to each recommendation. Copies of this letter will also be made available in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to make an assessment of the effectiveness of his Department's response to the (a) Essex A/H5N1 quarantine incident in 2005, (b) the Fife A/H5N1 incident in 2006, (c) the Norfolk A/H7N3 incident in 2006, (d) the Suffolk A/H5N1 incident in 2007, (e) the North Wales A/H7N2 incident in 2007 and (f) the Norfolk A/H5N1 incident in 2007. [166436]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA has robust and tested disease control plans and instructions in place to address an avian influenza outbreak. These are set out in our exotic animal disease generic contingency plan, which is available on the DEFRA website. These plans and procedures are kept under close review and have been used effectively to deal with all outbreaks of avian influenza.

We are committed to learning the lessons of all outbreaks. In October we published a Lessons Learned Report into the February H5N1 outbreak in poultry which concluded that our response was effective. The recommendations in the report have all been accepted and have already been adopted in our response to the current avian influenza, foot and mouth disease and bluetongue outbreaks.

We will continue to learn lessons from all exotic disease outbreaks and by applying them, continue to improve our response.

Avian Influenza: Suffolk

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what inspections were undertaken by public agencies at Redgrave Park Farm in the last 12 months; which inspecting body performed each; and on what date. [165924]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 19 November 2007]: Animal health staff visited Redgrave Park Farm for salmonella sampling in March 2007. We are not aware of any other public agency inspections prior to the start of the avian influenza investigation on 11 November 2007.

Bluetongue Disease: Disease Control

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) when he expects a vaccine to be available to use to prevent the spread of bluetongue serotype 8; and if he will make a statement; [165463]

(2) what vaccines are available to prevent the spread of each of the 24 bluetongue serotypes; and if he will make a statement; [165464]

(3) on what date he expects Merial to be able to resume working on a bluetongue vaccine at the Pirbright site; and if he will make a statement; [165465]

(4) what his estimate is of the likely cost to livestock farmers of purchasing a bluetongue vaccine; and if he will make a statement. [165466]

Jonathan Shaw: No suitable, inactivated vaccines are currently available for bluetongue serotype 8 (BTV-8), the strain of bluetongue currently in circulation in the east and south-east of England.

However, we are aware of at least three vaccine companies which have a BTV-8 vaccine in development. Production at one of those companies, Merial at Pirbright, was temporarily halted after tests revealed a possible link between the foot and mouth disease (FMD) outbreak and Pirbright, and the use of live virus at Merial was suspended. Following detailed inspections at the site, we are now satisfied that they have in place all the necessary measures to ensure strict biosecurity throughout the site. On 6 November, we permitted Merial to begin using FMD and bluetongue viruses for vaccine production at the site. However, this has not prevented Merial from continuing development of vaccine as their Pirbright site is primarily a production, rather than research, facility; Merial conduct the majority of their research elsewhere.

On 1 November, my Department issued a tender to all three companies to supply between 10 and 20 million doses of vaccine. This tender closed on 15 November and an order will be placed as soon as possible, once we have fully assessed the bids submitted. This should ensure that a vaccine will be available for use by next summer.

In keeping with the principles set out in the Bluetongue Control Strategy, which was developed in partnership with the farming industry, livestock keepers will be offered the opportunity to purchase vaccine from the bank. Once a decision on the order has been made, we will provide an estimate of the cost of the vaccine and other associated costs to livestock keepers.

The BTV-8 vaccine we have tendered for will not offer any cross-protection against the other 23 bluetongue serotypes. Currently, there are suitable, inactivated vaccines available for bluetongue serotypes 1, 2 and 4. Live attenuated vaccines are available for other serotypes but there are significant potential risks associated with their use; so they would therefore not normally be considered as an initial control measure, in line with our policy of disease containment.

We are developing a detailed plan with bluetongue scientific experts, representatives of the farming industry and others as to how a vaccination programme would work. Discussions are also taking place with the European Commission and other member states about possible approaches to vaccination.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans his Department has for the application of a bluetongue vaccine. [166482]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 20 November 2007]: On 1 November DEFRA issued a tender for between 10 and 20 million doses of bluetongue vaccine. The tender closed on 15 November and we are treating the assessment of bids as a high priority. Our aim is to ensure that a firm order is placed as soon as possible, and a vaccine is available by next summer.

We are considering detailed bluetongue vaccination plans with representatives from the farming industry and scientific experts, so that we are fully prepared for when the vaccine is delivered. The issues that are being discussed include: whether to adopt a voluntary or compulsory approach; and whether there should be a phased approach to vaccination taking account of disease control priorities, such as certain high-risk areas or species.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress is being made on developing an effective vaccine against bluetongue. [166663]

Jonathan Shaw: Although there are no suitable, inactivated vaccines currently available for bluetongue serotype 8 (BTV-8), we are aware of at least three vaccine companies who have a BTV-8 vaccine in an advanced state of development. On 1 November, DEFRA issued a tender to all of those companies to supply between 10 and 20 million doses for a vaccine bank. This tender closed on 15 November and an order will be placed as soon as possible, once the bids have been fully assessed. This should ensure that a vaccine will be available for use by next summer.

We are also developing a detailed plan with bluetongue scientific experts, representatives of the farming industry and others as to how a vaccination programme would work. Discussions are taking place with the European Commission and other member states about possible approaches to vaccination.

Bluetongue Disease: Prices

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact of the bluetongue outbreak on agriculture farmgate prices in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [164723]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA's current estimate of the economic cost to the UK livestock sector of movement restrictions and controls on exports, imposed as a result of foot and mouth disease and bluetongue, is over £100 million.

Disaggregated estimates of the impact on agricultural farmgate prices have not been made as these would be subject to considerable margins of error.

Brixham Fish Quay

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the estimated rebuilding costs of Brixham Fish Quay are; when the rebuilding will be (a) started and (b) completed; how much EU funding under Objective 2 the scheme has received; and if he will make a statement. [168629]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 27 November 2007]: In February 2007, the Marine and Fisheries Agency agreed to commit £2 million towards the renovation of Brixham Fish Market. Subsequently, we agreed that work on the project could begin in May 2007 and, exceptionally due to the importance of the project, that the project would be completed by October 2008, which is later than the formal Financial Instrument for Fisheries Guidance timetable.

The Objective 2 programme is contributing £2 million from the European Regional Development Fund (ERDF) towards the cost of the wider Brixham regeneration scheme. This includes access to the fish quay and the provision of workspace for marine and fish-related businesses, but not to the fish quay itself.

Climate Change

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which representatives of his Department attended the Nerc-Quest workshop on climate change and uplands: science to inform adaptation, held in Bristol on 8-9 November. [167819]

Mr. Woolas: It is my policy not to name officials. Two DEFRA scientists attended the Bristol meeting on 8-9 November.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs who represented the United Kingdom at the 27th meeting of the intergovernmental panel on climate change, held in Valencia on 12 to 17 November; whether the Government submitted any papers to the meeting; and if he will make a statement on the outcome of the meeting. [167916]

Mr. Woolas: Five officials from my Department represented the United Kingdom at the 27th meeting of the intergovernmental panel on climate change (IPCC) held in Valencia on 12 to 17 November.

Comments from the UK government on the draft text of the IPCC Synthesis Report of the 4th Assessment Report were sent to the IPCC prior to the meeting as part of the IPCC's consultation process.

The Summary for Policymakers (SPM) of the Synthesis Report was reviewed line by line and agreed by consensus by all governments to reflect the conclusion of the underlying 4th Assessment Report.

The report shows unequivocally that the climate is warming and that humans are largely responsible for recent climate change. Climate change will continue to grow and its impacts are projected to become increasingly severe over the coming century if we do not take urgent and sustained action to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. The report shows that technologies already exist to make such deep cuts in emissions and that this can be done at a modest cost.

The report is highly relevant and timely. It is a clear call for urgent international action. We hope it will be given full and detailed consideration next week in Bali, when formal negotiations will be launched to achieve a global agreement to tackle climate change by 2009.

Coastal Areas: Access

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many responses he has received to his consultation document on access to coastal areas; what assessment he has made of such responses; and if he will make a statement. [167516]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: We received 749 responses to the coastal access consultation from a wide range of organisations and individuals, including 324 which were prompted by a campaign from the Ramblers' Association in support of Natural England s recommended approach that new legislation was the best way forward for improving coastal access.

Analysis of the responses began before the consultation closed on 11 September. From the analysis we concluded that the overall weight of the responses was in support of Natural England's recommendation and we have announced our intention to introduce legislation to provide a right to walk around the English coast.

We will publish a report shortly setting out an analysis of the detail of the responses to the consultation document.

Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects Natural England to report on the impact of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000. [167556]

Jonathan Shaw: In September 2007, Natural England published its first annual monitoring report on the right of access under the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000. The report is available on the Natural England website.

Energy: Plastic

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will take steps to promote the generation of energy from refuse plastic fuel. [167546]

Mr. Woolas: The Secretary of State is taking a number of steps to stimulate markets for SRF. Budget 2007 announced that the Government would review the classes of equipment that qualified for enhanced capital allowances (ECAs) for 'good quality' combined heat and power (CHP) schemes to ensure that all the equipment necessary for CHP schemes to utilise SRF was included. The review of the equipment list is now complete and an order will be laid before Parliament shortly revising the energy technology criteria list within the CHP scheme arrangements. Further information will be available shortly from the ECA programme or HM Revenue and Customs websites.

DEFRA is also working with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on proposals contained in its recent consultation, reform of the renewables obligation. If implemented, these could stimulate the co-firing of SRF with coal or biomass.

In 2006, DEFRA organised a workshop to draw to the attention of industrial intensive energy users the potential for SRF as an alternative energy feedstock to gas. A number of procurements for waste treatment and disposal infrastructure are now considering producing SRF, some of which could be used as an industrial fuel.

Fish: Conservation

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how often he has (a) used and (b) attempted to use powers under Articles 7, 8 and 9 of Council Regulation 2371/220 to enable him to close areas to fishing; and if he will make a statement. [165474]

Jonathan Shaw: No recent attempts have been made by my Department to use these powers.

Fisheries

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1431-32W, on fisheries, what information his Department holds on discard pilot projects undertaken by other EU member states; and if he will make a statement. [165468]

Jonathan Shaw: The Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science (Cefas) are partners in an EU project to evaluate the effectiveness of discard pilots across the Community. The work is not due to be completed until the spring of next year, but an interim report has been produced and I will arrange for copies to be placed in the Library of the House.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with his European counterparts on the merits of fishing effort reduction in UK fisheries; and if he will make a statement. [165516]

Jonathan Shaw: In the absence of formal Commission proposals, my discussions with European colleagues thus far, concerning the effort management arrangements for next year, have not focused on issues specific to particular member states. I have however made clear that the UK will resist blunt cuts in days for 2008 and believe it is more important to focus on other ways of reducing fishing mortality, including through the operation of a real-time closure mechanism to protect concentrations of juvenile fish and the trialling of more selective gear.

Fisheries: Databases

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what targets he has set on the average time to enter fisheries data on to the fisheries database; and if he will make a statement; [167639]

(2) what the average time taken to enter fisheries data on to the fisheries database was in each year since 2003; and if he will make a statement. [167640]

Jonathan Shaw: The Marine and Fisheries Agency (MFA) has a performance target of ensuring 90 per cent. of the information received on catches and fishing activity is entered onto the fisheries database within five working days of receipt of all necessary information.

This target relates to data on the activity of vessels above 10 metres in length. These account for the majority of the fishing effort and catch in the areas that fall under the MFA's responsibility.

Delays in the entry of data are recorded in terms of the time taken from the date of receipt of the information required to the date that the information is entered onto the fisheries database:

| | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Data relating to vessels of 10 metres and over | | | | |
| Average delay (days) | 4.7 | 2.2 | 2.0 | 2.9 |
| Percentage of data entered within five working days of receipt | 79 | 93 | 95 | 90 |
| Other data | | | | |
| Average delay (days) | 3.4 | 1.9 | 3.4 | 11.3 |

The performance with regards to other data (primarily related to data received from sales notes related to activity by small vessels of 10 metres and under) has been affected by the introduction of the requirement for registration of buyers and sellers of fish from September 2005. This has led to a significant increase in the volume of such data being received for processing by the MFA during 2006. New procedures have been introduced and resources within the MFA have been reallocated to help deal with this increased workload while ensuring that the key performance target continues to be met.

Fishing Catches

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the most recent estimate is for the time by which the EU discards atlas will be completed; and if he will make a statement. [165543]

Jonathan Shaw: Regrettably, the EU Discards Atlas project has still not been put out to tender and it is therefore not yet clear when it will commence. The Commission's Scientific, Technical and Economic Committee for Fisheries (STECF) is however holding a meeting in early December, which will be chaired by a scientist from the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science (CEFAS), to identify the EU fisheries with the highest discard levels.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he has taken to reduce North Sea fish discards; and if he will make a statement. [168303]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: In line with the latest scientific advice from the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea (ICES), the UK is proposing a modest increase of 15 per cent. in the North sea cod total allowable catch (TAC) for 2008. We believe this will reduce the scale of discarding, while the days at sea limitations under the EU's cod recovery plan will ensure that there is no additional targeting of the stock.

At the same time, the Government are developing with the UK industry a series of alternative measures designed to reduce fishing mortality. These include the piloting of a real-time closure mechanism in Scottish waters, where vessels are required to move grounds if the proportion of smaller fish in the catch exceeds a pre-determined maximum. Additionally, more selective fishing practices, developed in consultation with the fishing industry, are being commercially trialled with a view to more widespread application if successful.

Fishing Vessels

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many 10-metre and under fishing vessels were registered in the UK in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [167654]

Jonathan Shaw: On 1 November 2007, there were 4,979 10-metre or under fishing vessels registered in the United Kingdom (excluding islands). The data for the years 1997 to 2006 (as at 31 December of each year) are in the following table.

| | Number 10 metre and under |
|---|---|
| 1997 | 5,474 |
| 1998 | 5,487 |
| 1999 | 5,409 |
| 2000 | 5,273 |
| 2001 | 5,227 |
| 2002 | 5,287 |
| 2003 | 5,113 |
| 2004 | 5,092 |
| 2005 | 4,834 |
| 2006 | 4,896 |

Foot and Mouth Disease

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his assessment is of the effect on market prices of pedigree livestock of (a) the foot and mouth and (b) the bluetongue outbreak; and if he will make a statement. [165467]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA's current estimate of the economic cost to the UK livestock sector of the movement restrictions and the ban on exports, imposed as a result of foot and mouth disease and bluetongue, is over £100 million. Disaggregated estimates of the impact on market prices of pedigree livestock have not been made.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether officials have been (a) disciplined and (b) dismissed as a result of the escape of the foot and mouth virus from the Pirbright laboratory; and if he will make a statement. [165605]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 21 November 2007]: No officials have been disciplined or dismissed as a result of the escape of the foot and mouth virus from the Pirbright laboratory. The Health and Safety Executive (HSE)-led investigation did not apportion blame to officials.

It concluded that it was not possible to identify which of three possible sources—the Institute of Animal Health, Merial or Stabilitech— was the origin of the release. The issue of fault and enforcement action is for Surrey Trading Standards.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Compensation

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans his Department has to compensate lowland livestock farmers for losses incurred as a result of restrictions introduced in respect of the recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease. [166481]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 20 November2007]: We are acutely aware of the difficulties facing the industry at this time. Compensation is paid at the market value for animals and goods, which are seized and destroyed for disease control purposes. However, it is a long established principle that the Government do not meet the costs of consequential losses, which must be borne instead by the industry.

To help the industry at this difficult time, we announced on 8 October a package of assistance worth £12.5 million. This is to support those livestock farmers most severely affected by the outbreak of foot and mouth disease (FMD), including those in the restriction areas and hill farmers. Support has also been included for meat promotion and farming charities, and this will benefit all farmers. The process of implementing the support package is well under way and some elements have almost been completed.

The most effective and sustainable way to improve the position for farmers is a speedy resumption of exports. A new European Commission Decision this week will allow much of Britain to start exporting meat again under normal community rules, and with appropriate certification. We are doing all we can to obtain FMD free status at the earliest possible date in January.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Cumbria

David Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many claims in Cumbria arising from the 2001 foot and mouth outbreak were settled in each year from 2001 to 2007; and how many are outstanding. [165503]

Jonathan Shaw: The numbers of claims brought in Cumbria following the 2001 foot and mouth disease outbreak, which were settled either in court or by an out of court settlement, are as follows:

(i) 405 claims were settled in relation to animal valuation; and

(ii) 388 claims were settled in relation to cleansing and disinfection.

Establishing the number of claims that were settled each year from 2001 to 2007 could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

There are still three outstanding claims in Cumbria. In each case, negotiations between DEFRA and the claimants are ongoing and matters currently rest with the claimants.

In addition, there are four farmers who have not yet submitted a formal claim for damage to their properties during 2001.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Disease Control

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the likely timetable for each measure put in place to control (a) foot and mouth disease and (b) bluetongue. [162224]

Jonathan Shaw: For foot and mouth disease (FMD), the FMD Surveillance Zone was lifted on 5 November. On 6 November the EU agreed to relax the current FMD export restrictions on meat and meat products. On 19 November the FMD Restricted Zone was lifted.

The EU decision has split the UK into the following three areas:

1. FMD Free Export Area—Meat and products originating from susceptible animals in this area will be eligible for export under normal Community rules subject to certification.

2. FMD Restricted Export Area—Meat and products originating from susceptible animals in this area will be eligible for export provided they meet certain conditions, including providing documentation confirming the completion of a 21 day standstill and residency period (7 day standstill in the case of pigs).

3. FMD No Export Area—Meat and products originating from susceptible animals in this area cannot be allowed to be exported.

A map detailing these areas is available on the DEFRA website and I have arranged for copies to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

The FMD Restricted Zone was lifted when the new EU Decision came into force on 19 November. If no further amendments are made to the EU decision, the provisions on meat and meat products are expected to apply until mid December, and those on live animals until the end of the year.

A further surveillance programme of sample herds and flocks is to be carried out to confirm disease freedom with the European Commission. Subject to the satisfactory outcome of this surveillance, restoration of international disease freedom under OIE criteria could be considered at the earliest in January 2008.

For bluetongue, the timetable will be dependent on developments in the disease situation. OIE guidelines state that, following confirmation of bluetongue disease, a surveillance programme has to demonstrate no evidence of Bluetongue circulating in the country or zone over the course of two years before restrictions can be lifted. However, there is limited scope within EU legislation to amend the size of zones in this period.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the Government have put in place a revised national contingency plan following the recent foot and mouth outbreak. [166735]

Jonathan Shaw: The national contingency plan is published and laid before Parliament annually. It was last laid in December 2006. The next plan will reflect the results of a consultation exercise which concluded on 11 October 2007, and lessons learned from the recent foot and mouth disease outbreak. At present, we plan to lay it before Parliament in December.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Finance

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his latest estimate is of the cost of the foot and mouth outbreak to the (a) public purse and (b) agriculture industry. [164394]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA's current estimate of the economic cost to the UK livestock sector of movement restrictions and controls on exports, imposed as a result of foot and mouth disease (FMD) and bluetongue, is over £100 million.

As at 12 October, the total forecast cost of the FMD and bluetongue outbreaks to DEFRA and its agencies was approximately £47 million.

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average fee was for administration of a warm front voucher in the latest period for which figures are available; how the fee was calculated; which organisation receives the fee revenues; and if he will make a statement. [168237]

Mr. Woolas: Fees for administrating the £300 voucher scheme are paid to eaga plc, which successfully won the contract to manage the Warm Front scheme following a competitive tendering exercise. The fees were set following a proposal put forward by eaga, which was scrutinised by DEFRA procurement officials to ensure value for money was obtained. For reasons of commercial sensitivity, we are unable to provide specific details on the value of these management fees.

Inland Waterways

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what work his Department has undertaken with the National Audit Office to respond to recommendation four of the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Committee's report on British Waterways; and when he expects to make that response. [167868]

Jonathan Shaw: The National Audit Office has been in close contact with British Waterways about the information required and plans to finalise a response to the Committee's request next week. This Department has been kept up-to-date with progress.

Ivory

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 14 November 2007, Official Report, column 245, on ivory, what plans his Department has to undertake research to identify the scale and nature of ivory trade within the UK to inform the EU's response to the ivory trade questionnaire issued by the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species. [167723]

Joan Ruddock: The nature of many of the questions will require EU countries to provide relatively simple data about the import and export of ivory. The draft EU response will be discussed at the next EU Management Committee on trade in wild fauna and flora on 14 December in Brussels. Once we have seen the draft we will provide additional information as necessary.

Landfill

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the reasons are for his Department's participation in the Environmental Permitting Programme; and what assessment he has made of the programme's effect on landfill sites and former landfill sites. [168173]

Joan Ruddock: The Environmental Permitting (England and Wales) Regulations 2007 were laid in Parliament in October 2007. They provide an opportunity to reduce administrative burdens on business and regulators by replacing the existing waste management licensing and pollution prevention and control (PPC) systems with a single, simple, radically streamlined environmental permitting and compliance system for England and Wales. The regulations will maintain existing levels of protection of the environment and human health for waste management licensed and PPC permitted sites, including landfill sites and former landfills which have licences or permits.

I refer my hon. Friend to the regulatory impact assessment that accompanies the regulations and which is published on our website.

Livestock: Diseases

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Northern Ireland Executive on contagious diseases affecting livestock; and if he will make a statement. [167069]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government are working closely with the devolved administrations to co-ordinate the disease control response. Officials in the Northern Ireland Executive are actively involved in policy decisions for foot and mouth disease (FMD), bluetongue and now avian influenza, and in reviewing the disease control strategies.

Marine and Fisheries Agency: Finance

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funds he plans to allocate to the Marine and Fisheries Agency in each of the next five years; and if he will make a statement. [167638]

Jonathan Shaw: As an Executive Agency of DEFRA, the Marine and Fisheries Agency (MFA) participates in our business planning and budgeting process. These are currently in hand for the period covered by the recent comprehensive spending review (CSR07), namely 2008-09 to 2010-11. The allocations for the MFA have therefore not yet been finalised.

Meat: Exports

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs from which regions of the UK it has become possible to export meat products again following the lifting of the foot and mouth disease ban. [162022]

Jonathan Shaw: On 6 November the European Union (EU) agreed to relax the current foot and mouth disease (FMD) export restrictions on meat and meat products. On 19 November the FMD Restricted Zone was lifted and the new EU Decision came into force. If no further amendments are made to the EU Decision, the provisions on meat and meat products are expected to apply until mid December. The Decision has split the UK into three areas for the purposes of EU trade in meat and meat products:

1. FMD Free Export Area—Meat and products originating from susceptible animals in this area will be eligible for export under normal Community rules subject to certification. The FMD Free Export Area includes all parts of Great Britain, except those which lie within the FMD Restricted Export Area and FMD No Export Area as described below.

2. FMD Restricted Export Area—Meat and products originating from susceptible animals in this area will be eligible for export provided they meet certain conditions, including documentation confirming the completion of a 21 day standstill and residency period (a 7 day standstill in the case of pigs). The FMD Restricted Export Area includes:

Administrative unit
Brighton and Hove
Medway
Milton Keynes
Thurrock
West Berkshire
Bedfordshire
East Sussex county
Hertfordshire county
Kent
Oxfordshire county
Administrative unit
Wiltshire county
Gloucestershire county
Cambridgeshire county
Northamptonshire county
Warwickshire county
Swindon
Luton
Southend on Sea

3. FMD No Export Area—Meat and products originating from susceptible animals in this area are not allowed to be exported. The FMD No Export Area includes:

Administrative Unit
Bracknell Forest
City of Southampton
Reading
Slough
Swindon
Windsor and Maidenhead
Wokingham
City of Portsmouth
Buckinghamshire county
Hampshire county
Surrey
West Sussex county
London

Further information, including a map of the FMD Restricted Zone and the restrictions that apply, can be found on the DEFRA website. A further map, which highlights the three different export areas is also available.

Milk: Prices

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on recent trends in farm-gate milk prices. [167854]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: Farm gate prices are at their highest levels since 1996. Concerns about animal disease notwithstanding, the situation in the dairy sector is considerably more positive than it has been for some time.

While commodity prices appear to have peaked and there is likely to be a consequential effect on farm gate prices in due course, given increasing demand for dairy products, prices are not expected to fall to earlier levels at least in the short to medium term.

Nature Conservation

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) under what timetable habitat action plans will be produced to instigate the recovery of habitats on the UK Biodiversity Action Plan priority list; [167751]

(2) whether baseline information on the status of the species and habitats on the UK Biodiversity Action Plan priority list has been obtained; [167752]

(3) when progress on the conservation of the species and habitats on the UK Biodiversity Action Plan priority list will be assessed; [167753]

(4) under what timetable species action plans will be produced to instigate the recovery of species on the UK Biodiversity Action Plan priority list. [167755]

Joan Ruddock: I announced a new UK list of priority species and habitats on 28 August 2007. Action plans for many of these, such as the otter and lowland heathland, have already been in place for a number of years which has resulted in significant recovery.

The development of action plans for new priority habitats is a devolved matter and each country will carry this out to their own timetable. However, recent discussions between the countries indicate that Habitat Groups and lead partners will be appointed during 2008, with the preparation of objectives/targets by early 2009 and the completion of habitat management guidance (to take account of relevant species needs) by the end of April 2009. Implementation of the existing priority habitat action plans will continue in parallel with this process.

Baseline information on the status of the priority species and habitats was taken from experts to show the degree of threat and rate of decline in habitats and species in the UK to substantiate the listing. Good information was available for some, but for others, it was more limited. Information gaps will be addressed through a UK surveillance strategy being developed by the Joint Nature Conservation Committee. Experts also provided information on the importance of the species and habitats from an international perspective.

The next reporting round under the Biodiversity Action Plan will take place in late 2008 and will assess progress on the original list of priority species and habitats. Subsequent rounds will report progress on the new list and we will need to consider with the devolved administrations how UK progress is to be assessed in the light of deliberations currently being undertaken at the country level.

Not all species will need discrete plans as the UK Biodiversity Partnership is adopting the ecosystem approach which focuses on causes rather than symptoms. There is no specified timetable for the completion of the action plans but experts across the UK Biodiversity Partnership are already being consulted on which species would require individual management action and which would benefit from collective action. Natural England, as lead delivery body in England, will then prioritise the species found in England and identify lead partners where appropriate. Similar arrangements are being put in place in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, with joint working between countries where this will assist in securing conservation benefits.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many of the species on the UK Biodiversity Action Plan priority list occur in England; and how many of these were listed due to severe decline. [167754]

Joan Ruddock: 931 of the UK priority species occur in England, of which 283 qualified for listing owing to severe decline.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which habitats on the UK biodiversity action plan priority list occur in England. [167756]

Joan Ruddock: 57 habitats of the 65 on the UK list of priority species and habitats occur in England. They comprise woodlands, lowland agricultural habitats, heathlands, wetlands, upland habitats, coasts and seas. For the first time, recognition has been given to the critical role of several habitats new to the listing, including traditional orchards and ponds. A full list of the habitats in England follows:

Nature Conservation: British Overseas Territories

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what contribution the UK is making to (a) improving species conservation and (b) tackling non-native invasive species in the Overseas Territories; and if he will make a statement. [167239]

Joan Ruddock: The Government's aim is to work in partnership with the Overseas Territory Governments to assist them in achieving, among other things, the objectives set out in individual Overseas Territories Environment Charters. In doing so the Government provide access to funding to improve species conservation from a variety of sources, for example: the Overseas Territories Environment Programme (OTEP), jointly managed by the FCO and DFID; the Darwin Initiative; the International Sustainable Development Fund (ISDF); the Agreement on the Conservation of Albatrosses and Petrels (ACAP); and the Flagship Species Fund, administered by Fauna and Flora International, but supported by DEFRA.

On non-native invasive species, the Joint Nature Conservation Committee (JNCC), the statutory adviser to Government on UK and international nature conservation, has undertaken a review of non-native species in the UK Overseas Territories. This review is being used to guide various projects relating to invasive species in Overseas Territories. In June 2007 JNCC also hosted a workshop on invasive species in the Overseas Territories bringing together a range of stakeholders to share information, and to discuss future collaboration in this area of work.

Elsewhere, the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew, (a DEFRA sponsored body) has undertaken a number of separate initiatives, including a programme of seed collecting initiated in four Territories (British Virgin Islands, St. Helena, Ascension and Falkland Islands), and DMA banking of the Flora of South Georgia.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what animal welfare and protection provisions apply in the Overseas Territories, with particular reference to nesting marine turtles. [167330]

Jonathan Shaw: Animal welfare and protection provisions are matters for individual Overseas Territory Governments. With regard to marine turtles, in 2001 DEFRA and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) jointly commissioned the Marine Turtle Research Group (MTRG) to undertake a research project on the Status and Exploitation of Marine Turtles in the UK Caribbean Overseas Territories (TCOT). The resultant report, published in 2004, outlines the diversity of legislation relating to the protection, harvest and sale of marine turtles.

In relation to the British Indian Ocean Territory, the UK is a signatory to the Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) on the Conservation of Marine Turtles in the Indian Ocean and South East Asia (IOSEA). The MoU puts in place a framework through which States of the Indian Ocean and South-East Asian region, as well as other concerned States, can work together to conserve and replenish depleted marine turtle populations for which they share responsibility. Since 2002 the Government have provided voluntary contributions totalling around £150,000 to fund projects that fall under the MoU.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many extinctions of species have been recorded in the Overseas Territories in the last five years. [167359]

Joan Ruddock: According to advice from the Joint Nature Conservation Committee (JNCC), the statutory adviser to Government on UK and international nature conservation, there has been one extinction in the last five years in Her Majesty's Overseas Territories namely the St. Helena Olive Nesiota elliptica. The last cultivated St. Helena Olive tree, an endemic to the island of the same name, died in 2003 on St. Helena; the last wild individual died in 1994.

North Sea: Total Allowable Catches

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his estimate is of the appropriate level for total allowable catch in the North Sea for (a) herring, (b) cod, (c) haddock, (d) whiting, (e) plaice and (f) sole in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [165470]

Jonathan Shaw: In the light of the latest scientific advice from the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea (ICES), in the current EU/Norway negotiations, we are seeking the following changes to the total allowable catches (TAC) in the North sea for 2008:

(a) to limit the cut in herring to 35 per cent.;

(b) a 15 per cent. increase in cod;

(c) to limit the cut in haddock to 15 per cent., in line with the joint management plan;

(d) to limit the cut in whiting to 15 per cent.; and

(e) to set the plaice TAC in line with the joint management plan.

In addition, in the discussions surrounding the December EU Fisheries Council, we will be seeking to limit the cut in the North sea sole TAC to 15 per cent. (f).

Penguins: Falkland Islands

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assistance the Government has offered the Falklands government in tackling the decline in the number of rockhopper penguins. [167236]

Joan Ruddock: The UK Government continue to provide assistance, when requested, for example, through the Overseas Territories Environment Programme (OTEP), which is administered jointly by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and the Department for International Development (DFID). OTEP has been established to support the Overseas Territories in developing and implementing action plans under their respective Environment Charters. The UK Government have not provided assistance specifically relating to conservation of rockhopper penguins. However, I understand that a bid to OTEP from the Falkland Islands on this issue is likely to be made in the next round of bidding. If so this will be considered alongside all the other projects received by OTEP.

Plastics: Packaging

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the merits of seeking the introduction of tax on plastic bags to encourage the use of recyclable alternatives; and what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on this matter. [166365]

Joan Ruddock: The Government have no current plans for a plastic bags tax, although the Chancellor keeps all taxes under review. Any decision on a levy on plastic bags would be for the Treasury to make.

We are interested in reducing the environmental impact of all single-use carrier bags, not just plastic bags. The Waste Strategy for England 2007, launched in May, aims to make single-use carrier bags a thing of the past, and we are actively working on the best ways to achieve this objective.

Poultry

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many poultry are registered on the GB Poultry Register in the avian influenza (a) protection zone, (b) surveillance zone and (c) restricted zone; and how many free range poultry there are in each zone; [166403]

(2) how many holdings are registered on the GB Poultry Register in the avian influenza (a) protection zone, (b) surveillance zone and (c) restricted zone; and how many free range holdings there are in each zone; [166404]

(3) how many (a) poultry and (b) free range poultry are registered on the GB Poultry Register in each county; [166405]

(4) how many (a) holdings and (b) free range holdings are registered on the GB Poultry Register in each county. [166406]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 20 November 2007]: On 14 November 2007 the following free range premises were registered on the GB Poultry Register (GBPR):

(i) Protection Zone: 5 premises (including the infected premises) with 36,802 birds. One of these premises, the infected premises, was registered as free range and had a total of 6,800 birds.

(ii) Surveillance Zone: an additional 92 premises with 4,085,476 birds. 38 of these premises were registered as free range and had a total of 167,397 birds.

(iii) Restricted Zone: an additional 1,372 premises with 24,987,220 birds. 473 of these premises were registered as free range and had a total of 2,777, 143 birds.

Not all birds on free range premises will necessarily be free range.

There are a total 24,151 premises registered on the GBPR with 273,285,189 birds. Of these 10,129 premises are registered as being free range and have a total of 44,830,869 birds.

The following table shows the number of premises and birds (in total and for free range premises) in each county/administrative area of Great Britain:

Recycling

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what incentives the Government has put in place to encourage households to reduce household waste and recycle more. [168790]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 27 November 2007]: Following a public consultation exercise over the summer, we announced that the Climate Change Bill will provide a power for local authorities to pilot incentives for household waste minimisation and recycling. I announced more detailed proposals on 15 November, which for the first time, will allow approved authorities to recognise more effectively the efforts of those householders who reduce, reuse and recycle their waste, and provide an incentive to those who currently do not.

A maximum of five local authorities will be able to pilot schemes and councils will be able to come forward with their own plans to fit local circumstances, for approval by the Secretary of State. This approach will allow us to monitor the impacts of incentives in England and report back to Parliament before a decision is made as to whether to roll this power out more widely.

Recycling: Standards

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effect on the quality and value of recycled material of separating waste for recycling. [168558]

Joan Ruddock: Market values for recovered materials depend on the supply and demand conditions in end-use markets (which may be overseas) as well as factors including volume, the price of substitute materials (including virgin materials), energy prices and other commodity prices.

The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) produces a monthly Materials Pricing Report, available on its website, which focuses on prices for recovered materials. This indicates that higher prices are achieved for materials which have been effectively sorted into economically valuable components. For example, the market value of recycled aluminium cans is around £700-£750 per tonne compared to £150 per tonne for mixed cans.

WRAP's advice is that, at the present time, kerbside sorting delivers better quality materials to the marketplace and with lower levels of contamination compared to co-mingled collections of recyclables. This improved quality may not currently be reflected in market prices. However an advantage of kerbside sorting is that the benefits from the sale of materials tend to accrue directly to the local authority selling the materials while co-mingled schemes involve the payment of gate fees for additional sorting.

Seabed: Scotland

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received from the Scottish Executive on changes to the control of the sea bed up to the 200 nautical miles limit around Scotland, with particular reference to the proposed Marine Bill; and if he will make a statement. [166204]

Jonathan Shaw: During the preparation of the Marine Bill White Paper and the draft Marine Bill, DEFRA has received representations from the devolved administrations regarding the appropriate balance of responsibilities in the UK marine area. In coming to a view on legislation, the Government work closely with the devolved administrations. Proposals for a UK Marine Bill will be brought forward in due course.

Sites of Special Scientific Interest: Standards

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the percentage of sites of special scientific interest which were in favourable condition in each year for which records are available; what steps are being taken to ensure the Government reaches its Public Service Agreement target to bring 95 per cent. of nationally important wildlife sites into favourable condition by 2010; and if he will make a statement. [165542]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 26 November 2007] The public service agreement target to bring 95 per cent. of sites of special scientific interest (SSSI) land into favourable or recovering condition was set in 2000. The first round of the condition assessment programme was completed in 2003 and showed that 56.9 per cent. of SSSI area was in target condition. The figures for 2004, 2005, 2006 and 2007 (as at 31 March) were 62.9 per cent., 67.4 per cent., 72.3 per cent. and 75.4 per cent. respectively. At 20 November 2007, 77.14 per cent. of SSSI area was in target condition.

We are working closely with our delivery partners, including Natural England and the Environment Agency, towards delivery of the SSSI PSA target and are closely monitoring progress and addressing any issues that might occur. We are confident that the 2010 target of 95 per cent. remains achievable.

Tigers: India

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government has taken to seek to prevent the extinction of the Indian tiger; and if he will make a statement. [166993]

Joan Ruddock: Since 2000 the UK has committed around £500,000 to tiger conservation. This is through our membership of the Global Tiger Forum, where we are the only non range state member, and through support to '21st Century Tiger', which is a wild tiger conservation partnership between the Zoological Society of London and Global Tiger Patrol.

In addition, the Government funded and organised a wildlife crime workshop in India in 2006 in support of the UK-India Sustainable Development Dialogue. Law enforcement officers and conservationists from the UK and India identified poaching and illegal trade as a major cause of the sharp drop in tiger numbers. The workshop recommended that each state government draw up and implement an action plan to end poaching through better surveillance and imposition of tough penalties. To assist in this process the Government have provided financial assistance to the Wildlife Protection Society of India (WPSI) to conduct a series of training and capacity building sessions to officials from state forest departments, police and customs. Around 270 officials have been trained on issues in relation to trade in endangered species, such as the tiger.

Waste Management

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with local authorities about the management of waste; and if he will make a statement. [167583]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 26 November 2007]: My Department has discussions regularly with local authorities about a wide range of issues concerned with waste management.

The Government set out their vision for sustainable waste management in Waste Strategy for England 2007, published in May. Local authorities play a key role in delivering this national strategy and both Ministers and officials from my Department have engaged with authorities on the strategy's development and will continue to do so as it is implemented and delivered.

Water: Standards

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the classification of bathing water between 2016 and 2020 under the criteria outlined in Article 5(4) of Directive 2006/7/EC; and if he will make a statement. [168231]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 26 November 2007, Official Report, column 30W.

Since we expect that all designated bathing waters will achieve the 'sufficient' classification under the revised Bathing Water Directive 2006/7/EC, by the end of the 2015 bathing season, we do not intend to make use of Article 5(4) of the directive.

TREASURY

Academies Review

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which academies will be studied by the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit as part of its Academies Review; and if he will make a statement. [167780]

Andy Burnham: The joint PMDU/DCSF review of the Academies programme is looking at how the Academies programme is meeting the objectives of turning around attainment in underperforming schools and how the programme is addressing a culture of underachievement and low aspirations in some of the most disadvantaged communities. Officials are studying progress across the full Academy programme.

Child Benefit: Personal Records

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish the agreement between HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) and the National Audit Office (NAO) that governs the NAO's access to personal data held by HMRC. [167677]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The NAO derive their authority from four main Acts of Parliament; these are the Exchequer and Audit Department Acts 1866 and 1921, the National Audit (NAO) Act 1983 and the Government Resources and Accounts Act 2000. These pieces of legislation govern the NAO's access to personal data held by HMRC. The legislation is already available in the public domain.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of child benefit recipients' potential vulnerability to identity theft following the loss of their personal records by HM Revenue and Customs; what steps his Department has taken to guard against that risk. [167680]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 26 November 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the statement given in the House by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer on 20 November 2007, Official Report, columns 1101-04.

On 20 November, the Chancellor announced a review of HMRC's data handling procedures to be conducted by Kieran Poynter, the Chair of PricewaterhouseCoopers.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the child benefit data missing from HM Revenue and Customs carried a protective (a) marking and (b) classification. [167686]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 26 November 2007]: As the location of the data is the subject of police investigation, it would be inappropriate to publicly divulge any details of the appearance of the CDs at this stage.

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many HM Revenue and Customs officials had permission to copy onto a computer disc a full copy of HMRC's data on the payment of child benefits as at 18 October 2007. [167773]

(2) pursuant to his oral statement of 20 November 2007, whether the same HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) official provided the National Audit Office with a full copy of HMRC's data in relation to the payment of child benefit in (a) March 2007 and (b) October 2007. [167847]

Jane Kennedy [holding answers 26 November 2007]: There is an ongoing Metropolitan Police Service investigation and an independent review of HMRC's security processes and procedures for data handling led by Kieran Poynter, the chair of PricewaterhouseCoopers.

Jane Kennedy: The missing information contains details of all child benefit recipients: including those in Peterborough constituency.

Information on families receiving child benefit at 31 August 2006 by local authority and parliamentary constituency are published as part of National Statistics and can be found in tables 2 and 3 of Child Benefit Statistics Geographical Analysis which are available on HMRC's website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/child_benefit/geog-aug06.pdf

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of HM Revenue and Customs' staff training in procedures on access to copying and dissemination of personal data. [168049]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 26 November 2007]: Kieran Poynter, chair of PricewaterhouseCoopers, will investigate HMRC's security processes and procedures for data handling.

The full terms of reference for that review are available on the HM Treasury website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/newsroom_and_speeches/press/2007/press_133_07.cfm

The review will cover the steps that should be taken to ensure any further measures are adhered to consistently by all staff.

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many of those children and parents' personal details contained on the two CD-Roms lost in transit between HM Revenue and Customs and the National Audit Office on 18 October were from (a) Leeds and (b) West Yorkshire. [168188]

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many full-time equivalent staff in his Department are working on tracing the lost compact discs containing child benefit data. [168209]

Jane Kennedy: The Metropolitan police are conducting a full investigation in order to find the missing data. As part of their investigation, the police are leading the search of HMRC premises. HMRC staff are co-operating fully with the Metropolitan police in their ongoing searches and investigations.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will consider the merits of using an alternative courier to transport data from the HM Revenue and Customs to external destinations. [168224]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The loss of the discs is subject of an ongoing police investigation and it would be inappropriate to comment further at this stage.

On 13 November HMRC initiated immediate increased security.

On 20 November the Chancellor announced a review of HMRC's data handling procedures to be conducted by Kieran Poynter, the Chair of PricewaterhouseCoopers.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons the loss of confidential child benefit information was not made public until 20 November; whether (a) banks and (b) the Information Commissioner requested the matter not to be made public until that time; and if he will make a statement. Jane Kennedy [holding answer 26 November 2007]: On 13 November HMRC's chairman wrote to his directors to set out rules governing the transfer of data and also wrote to all staff initiating an immediate tightening of security.

On 27 September the HM Treasury Permanent Secretary emailed all staff in the Department reminding them of their responsibilities. This covered all aspects of security.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which Ministers in his Department have responsibility for security of information held by (a) his Department and (b) HM Revenue and Customs. [167687]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 26 November 2007]: Under the overall direction of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Exchequer Secretary is responsible for the information security in the Treasury.

(b) 27 non-EU foreign nationals.

Departmental Land

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what land surplus to his Department's requirements it is (a) selling, (b) leasing and (c) planning to (i) sell and (ii) lease; and what the size and name of each relevant site is. [168857]

Angela Eagle: The Chancellor has no land currently surplus to the requirements of his Department.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the office costs for his Department's special advisers for 2007-08 are expected to be, including costs of support staff; and how many full-time equivalent civil servants work in support of such special advisers. [164935]

Angela Eagle: As part of their responsibilities, five staff currently provide support to the special advisers to the Chief Secretary and the Chancellor of the Exchequer and to the Council of Economic Advisers. They provide support of a non-political nature in accordance with the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers.

Cost details are not disclosed in order to protect the privacy of the individuals concerned. Office costs will be accounted for in the 2007-08 departmental annual report and accounts.

Departmental Publicity

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has been spent by his Department on advertising in the last 12 months. [167946]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to him by the then Financial Secretary (John Healey) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 374W.

Employment: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of people in the Peterborough City Council area are employed in (a) service industries and (b) manufacturing industries; and if he will make a statement. [168123]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 28 November 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what percentage of people in the Peterborough City Council area are employed in (a) service industries and (b) manufacturing industries. (168123)

In 2005, an estimated 84 per cent of employee jobs in Peterborough local authority area were in service industries and 12 per cent. were in manufacturing industries.

These estimates are from the Annual Business Inquiry (ABI). They do not include self-employment jobs.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the ABI are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Game Birds

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answers of 19 November 2007, Official Report, column 593W, on VAT: game and 10 October 2006, Official Report, column 725W, on game birds, what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the percentage of game birds shot for sport which are (i) consumed by humans and (ii) disposed of by other means; and if he will make a statement. [168407]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

During 2006 and 2007, my Department commissioned research to develop a tool to monitor the harvest of huntable birds and other bird species in the UK using data collected under existing National Gamebag Census (NGC) and Waterfowl Shooting Survey (WSS) schemes for the purposes of monitoring UK bag statistics, in particular for species whose European conservation status is considered unfavourable. The research found that the NGC and WSS have the potential to monitor bags of 21 out of 27 huntable species and has the potential to monitor all 11 pest species. The tool needs further refinement before it could be used to monitor hunting bags.

A report by the Public and Corporate Economic Consultants in 2006 estimated that the total number of gamebirds and wildfowl shot for sport in 2004 was just under 19 million, almost four fifths of these were pheasants and 99 per cent. was destined for the food chain. A small percentage of birds may not pass as fit for human consumption under EU food hygiene regulations which came into force on 1 January 2006.

Health Insurance

Norman Lamb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many officials in (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies have private health insurance provided as part of their employment package. [167924]

Andy Burnham: A review of the Invest to Save Budget: An Innovation Fund for Public Services was published on 24 July 2007 with a chapter on the value for money of the Invest to Save Budget (ISB) portfolio.

A copy of the review can be found in the House Library.

Migrant Workers: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of inward migration on (a) economic activity and (b) the labour market in Peterborough constituency over the last 10 years. [168765]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 28 November 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question on economic activity and the labour market in the Peterborough parliamentary constituency. (168765)

Gross Domestic Product (GDP) is the main summary indicator of economic activity in the UK. Because data collection, estimation and reporting are not structured according to demographic groups, the national accounts framework does not however make it possible to identify the direct contribution of immigrants to the measured levels of economic activity.

The Office for National Statistics compiles statistics for labour supply indicators for local areas from the annual Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

The data for analysing migrant workers comes from the above surveys. The National Statistics method for estimating the number of migrant workers employed in the UK is routinely based on the number of people at a given time who were born abroad, are of working age (16-64 for men, 16-59 for women), and in employment. This question has been answered on this basis. It means, for example, that some people who are UK nationals will be included in the total of "foreign born" and that people who are working but are above state pension age are not included.

When interpreting these figures, it is important also to bear in mind that the LFS and APS are not designed to cover everyone who is present in the UK. The survey may undercount the numbers of people who were born overseas. The reasons are set out in the table footnote.

The annual LFS and APS estimates at this detailed level are only available consistent with the UK population estimates published in February and March 2003 and are not comparable with the estimates published in the Labour Market Statistics First Release on 14 November 2007, which are based on latest population estimates.

The table attached, shows the numbers of employed, unemployed and economically active persons of working age who were not born in the UK and were resident in Peterborough constituency, for the twelve month periods ending in February for 2001 to 2004 from the annual LFS, and for the twelve month periods ending in March 2005, March 2006 and December 2006 from the APS (the January to December 2006 APS dataset is the most recent for which information on country of birth is currently available). The table also shows the numbers of non-UK born economically active persons as percentages of all economically active persons of working age, in the area. Data on country of birth are not available on annual LFS datasets before 2000.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in small geographical areas, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. Estimates of change over time should be treated with particular caution.

[1] Includes males aged 16-64 and females aged 16-59
* Sample size too small to provide estimate.
— Estimate less than 500

Notes:
Estimates are subject to sampling variability.
It should also be noted that the country of birth question in the LFS gives an undercount because:
it excludes certain people who have not been resident in the UK for six months.
it excludes students in halls who do not have a UK resident parent.
it excludes people in most other types of communal establishments (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites, etc).
it is grossed to population estimates which exclude migrants staying for less than 12 months.
microdata are grossed to population estimates consistent with those published in spring 2003 which are significantly lower than the latest population estimates.

Public Expenditure

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total block grant allocated to (a) Scotland, (b) Northern Ireland, (c) Wales and (d) comparable Government spending on services in England was in each year since 2001-02. [167900]

Andy Burnham: Departmental expenditure limits of all UK Departments and the devolved Administrations in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland for the years 2001-02 to 2007-08 are set out in table 1.12 of the 2007 edition of Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses. Spending totals relating to comparable services in England are not published. The comparability factors for Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland are published in annex C of the Treasury publication Funding the Scottish Parliament, National Assembly for Wales and Northern Ireland Assembly: Statement of Funding Policy. This was first published in 1999 and has been updated in each spending review.

Revenue and Customs

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer further to his statement of 20 November 2007, Official Report, columns 1101-18, on HM Revenue and Customs, whether he intends to publish the advice he received from the Information Commissioner. [168053]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 26 November 2007]: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer received advice from the Information Commissioner at their meeting on 15 November. The Information Commissioner did not provide written advice.

Tax Yields: Offshore Industry

Mr. Doran: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of the effect of decommissioning North sea oil and gas platforms and other infrastructure on tax revenues over the next (a) five, (b) 10, (c) 15 and (d) 20 years. [167778]

Angela Eagle: The Government's forecast for North sea tax revenues take into account an assessment of the expected impact of decommissioning. Overall estimates of the cost of decommissioning vary, however the eventual monetary and tax cost is likely to be significant. This will in due course give rise to a downward impact on North sea revenues. However the impact of this will be spread over a large number of years and with the significant remaining potential of the North sea the UK will continue to benefit from our national natural resources for a considerable time.

HEALTH

Abortion

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the proportion of conceptions which ended in terminations in each year from 1990 to 2000. [168914]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is set out in the following table:

Annual statistics on abortions as a percentage of all conceptions (England and Wales) for each year from 1990 to 2000

|---|---|---|
| | Total (000) | Percentage ending in abortion |

Accident and Emergency Services: NHS Direct

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he has made any assessment of the impact of NHS Direct on the (a) number and (b) appropriateness of accident and emergency attendances. [166443]

Mr. Bradshaw: Less than 10 per cent. of the total number who call NHS direct and only 8 per cent. of those with symptoms are advised currently to attend accident and emergency. Nearly half (47 per cent.) of all calls to NHS Direct are completed within NHS Direct meaning that the patient does not need to seek help or treatment elsewhere.

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many under 14 year olds were treated for alcohol-related health problems in the last 12 months, broken down by strategic health authority. [163165]

Ambulance Services: NHS Direct

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS ambulance trusts have call centres integrated with NHS Direct. [166446]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are six NHS Direct call centres co-located with ambulance control rooms. NHS Direct is working with other services, including ambulance trusts, to increase partnership working.

Cirencester Hospital

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 267W, on Cirencester Hospital, when he expects to announce the decision on an independent sector provider contract for Cirencester Hospital. [167761]

Mr. Bradshaw: The proposed scheme for the Avon, Gloucester and Wiltshire area, which currently includes Cirencester hospital as a potential site for services, is proceeding through the phase 2 procurement process. The Department has recently concluded discussions with the national health service with regard to the final specifications of the scheme with the aim of ensuring that health care services are effective, accessible and responsive to local needs.

The Department will conclude decisions on the remaining phase 2 schemes no later than end of March 2008. Announcements on any contracted provider will be made once the scheme has received all the necessary approvals.

Dental Services: Ribble Valley

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many residents of (a) Ribble Valley and (b) Lancashire are currently registered with an NHS dentist. [168935]

Ann Keen [holding answer 27 November 2007]: The information is not available in the requested format. Under the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006, patients do not have to be registered with a dentist to receive national health service care. The closest equivalent measure to 'registration' is the number of patients receiving NHS dental services ('patients seen') in a given area over a 24-month period, for that area. Information is available at primary care trust (PCT) and strategic health authority (SHA) area in England, but not at constituency level.

In the East Lancashire PCT 164,213 patients were seen over a 24-month period ending 31 March 2007; 111,291 adults and 52,922 children.

In the north west SHA 4,090,077 patients were seen over a 24-month period ending 31 March 2007; 2,993,028 adults and 1,097,049 children.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department's information technology and data management systems are BS7799 compliant. [168747]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is compliant with IS027001 the International Standards Organisation standard on information security management systems which replaced BS7799.

The Department is currently being assessed for continued compliance with the standard under the terms by which compliance is assured.

Departmental Property

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by his Department on renovation and refurbishment of its properties in each of the last five years. [164371]

Mr. Bradshaw: Spend by the Department in the financial years from 2002-03 has been:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 0 |
| 2003-04 | 1,113,565 |
| 2004-05 | 963,974 |
| 2005-06 | 5,033,305 |
| 2006-07 | 3,520,407 |

Diabetes

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government has taken to improve the lives of those with diabetes since 1997. [167898]

Ann Keen [holding answer 26 November 2007]: In December 2001 the Department published the "Diabetes National Service Framework" (NSF). This set out 12 National Standards for diabetes in the areas of prevention, identification, education and treatment and was put in place to raise the quality of services for people with diabetes.

The standards were followed by the "National Service Framework: Delivery Strategy". Published in January 2003, the Delivery Strategy provides a vision of what services should be in place by 2013, and what steps will be necessary to deliver those services.

The national diabetes support team (NDST) was established in 2003. This has been a successful mechanism for the delivery of the NSF, providing support to local services through its regional programme managers and developing tools and resources that can be used nationally.

Dr. Sue Roberts was appointed national clinical director to lead on implementation of the National Service Framework. Dr. Roberts works closely with colleagues in the Department and the NDST to spread good practice and provide professional leadership at a national level.

The introduction of the new Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF) as part of the general practitioner contract had led to the diagnosis of around 200,000 extra people in the last two years. This means that these people are now able to access the care, advice and treatment they need to enable them to manage their diabetes more effectively and reduce their risk of complications. The QOF also measures achievement of key clinical indicators for people with diabetes, such as HbA1c, blood pressure and cholesterol levels. This has also shown improvements in the management of diabetes over the last three years.

The Department works together with the NDST and other organisations such as Diabetes UK to provide the national health service with tools and guidance to support them in improving local services for people with diabetes. This includes a Diabetes Commissioning Toolkit, care planning guidance and a report on improving services for children and young people with diabetes.

Patient education is key to empowering people with diabetes to be partners in their own care. The number of sites offering good quality structured education is increasing, but the 2007 "Healthcare Commission survey of people with diabetes" showed that only 11 per cent., of people with diabetes have accessed patient education. We are supporting the spread of these programmes through our patient education guidance, which outlines the elements necessary for developing high-quality patient education programmes and highlights best practice to enable local services to meet the recommendations in the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidance and NSF.

The fourth NSF progress report "The Way Ahead: The Local Challenge" was published in March 2007 and highlights progress made in the four years following the publication of the delivery strategy. The report highlights the progress that frontline NHS staff have made in improving diabetes services, and provides examples of best practice. A copy has been placed in the Library and is also available at:

Drugs: Patents

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many British companies hold the patents to drugs that have no generic alternative. [165195]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

From the databases which record patent data, it is not possible to determine which patents, for products having pharmaceutical properties, have resulted in drugs which have been put on sale in the market place. It is also not possible from these databases to tell whether a generic equivalent of a patented drug is available. While a patent remains in force, it is unlikely that a generic alternative will be available.

General Practitioners

Frank Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the costs and benefits of GPs with special interests. [168353]

Mr. Bradshaw: No assessment has been made centrally of the costs and benefits of general practitioners (GPs) with special interests. It is for local health commissioners, both primary care trusts and practice-based commissioners, to determine which local services - including services provided by GPs with a special interest will best meet the needs of their local populations within the resources available to them, and to fund these services accordingly. The development of GPs with special interests has expanded the range of options available to local commissioners.

General Practitioners: Manpower

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many general practitioners there are for each 100,000 of the population in each (a) region and (b) primary care trust area. [167918]

General Practitioners: NHS Direct

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the impact of NHS Direct on demand for GP out-of-hours services in those areas where NHS Direct (a) is and (b) is not integrated with GP out-of-hours services; with how many GP out-of-hours providers NHS Direct is integrated; and if he will make a statement. [166448]

Mr. Bradshaw: Out-of-hours services are commissioned by primary care trusts and do not form part of the national services commissioned by the Department from NHS Direct. Further information may be available from the Chairman of NHS Direct NHS Trust.

Health Services: Speech Impaired

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what training is provided to general practitioners in identifying and treating children with a speech, language or communication disability. [167613]

Ann Keen [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Government do not specify the content of the general practitioner (GP) training curriculum. This is the job of the Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board (PMETB), which is the competent authority for postgraduate medical training in the United Kingdom. PMETB is an independent professional body.

PMETB has recently approved a new curriculum for postgraduate general practice training developed by the Royal College of General Practitioners to accompany the introduction of new training programmes in August 2007 as part of the Modernising Medical Careers reforms, available at:

www.rcgp-curriculum.org.uk

This should incorporate all the various requirements for training as a GP—any comments on the curriculum should be addressed to PMETB or the college.

Health Services: Waiting Lists

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has a traffic light assessment, or other risk monitoring, system in place for individual NHS trusts to monitor performance against targets that patients should wait no more than 18 weeks for treatment. [165693]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department publishes performance information on 18 weeks on [www.gnn.gov.uk]. The performance information is regularly reviewed with strategic health authorities as part of routine management discussions.

Heart Diseases: Transplant Surgery

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people are on the waiting list for heart transplant surgery; [168321]

(2) how many heart transplants were carried out in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006. [168322]

Ann Keen: [holding answer 26 November 2007]: On 22 November 2007, 78 people were registered on the heart transplant list.

The number of heart transplants carried out is shown in the following table.

Number of heart only transplants performed in the UK, by year

| | Number of heart only transplants performed |
|---|---|
| 2004 | 165 |
| 2005 | 147 |
| 2006 | 156 |

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what percentage of hearts removed from donors (a) were transplanted into recipients, (b) reached their destination hospital within the safe limit of ischaemic time and (c) were not transplanted into recipients, in the latest period for which figures are available; [168323]

(2) what percentage of donor hearts were found to be diseased or otherwise defective prior to transplantation in the latest period for which figures are available. [168324]

Ann Keen [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The three most common reasons for not retrieving the heart were poor function (40 per cent.), donor unsuitable—past history (17 per cent.) and no suitable recipients (12 per cent.). Overall 734 of the 1,044 hearts (70 per cent.) not retrieved were not retrieved due to medical issues with the organ or donor (50 per cent. of all hearts offered). This is shown in the following table.

The reasons given for not transplanting 14 hearts, which were retrieved, were: donor unsuitable—past history (four), poor function (three), transport difficulties (two), unknown (two), organ damaged (one), donor unsuitable—age (one) and donor unsuitable—size (one).

There is no official 'safe' length of ischaemia time for donor hearts, but it is generally accepted that ischaemia times should be kept under four hours wherever possible. For adult deceased heartbeating donor hearts offered for transplant, 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2007, 70 per cent. of ischaemia times were four hours or less, 86 per cent. were 4.5 hours or less, 96 per cent. were five hours or less.

Note:

Ischaemia times relates to the time the heart is reperfused in the recipient, not to the time the heart arrives at the destination hospital.

Hip Replacement: Waiting Lists

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time is for hip replacement operations in (a) Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust and (b) London NHS trusts. [167314]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested can be found in the following table.

[1] There was no time waited data available. This may be due to poor recording of the admission date and/or decision to admit date.

Note:

FAE A FAE is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

Data Quality

Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS Trusts and Primary Care Trusts (PCTs) in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. Whilst this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Main Operation

The main operation is the first recorded operation in the HES data set and is usually the most resource intensive procedure performed during the episode. It is appropriate to use main operation when looking at admission details, e.g. time waited, but the figures for 'all operations' count of episodes give a more complete count of episodes with an operation.

OPCS 4.2 codes used: W37, W38, W39, W46, W47, W48

Time Waited (days)

Time waited statistics from HES are not the same as the published waiting list statistics. HES provides counts and time waited for all patients admitted to hospital within a given period whereas the published waiting list statistics count those waiting for treatment on a specific date and how long they have been on the waiting list. Also, HES calculates the time waited as the difference between the admission and decision to admit dates. Unlike published waiting list statistics, this is not adjusted for self-deferrals or periods of medical/social suspension.

HIV Infection: Drugs

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many HIV/AIDS drug patents are held by British companies. [162203]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

There are 125 patents for different HIV/AIDS drugs held by UK based companies. These include subsidiaries of foreign companies which have a corporate address in the United Kingdom.

Incontinence: Medical Equipment

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) for what reason his Department proposes to decrease the number of sub-categories within the classification system for Part IX of the drug tariff; what account was taken of the balance of responses to the Department's recent consultation on the subject; and if he will make a statement; [164554]

(2) what the cost of the two year consultation relating to Part IX of the Drug Tariff was; and what the cost was of Deloitte and Touche's fees for work on the consultation. [164616]

Mr. Bradshaw: The current listing of stoma and incontinence appliances in part IX of the Drug Tariff is very broad.

The November 2006 consultation set out proposals which classified the 5,000 plus stoma and incontinence items into 288 sub-categories of appliances deemed by healthcare professionals to meet similar medical need.

Responses were reviewed by representatives from the original group of healthcare professionals and a wider group. This allowed two groups of specialists to be set up: one to review urology items and one to review stoma. As part of the review process, the panels again considered whether items met similar medical need—and product features such as size and material.

Based on the recommendations from these healthcare professionals, the Department now proposes that there should be 228 sub-categories of items as opposed to the 288 that were consulted on in November 2006.

The cost of the review is part of the Department's ongoing operational budget. Deloitte are acting as advisors to the Department on this review. The contract between the Department and its adviser is an ongoing arrangement set up within the parameters of public sector procurement and is commercial in confidence.

Influenza: Vaccination

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) courses of antivirals and (b) doses of A/H5N1 vaccine were used for the prophylaxis of those potentially exposed to avian influenza infection in the (i) Essex A/H5N1 quarantine incident in 2005, (ii) the Fife A/H5N1 incident in 2006, (iii) the Norfolk A/H7N3 incident in 2006, (iv) the Suffolk A/H5N1 incident in 2007, (v) the North Wales A/H7N2 incident in 2007 and (vi) the Norfolk A/H5N1 incident in 2007; and what the average dosage was per person. [166437]

Dawn Primarolo: The following table shows, for each outbreak, the number of people to whom courses of the antiviral oseltamivir (tamiflu) were administered. The standard course for prophylactic treatment with oseltamivir is 75 mgs once a day for ten days. In the outbreaks of avian flu, a range of dose regimes was used as follows:

the adult treatment dose is 75 mg twice a day for five days;

the adult prophylactic dose (post exposure) 75 mg per day for 10 days;

the adult prophylaxis dose (pre-exposure) 75 mg per day for up to 42 days (throughout period of exposure and continued until seven days after exposure); and the dose for children depends on the weight of the child.

A/H5N1 vaccine is not used for outbreaks of avian flu. Our stockpile of vaccine is currently reserved for possible use in a human influenza pandemic.

This corrects the information given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State (Alan Johnson) on 22 November 2007, Official Report, column 1357.

[1] These figures include adults and children. Fewer than 10 children received post-exposure prophylaxis with anitiviral drugs. No children received pre-exposure prophylaxis.
[2] The incident took place in Suffolk and therefore the name of the incident given in the table is different to that listed in the question.

Maidstone Hospital: Clostridium

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the performance of the relevant strategic health authority in relation to each outbreak of clostridium difficile at Maidstone hospital. [168634]

Ann Keen [holding answer 27 November 2007]: The Healthcare Commission report of their Investigation into outbreaks of clostridium difficile at Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust included an assessment of the role of the south east coast strategic health authority (SHA). It included no specific recommendations for the SHA.

Mental Health Services: Warley

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to relocate the mental health unit at Mascalls Park, Warley to Romford. [167440]

Mr. Bradshaw: Any proposals for the reconfiguration of services are a matter for the national health service locally. As such, North East London Mental Health Trust (NELMHT) has recently conducted a full public consultation on the future of mental health services across the four boroughs of Barking and Dagenham, Havering, Redbridge, and Waltham Forest.

The consultation began on 27 July and ended 19 October 2007, and we are informed that one of the key points for consultation was the future of in-patient mental health services for patients from Barking and Dagenham, and Havering, which are currently located at Mascalls Park hospital, Brentwood. The trust board will discuss the outcome of the consultation at its meeting on 27 November 2007.

Mid Essex Primary Care Trust: Bowel Cancer

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the national bowel cancer screening programme will be implemented in the Mid Essex Primary Care Trust area; and if he will make a statement. [166245]

Ann Keen [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The NHS bowel cancer screening programme is one of the first national bowel screening programmes in the world, and the first cancer screening programme in England to invite men as well as women. It is an ambitious project, and full national roll-out is expected by December 2009.

Work in the Mid Essex Primary Care Trust area is currently ongoing and we expect implementation to be achieved by mid to late 2008. The provision of local health services is the responsibility of the local national health service organisations in conjunction with their strategic health authorities.

Midwives: Pay

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations he has received on midwives' salaries. [167695]

Ann Keen [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Government have now submitted their evidence to the NHS Pay Review Body for the pay uplift from April 2008. This review body covers all Agenda for Change staff including midwives. It is for the review body to now consider all the issues including evidence from the unions before making their recommendations. It is not appropriate to speculate at this time what they may recommend.

Our recommendations (2 per cent. rise in headline pay for staff) are in line with the Government's public sector pay policy to ensure economic stability. We are seeking a fair award reflecting the balance between the right level of pay and the need to be vigilant against the threats of inflation.

Milton Keynes Hospital: Cleaning Services

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many different areas of Milton Keynes hospital have been identified as requiring a deep clean; [167586]

(2) what decant area has been identified at Milton Keynes hospital to facilitate the proposed deep clean; [167587]

(3) what the estimated cost is to deep clean each area of Milton Keynes hospital proposed for a deep clean. [167588]

Ann Keen [holding answer 26 November 2007]: As the Prime Minister made clear, deep cleaning will occur in all hospitals, starting this winter, with resources allocated through the strategic health authorities (SHAs). Each trust's deep-clean plan will vary according to local need. Trusts will agree costed deep clean plans with their lead commissioners and SHA, who will monitor performance against this plan, as per normal performance management arrangements. Foundation trusts will also be invited to agree plans and funding for additional deep cleaning with local commissioners, together with local arrangements for checking the agreed work has been carried out. SHAs will take an overview as to progress across their area and will report to the Department.

Information on plans of individual trusts is therefore not routinely collected by the Department.

Monitor

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health by what mechanisms Monitor is held accountable to Parliament. [168570]

Mr. Bradshaw: As set out in the National Health Service Act 2006, Monitor is held accountable to Parliament via the following mechanisms:

the regulator must prepare an annual report on how it has exercised its functions during the year. The regulator must lay a copy of the report before Parliament;

the regulator must in respect of each financial year prepare a report which provides an overall summary of the accounts of NHS Foundation Trusts. The regulator must lay a copy of the report before Parliament; the regulator must respond in writing to any recommendation which:

is made by a Committee of either House of Parliament, or a Committee of both Houses; and relates to the exercise by the regulator of its functions.

In addition, the regulator must exercise its functions effectively, efficiently and economically.

As the designated accounting officer of Monitor, the chairman is responsible to Parliament for all resources under his control. In his capacity as accounting officer he may be called upon to appear before the Public Accounts Committee.

NHS Blood and Transplant: Schools

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the reasons were for setting the target for the number of schools participating in UK Transplant's Give and Let Live donor education programme for 2007-08 at 1,090; [167048]

(2) which schools have agreed to participate in UK Transplant's Give and Let Live donor education programme, broken down by local education authority; [167049]

(3) how much has been allocated to UK Transplant's Give and Let Live donor education programme for (a) 2007-08, (b) 2008-09 and (c) 2009-10. [167050]

Ann Keen [holding answers 22 November 2007]: The target number of schools participating in the Give and Let Live donor education programme represents the 30 per cent. target that NHS blood and transplant (NHS BT) is aiming for. This 30 per cent. target was arrived at following professional advice and is considered challenging but realistic.

Details of the schools participating in the programme are held within NHS BT, in accordance with the data management statement produced in conjunction with the schools involved.

To date, approximately £260,000 has been spent on the project (2006-07 and 2007-08), which included additional set-up costs. A further £100,000 has been allocated for 2008-09. Budgets have yet to be set for 2009-10.

NHS Direct

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the level of compliance amongst callers to NHS Direct with the advice they receive. [166445]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on this is not held centrally but may be available from the Chairman of NHS Direct NHS Trust.

NHS Treatment Centres: Private Sector

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many independent sector treatment centres (ISTCs) are (a) in operation, (b) under construction and (c) planned; how much has been spent on establishing ISTCs; how much is planned to be spent in (i) 2007-08, (ii) 2008-09 and (iii) 2009-10; and what plans the Government have for the future of the ISTC programme; [167941]

(2) what funds have been allocated to compensate contractors involved in the provision of independent sector treatment centres for proposed treatment centres which will now not proceed. [167942]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: There are 23 fixed site wave 1 independent sector treatment centres (ISTCs) in operation and six walk-in centres with a commuter focus. There is also a mobile ophthalmology service, a mobile MRI scanning service and a chlamydia screening service in Greater London for 16 to 24-year-olds. Five phase 2 ISTC schemes are operational, three offering elective procedures and two offering diagnostics. This includes the West Midlands diagnostics scheme which will stop providing services in February 2008. Through phase 2, services are currently being delivered through 103 fixed and mobile sites (including interim site solutions) and it is expected that an additional 13 sites will come on-stream in the coming months.

Three phase 2 schemes have been approved to move to financial close and a further seven are in procurement. Services are expected to be delivered from a number of sites, which provide greater accessibility for patients, through phase 2 schemes in procurement. As part of the mobilisation process, through wave one there are two ISTC sites and through phase 2 there are three ISTC sites which are currently under construction.

At the end of October 2007, the cost of the procurement of wave 1 and phase 2 was approximately £157 million including all assessment, scoping, procurement and associated management, professional advisory and support costs. This figure includes the cost incurred during 2007-08 (to date) of £11 million.

The Department will conclude decisions on the remaining schemes by the end of March 2008. At this stage, in terms of year by year spend in establishing (procuring, mobilising and managing) the phase 2 ISTCs schemes in procurement, it is not possible to break down the costs further, as budgets have not been agreed for coming years.

The Department will work with preferred bidders in a systematic way to consider any compensation claims that may be brought on a case by case basis, with regard to withdrawn schemes. No specific funds are allocated for this, however, the overall budget does include general contingencies for unforeseen events.

NHS Trusts: Maidstone

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to ensure the representation of (a) Maidstone and (b) Tunbridge Wells areas on the board of the relevant new NHS trust. [168635]

Ann Keen [holding answer 27 November 2007]: The appointment of chairs and non-executive members of national health service trusts has been delegated by the Secretary of State (Alan Johnson) to the Appointments Commission.

There is no requirement for executive members of a NHS trust board to be representative of the area served by the trust.

Preference will be given to people from the area served by the trust and the Commission will take account of the geographical spread of those recommended for appointment. The overarching principle, however, will be of appointment on merit. It will always be in the best interests of all of the communities served if the best available people are appointed to these important roles.

North East Region Strategic Health Authority: Finance

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what surplus was reported for the North East Region strategic health authority in 2006-07; and to what uses it was put. [167692]

Ann Keen [holding answer 26 November 2007]: At the end of 2006-07 North East strategic health authority reported an audited £64.5 million surplus. This surplus is not lost and is available to spend in future years.

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what surpluses were reported by each trust in the North East Region strategic health authority area at 31 October; and what surpluses are projected to be achieved by 31 October 2008. [167693]

Ann Keen [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The following table shows 2007-08 quarter 1 forecast outturn surplus/(deficit) for national health service trusts in the North East strategic health authority. The Department does not have financial information relating to the 2008-09 financial year.

| NHS Trust name | 2007-08 Q1 Forecast outturn surplus/(Deficit) £000 |
|---|---|
| North East Ambulance Service NHS Trust | 75 |
| North Tees and Hartlepool NHS Trust | 10,000 |
| Northumberland, Tyne and Wear NHS Trust | 0 |
| South Tees Hospitals NHS Trust | 7,000 |
| Tees, Esk and Wear Valleys NHS Trust | 2,120 |

Nurses: Urological Cancers

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans he has to change the provision of specialist nursing staff in the field of urological cancers; and if he will make a statement; [168332]

(2) how many urological cancer clinical nurse specialists were employed in each acute NHS trust in the East of England in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [168334]

Ann Keen [holding answer 27 November 2007]: Data on the number of urological cancer clinical nurse specialists are not collected centrally. The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has identified clinical nurse specialists as core members of the urology multidisciplinary team in their "Improving Outcomes in Urological Cancers" guidance issued in 2002. It is for cancer networks to work in partnership with strategic health authorities, NHS trusts and postgraduate deaneries to put in place a sustainable process to assess, plan and review their workforce needs and the education and training of all staff linked to local and national priorities for cancer including the implementation of NICE improving outcomes guidance.

Paediatrics: Greater Manchester

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps he is taking to ensure that the secondary paediatrics services are fully transferred to North Manchester General Hospital and fully functioning when Booth Hall Children's Hospital closes; [167043]

(2) what steps he is taking to ensure that the accident and emergency facility for children at North Manchester General Hospital is fully operational when Booth Hall Children's Hospital closes. [167044]

Ann Keen [holding answers 22 November 2007]: Changes to local services are a matter for local national health service organisations. The North West strategic health authority reports that NHS organisations have formed a children's programme board to lead on the important improvements to NHS care in the city of Manchester arising from the Making it Better public consultation process. This includes the transfer of services currently located at Booth Hall children's hospital.

These changes are subject to a thorough and robust planning process. Secondary care services will remain fully operational throughout the period of change, operating from the North Manchester general hospital site immediately following the closure of Booth Hall.

Prescription Drugs

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the amount of drugs classified as wasted was in 2006, broken down by region; [167608]

(2) what guidance he has issued to GPs on over-prescribing; [167609]

(3) what assessment he has made of the potential contribution of pharmacists in tackling the over-prescribing of medicines; [167610]

(4) whether there is a limit on the time for which any one medication is available on a patient's repeat prescription; [167611]

(5) what assessment he has made of the potential contribution of medicines packaging design to drug wastage; and what potential improvements are likely to be made. [167612]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Department has not quantified the amount of medicines classified as waste in 2006 nor assessed the potential contribution of medicines packaging design to drugs wastage. However, we have recently invited organisations to submit outline proposals on how to investigate the scale, costs and causes of medicines wastage.

The Department has not issued guidance to general practitioners on over-prescribing. However, primary care trusts employ prescribing advisers, often pharmacists, to encourage and secure rational and cost-effective prescribing and provide a source of advice and support for prescribers in their area.

The new contractual framework for community pharmacy supports a range of initiatives to help patients get the most from their medicines and reduce the amount of medicines wasted. Repeat dispensing is an essential service provided by all community pharmacies in England which allows prescriptions to be dispensed in instalments. Before dispensing the next instalment, the pharmacist must check with the patient that it is still needed. Medicines use reviews, an advanced service provided by accredited pharmacists in accredited premises and locally commissioned pharmacist-led full clinical medication reviews should also help to identify medicines that may no longer be required but they may also identify additional treatments that may be appropriate.

There is no legal limit for how many times a repeat prescription can be issued for a given medication before a patient review must take place. This is a decision for the prescriber to make in conjunction with their patient.

Primary Health Care

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria will be used in deciding on the locations of the 150 new walk-in centres and 100 new GP practices announced as part of the pre-Budget report and Comprehensive Spending Review. [167903]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: As set out in the 'Our NHS, Our Future' next stage review interim report we expect the 150 health centres to be easily accessible to all members of the local population, though the precise locations of the new health centres and practices will be determined by primary care trusts based on their local needs assessment.

Skin Cancer

Frank Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the most common state of progression of skin cancer when diagnosed by a GP. [168354]

Dawn Primarolo: None.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support Agency

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many of the Child Support Agency's cases concerned a child who was between the ages of 16 and 18 years in the last period for which figures are available. [165774]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 29 November 2007:

In reply to your parliamentary question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many of the Child Support Agency's cases concerned a child who was between the ages of 16 and 18 years in the last period for which figures are available. [165774]

As at September 2007, the Agency has 269,000 assessed cases which involved at least one child between the ages of 16 and 18 years inclusive. This figure includes cases with a positive liability as well as those with a nil liability.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Children: Daycare

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to improve access to child care for lone parents who are being encouraged back to work. [164416]

Caroline Flint: We want to give lone parents the opportunity to plan a better future for themselves and their children and we know that child care availability is of vital importance to lone parents returning to work.

In June 2007 the stock of registered child care stood at over 1.28 million places, which is more than double the 1997 total, and the aim of the Government's national child care strategy for England is that by 2010 there will be a child care place for all children aged between three and 14, between the hours of 8 am to 6 pm each weekday, all year round. By that date there will be over two million sustainable child care places for children up to the age of 14. The strategy is given legislative underpinning by the Childcare Act 2006 which requires local authorities in England and Wales to secure child care to meet the needs of working parents in their areas. The Scottish Executive have committed to extending access to child care that meets the needs of working parents even though the legislative requirements of the Childcare Act do not apply there.

Every Jobcentre Plus district has a child care partnership manager (CPM), with additional resource in new deal plus for lone parent pilot areas. CPMs have a key role to play in helping to improve access to child care and overcome child care barriers to work for unemployed parents and a fundamental part of this is gathering intelligence about the local child care market and customer needs, and using it to ensure that key issues for disadvantaged parents seeking to move into work are addressed within local child care provision.

Action is under way within Jobcentre Plus to ensure that all parents, not just lone parents, are routinely informed about formal child care and its benefits by Jobcentre Plus Advisers and signposted to further help and information, for example, from Children's Information Services.

Children: Maintenance

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he plans to take to ensure that maintenance payments calculated by the Childrens Maintenance and Enforcement Commission are appropriate in respect of both parents, with particular reference to costs incurred for daytime care of children. [167184]

Mr. Plaskitt: The principles of the basic maintenance formula under the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission (C-MEC) will be based on the structure of the simpler formula introduced in 2003 with percentage rates based on the non-resident parent's income and number of qualifying children. The percentage rates strike the right balance between the needs of the child and the other expenses that non-resident parents have to meet.

A reduction in the amount of child maintenance otherwise payable will continue to apply where the non-resident parent shares the care of a qualifying child for 52 or more nights a year. The Government have no plans to take account of daytime care. Childcare costs incurred by a working parent are recognised in housing benefit, council tax benefit and working tax credit.

Departmental Correspondence

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of inquiries received by his Department from the public were responded to within (a) one week, (b) 14 days, (c) 28 days, (d) two months and (e) three months in the last period for which figures are available; and in what percentage of cases it took (i) over three months and (ii) over one year to respond. [167377]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not available.

Departmental ICT

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department pays per computer to EDS for professional services each month; and whether this sum includes call-out charges. [169209]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department for Work and Pensions realigned its contract with EDS in 2005.

Under the realigned contract, EDS owns, supplies and refreshes the equipment every three years, while the Department pays for the services it uses.

The annual service charge for a standard desktop PC is about £590 (or approximately £49 per month). This includes use and refresh of the equipment, standard software, and a comprehensive range of maintenance and support services, including call-out charges where applicable.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the full-time equivalent headcount in his Department is; what the forecast full-time equivalent headcount for his Department is for (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10; and if he will make a statement. [163982]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department's headcount as at the 30 September 2007 (date of the latest quarterly statistics provided to the Office for National Statistics) was 105,460 (full-time equivalents).

Data published for earlier quarters is available at:

At this stage of the Spending Review 2007 planning process, the Department does not yet have a forecast headcount available for the financial years 2008-09 and 2009-10.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people aged (a) 30 to 39, (b) 40 to 49, (c) 50 to 59 and (d) 60 to 69 years have (i) applied for jobs, (ii) received interviews and (iii) gained (A) temporary and (B) permanent jobs in his Department in 2007. [165117]

Mrs. McGuire: This information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Participation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what opinion polls the Department has conducted of (a) the public and (b) staff since 27 June 2007; and what the (i) name of the firm employed to conduct the poll, (ii) purpose and (iii) cost to the public purse was in each case. [164945]

Mrs. McGuire: My Department has not conducted any opinion polls with staff since 27 June 2007. My Department has conducted the following omnibus research surveys which are outlined in the following table.

| Project | Contractor | Purpose | Cost (£) |
|---|---|---|---|
| NatCen Omnibus Survey (Module 1) | National Centre for Social Research | To examine attitudes to mental health and employment | 77,700 |
| NatCen Omnibus Survey (Module 2) | National Centre for Social Research | To examine attitudes to seeking psychological therapies for mental health conditions | 26,375 |
| NatCen Omnibus Survey | National Centre for Social Research | To examine attitudes to child poverty | 20,000 |
| ONS Omnibus Survey (Disability Module) | Office for National Statistics | Seeks opinion/views on a range of disability issues | 27,192 |
| Attitudes to state pensions | British Market Research Bureau | To explore attitudes to state pensions | 5,590 |

Departmental Secondment

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many secondments of staff were made (a) to and (b) from his Department in each year since 1997; which organisations staff were seconded (i) to and (ii) from; how many staff were seconded in each year; for how long each secondment lasted; and what the cost was of each secondment in each year. [167277]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested can be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of disability living allowance claims were rejected in the first instance in the latest period for which figures are available; and of this percentage how many of these cases were overturned on appeal. [163330]

Mrs. McGuire: In 2006-07 53 per cent. of disability living allowance new claims received were unsuccessful. Information about the percentage of these cases that were overturned on appeal is not available.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the levels of higher rate of (a) disability and (b) mobility allowance were in each year since 2002. [165977]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is in the following table.

Disability living allowance higher rates

| As at 1 April each year | Highest rate care | Higher rate mobility |
|---|---|---|
| 2002 | 56.25 | 39.30 |
| 2003 | 57.20 | 39.95 |
| 2004 | 58.80 | 41.05 |
| 2005 | 60.60 | 42.30 |
| 2006 | 62.25 | 43.45 |
| 2007 | 64.50 | 45.00 |

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will give consideration to extending winter fuel payments to include all severely disabled people in receipt of the higher rate of the mobility component of disability living allowance. [165980]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Winter fuel payments are paid to older people as a once a year lump sum payment in advance of winter heating bills. Generally, severely disabled people need help for their additional costs, which may include extra heating, all year round and not just in the winter months. Help is available for severely disabled people through the care and mobility components in disability living allowance and the disability premiums in the income-related benefits which have a substantially higher annual value than the winter fuel payment and are spread over a 52-week period. We always keep WFP under review.

Disability Living Allowance: Ritalin

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether parents can claim disability living allowance for children with behavioural problems which require prescriptions of Ritalin; and if he will make a statement. [163187]

Mrs. McGuire: Entitlement to disability living allowance is not linked to particular disabling conditions, but on the extent to which a severely disabled person has personal care needs and/or walking difficulties as a result of their disability. Parents can claim disability living allowance for children with behavioural problems, including those which require prescriptions of Ritalin, as long as their disability meets the above criteria.

Disabled: Fuel Costs

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what proportion of disability living allowance is allocated to cover extra fuel costs incurred by disabled people; [165979]

(2) in what ways his Department makes provision for the extra fuel costs incurred by high lesion spinal cord injured people requiring a minimum temperature controlled environment. [165981]

Mrs. McGuire: Disability living allowance is paid as a contribution towards the extra costs faced by severely disabled people as a result of their disabilities. Depending on their need for personal care, supervision or help getting around, this could include people with a high lesion spinal cord injury.

Disability living allowance is not intended to meet specific extra costs, such as fuel, and recipients are free to spend the benefit according to their own priorities and requirements.

Influenza

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress has been made in developing arrangements for (a) sickness certification and (b) payment of benefits as preparation for dealing with any future pandemic influenza outbreak; and if he will make a statement. [164972]

Mrs. McGuire: The precise characteristics and impact of an influenza pandemic will only become apparent as the virus emerges, so that the pandemic threat and the UK's level of preparedness are constantly evolving. DWP continues to be involved in drawing up and revising the UK pandemic flu plan, along with other Government Departments. Plans aim for the continuation of everyday activities as far as practicable, including the availability of sick pay and state benefits.

Appropriate changes to sickness certification, which balance the interests of patients, employers and the NHS, will be introduced as and when necessary to help achieve that aim. During an influenza pandemic, DWP will aim to continue services that support people into work, but will give priority to maintaining financial support. Customer payments, which are largely automated, will continue to be paid. DWP and HMRC have robust business continuity plans in place to ensure that the administration and key services that support these payments can be maintained during a pandemic.

Local Authorities: Equal Opportunities

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had with the Treasury on the appropriate level of resources for local authorities in relation to their obligations under the disability equality duty. [162609]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department held discussions on this issue with the Department for Communities and Local Government (then Office of the Deputy Prime Minister) as part of the development of the Disability Discrimination Act 2005.

We provided local authorities with an additional £11 million over the last two financial years, in line with our responsibilities under the New Burdens rules for the work which authorities were required to carry out to develop a disability equality scheme.

Pensions: British Nationals Overseas

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many recipients living overseas have had their state earnings related pension frozen; and how much it would cost to uprate those pensions (a) with and (b) without back payments. [169581]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: We estimate that the state earnings related pension is paid to around 110,000 overseas recipients of the UK state pension who live in countries where the pension is not uprated.

The estimated cost to uprate this element of the state pension is around 18 million in 2007-08 and it would cost around £170 million in 2007-08 if this was backdated and arrears paid.

Note: Estimates based on the latest available September 2006 RPWB dataset (5 per cent. administrative data sample).

Social Security Benefits: Pensioners

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the value was of attendance allowance and disability living allowance payments to people over retirement age living in the Huddersfield local authority area in (a) 1996 and (b) 2006-07. [162543]

Mrs. McGuire: Information about the value of attendance allowance and disability living allowance payments to people over retirement age is in the following tables.

| Kirklees local authority | Status | Year | Annual expenditure (£ million) cash terms |
|---|---|---|---|
| Attendance allowance | Outturn | 1996-97 | 15.4 |
| | Provisional outturn | 2006-07 | 21.1 |
| Disability living allowance | Outturn | 1996-97 | 8.7 |

| Disability living allowance | Outturn | 1996-97 | 11.5 |
| | Provisional outturn | 2006-07 | 23.0 |

Notes:
1. The 1996-97 caseloads used in the apportionment of expenditure are based on 5 per cent. samples, which have been calibrated to 100 per cent. data.
2. 100 per cent. data has been used to apportion expenditure for 2006-07.
3. All figures have been rounded to the nearest £100,000.
4. Expenditure has been converted from cash terms to 2007-08 prices using GDP deflators which were published alongside the 2007 pre-Budget report and comprehensive spending review.
5. All figures are consistent with the 2007 pre-Budget report and comprehensive spending review, as well as expenditure information published on the internet at www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd4/expenditure.asp.

Source:
Expenditure has been taken from departmental accounting systems and combined with 100 per cent. statistical data to identify the proportion of expenditure paid to people over retirement age living in Kirklees local authority.

Social Security Benefits: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people on benefits in Peterborough constituency had been in receipt of benefits continuously for over 12 months in each year since 1997, broken down by (a) active and (b) inactive benefits. [165918]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is in the following table.

Working age claimants of active or inactive benefits with a duration of over 12 months in the Peterborough parliamentary constituency, as at May each year

| | Active benefits[1] | Inactive benefits[2] |
|---|---|---|
| 1997 | 3,110 | 6,100 |

| 2006 | 2,210 | 5,750 |
| 2007 | 2,280 | 5,820 |

[1] 'Active benefits' means jobseeker's allowance.
[2] 'Inactive benefits' means working age claimants of income support (income support claimants include: lone parents; sick and disabled; carers; and others), incapacity benefit (including national insurance credits only cases), and severe disablement allowance.

Notes:
1. Inactive benefits case loads 1997 to 1999 figures are rounded to the nearest 100 and for 2000 onwards are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Inactive benefits case loads for 1997 to 1999 have been uprated by applying 5 per cent. proportions to 100 per cent. WPLS data.
3. Active benefit case loads are rounded to the nearest 5.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Compensation

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 13 November 2007, Official Report, column 121W, on armed forces: compensation, how many multiple injuries cases there were in each financial year since 2005-06. [166112]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is not held centrally for the War Pensions Scheme and could only be provided at disproportionate cost. However, I am able to provide details of the number of awards made under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme for multiple injuries in each year. These are shown in the following table:

Multiple injury awards[1, 2]

| | Number |
|---|---|
| April 2005-March 2006 | 20 |
| April 2006-March 2007 | 160 |
| April 2007-September 2007 | 100 |

[1] Data have been rounded to the nearest five.
[2] Figures show the year in which the award was made, this is not necessarily the year in which the injury/illness occurred.

Armed Forces: Housing

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the contribution that can be made to remedying homelessness by releasing void married quarters to Annington Homes. [168241]

Derek Twigg: None. The alternative use of surplus service families accommodation returned to Annington Homes Limited (AHL) is a matter for the company.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) percentage recruitment gap and (b) percentage change in personnel numbers of each regiment was in the latest year for which figures are available. [167886]

Derek Twigg: Officers are not recruited against regimental targets but against a whole Army requirement. It is only after completing officer training and commissioning that an officer joins a particular regiment.

Army recruitment targets are broken down by arm/service for soldiers. There are no recruitment targets set for the small arms school corps or the Army physical training corps because recruits are required to serve as a soldier before they are entitled to join.

The following tables provide details of army officer and soldier recruitment targets and achievement for the financial year 2006-07, and the change in Army officer and soldier full-time trained strengths between 1 April 2006 and 1 March 2007.

Army recruitment targets and achievements during financial year 2006-07

| Rank | Arm/service | Recruitment target | Number recruited | Recruitment percentage |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Officers | | 840 | 780 | 92.9 |
| Soldier | Total | 13,070 | 12,660 | 96.9 |
| | Household Cavalry | 170 | 170 | 100.0 |

| | Royal Artillery | 1,030 | 970 | 94.2 |
| | Royal Engineers | 1,370 | 1,340 | 97.8 |
| | Royal Corps of Signals | 870 | 750 | 86.2 |
| | Infantry | 4,260 | 4,310 | 101.2 |
| | Army Air Corps | 190 | 210 | 110.5 |
| | Royal Logistics Corps | 2,410 | 2,100 | 87.1 |
| | Army Medical Service | 450 | 430 | 95.6 |
| | Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers | 1,060 | 1,290 | 121.7 |
| | Adjutant General Corps | 400 | 260 | 65.0 |
| | Intelligence Corps | 160 | 160 | 100.0 |
| | Corps of Army Music | 70 | 40 | 57.1 |

Notes:
1. Figures for Army recruitment targets and achievement have been taken from recruiting databases and cannot therefore be compared directly to National Statistics published by the Defence Analytical Services Agency.
2. The counts of targets and achievements have been rounded to the nearest 10. Due to the rounding methods used, totals may not always equal the sum of the parts. Numbers ending in "5" have been rounded to the nearest multiple of 20 to prevent systematic bias.

Army full-time trained strength (excluding Gurkhas)

| Rank | Arm/Service | Strength 1 April 2006 | Strength 1 March 2007 | Change percentage |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Officers | Total | 14,020 | 14,180 | 1.2 |
| Soldier | Total | 83,270 | 81,760 | -1.8 |
| | Household Cavalry/Royal Armoured Corps | 4,650 | 4,650 | -0.1 |
| | Royal Artillery | 6,270 | 5,980 | -4.9 |
| | Royal Engineers | 7,620 | 7,690 | 0.9 |
| | Royal Corps of Signals | 7,520 | 7,220 | -4.3 |
| | Infantry | 21,160 | 20,830 | -1.8 |
| | Army Air Corps | 1,480 | 1,510 | 2.0 |
| | Royal Logistics Corps | 13,990 | 13,740 | -2.0 |
| | Army Medical Service | 2,880 | 2,760 | -4.1 |

| | Small Arms School Corps | 120 | 120 | 1.6 |
| | Intelligence Corps | 1,180 | 1,200 | 1.4 |
| | Army Physical Training Corps | 410 | 400 | -2.8 |

Army full-time trained strength (excluding Gurkhas)

| Rank | Arm/Service | Strength 1 April 2006 | Strength 1 March 2007 | Change percentage |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Corps of Army Music | 880 | 840 | -6.0 |
| | Long Service List | 610 | 610 | -0.7 |

Notes:
1. Full-time trained strength includes full-time reserve service (FTRS) figures but excludes Gurkhas.
2. Figures exclude; Gurkhas, Home Service Battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment, mobilised reserves, Territorial Army and other reserves.
3. Due to ongoing data validation following the introduction of the new Joint Personnel Administration (JP A) System, there is no Arm/Corps information currently available from 1 March 2007 therefore it is only possible to provide strengths data for 2006-07 from 1 April 2006 to 1 March 2007.
4. The counts of targets and achievements have been rounded to the nearest 10. Due to the rounding methods used, totals may not always equal the sum of the parts. Numbers ending in "5" have been rounded to the nearest multiple of 20 to prevent systematic bias.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles: Contracts

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether Land Rover has been invited to participate in the tender process for the new defence vehicle; how many vehicles are included in the tender; what the size is of the vehicle in the tender; and which companies were included in the tender process. [168644]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 27 November 2007]: It is envisaged that up to 16,000 vehicles could be procured under the Operational Utility Vehicles System (OUVS) programme to replace the in-service light utility vehicle capability currently provided by truck utility light, truck utility medium, truck utility medium (heavy duty) and truck utility heavy. The exact user requirements have yet to be fully defined, but it is expected that a range of vehicles will be required, providing payloads of between one to six tonnes.

OUVS is currently in the concept phase and an invitation to tender has not yet been issued. An expression of interest advertisement was published in both the European Official Journal and the Defence Contract Bulletin in September 2007, which has attracted over 50 responses from industry, including Land Rover.

Bosnia: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library the (a) Crisis Management Concept, (b) Military Strategic Options, (c) Initiating Military Directive, (d) Status of Forces Agreement, (e) Status of Mission Agreement and (f) Rules of Engagement for (i) Operation Althea and (ii) the EU military mission to Chad and the Central African Republic. [165884]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Status of mission agreements apply to civilian led missions only, and therefore do not apply to either Operation ALTHEA or the forthcoming mission to Chad and the Central African Republic as they are/will be military missions.

The forthcoming EU military mission to Chad and the Central African Republic is still in the planning stage and the status of forces agreement and the rules of engagement have not yet been agreed.

Operation ALTHEA followed on from the NATO-led Stabilisation Force (SFOR) in Bosnia Herzegovina and the NATO-led Implementation Force (IFOR) before it. As a result, United Nations Security Council Resolutions 1551 and 1574 established that the Status of Forces Agreements contained in Appendix B to Annex 1-A of the General Framework Agreement for Peace in Bosnia and Herzegovina apply with respect to the EU mission. The General Framework Agreement for Peace in Bosnia and Herzegovina can be found on the Office of the High Representative and EU Special Representative to Bosnia Herzegovina website and on the NATO website:

http://www.ohr.int/

http://www.nato.int/

I am withholding the other information requested as disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice international relations between the United Kingdom and the European Union.

| 1999-2000 | 10-20 |
| 2000-01 | 10-20 |
| 2001-02 | 30-40 |
| 2002-03 | 40-50 |
| 2003-04 | 40-50 |
| 2004-05 | 50-60 |
| 2005-06 | 60-70 |
| 2006-07 | 100-110 |

[1] Less than 10

Note:
Numbers are shown in tranches to allow for slight differences in the basis for data from different payroll systems

Departmental Correspondence

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of inquiries received by his Department from the public were responded to within (a) one week, (b) 14 days, (c) 28 days, (d) two months and (e) three months; and in what percentage of cases it took (i) over three months and (ii) over one year to respond. [167382]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence has only been able to record this information since 12 September 2006 when a new database was introduced. However, figures are only available for 60 per cent. of correspondence received and only for correspondence answered within 20 working days. The figures below are for correspondence received between 12 September 2006 and 31 October 2007.

41 per cent. answered substantively within five working days;

59 per cent. answered substantively within 10 working days;

85 per cent. answered substantively within 20 working days.

The MOD undertakes to answer all correspondence within 15 working days and 80 per cent. was answered substantively within that target.

The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/Peers correspondence. The Report for 2006 was published by way of a written ministerial statement on 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 101WS. Information for 2007 will be published as soon as it is ready after the end of the calendar year.

Departmental Health Insurance

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many officials in (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies have private health insurance provided as part of their employment package. [167934]

Derek Twigg: None. Private medical insurance does not form any part of the remuneration package offered by the Ministry of Defence or its agencies.

Departmental Information

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many reports have been made to his Department's nominated officers under paragraph 16 of the revised civil service code since its publication on 6 June 2006; [162465]

(2) how many allegations of victimisation for whistleblowing have been reported to his Department by departmental staff since 6 June 2006; [162466]

(3) when his Department's whistleblowing procedures were reviewed to reflect the provisions in the revised civil service code. [162467]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Cabinet Office Minister for the East Midlands on 19 November 2007, Official Report, columns 596-97W.

Departmental Land

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what land surplus to his Department's requirements it is (a) selling, (b) leasing and (c) intending to (i) sell and (ii) lease; and what the size and name of each relevant site is. [168854]

Derek Twigg: A list detailing surplus sites throughout the UK that the Department is either presently selling, or intending to sell in the future, is available in the Library of the House. The list was last updated in August 2007.

Exservicemen: Military Decorations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veterans resident in Gloucestershire have applied for the Veterans badge. [168910]

Derek Twigg: The Service Personnel and Veterans Agency records have identified that a total of 4,128 veterans lapel badges have been issued to residents who have included Gloucestershire in their address.

Hercules Aircraft

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of the Hercules fleet have been fitted with explosive suppressant foam; and if he will make a statement. [167637]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: All Hercules aircraft that are routinely deployed on operations in Iraq and Afghanistan are now fitted with explosion suppressant foam.

I do not intend to give regular updates on progress with this programme as to do so would ultimately reveal the total number of Hercules aircraft equipped with this capability and this information would, or would be likely to, prejudice the security of the UK armed forces.

Iraq: Defence Equipment

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the availability of reconnaissance equipment for operations in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [167474]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The provision of intelligence, surveillance, target acquisition and reconnaissance equipment is regularly and routinely assessed by the permanent joint headquarters in liaison with commanders in theatre. There are sufficient assets available for our current commitments. As the operational environment continues to evolve we make adjustments where necessary, including through the urgent operational requirements process. I am withholding any further information as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Military Aircraft

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) aircraft, broken down by type and (b) tanks were withdrawn from service in each year since 1997. [165066]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following table provides details of the numbers of main battle tanks withdrawn from service with the armed forces in each year since 1997:

| Equipment | 1997 | 1998 | 1999 | 2000 | 2001 | 2002 | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 | 2007 |

[1] 20 CR2 MBT are being used as a source of spares. A further 20 remain in storage pending a disposal decision

I will write to the hon. Member with the corresponding information for aircraft and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Military Bases: Colchester

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to hand (a) the former Garrison Church, (b) the former Garrison Theatre and (c) the Victorian Gymnasium over to the developers of the Colchester Garrison site. [168886]

Derek Twigg: The former Garrison Church is expected to be handed over to the developers of the Colchester Garrison site on 3 December 2007. The Garrison Theatre, part of Goojerat Barracks, may be handed over at any time after 28 December 2007, in accordance with the contract. The Victorian Gymnasium has already been passed to the developer, subject to a lease back arrangement, pending the provision of new facilities under the terms of the Private Finance Initiative, when the old Gymnasium will no longer be required. The new facilities are expected to be completed by mid 2008.

Patrol Craft

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what agreement has been reached between his Department and Vosper Thorneycroft (UK) Ltd. to supply three river class offshore patrol vessels; and when the lease will end; [168228]

(2) what steps he plans to take at the end of the lease period for the river class offshore patrol vessels; and if he will make a statement. [168245]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The lease arrangement for the three river class offshore patrol vessels currently in place with the VT Group PLC (formerly Vosper Thorneycroft (UK) Ltd.), was let in 2003 for an initial period of five years, with an option to extend for a further five years. The decision was made in December 2006 to exercise this option and the lease arrangement will now expire in 2013. While arrangements for the provision of vessels beyond 2013 will be dependent on the continuing requirement to provide UK Fishery Protection on behalf of DEFRA, contract arrangements would be subject to defence competition policy.

Puma Helicopters

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the RAF Puma helicopter, lost in Iraq on 20 November, first entered service. [167968]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The RAF Puma helicopter ZA938 lost in Iraq on 20 November 2007 entered service on 4 February 1981. The safety record of the Puma has been good, and is comparable with other helicopters operated by the MOD.

TREASURY

HM Revenue and Customs

13. Jeremy Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the performance of HM Revenue and Customs over the last two years [169075]

Jane Kennedy: The latest assessments of all Departments' PSA targets are published on the Treasury website.

HMRC's departmental report in May 2007 showed that 17 of the 23 performance measures underpinning their PSA targets have shown improvement since April 2005.

15. Stephen Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the performance of HM Revenue and Customs over the last two years. [169077]

20. Jessica Morden: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress has been made in the HM Revenue and Customs work force change programme in Newport; and if he will make a statement. [169082]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenues Customs consulted widely earlier this year on its initial proposals for reducing its estate in the Cardiff urban centre—Cardiff, Newport and Pontypridd—to match future business requirements. Detailed feasibility work is being carried out taking account of all the consultation feedback received from staff, unions, hon. Members, Assembly members and local authorities. HMRC hopes to announce decisions early next year.

25. Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the performance of HM Revenue and Customs over the last two years. [169087]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Rugby and Kenilworth (Jeremy Wright) (UIN 169075) earlier today.

Carbon-neutral Operations

16. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to make the operations of his Department carbon neutral. [169078]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury is committed to meeting the Government's target to become carbon neutral by 2012, and annually publishes its strategy for reducing its environmental impact.

The Department has reduced carbon emissions from its office estate by 19.5 per cent. since 1999-2000, sources all electricity from renewable sources, and off-sets departmental air travel.

The Treasury will continue to take action to reduce emissions. Opportunities to offset emissions will be explored once levels have been reduced as much as possible

Northern Rock: Debts

Mr. Greenway: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value is of subordinated debt owed by Northern Rock to the Exchequer; and if he will make a statement. [169079]

International Financial Markets

18. Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has with his international counterparts on the performance of international financial markets. [169080]

Kitty Ussher: The Chancellor regularly meets with his international counterparts to discuss a range of topical issues. More recently, there has been increased focus on financial market developments. In terms of specific meetings where this issue has been discussed, these have included the G7 and G20 Finance Ministers meetings on 19 October and 17-18 November respectively, as well as the meetings of European Finance Ministers in September and October. The Chancellor has also taken part in a range of bilateral meetings with his international counterparts where financial market developments have been discussed.

HM Revenue and Customs: Personal Data

19. Tim Loughton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues and children's organisations on the implications for child protection of the recent loss of personal data by HM Revenue and Customs. [169081]

Jane Kennedy: The police continue to have no reason to believe that these data have been used for fraudulent purposes or criminal activity. The Government have discussed the broader implications of the incident with a range of organisations, and have considered appropriate steps to manage any risks resulting from the unlikely event that these data fall into the wrong hands.

22. Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer who will bear liability arising from any fraudulent use of the personal data relating to child benefit lost by HM Revenue and Customs. [169084]

Jane Kennedy: The police continue to have no reason to believe that these data have found their way into the wrong hands and are not aware of any evidence that they have been used for fraudulent purposes or criminal activity.

Skills Shortages

24. Phil Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the impact on the UK economy of skills shortages. [169086]

Angela Eagle: The independent Leitch Review of Skills found no evidence that skill gaps or shortages have held back economic growth, though it did recommend that the Government raise their ambitions on improving the skills of the work force.

The 2007 National Employer Skills Survey conducted by the Learning and Skills Council highlights falls in the proportion of employers reporting skills gaps and the percentage of all vacancies caused by skills shortages.

The Government are increasing their investment in improving the skills of the population. Expenditure on higher education and adult skills in England will grow by over £2 billion over the next three years.

QinetiQ

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues at the Ministry of Defence on the National Audit Office report on the privatisation of QinetiQ. [169083]

Jane Kennedy: The missing information contains details of all child benefit recipients, including those in London boroughs.

The acting Chairman of HM Revenue and Customs is writing to all customers affected by the loss of child benefit data.

Corporate Tax

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what information his Department holds on the level of corporate tax rates in each of the OECD economies in each year since 1990. [167867]

Jane Kennedy: Data on corporate tax rates in OECD countries are publicly available from the OECD tax database, which can be accessed from the OECD's public website at http://www.oecd.org/dataoecd/26/56/33717459.xls. These data are available from 2000.

Council Tax: Rebates

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the cost to the Exchequer of rebating (a) £100, (b) £200, (c) £300 and (d) £400 in council tax to all households with at least one resident (i) over the age of 65, (ii) under the age of seven and (iii) under the age of 11. [166631]

Jane Kennedy: The following table gives the requested information.

| | Households containing | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Council tax rebate (£) | A person aged 65 and over (£ million) | Children aged 7 and under (£ million) | Children aged 11 and under (£ million) |
| 100 | 300 | 280 | 390 |
| 200 | 610 | 560 | 780 |
| 300 | 940 | 850 | 1,180 |
| 400 | 1,290 | 1,140 | 1,580 |

Notes:
1. Estimated cost for 2007-08, net of council tax benefit expenditure.
2. Estimates for Great Britain.
3. Estimated using HM Treasury tax-benefit simulation model using Family Resources Survey 2005-06 uprated to 2007-08 levels of prices and earnings.
4. Assumes 100 per cent. take-up of benefits.
5. Modelled by reducing original council tax liability before council tax benefit is calculated.

Departmental Documents

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his Department's (a) policy and (b) practice is on classifying documents as not for National Audit Office eyes. [167622]

Jane Kennedy: There is no such classification.

Departmental Telephone Services

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what information his Department collects and monitors in relation to the telephone contact centres for which his Department is responsible; [166542]

(2) which telephone contact centres are the responsibility of his Department; what mechanisms are in place to monitor their effectiveness; and how many people have been employed in each of those centres in each year since they were established. [166541]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC currently operates 21 contact centres through its centrally managed customer contact directorate. These handle the bulk of inbound customer initiated telephone calls. Additionally there remain a number of helplines and back office telephony services that are operated outside of this contact centre network.

The effectiveness of the HMRC contact centre operations is monitored through standard departmental management arrangements, through customer satisfaction surveys, through membership of the industry-wide Contact Centre Association and by active participation in the recently established Contact Council, set up following publication of Sir David Varney's report: "Service Transformation: a Better Service For Citizens and Businesses, a Better Deal for Taxpayers" published alongside the 2006 pre-Budget report and available at www.hm-treasury.gov.uk.

With regard to staff numbers, I would refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 26 July 2007, Official Report, column 1453W.

HMRC collects and monitors a wide range of information in respect of its contact centre operations including call volumes, caller demand, service levels achieved and customer satisfaction survey results.

Productivity: Public Sector

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what revisions to the definition of public sector productivity there have been since 1997; and how many times this definition has changed since 1997. [166746]

Andy Burnham: Productivity is the relationship between inputs and outputs and the measurement of public sector output and therefore of public sector productivity is technically complex. The Atkinson review was set up by the National Statistician to independently review the future development of measures of government output, productivity and associated price indices. Following the Review's report in 2005 the National Statistician set up within the Office of National Statistics (ONS) the UK centre for the Measurement of Government Activity (UKCeMGA) to take forward the review's findings. This work is continuing and regular progress reports are published by UKCeMGA on their website.

Revenue and Customs: ICT

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for how long the computer system in the HM Revenue and Customs office at Bradford has been out of operation; what the reasons were for the failure of the system; and what steps he is taking to ensure that such failures are not repeated. [167969]

Jane Kennedy: According to our records, the computer system in the HM Revenue and Customs office in Bradford is not out of operation.

Revenue and Customs: Prosecutions

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many criminal prosecutions were brought against HM Revenue and Customs staff for matters relating to their employment in the last year for which figures are available. [168051]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs currently has around 87,000 staff. In the last financial year commencing 1 April 2006 and ending 31 March 2007, 15 criminal prosecutions were completed against HM Revenue and Customs staff for matters relating to their employment.

Tax Allowances: Agriculture

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what value of roll-over relief was claimed in respect of gains made on agricultural land in the latest year for which figures are available. [168757]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available

Taxation: Domicil

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of non-domicile tax status personnel currently associated with the UK for at least part of the year; how many have incomes of (a) less than £100,000, (b) £100 to 500,000, (c) £500,000 to £1 million, (d) £1 to 5 million, (e) £5 to 20 million, (f) £20 to 50 million, (g) £50 to 100 million and (h) in excess of £100 million; and what revenue would be raised if a tax were applied of (i) 40 per cent. to each category below £1 million, (ii) 50 per cent. to each category between £1 million and £5 million and (iii) 60 per cent. on each category above £5 million. [166164]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 20 November 2007]: Information on how long non-domiciled individuals are present in the UK within a particular year is not available.

Information is only available on the numbers of individuals indicating non-domicile status on their self assessment (SA) returns. The last full year's SA data relate to 2004-05, in which there were 115,000 indicating non-domicile status. HMRC's live systems show the latest figure (as at August 2007) for 2005-06 is 114,000 individuals.

Information on worldwide incomes for non-domiciles is not available. A breakdown by UK taxable income of the individuals who indicated non-domicile status through SA tax returns in 2005-06 is as follows (data as at April 2007).

| Total taxable income (lower limit) | Numbers indicating non-domicile status |
|---|---|
| £0 | 84,000 |
| £100,000 | 23,000 |
| £500,000 | 3,000 |
| £1,000,000 | 1,000 |
| £5,000,000 | 100 |
| All | 111,000 |

Note:
This total number is smaller than reported above as more returns were processed between April and August 2007. Income bands above £5 million have been grouped together to protect tax payer confidentiality.

The total UK tax liability of those indicating non-domicile status in 2005-06 (as at April 2007) was £3.9 billion. Applying tax rates of (i) 40 per cent. to individuals with less than £1 million UK taxable income, (ii) 50 per cent. to individuals with between £1 million and £5 million UK taxable income and (iii) 60 per cent. to individuals with £5 million taxable income or more in 2005-06 would have raised around £6.3 billion, i.e. an additional £2.4 billion. This is a theoretical maximum, not taking into account personal allowances, other tax rates or behavioural effects, such as rearranging tax affairs to take more income out of UK tax, reducing hours worked or leaving the UK altogether.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will estimate the average earnings of those registered as non-domiciled in the UK; [166352]

(2) how many and what proportion of non-domiciles for taxation purposes have been resident in the UK for more than 10 years. [166354]

Jane Kennedy: Information is only available for individuals indicating non-domicile status on their self assessment (SA) returns. Income data for such individuals are only available annually. For 2005-06 these data (as at April 2007) included 111,000 individuals, of whom 65,000 declared UK employment income averaging approximately £140,000. In addition, 13,000 declared foreign source employment income averaging approximately £60,000.

Based on a small scale sampling exercise in 2004 covering cases processed by HMRC expatriate and complex personal return teams, it has been estimated that around 10,000 individuals indicating non-domicile status per year have been resident in the UK for more than 10 years. This represents approximately 9 per cent. of the 115,000 individuals indicating non-domicile status in 2004-05, the last full year of data.

VAT: Game Birds

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much unpaid VAT was (a) detected and (b) reclaimed by the HM Revenue and Customs Game Shooting Industry National Pilot Project; [168915]

(2) how much unpaid income tax has been recovered through the HM Revenue and Customs Game Shooting Industry National Pilot Project; [168916]

(3) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the HM Revenue and Customs Game Shooting Industry National Pilot Project. [168917]

Jane Kennedy: The shoot project is ongoing. To date VAT assessments have been issued for £6 million. This figure is expected to double within the lifetime of the project.

The project began in HM Customs and Excise as a VAT initiative. However, HMRC always seeks to take a cross tax view of initiatives when possible. Earlier this year the VAT results then available were reviewed for signs of any additional income tax liability. Risks of underpaid income tax have only been identified in a small proportion of the cases reviewed and as yet no income tax has been recovered

No assessment of the effectiveness of the shoot project has been made.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 12 November 2007, Official Report, column 25W, on welfare tax credits, how many full-time equivalent staff at HM Customs and Revenue are working to complete the review of tax credits awards from 2003 to 2006. [166412]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 20 November 2007]: Around 130 Tax Credit Office staff are currently working directly on the cases arising from this exercise. As the review progresses, the Tax Credit Office will assign resources so that these awards are put on a sound footing as soon as is practicable. HMRC remain committed to improving the services they provide to tax credits customers.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 12 November 2007, Official Report, column 25W, on welfare tax credits, how many tax credits claimants are subject to reduced payments as a consequence of alleged over payments from 2003 to 2006 which are now the subject of the review by HM Customs and Revenue. [166413]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 20 November 2007]: The number of households whose current tax credits awards are reduced to recover an overpayment that is the subject of this review is not readily available, and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The awards which are being reviewed, however, do accurately reflect the households' circumstances at the time the original decision was made. The process by which HM Revenue and Customs took the relevant new information into account was not correct. The review will simply put the affected awards on the proper administrative footing, and the majority of those affected by the review will not see any impact on their tax credits award.

Welfare Tax Credits: EC Nationals

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the amount of (a) working tax credit and (b) child tax credit overpaid to A8 nationals working in the UK in the last 12 months. [167651]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer from how many declared bankrupts the Tax Credit Office has reclaimed tax credit overpayments. [167647]

Jane Kennedy: Since May 2004 HM Revenue and Customs is aware of around 1,500 cases where claimants have notified the Department that they are bankrupt.

Information is not available for the number of claimants who have notified the Department they are bankrupt but are continuing to pay back an overpayment of tax credits.

If any claimant disputes HMRC's decision to recover an overpayment from them, then HMRC will suspend the recovery of the overpaid tax credits while the reasons for the dispute are looked into.

PRIME MINISTER

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMISSION

Government Departments: Data Protection

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chairman of the Public Accounts Commission what assessment has been made of the efficacy of data protection practice to safeguard against the unauthorised release of data which have been adopted by Government departments and agencies when subject to audit by the National Audit Office. [170030]

Mr. Alan Williams: This is not a matter for the Commission. The Comptroller and Auditor General has, by statute, complete discretion in the discharge of his functions, and the Commission therefore does not intervene in the day to day running of the National Audit Office. The hon. Member may wish to write to the Comptroller and Auditor General.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Alternative Energy: Standards

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the Government's capacity targets are for the commercial development of (a) wave energy and (b) tidal energy in UK waters by (i) 2012, (ii) 2020 and (iii) 2030. [166961]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government have not set capacity targets for individual technologies but provide a range of support measures to facilitate the development of wave and tidal energy.

These include £35 million already committed for innovative industry-led technology development under the Technology Strategy Board's technology programme and £50 million under BERR's marine renewables deployment fund to support the first larger-scale demonstration projects.

We have consulted on banding the RO so as to provide greater levels of support to these emerging renewable technologies.

| | UK market share (Percentage) |

The value of orders won by UK industry is shown in UK Defence Statistics 2007, Table 1.14. A copy of which is available in the Library of the House and also online at:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/natstats/ukds/2007/cl/table114.html

The other information is not held in the format requested. We estimate, however, that around two-fifths of the value of UK defence exports in the years 2002 to 2006 relates to business under government-to-government agreements. During these years three such agreements have contributed to this overall share of UK exports.

Fuel Poverty

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he plans to publish the Annual Progress Report for 2007 on the UK Fuel Poverty Strategy. [166771]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 21 November 2007]: The Government will publish shortly their annual progress report on fuel poverty covering 2005 which will include statistics of households in fuel poverty in England in 2005.

Microgeneration

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what percentage of the UK's electricity is supplied from sources using microgeneration technologies; and if he will make a statement. [167003]

Malcolm Wicks: In 2006, five gigawatts of installed capacity of renewables produced 4.5 per cent. of electricity generated in the United Kingdom. We estimate that there are approximately 100,000 microgeneration installations in the United Kingdom. However specific figures for the amount of electricity generated by microgeneration are not available.

Natural Gas: Distribution

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent estimate he has made of the number of households with access to mains gas supply. [167507]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 27 November 2007]: My Department does not hold information about the number of households that have access to mains gas, whether or not they take it up. Ofgem's Domestic Retail Market Report (June 2007) states that there are 21.5 million domestic gas customer accounts in Great Britain.

Power Stations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what research his Department has undertaken on the capacity of existing power station sites in the UK to accommodate (a) nuclear new build and (b) renewable technologies. [168174]

Malcolm Wicks: As part of the Government's preparations for the 2006 Energy Review report, the Department commissioned Jackson Consulting to produce a discussion paper looking at the issues that would be relevant to the siting of any new nuclear power stations. The paper included a preliminary assessment of the suitability of existing nuclear power station sites for any new build and also included the suggestion that opportunities for new build might exist at other power station sites. The paper, which represents the views of the authors Jackson Consulting alone, was published by the Department on its website on 23 May 2007 as a background paper to the Government's consultation on the future of nuclear power.

The Department is currently considering responses to the consultation on nuclear power. If the Government were to confirm their preliminary view that it would be in the public interest to allow private sector energy companies the option of investing in new nuclear power stations, we have proposed to undertake a strategic siting assessment (SSA), in combination with a strategic environmental assessment, to develop robust, objective and transparent criteria for assessing the suitability of sites for new nuclear power stations.

On renewables, in July 2006 the Department published on its website a study by IPA and Mitsui Babcock into the economics of co-firing, the ability of existing fossil fuel stations to burn a proportion of biomass to generate electricity.

Renewable Energy: Seas and Oceans

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) if he will modify the operation of the Marine Renewables Development fund (a) to accommodate the changing needs of British renewable companies and (b) to develop a marine energy industry in the UK; [166973]

(2) how much of the Marine Renewables Development Fund has been allocated to date; and to which schemes funds have been allocated. [167033]

Malcolm Wicks: The Marine Renewables Deployment Fund (MRDF) provides support for early commercial scale wave and tidal-stream demonstration projects. To date no individual demonstration projects have been supported under the MRDF as progress towards full commercialisation of these technologies has been slower than expected. The MRDF has offered £4.5 million support to the proposed Wave Hub project (at:

www.wavehub.co.uk)

and £2 million has been allocated to a programme of environmental research for these technologies.

The Renewables Advisory Board is currently conducting a review of the marine sector including reasons for the low take-up to date of the MRDF. A final report is expected later this year and we will consider any recommendations carefully.

Wave Power

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the contribution of wave and tidal energy towards meeting renewable targets; and if he will amend the system of renewable obligation certificates for the renewable energy sector to encourage the development of wave and tidal energy. [167036]

Malcolm Wicks: A report by the Carbon Trust 'Future Marine Energy' at:

www.thecarbontrust.co.uk/Publications/publicationdetail.htm?productid=:CTC601 estimated that together offshore wave and tidal-steam energy has the potential to meet between 15 per cent. and 20 per cent. of current UK electricity.

The Government are currently considering the responses to the consultation on our proposals to amend the renewables obligation to provide greater levels of support for emerging technologies including wave and tidal energy.

Wind Power

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many wind farms there are in (a) Ribble Valley, (b) Lancashire and (c) England. [168304]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 26 November 2007]: There are no wind farms in the Ribble Valley. However, there are three wind farms in Lancashire and one of these, Caton Moor, is near the Ribble Valley. England has a total of 148 wind farms.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Crimes of Violence: Northern Ireland

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the level of violent crime in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [163161]

Paul Goggins: The number of violent crimes recorded by the Police Service of Northern Ireland in the last three years is as follows:

| | Number of violent crimes |
|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 32,512 |
| 2005-06 | 34,408 |
| 2006-07 | 35,223 |
| 1 April to 30 September 2007 | 16,313 |

Violent crime includes offences against the person such as, murder, manslaughter, wounding with intent and GBH with intent. It also includes sexual offences such as, rape and indecent assault on a female, robbery and hijacking.

The Northern Ireland Policing Plan 2007 to 2010, commits the PSNI to reducing the total number of violent crimes by 2 per cent. by 31 March 2008. Targets are measured against a baseline at 31 March 2007.

Excellent progress has been made against this target; violent crimes recorded by the police have been reduced by 15.7 per cent. for the first six months of this year, compared with the same period last year.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Commonwealth Games: Glasgow

Mr. Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what lottery funding will be made available for the hosting of the 2014 Commonwealth Games in Glasgow. [168328]

Mr. Sutcliffe: National Lottery grant-making decisions are made independently of Government by the lottery distributing bodies. I understand that Glasgow's Candidate City File for the 2014 Games set out the various revenue streams that were expected and that this did not include any revenue from the lottery.

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what increase in jobs he expects the 2014 Glasgow Commonwealth Games to bring to Scotland in each year from 2007. [169441]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport in Scotland, including the 2014 Glasgow Commonwealth Games and its legacy, is the responsibility of the Scottish Executive. We are, however, committed to working with the bid partners to ensure a successful Commonwealth Games in 2014.

Digital Broadcasting

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) which areas (a) can receive all digital multiplex signals, (b) have partial coverage and (c) are unable to receive any digital multiplex signals via digital terrestrial television in each region; [168996]

(2) what percentage of each region is covered by each digital broadcasting multiplex signal on (a) terrestrial, (b) cable and (c) satellite broadcasting platforms; [169048]

(3) what the percentage coverage was of each digital broadcasting multiplex signal in each region broadcasting from each digital platform in each of the last five years. [169049]

James Purnell: The matters raised are the responsibility of the Office of Communications (Ofcom), as independent regulator for the communications sector. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Football: Tickets

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent representations he has received about the pricing regime of Premier League football tickets for the 2007-08 season; and if he will make a statement. [169536]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have received correspondence regarding ticket pricing from a wide number of stakeholders including supporters groups, clubs and fans.

Ticket pricing is a matter for the football authorities and it would not be right for Government to seek to intervene in these issues directly.

However, there is a clear role for Government to play in acting as a 'critical friend' to football, and in seeking to facilitate useful debates around areas of concern across all levels of sport.

The Government are committed to ensuring that all football clubs are run in the best possible way and that they remain a focal point of their local community and I will continue to highlight the concerns of supporters in my regular discussion with the football authorities.

OLYMPICS

Official Gifts

Tom Brake: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will place in the Library a list of gifts and hospitality given by members of the Olympic Delivery Authority; and if she will make a statement. [169374]

Tessa Jowell: The Olympic Delivery Authority intends to publish its gifts and hospitality register early next year.

Olympic Delivery Authority: Business Interests

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will place in the Library the latest copy of the Olympic Delivery Authority's register of (a) interests and (b) gifts and hospitality. [168400]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Olympic Delivery Authority intends to publish its first (a) register of Board members' interests, and (b) its gifts and hospitality register, early next year.

TRANSPORT

Bus Services: Concessions

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to ensure that buses in all areas have smart-card readers when smart cards for nation-wide pensioners travel concessions are introduced. [169477]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government have no immediate plans to fund the roll-out of smart readers on buses. It would not be practical to require smart readers to be installed in buses in all areas in time for April 2008 when the national bus concession is introduced.

Operators and local authorities are free to work together to implement full smart ticketing and we fully support such action. There are substantial advantages to bus operators and local authorities in going 'smart'—reduced fraud and much better data on how many concessionary journeys are being made, which will help with reimbursement arrangements.

Crossrail Line

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether it is planned that a single operator will run all passenger trains on Crossrail tracks. [168661]

Mr. Tom Harris: I refer the hon. Member to section 8, 'Crossrail Operations', of the Heads of Terms for Crossrail that has been agreed between the Department for Transport and Transport for London, which was placed in the House Library by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 November and which states:

"Agreement has not yet been reached as to whether there will be a single Crossrail TOC [Train Operating Company] or more than one Crossrail TOC"

Crossrail Line: Paddington Station

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions she has had on the interaction of new Crossrail services and existing commuter rail links running into Paddington. [168662]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Crossrail services will subsume inner suburban services, and there will be complementary longer distance commuter services. Stops by express trains are not affected. There has been consultation by a variety of means, including: during project development; as part of the hybrid bill process; through the Crossrail Railway Stakeholders' Forum that I chair and by the Office of Rail Regulation on the application for access rights for Crossrail services contained in an access option.

Emergency Services: Motorways

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the number of occasions on which emergency vehicles have used the hard shoulder for access to an incident on each of the motorways in the North West Region in the last 12 months. [169512]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department for Transport does not hold records in relation to the number of occasions that vehicles, belonging to the Emergency Services, have used the motorway hard-shoulder in the North West for access to incidents.

Gatwick Express

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what involvement her Department has had in the alteration of timetables and services on the Gatwick Express over the last 12 months. [168689]

Mr. Tom Harris: There have been no alterations to Gatwick Express services during the last 12 months. The department has, however, agreed a Deed of Amendment to the Southern franchise, which, among other things, will provide for the extension of some morning and evening peak Gatwick Express services from and to Brighton. These changes are scheduled for introduction in December 2008.

Railways: Fares

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what conclusions she has reached following her Department's review of unregulated rail fares; and if she will make a statement. [164636]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department has not undertaken a formal review of unregulated fares. Unregulated fares are a matter for train operators. The Department continues to listen to the representations of Passenger Focus and has invited them to take a greater role in commenting on the specification of future franchises.

Railways: Safety Measures

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the answer of 20 December 2005, Official Report, column 2932W, when she expects the Rail Safety Standards Board research into passenger emergency evacuation procedures to be published. [168921]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Rail Safety and Standards Board published its research on 31 July 2007. The findings are available on the RSSB website www.rssb.co.uk.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether any people have died as a result of using emergency egress windows as a means of escape following a train crash. [168927]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) is unaware of any people having died as a result of using designated emergency egress windows as a means of escape following a train crash.

Road Traffic: Schools

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of her Department's spending has been devoted to measures to reduce the amount of traffic generated by the school run in each of the last five years. [164630]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The development of measures to reduce the amount of traffic generated by the school run does not fall neatly into boxes that enable us to say what proportion of the Department's spending has been devoted to these in each of the last five years. This is because, in addition to the expenditure on centrally managed programmes, a considerable amount of expenditure is committed by local highway authorities that receive funding from the Department through the Local Transport Plan (LTP) settlement and determine their own priorities.

The Mayor of London also receives funding from the Department via a total transport grant through Transport for London (TfL) and bus operators receive Bus Service Operators Grant (BSOG) which makes bus services cheaper. The DfT integrated block element of the LTP settlement was worth £547 million in 2006-07, while TfL received £2.4 billion and bus service operators received £380 million in BSOG.

In addition we can, however, identify the amount of funding allocated for regional and local authority school travel advisers through the "Travelling to School" project, for 'Links to Schools' and for other initiatives such as 'Bike It' that promote and support cycling to school. (Prior to April 2004, the Department awarded a number of bursaries to local authorities to enable them to employ school travel plan co-ordinators rather than school travel advisers.) The levels of expenditure in each of the last five years are shown as follows:

| | Regional and LASTAs | 'Links to schools' | Bike it |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 1.935 | — | — |
| 2003-04 | 1.935 | — | — |
| 2004-05 | 3.75 | 10 | — |
| 2005-06 | 3.75 | 2 | 0.3 |
| 2006-07 | 3.75 | 4.2 | 0.312 |

We know that local authorities spent the following amounts of funding received through their LTP settlement on providing 'Safe Routes to School'. The figure for 2006-07 has still to be audited.

£ million

| | 'Safe routes to school' |
|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 27.737 |
| 2003-04 | 24.33 |
| 2004-05 | 26.319 |
| 2005-06 | 25.398 |
| 2006-07 | 19.457 |

This provides only a partial picture. Other funding allocated to local authorities through the LTP settlement will have been allocated to measures that will contribute to reducing traffic generated by the school run but they are not designed solely for this purpose. Examples will include other road safety and traffic calming schemes, road maintenance and cycle lanes.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will list each motorway and trunk road building project that has been submitted for the targeted programme of improvement scheme; and which schemes (a) have been (i) successful and (ii) unsuccessful and (b) are still being considered. [163226]

Mr. Tom Harris: The following schemes have been approved for entry to the Targeted Programme of Improvements (TPI), since its inception. The six schemes shown as "suspended" were not prioritised for funding by the regions within their Regional Funding Allocations to 2015-16.

The Highways Agency carries out a wide range of investigations to establish whether or not improvement schemes are required to address particular issues and problems on the trunk road network. A complete list of schemes which have been considered since the start of the Targeted Programme of Improvements could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

A number of schemes are currently being prepared and will be submitted in due course for a decision on whether they should be added to the roads programme. However, no applications are currently being considered.

Severn Bridge: Tolls

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the effects on the public purse of costs arising from removing the tolls from the two Severn bridges; and if she will make a statement. [168774]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No estimate has been made of the effects on the public purse of costs arising from removing the tolls from the two Severn bridges.

Current legislation allows the concessionaire for the Severn Crossings to charge tolls until a defined amount has been collected from the tolling regime. At that time, the Severn Crossings will revert to the ownership of Government. There are no plans to terminate the concession agreement in advance of this. Current estimates are that ownership of the Crossings will revert to Government in 2016.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the effect of the Severn Bridge toll arrangements on traffic flows (a) east and (b) west on the A48 in Gloucestershire. [168775]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No recent assessments have been made by the Highways Agency of the impact of the Severn Bridge toll arrangements on traffic flows eastbound and westbound on the A48 in Gloucestershire.

South West Trains: Rolling Stock

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will urge South West Trains to replace the Desiro Class 450 units on the Portsmouth to London services in the interests of passenger comfort. [169337]

Mr. Tom Harris: I have no plans to do so.

The introduction of the Class 450s to the Stagecoach South Western Franchise (SSWT) has meant that older trains have been replaced with newer stock. This has led to an increase in overall capacity allowing greater numbers of passengers to have a seat during their journey.

Transport for London: Finance

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the outcomes were of meetings held between her Department and Transport for London as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review about (a) their future funding needs and (b) liabilities they may face as a result of Metronet's entry into administration. [163474]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As a result of the Comprehensive Spending Review, the Department for Transport has agreed a settlement with TfL through to 2017-18, which reflects the expected increased costs of the PPP going forward and makes provision for costs arising from Metronet's Administration. The agreed levels of funding and borrowing are:

£ million (cash)

| | TfL grant | TfL borrowing |
|---|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 2708 | 600 |
| 2008-09 | 2785 | 1250 |
| 2009-10 | 2842 | 1100 |
| 2010-11 | 3252 | 300 |
| 2011-12 | 3158 | 400 |
| 2012-13 | 3305 | 400 |
| 2013-14 | 3460 | 300 |
| 2014-15 | 3622 | 600 |
| 2015-16 | 3720 | 600 |
| 2016-17 | 3822 | 600 |
| 2017-18 | 3924 | 600 |

Transport: Anniversaries

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to commemorate the 70th anniversary of the setting of the world steam record. [169105]

Mr. Tom Harris: The railway heritage movement has a number of events planned to mark the 70th anniversary of the setting of the world speed record for steam traction.

Transport: Environment Protection

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to encourage car-sharing clubs. [168679]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department encourages car sharing both directly, as one of a range of measures (known collectively as 'smarter choices') aimed at helping people travel more sustainably, and indirectly, through encouraging local authorities to include car-based initiatives as part of their local transport strategies.

The Department also publishes a range of best practice guidance on work and school travel planning that include car share schemes. In 2005, we published "Making Car Sharing and Car Clubs Work" and "Making Smarter Choices Work".

Government initiatives such as (a) requiring travel plans for new developments, (b) the National Business Travel Network and (c) the Travelling to School project are increasing the number of workplaces and schools with travel plans.

Car share schemes are being set up nationally by commercial operators, by local authorities for their staff or the wider public and by businesses, schools and other organisations as individual initiatives or as part of a travel plan.

Transport: Expenditure

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much was spent on transport in (a) England, (b) London and the South East and (c) Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last five years; [168384]

(2) what projections she has made of public spending on transport what projections in (a) England, (b) London and the South East and (c) Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the next five years. [168390]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Figures for identifiable public spending, and spending per head, on transport by region and country are given in the following tables. No projections are made for the next five years on this basis. A regional breakdown of the Department's past spending and future spending plans is produced annually, and published in the Department's Annual Report and in the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses produced by the Treasury and the Office of National Statistics. These documents are normally published in April or May.

Transport: Schools

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps her Department is taking with the Department for Children, Schools and Families to encourage children to cycle to school. [168682]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department works closely with DCSF on the joint "Travelling to School" project, which encourages all forms of sustainable travel to school.

This project has been going since April 2004. Its funds enable local authorities to employ a network of around 250 school travel advisers and regional school travel advisers to work with schools to help them develop and implement school travel plans. Over 14,000 schools have already developed travel plans. It also supports capital grants for schools with travel plans which can be spent on, for example, cycle facilities.

In addition, we are supporting cycling to school by promoting Bikeability, the new National Standard cycle training scheme. Through Cycling England, we are investing £1.8 million this year alone in cycle training via local authorities and the Youth Sports Trust. We have also provided £16.2 million for the 'Links to Schools' programme and £1.6 million for the 'Bike It' scheme which works with schools to increase the number of young people cycling. These all contribute to the overall "Travelling to School" project.

Transport: Tickets

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made in work undertaken by her Department and Transport for London to ensure that Oyster cards are compatible with the Integrated Transport Smartcard Organisation standard. [168613]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Oyster cards are the responsibility of the Mayor for London and it is therefore for him to consider, in the first instance, issues around compatibility with the ITSO standard. However, the Department for Transport continues to work closely with Transport for London to ensure the delivery of Oyster pay-as-you-go on national rail in London and that ITSO smartcards can be accepted by smartcard readers on the Transport for London estate. A detailed design study is on track to deliver a fixed price and delivery schedule for the roll-out of ITSO/Oyster dual-operable smartcard readers in April 2008.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers in England received incorrect payments under the 2006 single payment scheme. [167169]

Jonathan Shaw: It is not currently possible to give a definitive number of farmers in England who received incorrect payments under the 2006 single payment scheme.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made in making payments to farmers under the Single Farm Payment Scheme. [167858]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Secretary of State reported on 2 July 2007 that RPA had met its formal target for 2006 Single Payment Scheme payments.

The payment window for the 2007 scheme opens on 1 December 2007.

The Agency, with DEFRA's full support, is working towards making more full payments to more farmers earlier than last year, with a view to meeting its formal targets of making 75 per cent. of full payments by end of March 2008 and 90 per cent. by end of May 2008.

Animal Experiments: BSE

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what Veterinary Laboratories Agency experiments have been conducted on cows fed with BSE infected material in the last 20 years; and what the results were. [167619]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 27 November 2007]: No studies have ever been conducted by VLA in which cattle were fed with BSE infected material.

Seven individual experiments have been conducted at VLA that involved the oral dosing of cattle with bovine brain tissue known to be infected with the BSE agent. The material, in the form of a suspension, was administered directly on to the back of the tongue with a syringe. These studies represent three clusters of experiments, with individual experiments within each cluster being related in terms of the objectives of the investigations conducted.

Two experiments investigated the susceptibility of calves to oral challenge to different doses of brain tissue, ranging from 300g to 1mg. A correlation was recognised between dose and the incubation period, but infection was achieved at all dose levels. Below a dose of 100g however, not all exposed calves became infected, and the efficiency of transmission declined with reducing dose. Although incomplete, data from these studies were published recently[1].

Three other experiments investigated the pathogenesis of BSE in cattle, although the latest, and largest, was primarily intended to provide tissues and fluids at varying time points in the incubation period to enable the evaluation of diagnostic tests. These studies involved the sequential slaughter of cattle, and collection of tissues, during the incubation period, from shortly after exposure to the point of clinical disease. There have been several publications that have described the scientific outcomes of the first pathogenesis study, but the most recent[2] summarises all previous results. Additional data from a smaller study, and an opportunistic evaluation of data from the largest pathogenesis study, have also been published recently[3, 4, 5].

The last two experiments were established to enable the collection of fluids, such as blood samples, during the course of the incubation period to enable their investigation as potential targets for diagnosis of BSE before onset of clinical disease. These transpired to be negative studies, not only in terms of tests investigated at VLA but also when materials were shared with other researchers. As a result, there have been no scientific publications related to these studies.

Animal Experiments: Sheep

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what Veterinary Laboratories Agency experiments concerning inbreeding have been carried out on sheep in the last 20 years; and what the results were. [167618]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 27 November 2007]: Although there have been experiments carried out at VLA that involved the breeding of sheep, there have been none concerning "inbreeding".

Animal Welfare

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to bring forward the codes of practice provided for under the Animal Welfare Act 2006; and if he will make a statement. [167841]

Jonathan Shaw: During the passage of the Animal Welfare Bill, an undertaking was given to issue codes of practice on the welfare of cats and dogs, primates kept in private ownership and the rearing of game birds.

We are currently working on these codes and anticipate introducing them by early 2009. The codes will be subject to public consultation before being put to Parliament for approval.

Animal Welfare: Circuses

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to introduce regulations under the Animal Welfare Act 2006 to ban the use of non-domestic animals in travelling circuses; and if he will make a statement. [167769]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: On 20 November, the independent Circus Working Group set up by DEFRA published its report on the welfare of non-domesticated animals in travelling circuses.

The Secretary of State's response to the report is available on the DEFRA website.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to bring forward regulations under the Animal Welfare Act 2006 on animals in travelling circuses; and if he will make a statement. [167842]

Jonathan Shaw: On 20 November, the independent Circus Working Group, set up by DEFRA, published its report on the welfare of non-domesticated animals in travelling circuses.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State's response to the report is available on the DEFRA website.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much he spent facilitating the Circus Working Group; and if he will make a statement. [167843]

Jonathan Shaw: No central record has been kept of the time spent by DEFRA officials and the other associated costs of facilitating the work of the Circus Working Group.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what response he has made to the wild animals in travelling circuses report commissioned by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [168229]

Jonathan Shaw: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State was grateful for the Group's work, which will contribute to the debate on the welfare of wild animals in circuses, and will consider the report's findings carefully.

The Government will now want to hear reactions to the report and consider its position.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what definition he uses of minimum welfare standards for performing animals, as referred to in the recent Report of the Chairman of the Circus Working Group; and if he will make a statement. [169541]

Jonathan Shaw: Welfare standards are currently set in the Animal Welfare Act 2006 and the Performing Animals (Regulation) Act 1925. The recent report prepared by Mike Radford on wild animals in travelling circuses has recommended that additional regulatory protection should be considered.

Animal Welfare: Finance

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much funding was allocated to local authorities for animal welfare in (a) 2007-08, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2005-06. [168799]

Jonathan Shaw: Additional funding paid to local authorities for work done under the animal health and welfare framework agreement is set out in the following table:

| | Funding (£ million) |
|---|---|
| 2005-06 | 8.2 |
| 2006-07 | 8.7 |
| 2007-08 | [1]8.5 |

Animals: Brazil

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if he will make a statement on the recently published report by the EU Food and Veterinary Office on animal health controls in Brazil; [167166]

(2) which states in Brazil have (a) reported outbreaks of foot-and-mouth in the last year for which figures are available and (b) been subject to EU bans on imports of meat. [167168]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA is aware of the concerns being expressed about meat imported from Brazil. However, it is for the European Commission to follow up the recommendations in the EU Food and Veterinary Office (FVO) report through both the Brazilian authorities and further EU FVO missions. We are pressing the Commission for its response to the report.

Brazil has reported no outbreaks of foot and mouth disease to the World Organisation of Animal Health (OIE) during 2007. However, evidence of virus circulation in the state of Mato Grosso do Sul was detected through serological surveillance and this was reported to the OIE in February 2007.

Imports of de-boned and matured fresh meat (including chilled and frozen) are currently permitted only from the following states, or parts of states, of Brazil:

i. Espíritu Santo;

ii. Goias;

iii. Rio Grande do Sul;

iv. Santa Catarina;

v. Parts of Mato Grosso;

vi. Parts of Minas Gerais.

Badgers: Disease Control

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to cull badgers. [169547]

Jonathan Shaw: No decision has been made on whether badger culling has a role to play in controlling bovine TB in cattle. We are currently considering this complex issue, taking into account all the available evidence, including the final report of the Independent Scientific Group on Cattle TB (ISG) and the assessment of the scientific evidence made by the Government's Chief Scientific Adviser, Sir David King. We will be discussing the matter with interested parties, including Professor John Bourne, former Chair of the ISG, and Sir David King, and will take account of the views of the Environment Food and Rural Affairs Select Committee following its inquiry into badgers and bovine TB.

While we are keen to make progress on reaching a decision, there is no specific timetable for doing so.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Gloucestershire

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the prevalence of bovine TB in Gloucestershire and measures to counter bovine TB. [167856]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: There are currently 1,140 cattle herds in Gloucestershire. On 30 September, 249 herds (17.3 per cent.) of herds in the county were under TB movement restrictions.[1]

We recognise that the level of bovine TB (bTB) in cattle in Gloucestershire and across Great Britain is unacceptably high, and that some areas of the country are becoming more affected. In line with the 'GB Strategic Framework for the Control of Bovine TB', we are tailoring our policies to take account of the regional variation of disease risk as well as reflecting emerging evidence. Working on these principles, we have introduced measures such as pre-movement testing for cattle moving out of high risk herds. We have also extended the use of the gamma interferon blood test (alongside the TB skin test) to improve the sensitivity of our testing regime and identify more infected animals more quickly.

We will continue to work in partnership with interested parties to embed and monitor these measures. We have also recently developed revised TB husbandry guidance in association with the Bovine TB Husbandry Working Group, and published two free guidance booklets for farmers, to help them prevent bTB in their herds.

Looking ahead, DEFRA funds a wide-ranging bTB research programme and we will continue to use emerging evidence to inform our policies for the future. In June, the Independent Scientific Group on Cattle TB published its final report which adds to the scientific evidence base. We are now considering carefully the issues raised in the report and we will work with farmers, Government advisers and scientific experts in reaching final policy decisions on these.

[1] TB movement restrictions imposed for any reason (TB incident, overdue TB test etc.). Provisional data subject to change.

Circuses

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether new primary legislation would be necessary to amend the regulation of travelling circuses; and if he will make a statement. [168230]

Jonathan Shaw: Primary legislation would be required if it was proposed to place a prohibition on the use of animals in circuses.

Departmental Correspondence

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of inquiries received by his Department from the public were responded to within (a) one week, (b) 14 days, (c) 28 days, (d) two months and (e) three months in the last period for which figures are available; and in what percentage of cases it took (i) over three months and (ii) over one year to respond. [167383]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA aims to reply to the public's letters within 15 working days. So far this year, 92 per cent. of our responses have met this target.

For ministerial correspondence, I refer the hon. Member to the latest annual report on Departments' and agencies' correspondence-handling. This was published on 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 101WS. Information for 2007 will be published as soon as it is ready after the end of the calendar year.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [168109]

Jonathan Shaw: Although information on the nationality of candidates is collected as part of the recruitment process, the nationality of members of staff is not held electronically and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisors

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the office costs for his Department's special advisers for 2007-08 are expected to be, including costs of support staff; and how many full-time equivalent civil servants work in support of such special advisers. [164928]

Jonathan Shaw: Three civil servants support the special advisers. They all provide administrative support of a non-political nature in accordance with the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers. They also provide support to the private offices.

Individual civil servants' salary details are not disclosed in order to protect the privacy of the individuals concerned.

Departmental Secondment

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many secondments of staff were made (a) to and (b) from his Department in each year since 1997; which organisations staff were seconded (i) to and (ii) from; how many staff were seconded in each year; for how long each secondment lasted; and what the cost was of each secondment in each year. [167274]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA was created in June 2001 and the information provided relates to the period since then.

The number of secondments made to or from DEFRA since June 2001 and the total number of secondments each year was as follows:

| | To | From | Total |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2001 | 25 | 18 | 43 |
| 2002 | 45 | 54 | 99 |
| 2003 | 69 | 73 | 142 |
| 2004 | 64 | 85 | 149 |
| 2005 | 103 | 83 | 186 |
| 2006 | 82 | 145 | 227 |
| 2007 | 42 | 47 | 89 |

The lengths of the secondments in each year were as follows:

| | Less than one year | One to two years | Two to three years | Three to four years | Four to five years | Five years and over | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 2001 | 7 | 13 | 13 | 5 | 4 | 1 | 43 |
| 2002 | 30 | 29 | 14 | 12 | 7 | 7 | 99 |
| 2003 | 55 | 41 | 20 | 13 | 8 | 5 | 142 |
| 2004 | 50 | 54 | 23 | 19 | 3 | 0 | 149 |
| 2005 | 53 | 75 | 43 | 11 | 1 | 3 | 186 |
| 2006 | 78 | 76 | 56 | 16 | 0 | 1 | 227 |
| 2007 | 23 | 40 | 18 | 8 | 0 | 0 | 89 |

Information on which organisations staff were seconded to and from, and what the cost was of each secondment in each year could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Sustainable Development

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department is working towards accreditation to a certified environmental management system such as ISO14001 or EMAS for (a) its whole estate or (b) some of its buildings. [167811]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs has 53 sites across the entire estate which falls within the scope of its Environmental Management System (EMS). Of these, 88 per cent. (based on floor space) are accredited to ISO14001. DEFRA is working towards accreditation for all sites falling within the parameters of the EMS within its entire estate not yet accredited.

The Department has an active and on-going programme of assessment for certification of sites currently working towards accreditation and a continuing programme of re-assessment for all sites already accredited to the standard.

Early Retirement

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many employees in his Department have been offered early retirement in the last six months; and if he will make a statement. [168946]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 27 November 2007]: In the last six months 161 employees of the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs have been offered early retirement. To date, 135 of these have accepted the offer. A further 230 employees, aged under 50, have been offered early severance in the same period and of those, to date, 167 have accepted the offer. The scheme has been open to core DEFRA staff only and does not include agencies.

EU Subsidies: Sugar

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received on the payment of an EU subsidy to British Sugar; who will qualify; and if he will make a statement. [167750]

Jonathan Shaw: An application for aid has been made by British Sugar under the EU's sugar restructuring scheme. If the application is successful, a fixed 10 per cent. of the aid is available to beet growers and machinery contractors who are affected by the restructuring process. The application is under consideration.

Farms: West Yorkshire

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average price of farmland per acre is in West Yorkshire; what estimate he has made of changes in the price over the last 10 years; what his assessment is of the effect of such changes; and if he will make a statement. [168127]

Jonathan Shaw: The following table shows the average prices per hectare of agricultural land-only sales in West Yorkshire compared with averages for England. Data are only available for 1998 to 2004.

| | | Average price (£ per Ha) | |
|---|---|---|---|
| | Number of sales in West Yorkshire | West Yorkshire—Land only | England—Land only |
| 1998 | 36 | 4,976 | 5,414 |
| 1999 | 19 | 5,627 | 5,282 |

| | Number of sales in West Yorkshire | Average price (£ per Ha) West Yorkshire—Land only | England—Land only |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2000 | 20 | 6,524 | 5,603 |
| 2001 | 17 | 7,786 | 5,674 |
| 2002 | 16 | 5,951 | 5,488 |
| 2003 | 16 | 11,056 | 5,390 |
| 2004 | 9 | 11,621 | 6,131 |

Source:
Based on data supplied by the Valuations Office

These estimates are based on land sales and, as a result, do not represent the value of all land in West Yorkshire. The volatility of the average sale prices in West Yorkshire from 1998 to 2004 is likely to be due to the relatively small number of sales on which the estimates are based.

Fish: Imports

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether he has made a recent assessment of the market impact of the importing of fish and shellfish into the UK for (a) retail and (b) consumption from (i) European Union and (ii) non-European Union countries which would have been illegal had they been landed in the UK; [169414]

(2) what estimate he has made of the annual volume of imported fish from (a) other European Union and (b) non-European Union countries into the UK for consumption which would not have been caught legally had they been landed in the UK. [169415]

Jonathan Shaw: Information on the volume and value of imports of fish and fish products broken down between European Union and non-European Union countries is published in Chapter 4 of the annual United Kingdom Sea Fisheries Statistics Tables published by the Marine and Fisheries Agency. Copies of the latest edition with data for 2006 have been placed in the Libraries of the House. A further breakdown between those for retail and direct consumption is not available, and an assessment with regards to whether the imports would have been regarded as illegal if they had been landed in the UK, has not been carried out.

Fisheries: Standards

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he has considered the merits of ensuring that minimum fish and shellfish sizes applied to UK fisheries landings are also applied to imports of fish and shellfish from (a) European Union and (b) non-European Union countries. [169407]

Jonathan Shaw: My Department has not undertaken a consideration along the lines suggested. However, we do apply the EU rules equally to UK fishermen and of those from other member states landing into ports in England and Wales.

Food: Pesticides

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what limits have been placed on the pesticides used on food imported (a) from within the EU and (b) from outside the EU. [166779]

Mr. Woolas: There are well established regulatory controls governing the use of pesticides within the European Community, involving a combination of national authorisation systems and authorisations based on harmonised standards under Council Directive 91/414/EEC.

Food marketed in the UK, whatever its country of origin, must comply with relevant maximum residue levels (MRLs) laid down in the Pesticides (Maximum Residue Levels in Crops, Food and Feeding Stuffs) (England and Wales) Regulations 2005 (as amended). Separate but similar legislation applies in Scotland and Northern Ireland. Fully harmonised MRLs are due to be introduced by Regulation (EC) No 396/2005 around mid-2008.

Gleathorpe Cottages

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many commercial valuations his Department has made of Gleathorpe Cottages, Meden Vale, Nottinghamshire in 2007. [167689]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Department has instructed only one firm of residential surveyors to value the residential properties at the former ADAS Farm, Gleadthorpe for the purposes of calculating offers to the tenants under the right to buy. I understand that ADAS may have instructed three firms of surveyors to provide valuations for their own purposes.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reasons 30 November has been set as the deadline for the sale of Gleathorpe Cottages, Meden Vale, Nottinghamshire. [167690]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Department has not set a deadline for the sale of the cottages. 'Right-to-buy' offers have been made to 13 of the 15 tenants providing the opportunity to acquire the property they occupy at the maximum discount available under the 'right-to-buy' provisions. The Department has asked that the tenants respond by 30 November indicating whether they wish to take up the offer to buy under the 'right-to-buy' provisions.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average length of occupancy is of former ADAS Consulting Ltd. workers resident in Gleathorpe Cottages, Meden Vale, Nottinghamshire. [167691]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Department is not in receipt of the full tenancy history of the cottages at Gleadthorpe because the occupational arrangements have been created over time by ADAS and its predecessor agency. The Department has been able to ascertain from the available records that the average occupation for the known tenancies is 20 years and that 13 of the 15 residential tenants have been in occupation in excess of 10 years.

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 868W, on home energy efficiency scheme, who is responsible for paying the administration fees for warm front vouchers; and what the procedure is for making those payments. [168913]

Mr. Woolas: For each voucher claimed, the management fees paid to the scheme manager at eaga plc, are shared between DEFRA and the installer.

Once the work is completed, the installer submits the £300 voucher to the scheme manager, who deducts a £50 administration charge and makes a payment of £250 to the installer.

Additional management fees are paid to the scheme manager by DEFRA on a monthly basis.

Livestock: Disease Control

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what definition he uses of premises in animal health controls, especially in regard to (a) different physical areas, separated by land under different ownership but owned by one individual or business, and (b) two notional premises but within the same ownership and on adjoining pieces of land within a ring fence. [165496]

Jonathan Shaw: Legislation controlling foot and mouth disease and avian influenza defines premises as "any land, building or other place", and bluetongue legislation defines premises as "any place". The extent of a premises depends on a number of practical factors for the purposes of disease control, but not on the ownership of the land.

The movement of animals will usually be from one premises to another. In this context, different parcels of land, separated by other parcels of land, are defined as different premises.

However, when imposing restrictions on, for example, farms where disease is suspected, the degree of common management is fully considered when establishing the physical extent of the restrictions over different parcels of land, which may then be defined as the same 'premises'.

Livestock: Waste Disposal

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the effectiveness and efficiency of the Fallen Stock Disposal Scheme. [167857]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Government are satisfied with the effectiveness and efficiency of the arrangements for collecting and disposing of fallen stock under both the continuing National Fallen Stock Scheme and the temporary Culled and Fallen Stock Disposal Scheme. The temporary scheme was set up on 24 October to assist farmers facing movement restrictions in the foot and mouth disease Restricted Zone. It closed on 19 November when the Zone was lifted.

Nitrate Sensitive Areas

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what studies have been (a) conducted and (b) assessed by his Department on nitrate levels in (i) rivers and (ii) other sensitive areas. [166778]

Mr. Woolas: The Nitrates Directive requires that a review of designations is carried out at least every four years. The implications from the most recent review are considered in a DEFRA consultation, issued in August 2007.

The consultation exercise proposes new measures to deal with nitrogen pollution from agricultural sources, and sets out the supporting evidence and other material. The closing date for comments is 13 December 2007.

Nitrates: Concrete

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessments he has made of the effect on the environment of the use of concrete to prevent the leakage of nitrates into the ground. [166781]

Mr. Woolas: We have not made an assessment of the impact on the environment of constructing concrete platforms for this purpose.

Pesticides

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what pesticides have been banned for use (a) for reasons of public health and (b) for other reasons. [166777]

Mr. Woolas: The following active substances are prohibited from use in plant protection products anywhere in the European Community because of their risks to health or the environment:

Mercuric oxide (mercury oxide);
Mercurous chloride (calomel);
Other inorganic mercury compounds;
Alkyl mercury compounds;
Alkoxyalkyl and aryl mercury compounds;
Camphechlor;
Ethylene oxide;
Nitrofen;
1,2-Dibromoethane
1,2-Dichloroethane;
Dinoseb, its acetate and salts;
Binapacryl;

Captafol;

Dicofol containing less than 78 per cent. of p,p.1—dicofol or more than 1g/kg DDT and DDT related compounds;

Maleic hydrazide and its salts, other than its choline, potassium and sodium salts;

Choline, potassium and sodium salts of maleic hydrazide containing more than 1mg/kg of free hydrazine expressed on the basis of the acid equivalent;

Quintozene containing more than 1g/kg of HCB or more than 10g/kg pentachlorobenzene;

Aldrin;

Chlordane;

Chlordecone;

Dieldrin;

DDT;

Endrin;

HCH;

Heptachlor;

Hexachlorobenzene;

Mirex;

Toxaphene.

In addition, many pesticide active substances have been withdrawn from use following reviews conducted both within the UK and by the European Community.

Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what effect the Renewable Fuel Transport Obligation has had on crop prices; and if he will make a statement. [167853]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: As part of the Government's Climate Change programme, a Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO) will be introduced in 2008. It will require transport fuel suppliers to ensure that 5 per cent. of their fuel sales are from a renewable source by 2010.

It is unlikely that the RTFO has had any discernable effect on crop prices to date. Current high cereals prices are due to global factors, including two successive lower world wheat harvests, low global stocks and increased demand for cereals from the food, feed and fuels sectors. Growing global demand for biofuels can be expected to increase crop prices but also the supply of crops in the future.

Analysis by the European Commission assessing the impact of the 10 per cent. (by energy) biofuel target for 2020 indicates that prices for agricultural raw materials in the European Union (EU) would increase by 3 per cent. to 6 per cent. for cereals and 5 per cent. to 18 per cent. for oilseeds. This took into account, potential in the EU to increase production in response to additional demand, and a future contribution from second generation biofuels which can use non-food feedstocks, including waste.

The Government recognise that a balance is needed between using available land for food and non-food purposes. We will monitor how markets are affected by growing biofuel demand and will tailor policies accordingly.

Rural Payments Agency: Aviation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost of air travel by officials of the Rural Payments Agency was in 2006-07; and how much carbon dioxide was offset in relation to these flights. [164508]

Jonathan Shaw: The cost of air travel by Rural Payment Agency (RPA) officials in 2006-07 was £344,921.84.

While the RPA does not currently offset its carbon emissions it plans to do so in the near future and is actively looking at the possibility of backdating this offsetting using the fund being developed by DEFRA. More generally, the RPA takes sustainable development issues seriously. In 2006 all main RPA sites achieved the ISO 14001 environmental management standard and currently RPA is developing a revised set of targets for its sustainable development action plan.

Sheep Dipping

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research the Government is (a) commissioning and (b) funding on alternatives to organophosphate sheep dip. [168059]

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice his Department makes available on the use of organophosphate sheep dip. [168060]

Jonathan Shaw: The DEFRA, Veterinary Medicines Directorate (VMD) and Environment Agency (EA) websites provide advice on the use and disposal of sheep dip.

Advice from VMD and the EA covers:

safety to the animals, the operators and the environment;

purchasing and transport of the sheep dip product;

the requirement for a responsible person to hold a Certificate of Competence and for that person to supervise others operating the dips;

the siting of the dip baths to minimise the risk of the sheep dip product entering watercourses;

the storage, treatment and disposal of spent dip;

record keeping;

emergencies, i.e. what to do if a person comes into direct contact with the sheep dip.

Advice from DEFRA covers the Groundwater Protection Code—Use and disposal of sheep dip compounds.

Both the VMD and EA websites include links to the Pollution Reduction Programme (PRP) which promotes the safe use of sheep dips.

The VMD website also contains a link to the HSE document AS29 entitled Sheep Dipping—Advice for Farmers and Others involved in Dipping Sheep.

In addition to the website information, an accompanying safety checklist poster must be supplied to each purchaser of sheep dip products at the time of purchase. Also, a NFU poster 'Stop every drop', which was produced as a direct result of the joint VMD/EA Pollution Reduction Plan has been sent to all 51,000 sheep farmers on the British Wool Marketing Board's database.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will commission research jointly with the Department of Health looking into genetic susceptibility to nervous disorders as a result of using organophosphate sheep dips. [168061]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government has funded a number of research projects into the possible effects in humans of exposure to organophosphates (OPs), in particular OP based sheep dips. This research forms a key part of the Government's four point plan on OPs announced in December 1999.

The research was commissioned following the 1999 Committee on Toxicity of Chemicals in Food, Consumer Products and the Environment (COT) report entitled "Organophosphates" in which five recommendations for further research were made. The Government have asked COT

> "to advise on whether prolonged or repeated low level exposure to OPs, or acute exposure to OPs at a lower dose than causing frank intoxication, can cause chronic ill-health effects".

In addition, Government R and D funds have also been used to commission several other projects on OPs and human health.

On genetic susceptibility, COT recommended that research should be undertaken to show whether people with chronic disabling illness that is suspected of being related to OPs differ metabolically from the general population. The project on the genetic variation in susceptibility to chronic effects of organophosphate exposure has been completed and the final report is on the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) website:

http://www.hse.gov.uk/research/rrhtm/rr408.htm.

A related study entitled "Genetic and other sources of variation in the activity of serum paraoxonase in humans: consequences for the risk from exposure to diazinon" has been published in Pharmacogenet, Genomics, 2005 January; 15(1): p51-60.

COT reviewed the research arising from their recommendations along with all other Government-funded research into OPs on 4 September 2007. In reviewing the above work, COT concluded that the results may have reflected genetic differences in susceptibility to ill health, but that if so, these were unlikely to be related to organophosphate toxicity.

COT noted that, as some of the research projects commissioned as a result of their 1999 recommendations had yet to be completed, they would need to revisit the work when all the final reports have been received. COT also advised that the final review should consider the Government-funded research in the wider context of all research on OPs and human health. Once the final review is received from COT, the Government will consider this and the need for any research which might be identified as part of an integrated programme of work. Currently, there are no plans to commission any further research on genetic susceptibility to nervous disorders as a result of using organophosphate sheep dips.

Shellfish: Canada

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has (a) received and (b) made in respect of the importing of Canadian lobsters into the UK. [169416]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA has neither made nor received any representations about imports of Canadian lobsters.

Sugar Beet

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the Government's policy is on the proposals of UK sugar beet growers that British Sugar's application to the EU Restructuring Scheme should be linked to a plan to recompense those growers who lost their sugar-growing enterprises as a result of the closure of the York and Allscot factories. [168348]

Jonathan Shaw: British Sugar's application, including this element, is under active consideration and we shall announce in due course the envisaged distribution of EU Restructuring Aid in the event that the application is approved.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received from sugar beet growers in the areas of the now closed York and Allscot factories seeking compensation as part of the reform of the EU sugar regime. [168349]

Jonathan Shaw: Representations, to the effect that beet growers who formerly supplied the Allscott and York sugar factories should be entitled to an element of any EU Restructuring Aid made available in the UK, have been received on their behalf from the National Farmers Union.

Veterinary Services: Finance

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the written answer of 20 November 2007 to the hon. Member for Aylesbury (164336), if he will list (a) in total and (b) in respect of each local authority (i) the value of bids submitted to divisional veterinary managers (DVMs) and certified by the DVMs as eligible for additional resources under the Revenue Support Grant for work on animal health and welfare for 2007-08 and (ii) the funding allocations made by his Department in response to those bids. [167846]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The forecasts submitted by local authorities through the divisional veterinary managers (DVMs) for direct funding under the Animal Health and Welfare framework agreement, and the funding allocations made by DEFRA, are given in the following table. This year, the total bids received, some of which arrived well into the new financial year, amounted to £9.77 million. The funding available was £8.5 million. This direct funding from DEFRA is in addition to the Revenue Support Grant that all local authorities receive.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Central Sponsor for Information Assurance Unit: Data Protection

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) when he last met members of the Central Sponsor for Information Assurance Unit to discuss information security; [168801]

(2) what meetings he has had with ministerial colleagues in other Departments to discuss information assurance in the last 12 months. [168802]

Edward Miliband [holding answer 27 November 2007]: Cabinet Office Ministers have a wide range of meetings with officials and ministerial colleagues on a number of policy issues. It is not the Government's practice to disclose details of these meetings.

Mr. Walker: To ask the Leader of the House whether her Office's information technology and data management systems are BS7799 compliant. [168742]

Helen Goodman: Information technology and data management systems used by the Office of the Leader of the House of Commons are BS7799 compliant.

WALES

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) what reviews have been undertaken of his Department's rules on data protection in the last two years; if he will place in the Library a copy of the report of the last review of his Department's compliance with data protection laws; and if his Department will undertake a review of its compliance with data protection laws; [168072]

(2) on how many occasions in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies confidential data have been downloaded on to compact discs (i) without and (ii) with encryption in the last 12 month period for which figures are available; how many of those discs have been posted without using recorded or registered delivery; what procedures his Department has in place for the (A) transport, (B) exchange and (C) delivery of confidential or sensitive data; what records are kept of information held by his Department being sent outside the Department; what changes have been made to his Department's rules and procedures on data protection in the last two years; on how many occasions his Department's procedures and rules on data protection have been breached in the last five years; what those breaches were; what procedures his Department has in place on downloading confidential data on to computer discs before its transfer; what technical protections there are in his Department's computer systems to prevent access to information held on those systems which is not in accordance with departmental procedures; and if he will place in the Library a copy of each of his Department's rules and procedures on the protection of confidential data on individuals, businesses and other organisations; [168265]

(3) how many employees of each grade in his Department (a) have access to confidential or sensitive data and (b) are authorised to download such data to disc; how many of his Department's employees have undergone data protection training in the last 12 months; what the average length of time is that each employee of his Department has spent on data protection training; how many investigations of employees of his Department for improperly accessing confidential information have taken place in the last 12 months; how many such investigations resulted in cases of disciplinary action; and what the circumstances of each of those cases were. [168285]

Mr. Hain: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for the storage and use of data. A statement on Departments' procedures will be made on completion of the review.

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether his Department's information technology and data management systems are BS7799 compliant. [168738]

Mr. Hain: All Government Departments are required to ensure that their information technology and data management systems meet the Government standard (known as HMG Infosec Standard 2) which is aligned to BS7799.

Ministry of Justice provides all information technology and data management systems to the Wales Office.

All organisations brought together as MoJ in May 2007 comply with the Government standard, and therefore meet the principles of BS7799.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) on how many occasions the Information Commissioner was contacted by his Department to report breaches of data protection security in each of the last five years; [168823]

(2) how many breaches of data protection security there were in his Department in each of the last five years; and if he will provide details of each breach. [168833]

Mr. Hain: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for the storage and use of data. A statement on Departments' procedures will be made on completion of the review.

Departmental Health Insurance

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many officials in his Department have private health insurance provided as part of their employment package. [167923]

Mr. Hain: None.

Departmental Manpower

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [168096]

Mr. Hain: None.

Departmental Secondment

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many secondments of staff were made (a) to and (b) from his Office in each year since 1997; which organisations staff were seconded (i) to and (ii) from; how many staff were seconded in each year; for how long each secondment lasted; and what the cost was of each secondment in each year. [168694]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office was established in 1999 and has always had staff on loan from other Government Departments. Loans have predominantly been from the Welsh Assembly Government. Between 1999 and 2004, the vast majority of staff were on loan to the Wales Office, and since then it has reduced to around 50 per cent. of the total headcount.

Numbers of staff, home departments and costs are not available in the format requested, and obtaining this information could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many young people under the age of 16 years were charged with alcohol related offences in each of the last three years for which figures are available, broken down by police basic command unit. [168696]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not hold data on the number of people charged by the police for alcohol related offences.

Anabolic Steroids: Crime

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) cautioned, (b) arrested, (c) charged and (d) convicted of (i) possession of and (ii) supplying anabolic steroids in the United Kingdom in each year since 1997. [165942]

Mr. Coaker: The available information has been supplied by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. Information on the number of people cautioned, proceeded against and convicted of possession and supplying anabolic steroids in England and Wales for the years 1997 to 2005 is given in tables 1 and 2. Data for 2006 will be available in late November of 2007.

Information on charging is not held centrally, but proceeded against data has been provided in the following table.

The arrests collection undertaken by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform only provides data on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) by age group, gender, ethnicity, and main offence group, i.e. violence against the person, sexual offences, robbery, burglary, drugs offences etc. More detailed data about specific offences do not form part of this collection.

The Scottish Executive have advised that the information requested is not held centrally.

The Northern Ireland Office advises that data relating to the 'offence of supplying anabolic steroids' are not available. It is only possible to provide prosecution, conviction and sentencing information relating to Class C drugs which includes tranquilisers and other drugs.

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] From 1 June 2000 the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the totals.

[3] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates' courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Animal Experiments: Licensing

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what plans she has to (a) reduce information requirements and (b) streamline transaction processes for applications for project licences for scientific procedures on animals; [167696]

(2) what estimate her Department has made of the costs to animal research businesses and other organisations of applications for project licences for scientific procedures on animals. [167698]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Home Office Simplification Plan published in December 2006 includes a target to reduce the compliance costs arising from the regulation of animal experiments by 25 per cent. by 2010, whilst maintaining proper provision for animal welfare. Work towards the target is being taken forward in a dedicated better regulation programme. This work includes looking at how we might reduce information requirements and streamline transaction processes for applications for project licences under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986.

Since January 2007, we have delivered a number of quick wins involving improvements to forms and processes and we have also completed preliminary work, including consultation with practitioners, to identify potential options for longer term improvements to our regulatory processes. Amongst other things, we are now working on the development of a new, shorter project licence application form and project licence templates and worked examples.

We have not separately estimated the costs to the scientific community associated with applications for project licences. However, an administrative burden on business, excluding the academic sector, has been identified and priced at £6.95 million per annum. These costs include those arising from all aspects of regulation under the 1986 Act, including personal and project licences, certificates of designation, local ethical review processes and training.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of the breach rate of antisocial behaviour orders. [167537]

Mr. Coaker: The latest data available for the breach rate for antisocial behaviour orders is for the period 1 June 2000 to 31 December 2005 and is 47 per cent. overall (57 per cent. for juveniles and 41 per cent. for adults with 3 per cent. age unknown). Analysis of the 2003 ASBO breach data showed that 55 per cent. of those who breached their ASBO received a custodial sentence, the average length of which was three to six months.

Assets Recovery Agency: Belfast

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent by the Assets Recovery Agency in Belfast on (a) salaries, (b) travel and (c) subsistence in each financial year since its creation. [168491]

Asylum: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) adults and (b) children seeking asylum were resident in (i) Southend and (ii) each local authority in Essex in (A) the latest period for which figures are available, (B) 1997, (C) 2001, (D) 2005 and (E) 2006. [167396]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested could be obtained only by the detailed examination of individual case records, at disproportionate cost.

Statistics on supported asylum seekers, broken down by age, are not available. The location of those asylum seekers not in receipt of support is not available.

Separate arrangements exist for unaccompanied asylum seeking children (UASC), who are supported by local authorities; the local authority receives funding from the Home Office for this purpose. As at the end of March 2007 an estimated 5,000 UASCs were supported by local authorities; this figure is based on the latest available management information and a regional breakdown is not available.

The numbers of asylum seekers in receipt of support, broken down by Government office region and local authority, are published on a quarterly and annual basis. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Further breakdowns, of those in receipt of support by parliamentary constituency, are also available from the Library of the House.

[168888]

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) level and (b) rate per 1,000 population in (i) England and (ii) each London borough was of (A) crime, (B) homicide, (C) violence against the person, (D) rape, (E) personal robbery, (F) robberies from businesses, (G) residential burglary, (H) non-residential burglary, (I) gun-related crime, (J) motor vehicle crime, (K) domestic crime and (L) racial crime in the most recent period for which figures are available. [166947]

Mr. Coaker: Data for gun-related crime refer to the offences involving firearms (excluding air weapons) that have been recorded by the police. Data for 2005-06 is the most recently available and is given in Table A.

From the information collected centrally on recorded crime, it is not possible to identify recorded cases of domestic crime. Such offences are not specifically defined by law and details of the individual circumstances of offences are not collected. Data for the remaining crime types requested are given for 2006-07 in Table B.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded instances of (a) rape and (b) domestic violence there were in each year since 1997 in England and Wales, broken down by police force area; and what the clear-up rates of such crimes were in each year in each area. [166976]

Mr. Coaker: From the information collected centrally on recorded crime, it is not possible to identify recorded cases of domestic violence. Such offences are not specifically defined by law and details of the individual circumstances of offences are not collected.

Data for the number of recorded instances of rape and the clear-up/detection rate for these crimes is available for the 1997 calendar year and from 1998-99 in financial years. This followed a revision to the counting rules for recorded crime and the expanded coverage which came into effect on 1 April 1998. The figures were also affected by the revised detections guidance issued in April 1999 which formalised detection procedures, placing a greater emphasis on the evidential basis on which detections can be claimed.

The figures were also affected by the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in April 2002, which required the police to record a crime unless there was "no credible evidence to the contrary". The Sexual Offences Act 2003 in May 2004 also altered the definition and coverage of sexual offences, including rape. All of these changes mean that detection rates are not comparable over these time periods.

The Home Office carried out research published in July 2007 which found that the reduction in detection rates was likely to be largely due to changes in recording practices resulting from the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard, counting rules and detections guidance ('Investigating and detecting recorded offences of rape', Home Office Online Report 18/07).

New performance management arrangements have been introduced for the police and CPS on the investigation and prosecution of rape. The Home Office and Association of Chief Police Officers are also providing operational support to police forces on the implementation of recommendations from 'Without Consent', the rape inspection published in January 2007.

[1] Offences detected in current year may have been initially recorded in an earlier year, so some percentages may exceed 100.

[2] Expanded offence coverage and revised counting rules came into effect on 1 April 1998.

[3] Revised detections guidance was implemented on 1 April 1999.

[4] The data in this table take account of the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in April 2002. These figures are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.

[5] The Sexual Offences Act 2003, introduced in May 2004, altered the definition and coverage of sexual offences.

[6] In accordance with guidance from the Office for National Statistics, values less than 3 have been suppressed in order to protect confidentiality.

Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of face the people sessions conducted by crime and disorder reduction partnerships (CDRPs); and what guidance her Department issues to CDRPs on the conduct of such sessions. [167536]

Mr. Coaker: The new statutory requirements for crime and disorder reduction partnerships (CDRPs), contained in the Crime and Disorder (Formulation and Implementation of Strategy) Regulations 2007, state that each CDRP must hold one or more public meeting a year which can be described as 'face the people' sessions. These regulations came into force in England on 1 August and in Wales on 19 November.

The Home Office does not intend to assess the effectiveness of CDRP public meetings or 'face the people' sessions specifically. As part of the ongoing performance support provided to CDRPs, the Home Office will continue to review the effectiveness of all CDRPs as they deliver the new statutory requirements.

Guidance to support partnerships to hold effective public meetings is contained within the recently published "Delivering Safer Communities: A guide to effective partnership working". This gives advice and examples of best practice to help partnerships on all aspects of the new requirements including a section on holding public meetings. The guidance document is available on the Crime Reduction website at:

http://crimereduction.homeoffice.gov.uk/guidance_for_effective_partnerships.pdf.

Cumbria

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether her Department plans to move any of its offices to Westmorland and Lonsdale constituency. [166564]

Mr. Byrne: My Department has no plans to move any of its offices to Westmorland and Lonsdale constituency.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of (a) beef, (b) lamb, (c) pork and (d) dairy products used in her departmental headquarters were imported products in the most recent period for which figures are available. [166652]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Member to the data published in the report deposited in the House of Commons Library on 8 November 2007 that gives the proportion of UK produce supplied to Government Departments, NHS and HM Prison Service. The House was told of the report in a written ministerial statement by my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Jonathan Shaw). A copy of the report is also available on the PSFPI website at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/farm/policy/sustain/procurement/pdf/govt-food-usage.pdf.

Departmental Health Insurance

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officials in (a) her Department and (b) each of its agencies have private health insurance provided as part of their employment package. [167931]

Mr. Byrne: No officials in either (a) the Home Office or (b) any of its Agencies (Borders and Immigration Agency, Identity and Passport Service and Criminal Records Bureau) are provided with private health insurance as part of their employment package.

Departmental Pay

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people in her Department earned over £100,000 in each year since 1997. [167194]

Mr. Byrne: The following table shows the number of people, including public appointments, in the Home Office whose gross salary exceeded £100,000.00 for the financial years from 2000-01 to 2006-07. The Home Office changed its payroll system in July 2001 and electronic records are not available for previous financial years. Individuals who have left the Department are also listed separately for clarity as a single post may have been occupied by more than one individual during a financial year.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to publish her Department's autumn performance report. [164881]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office has not yet set a date for publication of its autumn performance report for 2007, however it is our intention to publish this before the house rises for the Christmas recess.

Departmental Secondment

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many secondments of staff were made (a) to and (b) from her Department in each year since 1997; which organisations staff were seconded (i) to and (ii) from; how many staff were seconded in each year; for how long each secondment lasted; and what the cost was of each secondment in each year. [167243]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not collated or held centrally by the Home Office. A limited amount of data on secondments to the voluntary sector is held by the Home Office Interchange Team. Data is held for current year activity only. So far for the year 2007-08 there have been 22 secondments to the voluntary sector at a total cost of approximately £500,000.

Deportation

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people had their removal delayed by application for judicial review in each of the last three years; and what proportion of cases before the Appeal Court they comprised. [168342]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The numbers of people who have had their removal delayed by an application for judicial review in the last three years are:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| November 2004-October 2005 | 1,539 |
| November 2005-October 2006 | 1,658 |
| November 2006-October 2007 | 2,667 |

These figures have been obtained from internal management information and may be subject to change.

The Border and Immigration Agency does not have the information to answer 'what proportion of cases before the Appeal Court they comprised.'

Domestic Violence: Death

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many women in each police force area were killed by a current or former male partner in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [167289]

Mr. Coaker: Latest available information on homicides recorded by police in England and Wales is published in 'Homicides, Firearm Offences and Intimate Violence 2005-06' (Home Office Statistical Bulletin 02/07), table 1.05 of which provides data on relationship of victims to principal suspects. The requested breakdown has been extracted from the Homicide Index and is shown in the table. Data for 2006-07 are expected to be published in late January 2008.

Drugs: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drug dealers who were not UK citizens resident in the Peterborough city council area were deported in each year since 2001; and if she will make a statement. [168769]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested could be obtained only through the detailed examination of individual case files at disproportionate cost. The chief executive of the Border and Immigration Agency wrote to the Home Affairs Committee on 20 November providing the most accurate and robust information on foreign national prisoners. A copy of this letter is available from the Library of the House.

EC Integration

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she has had with the Foreign Secretary on the British Council's Migration Integration Policy Index 2007 report. [168788]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 27 November 2007]: There have been no discussions between the Secretary of State for the Home Department and the Foreign Secretary about the Migration Integration Policy Index 2007 report.

Extradition

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many extradition requests were received by the UK from (a) the USA, (b) each of the other EU member states and (c) other countries, in each of the last five years; and how many of those were (i) granted and (ii) refused. [165422]

Meg Hillier: For the purposes of this reply, the answer gives details of requests made to England and Wales; requests from Scotland and Northern Ireland are matters for the Scotland Office and Northern Ireland Office respectively.

Since 1 January 2004, extradition between the UK and European Union has been conducted under the Framework Decision on the European Arrest Warrant (EAW), which was given effect in the UK by part 1 of the Extradition Act 2003. The other EU member states have been designated under part 1 of the Extradition Act 2003 at regular intervals. A separate table sets out the statistics for the EAW.

It should be emphasised that a person is not always returned in the same year that an extradition request has been received.

Firearms: Crime

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) gun crimes and (b) arrests relating to gun crime there were (i) in England and (ii) in each police force area in each of the last five years. [165681]

Mr. Coaker: Available data relate to offences involving firearms (excluding air weapons) from 2001-02 up to and including 2005-06 and are given in the table. Firearms are taken to be involved in a crime if they are fired, used as a blunt instrument or used as a threat.

The arrests collection undertaken by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform provides data only on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) by age group, gender, ethnicity, and main offence group, i.e. violence against the person, sexual offences, robbery, burglary etc. More detailed data about specific offences do not form part of this collection.

Foreign Workers

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her estimate is of the number of non-EU citizens who have been given (a) the right to work and (b) the right to remain in the UK in each year since 1977. [167738]

Mr. Byrne: The available information can be found in the yearly Command Paper "Control of Immigration: Statistics United Kingdom". This publication may be obtained from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Frontiers: Security

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made on procurement for the e-borders system; and what the planned extent of the system is. [168440]

Mr. Byrne: A contract to deliver e-Borders was awarded to the Trusted Borders consortium led by Raytheon Systems Ltd on 14 November 2007. e-Borders is a multi-agency programme, led by the Border and Immigration Agency in partnership with HM Revenue and Customs, UKvisas and the police service, working with the security and intelligence agencies. Its main purpose is the collection and analysis of passenger, service and crew data provided by carriers (air, sea and rail) in respect of all journeys to and from the United Kingdom in advance of travel, supporting an intelligence led approach to operating border controls.

Information gathered by e-Borders will provide crucial aid to security and counter-terrorist work, providing the capability to risk assess all passengers and allowing the authorities to intervene, where necessary, against those considered to be high risk.

Illegal Encampments

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations she has received on the adequacy of police powers to tackle illegal encampments; and if she will make a statement. [167849]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The Government are working with a number of key stakeholders to address public concerns about problems relating to unauthorised encampments through the Task Group on Site Provision and Enforcement for Gypsies and Travellers set up in 2006, chaired by Sir Brian Briscoe. The Task Group is currently finalising its report to Ministers, which is expected to be published before the end of the year. The Interim Task Group report published in March 2007 was clear that effective enforcement against unauthorised sites will only be possible when there is appropriate provision of authorised sites.

Immigration Controls: Football

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will assess the likely effect of the proposed new points system for working migrants on professional footballers. [168132]

Mr. Byrne: Detailed impact assessments of the new points based system, including on professional sportspeople, will be made available as detailed proposals are brought forward.

Opinion Leader Research

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many contracts were awarded by her Department to Opinion Leader Research in each year since 1997; and what was (a) the title and purpose, (b) the cost to the public purse and (c) the dates of (i) tender, (ii) award (iii) operation and (iv) completion and report to the Department in each case. [165273]

Mr. Byrne: Since 2003 the Department has let two contracts to Opinion Leader Research. The details of the contracts are as follows:

| (a) Title and purpose of the project | (b) The cost to the public purse | (c)(i) Date project was put to tender | (c) (ii) Date awarded to Opinion Leader Research | (c)(iii) Date project carried out | (c)(iv) Date completed and findings put to the Department |

To carry out a full search of all individual contracts prior to 2003 across Home Office headquarters and the executive agencies would incur disproportionate cost.

Passport: Interviews

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many passport interviews have been conducted since 1 June 2007. [167874]

Meg Hillier: The total number of interviews conducted up to Friday 16 November is 9,702. This includes 623 from the live trial, which was running before 1 June 2007.

Police: Manpower

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the total pay costs were of (a) Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary, (b) the National Police Improvement Agency, (c) the Police Standards Unit and (d) the Independent Police Complaints Commission in each year since their inception; and how many staff worked in each organisation in each year. [165651]

Mr. McNulty: The total pay costs are as follows:

(a) Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC)

| | Total staff | £ million Total pay |
|---|---|---|
| 2006-07 | 137 | 8.9 |
| 2005-06 | 129 | 7.1 |
| 2004-05 | 128 | 7.0 |
| 2003-04 | 128 | 6.1 |
| 2002-03 | — | 5.8 |
| 2001-02 | — | 5.6 |
| 2000-01 | — | 4.5 |
| 1999-2000 | — | 3.7 |
| 1998-99 | — | 3.7 |
| 1997-98 | — | 3.9 |

The first HMIs were appointed under the provisions of the County and Borough Police Act 1856. However, numbers prior to 1997-98 are not readily available.

HMIC has been unable to provide complete staff numbers because changes in IT systems have meant data are not readily available prior to 2003-04.

Total staff numbers include HO and seconded staff.

(b) National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA)

| | Total staff | £ million Total pay budget |
|---|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 1,834 | 89.9 |

The NPIA was established by the Police and Justice Act 2006 and began its work in April 2007.

As NPIA only commenced operations this financial year no annual cost information is yet available; we have therefore provided an indicative budget for the year.

NPIA pay budget includes NPIA civilian employees, police and other secondees, along with agency staff.

(c) Police Standards Unit (PSU)

| | Total staff | £ million Total pay costs |
|---|---|---|
| 2006-07 | 22 | 2.5 |
| 2005-06 | 58 | 3.1 |
| 2004-05 | 59 | [1]6 |
| 2003-04 | 66 | 2.9 |
| 2002-03 | [1]— | [1]— |
| 2001-02 | 29 | 0.645 |

[1] Unavailable

The budget and staffing data for PSU is managed at directorate level along with a number of other Home Office units. Only the figure for 2006-07 is disaggregated, all the rest include the other units.

In July 2007 the Police Standards Unit merged with the Partnership Performance Support Unit to form the Police and Partnership Standards Unit. The complement for the new unit is 33. The rationale for the merger is explained in the PCSD Director's Report 2006-07.

2001-02

In response to a parliamentary question on 17 June 2002, Official Report, column 108W, we stated that the costs from 1 July 01 to the 17 June 02 were £709,000. So an estimate for the financial year 2001-02 would be £645,000.

2002-03

We have been unable to locate data for 2002-03 within the timeframe available as data are stored on an old financial system.

2003-04 to 2005-06

These figures include the Police Performance and Framework Team including iQuanta, and the policy team, which from 2006-07 were counted as separate units.

(d) Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC)

Total pay costs for the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) is a matter for them.

Racial Violence

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of religious hate crime were recorded in each police force area in each of the last five years. [168643]

Mr. McNulty: The available information relates to racially or religiously aggravated offences recorded by the police and is given in the table. It is not possible to identify separately those offences of a religious nature from those of a racial nature.

Racially or religiously aggravated offences

Registration of Births Deaths Marriages and Civil Partnerships

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to provide updated guidance for the Certificate of Approval for marriage or civil partnership applications online. [167615]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 26 November 2007]: The guidance for Certificate of Approval for marriage or civil partnership applications was revised in 2006 and again in 2007 following court judgements, and these changes are reflected in the guidance currently available in the Library of the House and on www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk/applying/generalcaseworking/coaformarriageorcivilpartnership

and

www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk/applying/applicationforms/

The Certificate of Approval scheme is subject to judicial review, and we will review the guidance and forms and make any amendments necessary in the light of the outcome of the judicial review.

Road Traffic Offences

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many motorists were (a) charged with and (b) convicted of (i) failure to accord correct precedence at pedestrian crossings, (ii) failure to comply with traffic signs, (iii) speeding offences, (iv) driving after consuming alcohol or taking drugs, (v) reckless driving and (vi) driving while disqualified in (A) each police force area and (B) England and Wales, in each year since 1997. [167008]

Mr. Coaker: Information on drivers charged with motoring offences is not collected centrally.

Available information on convictions for the offences listed is held by the Ministry of Justice and copies can be found in the House Library. These cover the total findings of guilt at all courts, from 1997 to 2005 (latest available).

2006 data will be available next year.

Seasonal Agricultural Workers' Scheme

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what effect she expects the doctrine of Community preference to have on the countries from which workers come under the seasonal agricultural workers scheme; whether she has had discussions with her Polish, Belgian and Cypriot counterparts on their decisions to allow seasonal agricultural workers from non-EU countries to continue to work; and if she will make a statement. [165643]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 19 November 2007]: The accession treaty for Bulgaria and Romania requires the UK to give preference to accession state workers over non-EU workers. Accordingly, non EU nationals cannot be treated more favourably.

While transitional restrictions continue to be in place on Romanian and Bulgarian nationals' access to the UK labour market, we will not be providing for migration from nationals outside the EU on specific low-skilled schemes. Therefore in 2008, applications to the seasonal agricultural workers scheme will only be accepted from Romania and Bulgaria.

This was confirmed in my written ministerial statement issued on 30 October 2007 regarding the application of SAWS from 2008:

"From 2008 applications to the existing 'Seasonal Agricultural Workers Scheme' will be accepted only from Romania and Bulgaria—meaning a potential increase from 6,500 A2 migrant workers through this scheme this year to 16,250 next year. The overall number of migrants coming to the UK through SAWS is unchanged."

No new statement is planned regarding SAWS.

The Government have ongoing discussions with European counterparts on a range of issues including accession. It is for each EU member state to determine the application of the community preference principle to their labour market.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the likely effect of the proposals in the Communication from the European Commission on circular migration and mobility partnerships between the European Union and third countries on the Government's review of the Seasonal Agricultural Workers scheme. [165645]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 19 November 2007]: While the Government recognise many of the principles underpinning the European Commission's communication, for example close co-operation and dialogue between countries, they do not believe that the UK can benefit from encouraging low skilled migration from outside the European Union. There is sufficient labour within the enlarged EU to fill all low skilled vacancies including the Seasonal Agricultural Worker scheme.

The SAWS quota for 2008 will be 16,250, and applications will only be accepted from Romania and Bulgaria.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether she had discussions at EU level on the UK's decision to restrict 40 per cent. of the Seasonal Agricultural Workers scheme to Bulgarian and Romanian nationals; and if she will make a statement; [166607]

(2) whether she has held discussions at EU level on the principle of community preference in respect of the Seasonal Agricultural Worker scheme. [166613]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 20 November 2007]: The Home Office has not had discussions with EU partners on either of these points.

Speed Limits: Fines

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drivers were fined for speeding in (a) England and Wales and (b) in each police force area in each year since 1997; and how much was paid in fines in each area in each year. [167006]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the total revenue from speed limit convictions is not collected centrally.

Available information collected centrally and held by the Ministry of Justice identifies the amount of court imposed fines for such offences within each police force area together with the number of fixed penalties offered. Not all fines and fixed penalties will have been paid.

Available information from 1997 to 2005 (latest available) showing the total number of court imposed fines and fixed penalty notices issued for speeding offences in England and Wales and by police force area are provided in tables A and B respectively.

2006 data will be available next year.

Notes:
1. It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences are less than complete.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Note:
Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative systems generated by police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Theft: Lead

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of thefts of lead from roofs in the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [168606]

Mr. McNulty: Statistics concerning the number of thefts of lead from roofs are not available. Such offences would be recorded under the 'other theft' classification and cannot be separately identified from other offences recorded within that classification.

Touting: Tickets

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many criminal proceedings involving alleged ticket touting at football matches under section 166 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 have been pursued since the Act came into force; and how many convictions have been secured. [169533]

Mr. Coaker: Detailed information on football-related arrests has been collated by the Football Banning Orders Authority since the football season 2001-2002, when the existing banning order framework was introduced. The table provides details of prosecutions, convictions and cautions in respect of ticket touting offences during the previous six football seasons.

Workers Registration Scheme

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of A8 workers (a) working in the UK and (b) who have come to work in the UK since May 2004 who have not registered with the worker registration scheme because of (i) self-employment and (ii) another reason. [166977]

Mr. Byrne: The number of approved initial registrations under the Worker Registration Scheme between May 2004 and September 2007 was 715,000. The Accession (Immigration and Worker Registration) Regulations 2004 do not require Accession state nationals to notify the Home Office when they cease employment or leave the UK. As such the aforementioned figure is cumulative and shows the number of Accession state nationals who have registered their initial employment since May 2004.

The Home Office does not monitor the number of Accession state nationals exempt from the Worker Registration Scheme who come to the UK to work. This includes individuals who are working as self-employed and others covered by an exemption in the Accession (Immigration and Worker Registration) Regulations 2004.

Figures stated in this response are taken from the Accession Monitoring Report (May 2004—September 2007) which was published 20 November 2007.

Youth Justice Board

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of Youth Justice Board projects to prevent youth crime and antisocial behaviour as part of the commitments under the Respect Action Plan. [167534]

Mr. Coaker: Since 2004, the Government have invested over £45 million in youth offending teams to fund targeted youth crime and antisocial behaviour prevention activities for young people at most risk.

By November 2007 there were over 500 Safer Schools Partnerships (SSPs), 200 Youth Inclusion and Support Panels (YISPs), 110 Youth Inclusion Programmes (YIPs) and 120 Parenting Programmes. We estimate that over 25,000 children and young people received targeted support from these programmes during 2007.

An evaluation by the university of Newcastle, published in October 2007, concluded that YISPs improved the mental health and school results of the young participants. A recent interim evaluation of YIPs concluded that they were responsible for a substantial reduction in offending and arrest rates for the most at risk. Evaluations of SSPs have shown they reduce truancy rates in comparison with non-SSP schools.

A full independent evaluation of the YJB's prevention programmes by the university of York is due to be presented in an interim report by March 2008.

JUSTICE

Departmental Computers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many of his Department's (a) computers and (b) laptops have been stolen in 2007; and what the value of those items was. [168591]

Mr. Hanson: One office desktop computer and 26 laptops have been stolen from the Ministry of Justice in 2007. The total replacement value of these items is approximately £50,000.

The losses were from a variety of locations across England and Wales. There have been no reported security breaches.

Departmental Public Participation

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department has spent on (a) citizens' juries, (b) focus groups and (c) other deliberative forms of public opinion research in each month since January 2006. [166587]

Mr. Wills: The following table gives the details of focus groups and other deliberative forms of public opinion research carried out by the Ministry of Justice since January 2006, including the month of the fieldwork and the total cost of the project. The Ministry of Justice has undertaken 18 projects involving focus groups, and two projects involving other deliberative forms of public opinion research. There have been no citizens' juries in this period.

The Department undertakes research including focus groups and deliberative research on various subjects when this is the most effective and appropriate means of building up an evidence base to support the development and delivery of policy and public services. We particularly use focus groups and deliberative research when the issues considered are complex and require a more in-depth engagement with respondents to understand their perspective and views.

These cost £256,488 for work contracted in 2005-06; £611,822 for work contracted in 2006-07; and £49,811 in work contracted in 2007 to the present day.

Environment Protection: Fixed Penalties

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of fixed penalty notices issued for environmental offences were paid in full within the 14 day deadline in each year since 1999. [168611]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

DEFRA does not collect data on the number of fixed penalty notices that were paid within the 14 day period.

The number of fixed penalty notices issued and paid to local authorities since 1999 is shown in the following table.

Figures for 2006-2007 will be published shortly.

| April to March | Number of fixed penalties issued by local authorities | Number of fixed penalties paid to local authorities |
|---|---|---|
| 1999-2000 | 2,970 | 1,563 |

Home Detention Curfews: Foreigners

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people granted home detention curfew in the last 12 months were foreign nationals. [169632]

Mr. Hanson: The latest available information relates to 2005. Of the 17,296 prisoners released on home detention curfew in 2005, there were 1,154 foreign nationals. This represented 7 per cent. of all releases on HOC.

Foreign national prisoners who are liable to deportation at the end of their sentence are not eligible for release on home detention curfew.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisoners Release: Domestic Violence

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many of those released on end of custody licence between 29 June 2007 and 31 October 2007 had been convicted of domestic violence offences. [169630]

Mr. Hanson: Domestic violence is not a specific offence and the information requested is therefore not available.

Information on the numbers of ECL releases, by offence group, for September 2007, is published in the monthly publication 'End of Custody Licence releases and recalls' available from the website:

http://www.iustice.gov.uk/publications/endofcustodylicence.htm.

ECL was introduced as a temporary measure and we will keep under review the length of time it will remain in use in the light of new prison capacity coming on stream and the review by Lord Carter.

Security Breaches

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many acknowledged security breaches there have been of (a) Libra, (b) C-NOMIS, (c) ViSOR and (d) other IT systems controlled by his Department. [169628]

Mr. Hanson: There have been no security breaches of the Libra or C-NOMIS systems.

ViSOR is a Home Office system, and in the areas to which the Ministry of Justice has access, there have been no security breaches

A small number of incidents involving other IT systems have been investigated and no security breach involving loss of information from the Department was found to have occurred.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Building Regulations: Digital Broadcasting

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) whether she plans to make any changes to the building regulations to support digital switchover; [168511]

(2) what standards or minimum requirements for digital television receiving infrastructure are included in the building regulations to support digital switchover; [168512]

(3) what estimate she has made of the proportion of newly-built dwellings for multiple occupation equipped with communal digital television receiving infrastructure. [168515]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are currently no requirements for the provision of digital television receiving infrastructure contained within the building regulations. Therefore, we do not collect any data on the proportion of newly built dwellings equipped with communal digital television receiving infrastructure.

We have considered changes to the building regulations to support the provision of data services, and the digital switchover. However, this is a fast-moving area of technology and we therefore consider it unsuited to prescriptive regulation which could quickly become out of date. In addition, a public consultation exercise undertaken by the Department in 2003 indicated a preference for a non-regulatory option.

We are therefore working with industry on a non-mandatory good practice guidance document on data ducting infrastructure for new homes which we hope to publish shortly.

Community Relations: Religion

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the statement of the Prime Minister of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-72, on national security, how the £70 million for community projects devoted to countering extremism announced by the Prime Minister will be spent; and how much (a) was spent in 2006-07 and (b) will be spent in (i) 2007-08 and (ii) each of the next three years. [168398]

Mr. Dhanda: In his statement of 14 November, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister confirmed that £70 million is being invested in community projects that are dedicated to countering violent extremism over the next three years (financial years 2008-09 to 2010-11).

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced on 31 October that around £25 million of that would be invested in national schemes to directly support communities, including:

Equipping faith leaders with the skills and understanding required to lead communities, building their capacity to engage with young people on the challenges they face, including extremism. For example, ensuring imams can communicate more effectively with young people;

Support communities to broaden the provision of citizenship education in mosque schools, equipping young people themselves with the understanding and arguments to reject extremists' messages;

Developing new minimum standards for public institutions (e.g. prisons, universities) engaging imams working with young or vulnerable people;

Supporting the Charity Commission's work to improve governance standards in faith institutions, including mosques;

Increase the provision of leadership training available to Muslim communities, particularly women and young people.

Further announcements will be made as and when the details of the funding are decided.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State also announced £45 million would be available to local authorities and their community partners. This will build on work funded by the Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund in 2007-08, guidance on which can be found at www.communities.gov.uk/communities/preventingextremism. Further guidance will be issued in due course.

On 26 November 2007, the Department for Communities and Local Government allocated a budget of £8.7 million of programme funding for preventing extremism during the financial year 2007-08.

In the 2006-07 financial year £1.4 million of programme funding was spent on projects to prevent violent extremism by the Department for Communities and Local Government.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the statement of the Prime Minister of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-72, on national security, which Muslim women were consulted on the new advisory group on Muslim women announced by the Prime Minister. [168410]

Mr. Dhanda: The National Muslim Women's Advisory Group (NMWAG) is an independent informal group, which will advise the Department for Communities and Local Government on issues to empower Muslim women and increase their participation in civic, economic and social life.

NMWAG comprises a group of women who are in positions of leadership or are working with the communities. They will act as role models and represent the views and concerns of grass-roots Muslim women.

The group will be formally launched in January 2008.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the statement of the Prime Minister of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-72, on national security, what the remit is of the new advisory group in relation to Muslim women announced by the Prime Minister; who she expects its members to be; what she expects its cost to be; and if she will make a statement. [168412]

Mr. Dhanda: The National Muslim Women's Advisory Group (NMWAG) is an independent informal group, which will advise the Department for Communities and Local Government on issues to empower Muslim women and increase their participation in civic, economic and social life.

NMWAG comprises a group of women who are in positions of leadership or are working with the communities. They will act as role models and represent the views and concerns of grass-roots Muslim women.

The Department for Communities and Local Government has an allocation of £70 million over the next three years for preventing extremism. Of that, £45 million will be given to local authorities for community projects at local level and £25 million will be used to support a wide range of national initiatives on a range of issues including the women's advisory group. The exact allocation to the advisory group from this budget has not yet been decided. Actual running costs are expected to be minimal.

Construction

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new commercial and public-sector developments measuring over 1,000 square metres were built in the UK in 2006. [167411]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information is not available in the precise form requested. Information from the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) shows that there were around 1,140 retail properties, offices (including offices for public sector use), factories and warehouses built in England and Wales in 2005 that measured over 1,000 square metres. Certain public-sector properties such as schools and hospitals are not included in information provided by the VOA and are therefore excluded from the figure. The figure of 1,140 includes properties that were significantly extended in 2005 (where the floor space was more than doubled), as well as newly built properties. Information on properties built in 2006 will not be available until February 2008.

Information from the VOA covers England and Wales only. Information on developments in Scotland and Northern Ireland would need to be requested from the respective administrations.

Council Housing: Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department provides for local authorities on sustainable ways of replacing windows in local authority-owned homes, with particular reference to the policy of Birmingham city council of replacing windows with UPVC double-glazed units. [168653]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities are responsible for investment decisions relating to their own stock. We have not issued guidance on sustainable ways of replacing windows in local authority-owned homes.

Crime Prevention

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government who the members are of the ministerial group to which the cross-departmental review on how best to engage communities in the fight against crime has been referred. [167121]

Edward Miliband: I have been asked to reply.

The ministerial group comprises the Home Secretary (Chair), the Secretary of State for Justice, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, the Attorney-General and the Minister for the Cabinet Office.

Departmental NDPBs

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) budget and (b) remit is of each non-departmental public body sponsored by her Department; who the chairman is of each; and to what salary, including bonuses and expenses, each chairman is entitled. [163611]

Hazel Blears: The most recent information can be found on the Cabinet Office website at http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/documents/pdf/public_bodies/publicbodies2006.pdf

We are currently collating information to 31 March 2007, which will be published on my Department's website in due course.

Departmental Public Participation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what opinion polls the Department has conducted of (a) the public and (b) staff since 27 June 2007; and what the (i) name of the firm employed to conduct the poll, (ii) purpose and (iii) cost to the public purse was in each case. [164956]

Mr. Dhanda: The information is as follows:

Since 27 June,

(a) there are ongoing surveys and research on homebuying reform. Work undertaken to date by GfK cost 40,000 plus VAT;

(b) the Human Resources Directorate conducted the second of four quarterly staff surveys. This was undertaken by Ipsos Mori at a cost of 37,000 plus VAT and measured staff opinions on a range of internal management issues.

In addition, we conducted a pilot employee engagement survey of 400 staff at a cost of £11,000 including VAT. This was undertaken by Ipsos MORI and will help the Department to assess the level of employee engagement and identify the key drivers which would increase engagement levels.

Homelessness: Expenditure

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent in the (a) Wakefield and (b) Hemsworth constituencies on homelessness by (i) central Government and (ii) local authorities in each of the last five years. [165143]

Mr. Iain Wright: Since 2003-04, the majority of the Government's homelessness grants have been allocated to local authorities to support them in their work on tackling and preventing homelessness effectively. Before that, the majority of funding went directly to the voluntary sector. We do however continue to provide homelessness funding directly to some voluntary sectors, where appropriate.

All local authority homelessness grants are allocated to individual councils and not constituency areas. It would be the responsibility of the local authority to spend this grant as it saw fit to tackle homelessness in its area.

The following table contains the level of revenue funding allocated to Wakefield metropolitan district council over the last five years in respect of homelessness.

Homelessness funding—Wakefield

| | Revenue funding allocated (£) |
|---|---|
| 2003-04 | 38,713 |
| 2004-05 | 38,000 |
| 2005-06 | 38,000 |
| 2006-07 | 72,000 |
| 2007-08 | 143,000 |

This year, we will also be providing Wakefield metropolitan district council with £20,000 under our Hostels Capital Improvement Programme for improvements to Castledene hostel.

Housing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what assessment she has made of the likely effect on energy efficiency standards of proposed changes to grant levels for private sector housing renewal; and what discussions she has had with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on this matter; [167884]

(2) what recent discussions she has had with the Department of Health on her Department's new proposals for private-sector housing renewal. [167883]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are no new proposals for private-sector housing renewal policy. ODPM circular 05/2003 "Housing Renewal" includes advice on how local authorities should link their housing renewal policies with social care, health, fuel poverty and energy efficiency strategies. My Department has allocated £10.2 billion for regional housing funding for 2008-11 for housing capital programmes, including those which address the condition of private- sector housing stock.

No final decisions have been made on funding for private-sector housing renewal. We are currently considering advice from the regional assemblies on funding priorities for their areas.

Housing: Construction

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to ensure the availability of (a) skills, (b) manpower and (c) materials to meet the target for building new homes; how she plans to ensure timely planning decisions are taken on those homes; and if she will make a statement. [165862]

Mr. Iain Wright: Chapter 11 of our 'Homes for the Future' Green Paper set out how Government intend to build capacity to meet the skills and construction challenges in supporting housing growth, while also supporting local people's skills needs. Officials in my Department and the Departments for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS), and for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR), are working closely with the main built environment sector skills councils (SSCs) and other partners to take forward these commitments to ensure that we have the skills needed to support our plans for housing growth. In addition we will consider the implications for skills of the Callcutt review of housebuilding delivery, and what if any further actions may be needed.

Chapter 2 of the Green Paper sets out how the planning system can support the goal of 240,000 new homes every year. Our White Paper "Planning for a Sustainable Future" also made clear that increasing the supply of housing is a key outcome for planning.

Housing: Digital Broadcasting

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of properties (a) newly built and (b) refurbished under the housing market renewal pathfinder projects have been equipped with communal digital television systems. [168998]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Housing: Domestic Safety

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many assessments were made in respect of (a) private and (b) social housing under the housing health and safety rating system in each local authority during 2006-07. [167570]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on housing duties in respect of households in properties in the (a) private, (b) registered social landlord and (c) local authority sectors which have been assessed as representing a category 1 hazard under the housing, health and safety rating system. [167582]

Mr. Iain Wright: The document "Housing Act 2004 - Enforcement Guidance: Part 1 Housing Conditions" (published 26 May 2006) sets out the legal situation, and what the Department expects of local authorities enforcing the housing health and safety rating system (HHSRS).

With regards to local authority housing stock, local authorities, as landlords, also need to ensure that their homes meet the decent homes standard. A home cannot be classed as decent if one or more category 1 hazards are present. The document "A Decent Home: Definition and guidance for implementation" (published 7 June 2006) provides guidance on this.

Housing: Overcrowding

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will add to her Department's Public Service Agreement 20 performance indicators on (a) the number of families with children living in overcrowded housing and (b) the number of social rented homes to be built in 2008-09 and 2009-10. [163157]
